First Cavalry Division (Airmobile) Arrives

20,000 LANDING IN VIET NAM

QUI NHON, Viet Nam, Sunday (AP)—Combat troops of the U.S. First Cavalry Division (Airmobile), 20,000 strong and direct from the United States, were pouring ashore at this government-held area on the South China Sea today.

In Washington, a Pentagon spokesman said it was the largest single U.S. Army troop movement in the Viet Nam War.

The first of four aircraft carriers, six troopships and ten cargo ships are standing off Qui Nhon's bay.

Major elements of the "Flying Horsemen Division" already have established a base camp. One of the earlier arrivals last month, an Army major, was killed Aug. 17 but this has not been announced officially.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam, visited Qui Nhon today and met seven hundred soldiers, mainly helicopter mechanics, as they unloaded from the carriers to "Blue Beach" in Qui Nhon.

The aircraft carrier Boxer arrived Friday and began unloading many of the 428 helicopters that the battle-ready First Cavalry Division will use.

It has been described by U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as an entirely new approach in the concept of land war.

Military experts say it is much more effective than a normal infantry division in the art of mobile defense in rough terrain, such as in South Viet Nam.

McNamara has said the division would exploit the "principle of surprise to an unprecedented degree" and be able to fight battles of movement. The division is capable of ranging swiftly to places where it is needed rather than being used as a security force to protect a fixed, static position.

Unlike U.S. Army ground units, the airmobile division lacks organized armor and medium and heavy artillery.

Preparations for the arrival of the First Cavalry Division have been under way for weeks in this coastal city 260 miles northeast of Saigon. Advance elements of the units landed several weeks ago.

The airmobile division was ordered to Viet Nam by President Johnson July 28 as part of the announced U.S. buildup to 125,000 men. The division was created less than three months ago in a new effort to deal with the problems of guerrilla warfare with a unit able of going into battle entirely by helicopter.

Hundreds of helicopters will be available to carry the division's paratroopers and infantrymen into combat. U.S. military planners believe the division's speed and maneuverability will prove ideal in fighting in the jungles and mountains of Viet Nam.

The division formally came into existence July 1 under the designation 1st Cavalry Division (Airmobile) after a study of three years authorized by McNamara. The air-mobility concept underwent extensive tests at Ft. Benning.

The men are expected to be deployed in South Viet Nam's central highlands where U.S. forces are being progressively strengthened. Performance of the 1st Cavalry Division is being watched closely by Army planners as they consider whether to create a second such force.

The carrier Boxer that sailed from Mayport, Fla., Aug. 15 was packed with helicopters ranging in size from the giant flying cranes that can lift 65 people, down to the small two-seater Sioux.

Hurricane Deaths May Soar to 200

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The full tragedy of Hurricane Betsy unfolded grimly Saturday as the death toll rose past 50 victims and damages soared into uncounted millions. The coroner feared 150 to 200 lives may have been lost in New Orleans alone.

At President Johnson's command, Army and Navy forces joined weary, groggy Louisiana rescue squads in a desperate struggle to find and care for survivors of Betsy's onslaught.

A ragtag armada of boats worked in the area of gravest concern—along the Mississippi River and an industrial canal east of New Orleans. This sprawling suburb of more than 3,000 homes was ravaged by floodwaters from a broken levee.

The onrushing waters were a burial ground for men, women and children who failed to scramble fast enough to safety on rooftops and in trees early Friday when Betsy roared in from the gulf with 150 mile an hour winds.

Louisiana already counted 38 hurricane dead, most of them victims of flooding here. The Orleans Parish (county) coroner's office had 30 bodies with more coming in steadily.

"We'll catch hell on Monday and Tuesday," said Dr. Nicholas Chetta, the coroner.

He explained that rescue teams in boats cruising the flooded areas can only tie up floating bodies to trees, rooftops and posts for recovery later after the living

LBJ Orders Union End Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson took executive action Saturday night ordering an end to a sudden strike against the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway.

Johnson, acting under the National Railway Labor Act, signed an order creating a special presidential board to investigate the dispute. It also barred either the railway or the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen from any actions to further the dispute.

The make-up of the three-member emergency board was not announced immediately by the White House.

* * * *

HOWEVER, the board has 30 days in which to conduct hearings and make recommendations to Johnson. After that, any strike action is barred for 30 more days.

The trainmen called the strike shortly after midnight Saturday, shutting down the 13,000-mile line. Approximately 6,000 workers walked out in protest over working conditions.

Brotherhood President Charles Luna said the strike was "completely effective."

Johnson said in his executive order that the strike action was "threatening substantially to interrupt interstate commerce" and would deprive a major sec-

State Poll Shows Reagan Top GOP Governor Choice

According to an extensive public opinion survey conducted by The State Poll, Ronald Reagan is the current leader for the 1966 Republican primary nomination for governor.

The impetus of a series of television broadcasts and the active backing of the more conservative wing of the GOP have given Reagan the support of a solid one-third of the registered Republicans.

The State Poll, using its normal scientific statewide sample of the voters of California, conducted this survey during the first few days of September.

The registered Republicans among the respondents included in this survey were handed a card listing the seven potential GOP gubernatorial candidates. Carrying only the candidate's name and probable ballot designation, the cards varied from each other only in rotation of the names. The cross section of Republicans voted as follows:

	TOTAL	SOUTH	NORTH
Ronald Reagan	34.2%	35.9%	31.6%
Thomas Kuchel	20.6%	19.1%	22.8%
George Christopher	15.9%	8.1%	28.0%
Goodwin J. Knight	8.4%	9.6%	6.6%
Joseph C. Shell	2.9%	4.8%	0.0%
Warren Dorn	0.3%	0.5%	0.0%
Laughlin Waters	0.2%	0.3%	0.0%
Don't Know	17.5%	21.7%	11.0%

Utilizing a separate approach, the same voters were asked to select their first, second and third choice from among the seven candidates.

Reagan again leads in the following manner:

	1st	2nd	3rd	CUMULATIVE
Reagan	375	96	30	501
Kuchel	225	100	37	362
Christopher	183	124	43	350
Knight	96	94	41	231
Shell	33	78	30	141
Dorn	6	22	13	41
Waters	0	2	1	3
Don't Know	117	174	150	441

The cumulative total represents a weighted process which gives the most weight to the first response and less weight to the alternative responses, so that the cumulative total represents an across-the-board assessment of each candidate's strength.

Thus, it would appear that Reagan leads the field in first-choice support, while Christopher has more second and third choice support than any other candidate.

Riot Hearing Due to Open This Week

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — John A. McCone, former head of the Central Intelligency Agency, announced Saturday his blue-ribbon commission on the South Los Angeles riots will begin its hearings this week.

Gov. Brown, who appointed the eight-man investigating commission, will be one of the intial witnesses in the closed sessions.

Dates and places for the hearings were not disclosed.

Police Chief William H. Parker, a target for criticism by many Negroes, also was named as one of the first witnesses.

* * * *

OTHERS NAMED were: Mayor Samuel Yorty, County Sheriff Peter Pitchess, California Highway Patrol Commissioner Bradford Crittenden, Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., and Lt. Gen. Roderic Hill, whose National Guardsmen were called into duty to quell the riots that began last Aug. 11.

A spokesman for McCone said the commission will conduct "a thorough and impartial investigation into all of the circumstances surrounding the riots."

McCone said subsequent hearings will be scheduled by the commission as its inquiry progresses.

RESERVOIR BURSTS

72 Houses Hit by Muddy Gush

NEWHALL (AP)—A rumbling, muddy wall of water gushed from a break in a temporary reservoir Saturday, cascading downhill to inundate 72 homes in a new retirement community.

Sheriff's deputies said there were no injuries, and that only three of the damaged homes in the Friendly Valley tract were occupied.

The superintendent of construction, Andy Anderson, estimated damage to the 72 homes at $100,000. The homes had been carpeted and were ready for occupancy, he said.

* * * *

"IT WILL cost another $20,000 just to remove the mud from yards and underground pipes," he said.

The temporary reservoir is about a mile from the community and 500 feet higher. It has been used in the past few months to store 2 million gallons of water for use in construction of a nearby development. Most of it poured through a hole which opened on one side of the dam.

"I can't understand why it broke," said Dick Hixon, spokesman for the owners of the reservoir. "It was built in a natural bowl. It was approved, met all specifications."

* * * *

WHEN THE wall of the reservoir gave way in the early morning hours, water rushed down an empty canyon to the south of the owners' development, flowed across Sierra Highway, then spilled into the retirement community.

Police said the masked duo was the same that robbed the Rebel Club, 1296 W. Willow St., of $119 Friday night.

The bandits, their heads covered with black hoods, walked into the bar about 11 p.m. and took $70 at gunpoint. Witnesses told police both men were armed with revolvers.

FIERCE BATTLE RAGING FOR KEY PAKISTAN BASE

Tank Columns Clash in Fighting Over Kashmir

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Indian troops pressed Saturday toward the key Pakistan military base of Sialkot in one of the fiercest battles of the undeclared war. Both sides threw heavy armored columns into the fighting.

An informed source here said Indian soldiers were closing in on the base from the Kashmir city of Jammu, 50 miles away, and from positions on the Ravi River 30 miles east of Sialkot.

It was believed that if the Indian forces converged at Sialkot, Pakistani defenders would be cut off from moving northward to the Pakistani communications and military center of Wazirabad.

(In Karachi, a Pakistani government spokesman said Pakistan Saturday "turned the tables" on the Indian army and pressed well beyond Khem Karan three miles inside Indian territory and 10 and 11 miles in other Indian sectors. Pakistan said it had knocked out 36 Indian tanks in the Sialkot area and Indian prisoners are "coming in by the hundred.").

Both sides reported sharp fighting between armored columns, supported by planes, in a war of attrition along the border between India and West Pakistan. An Indian spokesman said two high-ranking Pakistani officials had been killed in the fighting.

The Indian counterattack, coming after a series of severe reverses, was reported on a 30-mile wide front between the Pakistan border towns of Kalhara and Kasur, south of Lahore.

L.A.C. Says:

'Younger Viewpoint But Not Experience

The complacency shown by most of our population over unbalanced budgets, the expanded welfare state, and violence should concern all of us. But—as one historian has said—you cannot properly evaluate what is going on unless you have lived in generations when conditions were much different. You do not absorb it from books. You can understand what a depression is only by having lived through one. You cannot understand the ravages of war unless you were a part of a major war.

It is probable this widespread complacency is due to the fact that the majority of our people were not here during the 1930's depression, or World War I, and that 64% of those now living do not remember prohibition. Few of our present population remember the 1930's when unemployment was never below 14% of our work force. They cannot compare these conditions and do not seem to believe they can ever happen again. But the older people can remember them and have good reason to fear the inflationary forces that preceded these tragedies.

An idea of these population changes is given in the August Kiplinger magazine. It says:

" 'What's a depression like?' Over 60% of the people in the United States can't tell you—they weren't even born when the boom fell on business in 1929.

" 'What happened when Hitler's panzers smashed across the Polish plains?' Almost half the population have to depend on the history books to find out.

" 'How did it feel when news of Hiroshima broke?' More than four out of ten don't know since they weren't around when the mushroom cloud rose into the Hiroshima sky.

" 'What did the headlines say when the Chinese battalions rolled MacArthur's men back from the Yalu?' One-third of the population can't remember because they weren't here to read them.

"The point of all this: The times change, the new generation arrives. Four out of ten Americans are less than 20.

At no time in the world's history has any civilized nation had so ample a resource of youth for investment in the future. In a relatively few years they will begin to make their impact on industry, government, education, the arts and all the other enterprises of man. From them will emerge new ideas and advanced technologies. From them also will come the world of the 70's and 80's. How well they perform in this responsibility may depend on how well they learn the lessons of the past conveyed to them by those who are called the Older Generation.

It is common for the older generation to view new changes with alarm. The great growth over the past 35 years has brought us our greatest prosperity and comfort. Many welfare changes such as Social Security pensions, job security, and many other programs have given comfort to millions who otherwise would be destitute. These are all desirable changes and the younger people should appreciate them. They should also take advantage of the experiences of the older people who have largely been responsible for the growth and changes that have occurred. But they should also take heed of the warnings that unless people accept individual responsibility to do their part in working to protect these benefits, they can be quickly lost. But of course that is only an older person's view.—L.A.C.

Viet Talks Not Likely, Says Soviet

LONDON (AP) — Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin offered little hope for early negotiations on Viet Nam during an 80-minute talk with Canadian-born newspaper magnate Lord Thomson in the Kremlin.

The London Sunday Times Saturday night issued a paraphrased version of the copyright interview which appears in today's editions of the paper.

It said that during the interview, Kosygin criticized Prime Minister Harold Wilson for giving all-out support to the Americans in Viet Nam.

"Analyzing the situation there he (Kosygin) offered no hope for early negotiations except on the terms already proposed by the North Vietnamese," the Sunday Times said.

"He added, however, that these terms did not represent an 'ultimatum' — a hint that there might be some flexibility in these terms. He made a bitter attack on the American conduct of the war, indicating a deterioration in Soviet-American relations."

* * * *

THE TALK between Lord Thomson and Kosygin this week was also attended by Henry Brandon, Washington correspondent of the Sunday Times.

The paper said that during the talk "Kosygin delivered a warning to Britain that our (Britain's) foreign policy was going against the improvement of relations with Russia."

"The joint nuclear force, he said, was a policy of enmity towards Russia, and England was the main country striving for it."

Seize 3 Robbery Suspects

Two Long Beach men and a 14-year-old boy were captured by police Saturday morning after a high-speed chase through two cities following the robbery of a service station attendant in Monterey Park.

Booked in Monterey Park jail on suspicion of armed robbery were William Cardenas Jr., 25, of 503 W. 6th St., and Robert Earl Lyons, 19, of 856 Elm Ave. The boy, from Hollywood, was turned over to sheriff's juvenile officers.

* * * *

POLICE SAID the trio, with Lyons driving the getaway car, robbed the station attendant at 430 Monterey Pass Road, shortly before 7 a.m.

Officer Ray Engler spotted the auto five minutes after the holdup and pursued while radioing for assistance.

Alhambra police finally stopped the car in their city at 7:15 a.m., approximately two miles from the scene of the robbery.

Officers said Cardenas wielded a small automatic as he and the boy rifled a cash register and floor safe in the station of $380. The money was recovered, they said.

First runnerup was Miss Mississippi, Patricia Puckett, 20.

Miss Indiana, Eileen Smith, 18, was the second runnerup in the pageant finals watched by a crowd of 18,000 in Convention Hall and millions more on television.

Carol Blum, 21, Miss Florida, was third runnerup and Sharon Dharon Singstock, 20, of Wisconsin was the fifth of fine finalists selected from a field of 50.

Miss Bryant won the swimsuit competition Friday night in a sunflower yellow swimsuit which had to be hastily purchased in Atlantic City this week because pageant officials outlawed the shimmering gold lame suit she wore in the Miss Kansas competition.

Study Notes Dictatorship Threat to U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A task force of political scientists asserted Saturday that the American people are creating a "veritable threat of dictatorship" by exalting the office and person of the presidency.

Reporting on a study of the present role of Congress, the 13 scholars said "the road to a bureaucratic state and a kind of monarchic government will be opened up" if congresional power is not strengthened.

* * * *

THEIR STUDY was sponsored by the American Enterprise Institute for Public policy Research under the direction of Dr. Alfred De Grazia, professor of government at New York University. Results of the summer project are to be published in a book later this year.

The institute describes itself as a nonpartisan, nonprofit educational institution specializing in legislation and major public issues.

De Grazia, speaking for his colleagues, said the public had created or worsened three problems in its attempts to deal with poverty, health and safety, civil rights, education, foreign relations, improvement of neighborhood life and other demands.

* * * *

ONE PROBLEM, he said, is "the danger represented by excessive reliance for the handling of all issues on escalating bureaucracy consisting of huge agencies of permanent civil servants who are not made effectively responsible to the larger society."

A second problem is "a kind of creeping militarism that emerges through over-secrecy, over-control and over-excitement" in dealing with foreign relations, he said.

De Grazia also warned of "the increase of presidential personalism, the exaltation of an office above its stated powers and the capacities of the human incumbent."

This, he said, "poses a veritable threat of dictatorship—or whatever one may wish to call the phenomenon of the people's overly great dependence upon the magical qualities of a person occupying an outstandingly prominent office."

L.A.C. Says:

Younger Viewpoint But Not Experience

The complacency shown by most of our population over unbalanced budgets, the expanded welfare state, and violence should concern all of us. But—as one historian has said—you cannot properly evaluate what is going on unless you have lived in generations when conditions were much different. You do not absorb it from books. You can understand what a depression is only by having lived through one. You cannot understand the ravages of war unless you were a part of a major war.

It is probable this widespread complacency is due to the fact that the majority of our people were not here during the 1930's depression, or World War I, and that 64% of those now living do not remember prohibition. Few of our present population remember the 1930's when unemployment was never below 14% of our work force. They cannot compare these conditions and do not seem to believe they can ever happen again. But the older people can remember them and have good reason to fear the inflationary forces that preceded these tragedies.

An idea of these population changes is given in the August Kiplinger magazine. It says:

"'What's a depression like?' Over 60% of the people in the United States can't tell you—they weren't even born when the boom fell on business in 1929.

"'What happened when Hitler's panzers smashed across the Polish plains?' Almost half the population have to depend on the history books to find out.

"'How did it feel when news of Hiroshima broke?' More than four out of ten don't know since they weren't around when the mushroom cloud rose into the Hiroshima sky.

"'What did the headlines say when the Chinese battalions rolled MacArthur's men back from the Yalu?' One-third of the population can't remember because they weren't here to read them.

"The point of all this: The times change, the new generation arrives. Four out of ten Americans are less than 20.

At no time in the world's history has any civilized nation had so ample a resource of youth for investment in the future. In a relatively few years they will begin to make their impact on industry, government, education, the arts and all the other enterprises of man. From them will emerge new ideas and advanced technologies. From them also will come the world of the 70's and 80's. How well they perform in this responsibility may depend on how well they learn the lessons of the past conveyed to them by those who are called the Older Generation.

It is common for the older generation to view new changes with alarm. The great growth over the past 35 years has brought us our greatest prosperity and comfort. Many welfare changes such as Social Security pensions, job security, and many other programs have given comfort to millions who otherwise would be destitute. $7.4 Million to Help L.A. Youths OKd

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Approval of a $7.4-million federal antipoverty grant to the newly formed Economic and Youth Opportunity Agency of Los Angeles County was announced Saturday by Gov. Brown.

The governor said the grant marked the first funds channeled through the new community action organization created through the efforts of Undersecretary of Commerce Leroy Collins.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Johnson sent Collins to Los Angeles at Brown's request in the early stages of the Watts riot. Failure of the city and county to implement programs to take advantage of federal antipoverty funds has been blamed with helping to touch off the violent uprising in Negro sections of the city.

Brown also praised Deputy U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and Sargent Shriver, head of the Office of Economic Opportunity for "cutting through red tape and starting funds flowing for urgently needed antipoverty programs in the Los Angeles area."

* * * *

CLARK headed a federal task force sent by Johnson to investigate the antipoverty-program breakdown in Los Angeles.

The grant will provide funds for preschool programs, student-achievement centers, home-management programs and preschoolchild and parent education classes among others.

Teaching Pioneer of L.B. Dies

The schoolteacher who pioneered kindergarten in Long Beach schools died in Santa Barbara last week at the age of 82.

Rhea E. Allen, who opened the first private kindergarten in the area in 1907, taught kindergarten in Long Beach until retiring after World War II.

* * * *

IN 1908 she opened the city's first public kindergarten on an experimental basis on American Avenue, now Long Beach Boulevard, near Fifth Street, according to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John C. Allen.

* * * *

MRS. ALLEN was a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, National Retired Teachers Association and California Retired Teachers Association.

Surviving are a son, Dr. John C. Allen, and a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Dean Hepp, both of Santa Barbara.

Private memorial services was held last week. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to First Church of Christ, Scientist, Benevolence Fund.

Blast, Blaze On Boat Burn Two Aboard

Two Los Angeles men were burned, one seriously, when their 25-foot cabin cruiser exploded and blazed Saturday in Cerritos Channel soon after taking on fuel.

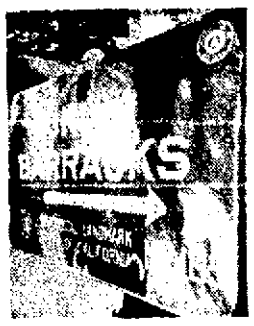

Richard Dedeaux, 24, owner of the boat, was admitted to St. Mary's Hospital with serious burns. Nurses said he was in fair condition.

His passenger, 23-year-old Phillip Cole, was treated at the same hospital for minor burns and released. The boat was a total loss.

$4.4 Billion Military Budget Set by France

PARIS (AP) — France plans to spend 22 billion francs ($4.4 billion) on its military establishment in 1966, an increase of 5.8% over this year. There was no indication of how much would go for arming the budding French nuclear force.

Troop Assembles in Front of Banning Mansion

The official dedication of a century-old Wilmington landmark as an historical site Saturday marked the kick-off in a drive to raise $100,000 to save the Civil War-era Drum Barracks from destruction.

A plaque placed by the California State Park Commission was dedicated at 2 p.m. with members of the Society for the Preservation of Drum Barracks officiating.

THE PUBLIC CEREMONY was highlighted by a cavalry performance of the mounted manual of arms by the Knott's Berry Farm Ghost Patrol, a group attired in Union Army costumes. The Fort McArthur 72nd Army Band provided music and Richard B. Iverson of the society accepted the plaque.

A fancy dress ball featuring antebellum costumes was held Saturday night in Banning Mansion. A grand march was led by George Watson, president of the Los Angeles Board of Harbor Commissioners, and Mrs. Watson.

The ceremonies at the barracks, named for Gen. Richard C. Drum, at 10th Street and Cary Avenue, will continue today with a posting of colors at 9 a.m. and military performances throughout the day. The barracks will be open to the public until 6 p.m.

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Approval of a $7.4-million federal antipoverty grant to the newly formed Economic and Youth Opportunity Agency of Los Angeles County was announced Saturday by Gov. Brown.

The governor said the grant marked the first funds channeled through the new community action organization created through the efforts of Undersecretary of Commerce Leroy Collins.

PRESIDENT Johnson sent Collins to Los Angeles at Brown's request in the early stages of the Watts riot. Failure of the city and county to implement programs to take advantage of federal antipoverty funds has been blamed with helping to touch off the violent uprising in Negro sections of the city.

Brown also praised Deputy U.S. Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and Sargent Shriver, head of the Office of Economic Opportunity for "cutting through red tape and starting funds flowing for urgently needed antipoverty programs in the Los Angeles area."

* * * *

The grant will provide funds for preschool programs, student-achievement centers, home-management programs and preschoolchild and parent education classes among others.

Teaching Pioneer of L.B. Dies

The schoolteacher who pioneered kindergarten in Long Beach schools died in Santa Barbara last week at the age of 82.

Rhea T. Allen, who opened the first private kindergarten in the area in 1907, taught kindergarten in Long Beach until retiring after World War II.

* * * *

IN 1908 she opened the city's first public kindergarten on an experimental basis on American Avenue, now Long Beach Boulevard, near Fifth Street, according to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John C. Allen.

* * * *

MRS. ALLEN was a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, National Retired Teachers Association and California Retired Teachers Association.

Surviving are a son, Dr. John C. Allen, and a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Dean Hepp, both of Santa Barbara.

Private memorial services was held last week. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to First Church of Christ, Scientist, Benevolence Fund.

Blast, Blaze On Boat Burn Two Aboard

Two Los Angeles men were burned, one seriously, when their 25-foot cabin cruiser exploded and blazed Saturday in Cerritos Channel soon after taking on fuel.

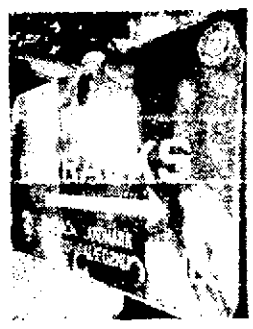

Richard Dedeaux, 24, owner of the boat, was admitted to St. Mary's Hospital with serious burns. Nurses said he was in fair condition.

His passenger, 23-year-old Phillip Cole, was treated at the same hospital for minor burns and released. The boat was a total loss.

$4.4 Billion Military Budget Set by France

PARIS (AP) — France plans to spend 22 billion francs ($4.4 billion) on its military establishment in 1966, an increase of 5.8% over this year. There was no indication of how much would go for arming the budding French nuclear force.

Troop Assembles in Front of Banning Mansion

The official dedication of a century-old Wilmington landmark as an historical site Saturday marked the kick-off in a drive to raise $100,000 to save the Civil War-era Drum Barracks from destruction.

A plaque placed by the California State Park Commission was dedicated at 2 p.m. with members of the Society for the Preservation of Drum Barracks officiating.

THE PUBLIC CEREMONY was highlighted by a cavalry performance of the mounted manual of arms by the Knott's Berry Farm Ghost Patrol, a group attired in Union Army costumes. The Fort McArthur 72nd Army Band provided music and Richard B. Iverson of the society accepted the plaque.

A fancy dress ball featuring antebellum costumes was held Saturday night in Banning Mansion. A grand march was led by George Watson, president of the Los Angeles Board of Harbor Commissioners, and Mrs. Watson.

The ceremonies at the barracks, named for Gen. Richard C. Drum, at 10th Street and Cary Avenue, will continue today with a posting of colors at 9 a.m. and military performances throughout the day. The barracks will be open to the public until 6 p.m.

Only now, nearly 48 hours after Betsy swept past, did the magnitude of the disaster begin to emerge.

The mass evacuation of more than a quarter million people ahead of the storm kept the death count below that of past hurricanes. But the devastation and human misery which awed President Johnson on a personal inspection here Friday night was unmatched in Louisiana's storm-scared history.

The federal government rushed emergency help men, food, medical supplies — to help this beleaguered city, its resources taxed to the utmost in rescuing and caring for flood refugees.

"You ask for it and you'll get it," Robert Phillips of the Office of Emergency Planning told city officials. He spoke as President Johnson's personal representative.

The Naval Air Station here opened old World War II buildings to house refugees who overflowed city shelters. The Army flew in field kitchens to help feed the swelling number of refugees.

Thousands of refugees from St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes — down river from New Orleans — poured into evacuation centers here. Much of these lowlying parishes were under up to 12 to 14 feet of water.

Adding to the misery of the rescue workers and the victims was the threat of bites from deadly water moccasins—blown in from the bayous and swamps.

Much of New Orleans remained without electric power or telephone service late Saturday. Supplies of dry ice were exhausted quickly as frantic housewives sought to save food in home freezers.

In addition to the dead in Louisiana, Betsy took seven lives in Florida, four in Arkansas and one in Mississippi.

The Orleans coroner's office presented a grim scene. Bodies were being tagged with notation as to where found with only partial autopsies being performed. Many of the victims had no identification.

Authorities decided not to open other morgues because people would have to go from place to place in an effort to identify bodies.

At present, bodies are being brought in one at a time. But the coroner said his divers are attempting to have bodies lined up at a street corner near the industrial canal and bring them in batches as the number of dead rises.

Helicopters whirled over the flooded sections of New Orleans throughout the day, landing wherever they could for quick evacuation of the sick and the pregnant.

The copters and the ragtag fleet of boats and trucks brought out about 35,000 people and were looking for more.

* * * *

TRUCKS and city buses moved the evacuees — men, women and children — from the point of debarkation to emergency shelters in New Orleans — the city hall, the municipal auditorium, schools, churches.

The Red Cross reported 45,000 people in emergency shelters—most of them flood victims, some of them people still unable to return to homes damaged by the winds.

The meeting between Phillips and the city officials came less than 24 hours after President Johnson made a flying trip to New Orleans and a two-hour tour of the devastation. The President declared Louisiana a major disaster area, opening the way to federal aid for hurricane victims.

Phillips told the city officials that Army units were en route from Ft. Sam Houston in Texas and Ft. Polk in western Louisiana.

"You'll have enough men, food, medical supplies — all the supplies necessary — to take care of 25,000 evacuees," Phillips said. The Red Cross said the Army units would bring five field kitchens, enough food to serve 360,000 meals, and equipment to purify drinking water.

In New Orleans, the cleanup moved ahead slowly. Broken glass was being swept off the sidewalks and streets. Loose power lines were being tied off. Telephone service was being restored slowly.

* * * *

DAMAGE estimates were hard to pin down. Richard P. Ellis, vice president of the New Orleans Insurance Exchange, said property damage may total $50 million.

Agriculture officials estimated the loss to cotton, rice and sugarcane crops at $30 to $40 million or more. Vast offshore oil and gas properties, abandoned in the face of the storm, hadn't been inspected yet.

Across most of the southern Louisiana and the Mississippi Gulf Coast, people were returning to their homes as Hurricane Betsy spun itself out to the north.

The flooding in St. Bernard Parish came as no real surprise to the people living in the lowlying area, but the extent of it—suddenly swollen by breaks in a levee — caught them unprepared.

Refugees' Plight Stuns Governor

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Gov. John F. McKeithen, visibly shaken by the plight of refugees from the flood-ravaged areas around New Orleans, ordered his aides to act at once Saturday to help the people.

"My God," he told local officials, "I didn't know you had a situation like this."

The governor flew here from Baton Rouge for an on-the-spot check of the wide area damaged by Hurricane Betsy's 120-mile-an-hour winds and swirling floodwaters.

He was stunned by what he saw.

Indonesian Office Stoned by Indians

NEW DELHI (UPI)—About 10,000 Indian students stoned the Indonesian Embassy and burned an effigy of President Sukarno Saturday to protest Indonesia's support for Pakistan in the current fighting.

The students shouted insults at Indonesian officials peering through iron-clad windows of the embassy and hurled a shower of stones at the building. A police cordon prevented any serious damages to the structure.

* * * *

It apparently was in retaliation for the sacking of the Indian Embassy in Jakarta Thursday by thousands of student members of the Indonesian government's Youth Front organization.

Meanwhile, the Indonesian News agency Antara reported renewed anti-Indian demonstrations in Medan and Surabaja. Antara said thousands of Moslem youths participated in the protests.

Tensions between the two countries have forced a temporary suspension of flights by air India to Indonesia. Indian Ambassador Perala Ratnam Saturday met with Indonesian Air Comunications Minister Partone in Jakarta and reportedly was asked for assurances of the safety of Indonesia's Garuda airlines flights through Bombay.

plete withdrawal of Indian forces, the introduction of a United Nations peace-keeping force from Afro-Asian countries and a plebiscite within three months in disputed Kashmir).

THE NEW DELHI spokesman said two Pakistani commanders—a major general and a brigadier—had been killed in action. He said four colonels, six majors and several other ranks had surrendered.

In the air, Pakistani warplanes struck into the far northeastern reaches of India, attacking a key river bridge in Assam on the invasion route from Red China. Indian government sources said Pakistani planes dropped "several hundred" paratroopers in key areas of Assam state.

A spokesman said the Pakistani planes were driven back after repeated attacks on the Brahmaputra rail and road bridge in Assam. Indian aircraft fire chased the intruders away and the bridge escaped damage, the spokesman said.

THE BRIDGE was built three years ago during the Chinese Communist invasion of India across the Himalaya to the edge of the Assam plain. Saturday's raid followed a Pakistani air attack on the Bagdogra Airport in the Himalaya foothills south of Tibet.

tion of the country of "essential transport service."

The Santa Fe management had appealed to the National Mediation Service to intervene in the strike and order the workers back to their jobs.

Walter More, vice president in charge of personnel and labor relations in Kansas City, said he asked for a 90-day cooling off period to be declared. He requested the mediation service to either take jurisdiction or set up a fact finding board.

* * * *

A RAIL spokesman in Chicago said the strike was over 10 or 12 disputes, out of 68, which remain unsettled.

BRT members went on strike against the Santa Fe's eastern and western divisions, which stretch from Chicago to Albuquerque, N.M., and run through seven of the nine states served by Santa Fe. From Purcell, Okla., south and Albuquerque west to California the line was not directly affected. But service was disrupted there since the eastern and western divisions slice between the gulf and west coast divisions.

Dr. Ralph C. Smedley, who founded Toastmasters International in 1924, died Saturday in Santa Ana. He was 87.

Active in the public speaking organization until his death, Smedley saw his idea grow steadily to its present rank of 80,000 members in more than 3,600 clubs.

Smedley was born in Waverly, Ill., on Feb. 22, 1878. He entered YMCA work in 1904 as educational director in Bloomington, Ill., a year after graduating from Illinois Wesleyan University.

* * * *

HE BROUGHT his ideas to California in the 1920's and organized the first Toastmasters chapter in Santa Ana.

In 1950, he was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of humane letters from his alma mater, and in 1955 the city of Santa Ana named a junior high school in his honor.

Among his numerous books are "The Amateur Chairman," "Speech Evaluation," "The Voice of the Speaker" and "The Story of Toastmasters."

Smedley, of 1122 Flaminian Way, is survived by his widow, Frances; a daughter, Mrs. James Betty Stephenson; and a brother, Frank.

Services will be held Tuesday, 2 p.m., at Smith and Tuthill Mortuary.

200 Ban-the-Bomb Marchers Banned

About 80 of the demonstrators managed to get close to the center, but they were moved out quickly. No arrests were made.

Africans Go on Ramage

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Riot-police with batons and shields guarded the Kampala Social Club Saturday night after 100 African demonstrators invaded the premises shouting "Wazungu (white men) go home."

Club members were sipping after-lunch drinks when two groups of 50 Africans stormed through the club, shouting, dancing and singing.

The demonstrators disbanded when a truck load of police arrived.

In 1950, he was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of humane letters from his alma mater, and in 1955 the city of Santa Ana named a junior high school in his honor.

Among his numerous books are "The Amateur Chairman," "Speech Evaluation," "The Voice of the Speaker" and "The Story of Toastmasters."

Smedley, of 1122 Flamlnian Way, is survived by his widow, Frances; a daughter, Mrs. James Betty Stephenson; and a brother, Frank.

Services will he held Tuesday, 2 p.m., at Smith and Tuthill Mortuary.

200 Ban-the-Bomb Marchers Banned

About 80 of the demonstrators managed to get close to the center, but they were moved out quickly. No arrests were made.

Africans Go on Ramage

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Riot-police with batons and shields guarded the Kampala Social Club Saturday night after 100 African demonstrators invaded the premises shouting "Wazungu (white men) go home."

Club members were sipping after-lunch drinks when two groups of 50 Africans stormed through the club, shouting, dancing and singing.

The demonstrators disbanded when a truck load of police arrived.

State Poll Puts Reagan at Top

both approaches he was then paired individually against each of the others and the results were:

	TOTAL	SOUTH	NORTH
Kuchel	40.9%	38.8%	44.1%
Reagan	44.9%	48.3%	39.7%
Don't Know	14.2%	12.9%	16.2%
Christopher	33.3%	27.3%	42.6%
Reagan	50.2%	54.5%	43.4%
Don't Know	16.5%	18.2%	14.0%
Knight	30.1%	33.5%	25.0%
Reagan	54.5%	54.5%	54.4%
Don't Know	15.4%	12.0%	20.6%
Shell	14.8%	15.8%	13.2%
Reagan	59.4%	57.4%	62.5%
Don't Know	25.8%	26.8%	24.3%
Dorn	12.5%	15.8%	7.4%
Reagan	60.6%	61.7%	58.8%
Don't Know	26.9%	22.5%	33.8%
Waters	7.2%	8.6%	5.1%
Reagan	62.9%	62.2%	64.0%
Don't Know	29.9%	29.2%	30.9%

An analysis of the results gained from the three approaches and from seventeen years of studying surveys, indicates to The State Poll that Reagan does have a substantial lead over any single candidate at this time. However, it is important to note that he is not yet the clear-cut choice of the Republicans.

His vote total is strikingly similar to the support received by Joseph Shell in the 1962 Republican primary and by Barry Goldwater in the 1964 California Presidential primary. On the other hand, Reagan distinctly is the candidate any other Republican must defeat to win the nomination.

Sen. Kuchel is Reagan's most formidable opponent. The survey of the pairing between these two men could conceivably change, either to the advantage or disadvantage of Reagan if Kuchel becomes an open candidate for the nomination. In addition to Kuchel, both former Gov. Knight and George Christopher, the former mayor of San Francisco, remain strong contenders because of the unknown attitudes of the "don't know" voters.

Included also in the survey were questions concerned with possible contests in the Democratic primary and an assessment of the image of Gov. Brown. Those interviewed were asked also to cast sample ballots in possible contests between the Democratic and Republican contenders.

In separate reports, there will be the results of questions which indicate the contrast between what the Supreme Court and the voters believe about reapportionment. In a new approach, The State Poll will analyze what the voters believe to be the two major political issues facing California today.

All these results and a commentary on the findings on the other subjects will be reported in this newspaper in the next few days.

Republican Meetings Dot Calendar as Vacation Ends

By BOB HOUSER
I. P-T Political Editor

Political activity—most of it Republican—resumes on a packed schedule this week after the summer vacation lull.

It's a week-long affair for eight GOP assemblymen of the Republican Action Team who will tour the state Monday through Friday telling Californians what "might have been" if Democratic majorities had not blocked GOP proposals in the State Legislature.

The team is comprised of chairmen of GOP caucus subcommittees, including Minority Leader Bob Monagan, of Tracy, and Minority Whip C. George Deukmejian, of Long Beach. Accompanying the team will be State GOP Chairman Dr. Gaylord Parkinson and Vice Chairman James Halley.

The group will hold a Thursday morning press conference in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Logan H. Goodknight and Mrs. J. Lloyd O'Donnell of Long Beach will attend a meeting of the national board of directors of the National Federation of Republican Women Friday and Saturday in New York City.

Mrs. Goodknight is president of the California Federation and a member at large of the national board. Mrs. O'Donnell is chairman of the national program planning committee. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon will address a Friday luncheon of the group at the New York World's Fair.

Redondo Man Hailed for Work on Gemini

Col. Richard C. Dineen will receive a meritorious award for program management for his work in the Gemini manned-space-flight program, the Air Force announced Saturday.

Col. Dineen, 45, of 708 Esplanade, Redondo Beach, is the director of Gemini launch vehicles at the headquarters of the Air Force command's space systems division in El Segundo.

Cuban Potato Crop: Three Million Sacks

HAVANA (AP) — The vice chairman of the National Agrarian Reform Institute, Raul Curbelo, told growers and officials at a rally to promote food production that the Cuban potato crop for the coming year should total three million 100-pound sacks.

Girl Falls in Old Cistern, Drowns

OSAGE, Iowa (AP) — A 5-year-old girl drowned Saturday when she fell into an old cistern nobody knew was there.

Dead was Lori Angell, daughter of former Mitchell County Sheriff Mervel B. Angell.

Authorities said the cistern had been concealed for years by an old porch of the Angell home. The porch recently was town down.

Lori and the other Angell children were playing in straw and other debris that had been under the porch. They told authorities Lori suddenly disappeared and "then we heard a splash."

Police Chief Edward Viskicel, summoned by Mrs. Angell, was lowered into the cistern by rope and brought out the girl. Efforts to revive her were unsucessful.

Angell, who resigned as sheriff last year to join the Osage Police Department, was downtown directing traffic at the annual convention of the Iowa State Firemen's Association.

Mrs. Angel said there was so much noise from fire equipment being demonstrated and the like that she had trouble on the telephone making anyone understand what had occurred.

FAA Certificates Japan Airliner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) has issued a type certificate of air worthiness for Japan's first post-war commercial airliner, the YS-11.

The certificate (issued to the Nihon Aircraft Manufacturing Ltd. of Tokyo) is a sign of approval coveted by aircraft manufacturers.

Colorful Way to Measure Pollutant

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—The state says it has come up with a colorful method of measuring auto contaminants.

In the process, air is trapped in water by a special device. Color-producing chemicals are added. The water then turns red, blue green or some other color, depending on what pollutant is being measured. The intensity of the color is measured electronically to show how much of the pollutant is in the air.

Cuban Potato Crop: Three Million Sacks

HAVANA (AP) — The vice chairman of the National Agrarian Reform Institute, Raul Curbelo, told growers and officials at a rally to promote food production that the Cuban potato crop for the coming year should total three million 100-pound sacks.

Girl Falls in Old Cistern, Drowns

OSAGE, Iowa (AP) — A 5-year-old girl drowned Saturday when she fell into an old cistern nobody knew was there.

Dead was Lori Angell, daughter of former Mitchell County Sheriff Mervel B. Angell.

Authorities said the cistern had been concealed for years by an old porch of the Angell home. The porch recently was town down.

Lori and the other Angell children were playing in straw and other debris that had been under the porch. They told authorities Lori suddenly disappeared and "then we heard a splash."

Police Chief Edward Viskicel, summoned by Mrs. Angell, was lowered into the cistern by rope and brought out the girl. Efforts to revive her were unsucessful.

Angell, who resigned as sheriff last year to join the Osage Police Department, was downtown directing traffic at the annual convention of the Iowa State Firemen's Association.

Mrs. Angel said there was so much noise from fire equipment being demonstrated and the like that she had trouble on the telephone making anyone understand what had occurred.

FAA Certificates Japan Airliner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) has issued a type certificate of air worthiness for Japan's first post-war commercial airliner, the YS-11.

The certificate (issued to the Nihon Aircraft Manufacturing Ltd. of Tokyo) is a sign of approval coveted by aircraft manufacturers.

Colorful Way to Measure Pollutant

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—The state says it has come up with a colorful method of measuring auto contaminants.

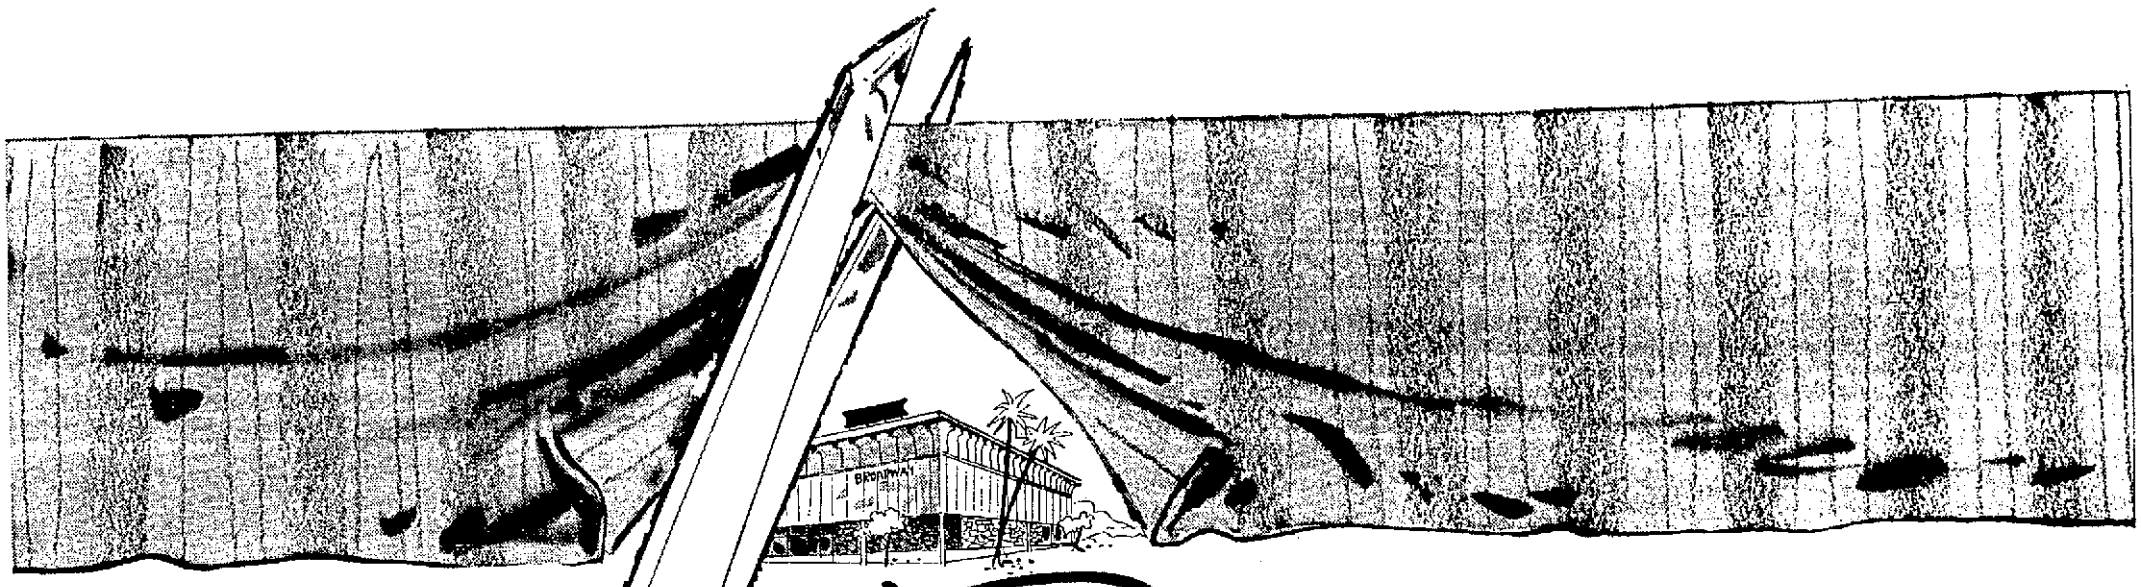

In the process, air is trapped in water by a special device. Color-producing chemicals are added. The water then turns red, blue green or some other color, depending on what pollutant is being measured. The intensity of the color is measured electronically to show how much of the pollutant is in the air.

TRICKY WEAPON

Tunnel War In Viet Nam

EDITOR'S NOTE—One of the trickiest weapons in the guerrilla's arsenal in Viet Nam is the tunnel. The Viet Cong use it masterfully to lay ambushes, defend villages or escape an attack.

This dispatch explains how.

SAIGON (UPI)—"There were about a dozen guerrillas, and as they ran into this house I started firing. I must have hit one because I saw him fall against the door post. One of the others pulled him inside.

"We had the place surrounded within a few minutes and I swear no one got out the back of that house. But when we came to search it there was no sign of those 12 men. They had completely disappeared.

"We burned the house to the ground, but we never found the tunnel entrance . . . There must have been one somewhere close by, though."

THE EXPERIENCE of Maj. Robert Ley, former U.S. adviser to the Da Nang Special Military Sector, is not unusual in Viet Nam.

American Army advisors can recount hundreds of similar instances when a force of guerrillas vanished just as it seemed they were surrounded and had no escape left.

The tunnel complexes of the Viet Cong have been well described in a recent book by Wilfred Burchett, an Australian communist who lives in Moscow and has reported the war from the Viet Cong side.

BURCHETT said he was taken one night to have a look at the fortifications of a communist village.

"The defenses consist of a maze of tunnels, about 20 miles in this one hamlet," he wrote, "leading into spacious fire positions which cover every approach. They are big enough for some one of Vietnamese size to run doubled up from one fire position to another . . ."

Burchett wrote that tunnel linked whole groups of hamlets. Some even had devices to partition off certain sections in case flame throwers or gas were used.

He claimed there were more than 4,300 such fortified villages in South Viet Nam when he visited there last year.

UPI CORRESPONDENT Martin Stuart-Fox, who has covered several engagements in which U.S. troops had to fight against entrenched guerrillas reports:

As soon as the roar of a helicopter engine or the scream of a jet is heard over a village the guerrillas make for their tunnels, disappearing through subtly camouflaged entrances. Every trace of the mens' presence is then carefully erased by the women folk. Afterward they take their children with them into the air raid shelters.

Tunnels can be built under a village or out in the open country. American Marines operating south of Da Nang recently found one tunnel under a cornfield hundreds of yards from any habitation.

They found the tunnel only because a guerrilla inadvertently poked his head up just as a Marine happened to be walking past. A demolition charge dropped down the hole killed five Viet Cong.

U.S. troops find it impossible to worm their way into these tunnels. The entrances and the first few yards are very narrow, just large enough for a small-statured Vietnamese to squirm through.

TO DIG complex sysytems of earthworks requires an enormous amount of labor. Peasants liberated from communist domination complain of being forced to dig all night and of being too tired to work in their fields during the day.

In a Viet Cong military report captured recently, even the regular forces were complaining of having too much digging to do, especially on an empty stomach after a day's forced march.

As the war drags on and the government forces become more adept at finding and destroying Viet Cong tunnels the guerrillas are forced to become even more ingenious in their construction of them.

Fake tunnels are dug for short distances to waste demolition charges and important ammunition caches and documents are hidden in inner tunnels which open through secret trap-doors from the other tunnels.

When the Second Brigade of the U.S. Army's First Division moved into position it sat down on a hornet's nest.

The troopers had hardly scratched out a foxhole before Viet Cong guerrillas began popping up all over the place with guns blazing.

"Old Charley Cong was sitting out there in a honeycomb of holes and tunnels and we moved right onto his homestead," one weary soldier remarked.

FOR ALMOST a week the guerrillas made life rough for the troops, popping up in unlikely places to snap off a few sniper shots and then disappearing. In a few nights of that kind of fighting the brigade lost several killed and dozens wounded.

But slowly and steadily—fighting by night and digging by day—the "Big Red One" troops cleared the dense brush and unearthed the trenches and tunnels of the Viet Cong.

Huge trucks with defoliating chemical machines sprayed the brush, and bulldozers scraped safety zones around the perimeter.

HOSPITAL TURNOVER RATE DOUBLED

Techniques Speed Patient Care

By LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—U.S. mental hospitals are treating nearly twice as many patients as they did 10 years ago—without a corresponding increase in beds.

This medical miracle was achieved by new treatment techniques, particularly the use of tranquilizing and antidepressant drugs, which sharply reduce the average patient's length of stay.

The Veterans' Administration, which pioneered the techniques, estimates they have saved the taxpayers at least $2.7 billion over the past decade in VA hospitals alone.

DR. THOMAS R. BREM

* * * *

THE MOST important result, however, is that far more people are receiving treatment.

Admission to the nation's 289 state and county mental hospitals rose from 178,000 in 1955 to more than 300,000 last year. But the number of patients resident in these hospitals on any given day declined during the same period from 559,000 to 490,000.

Admissions to VA hospitals for treatment of mental disorders rose from 35,000 in 1954 to 61,000 in 1964, the average patient population, instead of rising, declined slightly.

* * * *

DR. THOMAS R. BREM, chairman of the VA's Special Medical Advisory Group, says the figures are dramatic evidence of "the revolution which has occurred in the care of the mentally ill."

Since the advent of new drugs, he said, "the turnover rates in hospitals have about doubled, enabling the treatment of twice as many patients in the same number of beds."

(Dr. Brem, chairman of the department of medicine at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, is a former chief of the medical service at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital. He still is a consultant in internal medicine at the Long Beach facility.)

* * * *

THE NEW treatment techniques have also resulted in a sharp rise in the number of patients treated in the psychiatric wards of general hospitals in their own communities instead of being committed to mental hospitals.

Ten years ago, general hospitals cared for an insignificant fraction of the nation's mentally ill. By 1960, 600 general hospitals were accepting psychiatric cases, with an annual turnover of about 200,000 patients. Last year, 1,000 general hospitals treated 413,000 mental patients.

Outpatient clinics also are playing an increasingly important role. Their mental patient load has more than doubled in the past 10 years.

* * * *

THESE TRENDS will be accelerated by a new program which will channel $150 million in federal grants to states over the next three years for the construction of comprehensive community mental health centers.

Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, said he hopes that 500 to 700 such centers will be in operation by 1970. He said they will become the focal points of "a new national mental health program" which emphasizes keeping patients in their own communities instead of sending them to big state hospitals.

Each community will provide a variety of services, including inpatient hospital care, outpatient clinics, diagnostic services and part-time hospitalization for those who are able to work by day but need to return to a controlled environment at night (or, conversely, need hospital care during the daytime but can go home to their families at night).

* * * *

TREATING mentall ill persons in community centers will cost less than locking them up for long periods in "asylums" and will yield quicker improvement in their conditions, Dr. Yilles said.

At a community center, he said, "treatment usually begins earlier in the illness, when it is more effective." Also the treatment "is more intensive" than state hospital usually can offer, and it "avoids the trauma of separation from family and the stigma that committment to a state hospital frequently involves."

MASTERPIECE OF PRECISION

Annual SAC 'Game' Helps Keep Peace

By EVERETT W. HOSKING
I. P-T Sunday Editor

FAIRCHILD AIR FORCE BASE, Wash.—Stakes in the world's most serious game could be life or death for the free world.

The deadly game is the Strategic Air Command's annual bombing-navigation competition being held here through Friday. The affair gets under way tonight with a drawing to determine sequence of aircraft takeoff.

The competition is a masterpiece of precision, efficiency and planning. It is a test of men and machines.

"We compete so that a free world may live."

* * * *

ENTERED in this year's 14th annual competition are top bomb crews from each of SAC's 44 bombardment wings flying B47s, B52s and B58s.

They will strive to "clobber" a target in a remote section of the northwest United States. The target consists only of four geographical coordinates. The bombs themselves will be only radar blips that are carefully recorded by target crews in the area.

The actual target site will go untouched.

This year's competition will test the ability of the SAC crews to bomb at low level.

SAC's jet bombers have always been credited with being a potent threat from high altitudes, but now they are also recognized as equally capable of penetrating enemy defenses from low altitude.

Scoring bomb missions with radar permits crews to demonstrate their proficiency in the use of radar bombing against all types of targets. Navigator-bombardiers receive practice in recognizing factories, rail centers and other structures, used as reference points, as they appear on radar scopes.

In the bombing competition each crew will fly to identical missions against two radar bomb scoring mobile sites located at Williston, N.D., and Havre, Mont.

* * * *

THEY WILL make two simulated bomb releases against each site—a total of eight releases for the entire competition. Each simulated bomb release is actually an electrical signal to the site indicating at which point a bomb would be released in an actual combat mission. The site then computes electronically the accuracy of each particular mission. Each bomb run will be conducted at low level, although other parts of the mission will be graded on the accuracy of navigation at high level as well.

While flying low level missions, the SAC aircraft fly at subsonic speeds at least 3,000 feet above the highest point along the route. Even the supersonic B58 Hustler is throttled back to below the speed of sound to eliminate sonic booms.

No bombs will be carried by SAC bombers while on these missions.

The competition is a key factor in SAC's never-ending alert program — a program that keeps part of their mighty bomber fleet on seconds away from "go" and a large percentage of their aircraft in the air and on alert at all times.

* * * *

BECAUSE of the fine "edge" the crews maintain and the long hours that they work with precision flying and bombing—74 hours is their average work week—the spirit of competition is maintained throughout the year.

The wing winning the competition is presented the Muir S. Fairchild Trophy and individual members of the winning crew are given individual awards.

"The training we receive in these exercises and the boost in morale that the competition gives have been a big factor in making SAC the major deterrent to all-out war in the world today," says General Ryan.

"The lessons learned here, the tactics we cultivate will all have their effect on the troubled spots of the world.

"In addition the competition will give the public a glimpse of SAC's mighty bomber fleet in action. These are the same bombers, the same crews that are on constant alert. These, the manned bombers, are one of the prime factors in deterring any enemy from unleashing an attack on the United States."

Drought Damaging New York Vineyards

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A drought-related condition — never so widespread in New York state as this year — has damaged grapes in numerous vineyards in the Finger Lakes region.

Prof. John P. Tomkins, pomologist at the State College of Agriculture here, described the condition as "sunscald" or "drought injury." Affected grapes wilt, shrivel and die.

Wandering Wolf Goes Back to Pen

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A one-year-old wolf owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson returned home Saturday after wandering for 36 hours through the Calverton Park area of St. Louis County.

Wilson said the wolf, Chickle, is very friendly and apparently escaped from his pen early Thursday night. Calverton Park and Ferguson residents bolted their doors after hearing of the wolf's escape. Some citizens patrolled the streets armed with shotguns and looking for the reportedly friendly wolf.

Chickie came home and Wilson put her back in her pen with the five other wolves Wilson keeps as pets.

Wilson is disturbed about what his neighbors think of his pets and has indicated he may give the animals away.

Russ Opposed in Afro-Asian Summit Meet

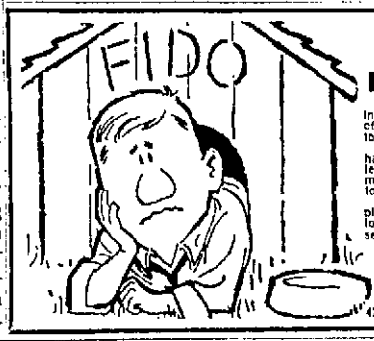

CAIRO, U.A.R. (UPI) — Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai Saturday was quoted by the Middle East Newsagency (MENA) as saying Peking would oppose Soviet participation in the Afro-Asian summit meeting "until the very end."

The conference starts at Algiers Nov. 5.

The Peking correspondent of the semi-official agency quoted Chou as saying the conference "concerns African and Asian countries and the Soviet Union is not among them.

"Therefore it has no right to participate in the conference," the Chinese leader said, according to MENA.

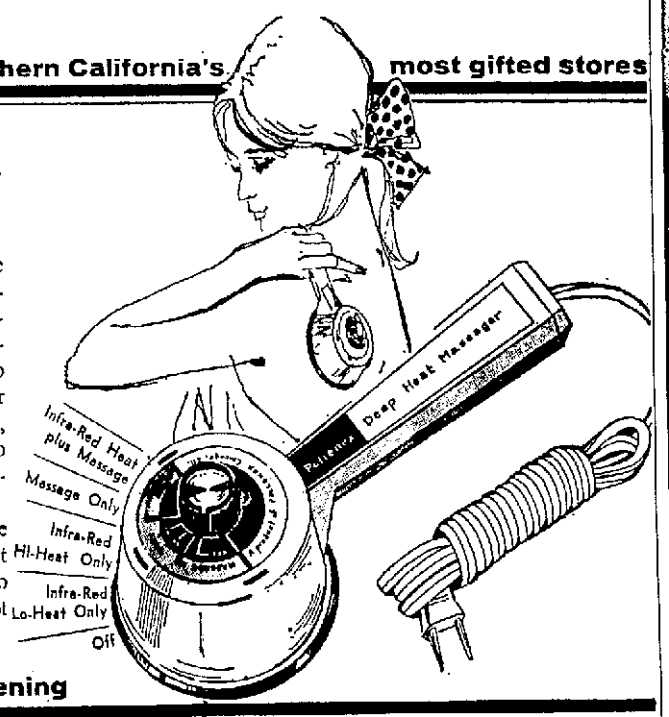

U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser was reported to have lent support to Soviet participation during his recent visit to Moscow.

Dropouts on Part-Time Jobs Advised to Put School First

School dropouts who have found temporary part-time jobs under the antipoverty program should drop the jobs rather than school, in the opinion of Mayor Edwin W. Wade.

He expressed this view Friday in emphasizing his hope that most of the 67 young dropouts hired by the city as part of the Neighborhood Youth Corps will go back to school when the season opens.

"Unless real economic hardship is involved, the choice should be clear," Mayor Wade said. "All the evidence shows that school is more important."

* * * *

THE MAYOR'S statement was part of a nationwide back-to-school movement. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey heads the campaign and asked for assistance of Long Beach officials in making it effective here.

City officials said that, wherever possible work schedules will be arranged so that Nelghborhood Youth Corps employes can retain their jobs while resuming their formal education.

They conceded this will not be possible in the case of high school dropouts, who constitute the majority of the corps.

* * * *

SOME OF the young people hired last June have already resigned to go back to school, according to Byron W. O'Neil, executive assistant to City Manager John R. Mansell. The extent of the movement won't be apparent for almost a week. The choice will be up to the corps members, for none will be discharged as the term starts, O'Neil said.

In supporting the back-to-school movement, Mayor Wade cited these facts on earnings, employment and nationwide scope of the dropout problem, as reported by Humphrey:

A college graduate earns two-thirds more than a high school graduate.

* * * *

THE HIGH school graduate earns three-fourths more than a person who did not finish eight years of school.

In July, 1965, the unemployment rate for young people was 12.3%, more than 2½ times that for all workers in the labor force.

The unemployment rate for school dropouts, age 16 to 21, is 16.6%, almost four times the national average.

The unemployment rate for everyone 18 years and over who did not finish high school is 6.6%, compared with 3.4% for high school graduates.

* * * *

IN OCTOBER of last year 14.1 million young people, ages 16 to 24, were out of school. Some 5.1 million were dropouts.

During the coming school year, more than 750,000 boys and girls will leave school without having attained a high school diploma unless something effective is done about it. Many will not even begin the new school term.

Six out of 10 of the nation's school dropouts are in the 16-to-17 age bracket.

If the problem of school dropouts continues at its present pace, 32 million adult non-high school graduates will be part of the potential labor force by 1975.

PASTOR'S BAR STINT AIDS DRIVE

LONDON (AP) — The Rev. Geoffrey Heal, pastor of the Anglican (Episcopal) Church of St. Chrysostom and St. Jude, went to work as a part-time bartender Saturday. His aim is to raise money for a church community center whose cost is estimated at $14,000.

"I enjoy pubs and the convivial atmosphere one finds in them," he told reporters. "Wherever there are people, there's Christianity."

Bartenders here make $1.12 an hour at which rate the community center will be a long time a-building.

Washington State's GOP Raps Birchers

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP) — Washington's Republican State Central Committee repudiated the John Birch Society Saturday on the ground that it fails to follow traditions of the party.

The committee, governing body of the GOP in Washington, voted 43-15 for a resolution saying "extremist groups such as the Birch Society" hurt rather than help the Republicans.

* * * *

THE RESOLUTION contained virtually the same language used by GOP Gov. Dan Evans Friday night when he invited right-wing extremists to leave the party.

(The National publicity director of the Birch Society, John Rousselot, said in San Marino, Calif., that Evans was "hysterical and misinformed" in his criticism of the society.)

The resolution outlined tests to be applied to splinter groups to determine whether they should be embraced or rejected by the party, and concluded the John Birch Society failed to meet the test.

* * * *

"SUCH GROUPS as the John Birch Society demonstrate by their methods, their leadership and their policies that they fail to meet the test and follow the traditions of the Republican Party," the resolution said.

"They do not contribute to its victory but to its defeat; they do not strengthen it but weaken it; they do not effectively promote conservative principles, they subvert them."

School dropouts who have found temporary part-time jobs under the antipoverty program should drop the jobs rather than school, in the opinion of Mayor Edwin W. Wade.

He expressed this view Friday in emphasizing his hope that most of the 67 young dropouts hired by the city as part of the Neighborhood Youth Corps will go back to school when the season opens.

"Unless real economic hardship is involved, the choice should be clear," Mayor Wade said. "All the evidence shows that school is more important."

* * * *

THE MAYOR'S statement was part of a nationwide back-to-school movement. Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey heads the campaign and asked for assistance of Long Beach officials in making it effective here.

City officials said that, wherever possible work schedules will be arranged so that Neighborhood Youth Corps employes can retain their jobs while resuming their formal education.

They conceded this will not be possible in the case of high school dropouts, who constitute the majority of the corps.

* * * *

SOME OF the young people hired last June have already resigned to go back to school, according to Byron W. O'Neil, executive assistant to City Manager John R. Mansell. The extent of the movement won't be apparent for almost a week. The choice will be up to the corps members, for none will be discharged as the term starts, O'Neil said.

In supporting the back-to-school movement, Mayor Wade cited these facts on earnings, employment and nationwide scope of the dropout problem, as reported by Humphrey:

A college graduate earns two-thirds more than a high school graduate.

* * * *

THE HIGH school graduate earns three-fourths more than a person who did not finish eight years of school.

In July, 1965, the unemployment rate for young people was 12.3%, more than 2½ times that for all workers in the labor force.

The unemployment rate for school dropouts, age 16 to 21, is 16.6%, almost four times the national average.

The unemployment rate for everyone 18 years and over who did not finish high school is 6.6%, compared with 3.4% for high school graduates.

* * * *

IN OCTOBER of last year 14.1 million young people, ages 16 to 24, were out of school. Some 5.1 million were dropouts.

During the coming school year, more than 750,000 boys and girls will leave school without having attained a high school diploma unless something effective is done about it. Many will not even begin the new school term.

Six out of 10 of the nation's school dropouts are in the 16-to-17 age bracket.

If the problem of school dropouts continues at its present pace, 32 million adult non-high school graduates will be part of the potential labor force by 1975.

PASTOR'S BAR STINT AIDS DRIVE

LONDON (AP) — The Rev. Geoffrey Heal, pastor of the Anglican (Episcopal) Church of St. Chrysostom and St. Jude, went to work as a part-time bartender Saturday. His aim is to raise money for a church community center whose cost is estimated at $14,000.

"I enjoy pubs and the convivial atmosphere one finds in them," he told reporters. "Wherever there are people, there's Christianity."

Bartenders here make $1.12 an hour at which rate the community center will be a long time a-building.

Washington State's GOP Raps Birchers

PORT ANGELES, Wash. (AP) — Washington's Republican State Central Committee repudiated the John Birch Society Saturday on the ground that it fails to follow traditions of the party.

The committee, governing body of the GOP in Washington, voted 43-15 for a resolution saying "extremist groups such as the Birch Society" hurt rather than help the Republicans.

* * * *

THE RESOLUTION contained virtually the same language used by GOP Gov. Dan Evans Friday night when he invited right-wing extremists to leave the party.

(The National publicity director of the Birch Society, John Rousselot, said in San Marino, Calif., that Evans was "hysterical and misinformed" in his criticism of the society.)

The resolution outlined tests to be applied to splinter groups to determine whether they should be embraced or rejected by the party, and concluded the John Birch Society failed to meet the test.

* * * *

"SUCH GROUPS as the John Birch Society demonstrate by their methods, their leadership and their policies that they fail to meet the test and follow the traditions of the Republican Party," the resolution said.

"They do not contribute to its victory but to its defeat; they do not strengthen it but weaken it; they do not effectively promote conservative principles, they subvert them."

Bogalusa Klan Handed Surprise

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The government surprisingly produced a list of 151 names—including Bogalusa's City Attorney Robert Rester—in federal court Saturday and said they were members of the Ku Klux Klan.

Minutes later the defense lawyers came up with another unexpected turn by resting immediately after the Justice Department concluded its case.

During the federal court proceedings, three black-robed federal judges called a reluctant witness off the stand and lectured him for five minutes.

The witness, Clayton Hines, who said he was former secretary of Klan unit No. 2 at Bogalusa, squatted on the dias behind the judge's chairs. Circuit Judge John Minor Wisdom and Dist. Judges Herbert Christenberry and Robert Ainsworth turned their backs to the courtroom and talked to him.

The typewritten list of names was introduced when the government called Hines as a surprise witness. Hines said he had been "sworn out" as a Klan member three or four weeks ago after serving as secretary for nearly a year.

Hines said he helped prepare the typewritten list "several months ago." Rester's name was on the list as a member of Hines' unit.

Vague Clue in Slaying

MANNY SKAR
Shot to Death

Skar, who rose from burglar to showplace motel impressario, was shot to death in the early morning as he stepped from his car in back of his Gold Coast home.

Police said four .38 caliber slugs knocked Skar on his back in the rear driveway of the plush apartment building where the 41-year-old admitted crime syndicate associate lived at 3800 N. Lake Shore Drive.

Lt. Glass said there were no suspects but friends and companions of Skar were being questioned in hopes of finding clues to his gangland-style slaying. Glass said ten detectives canvassed Kkar's neighborhood door to door to determine if anyone saw the shooting.

Returning from Eli's delicatessen on the North Side, Skar let his wife, Beatrice, 41, off at the building's front entrance and then drove his car to a car court where he was shot down.

Glass related that Mrs. Skar told police three men had followed their car from the delicatessen. She said the men, who drove a battered beige-colored automobile, followed Skar to the apartment's car court after he dropped her off.

Cosmonauts to Meet Astronauts

Plans here were for them all to get together Monday at the opening of the 16th International Astronautical Congress; but Washington reports indicated the Americans would be a little late.

The White House announced the Americans would meet with President Johnson Tuesday and then head for Athens — probably arriving Wednesday.

Rambler Strike Ends

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — The 11,200-member United Auto Workers local 72 ratified Saturday an agreement ending its record 20-day strike at American Motors Corp.

The firm said its production of 1966 Rambler automobiles would resume Monday.

No details were announced in the agreement, reached in a marathon 25-hour bargaining session that wound up only 22 minutes before the local's scheduled membership meeting Saturday.

The strike, idling a total of 17,000 workers in Kenosha and Milwaukee, had centered on grievances involving work standards and company disciplining of union stewards.

Sandberg Rests 'Comfortably'

The famed biographer of Lincoln was confined Friday in Margaret R. Pardee Memorial Hospital in Hendersonville, suffering from what his doctors termed "diverticulitis" — inflamation of the diverticulum, which is located in the abdomen.

Michener in Hospital

DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — James A. Michener, 58, whose "Tales of the South Pacific" novel won the 1947 Pulitzer Prize, was reported in satisfactory condition in Doylestown Hospital Saturday following a heart attack.

Dr. Charles Burmeister, Plumsteadville, Michener's physician, said the author was stricken in his home in nearby Tinicum, Twp. early Friday morning.

Gen. Hunter Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Brig. Gen. George B. Hunter (U.S.A.—Ret.) died Saturday at Letterman General Hospital at the age of 85 after a long illness.

Army Adding Centers for GI Training

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army is expected this week to announce plans for opening one or more training centers to handle recruits in its 235,000-man Viet Nam War buildup.

A spokesman told UPI Saturday that Ft. Benning, Ga., and several other camps were under consideration as locations. The others are believed to include Ft. Bliss, Texas and possibly Ft. Sill, Okla., and Ft. Hood, Texas.

Basic training is now given at Fts. Dix, N.J.; Knox, Ky.; Gordon, Ga.; Polk, La.; Leonard Wood Mo., and Ord, Calif. Specialized training is provided for WACS at Ft. McClellan, Ala., and for Medics at Ft. Houston, Texas.

* * * *

QUICK action to expand basic training is necessary because a sharply increased influx of recruits will be felt later this month.

The draft, scheduled to jump to 35,000 a month, has been revised upward from 17,000 to 27,400 for September and has been set at 29,000 for October.

It is expected that a new, 14,000-man Army division will be formed at Ft. Riley, Kan., and will be assigned responsibility for conducting its own basic training there.

One of three new 3,800-man brigades, at Ft. Devens, Mass., will also train recruits.

The other brigades will be formed in January and February at Ft. Campbell, Ky., and Ft. Benning, Ga., but have not yet been given a training responsibility.

The Army also has completed plans for a big expansion of its Officer Candidate School (OCS) program which is open to enlisted men who are at least high school graduates and can score high marks on intelligence and aptitude tests.

* * * *

THE PLAN calls for OCS training at Ft. Belvoir, Va. and Fts. Knox and Gordon as well as expansion of the present schools at Fts. Benning and Sill. Enrollments will total 11,700 annually compared to 3,400-a-year in the past.

If continued at the new rate, the OCS training will provide more than a third of the Army's officers. Others come from West Point, the Reserve and National Guard, and from appointments largely limited to college graduates.

The buildup is to increase the Army from 969,000 to just over 1,200,000 men. A total buildup of 340,000 will increase the combined armed forces to just over 3,000,000 men.

Accuse Man of $100,000 Stickup Job

Lakewood sheriff's deputies say a complaint will be filed Monday in Los Cerritos Municipal Court charging an escaped convict with the $100,000 holdup last April of the Lakewood May Co. store.

Being held in lieu of $100,000 bail is Odell Clarence Haston, 23, of Hawthorne.

Haston had been sought by law-enforcement officers since he and a companion, Donald W. McDowell, escaped from Chino State Prison in October, 1964.

* * * *

HASTON was arrested Friday afternoon when a dozen deputies from Lakewood, Lennox and headquarters surrounded an Inglewood automobile agency and waited for Haston to drive in his 1965 luxury auto for servicing.

Sgt. Sam Savage said Haston offered no resistance when he was captured.

Sgt. Savage said Haston is believed to be one of the two masked, armed bandits who terrorized several May Co. employes last April in a spectacular closing-time robbery of the May Co. department store.

* * * *

IN 1963, Haston and McDowell were sentenced to prison after pleading guilty to three armed-robbery charges. After their escape from Chino, McDowell was recaptured in Orange County and returned to confinement, this time in Soledad.

McDowell was not recaptured until after the May Co. holdup, deputies said.

By late Saturday, Haston had made no statements to deputies, they reported.

Window Forced, Apartment Entered

An apartment burglar took two wristwatches, three knives and $100 in cash Saturday in a break-in at the home of Christopher F. Wesenberg, 716 Lewis Ave.

Heavily Laden Thief Carries Coins Away

A prowler got $180 in change Saturday in a burglary at the Buckhorn Inn, 2835 E. Artesia Blvd.

Officer Louis Montini said the thief pried open a door and spent several hours looting various vending and amusement machines.

Nattily Attired Prowler Sought

Police were looking for a well-dressed car prowler in Long Beach Saturday after a tuxedo was reported stolen.

William Kolsky, 1031 Amelia Drive, told officers the tuxedo, valued at $175, was taken while his sports sedan was parked in the 2400 block on Santa Fe Avenue.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

U.S. Declares Neutral Stand on India-Pakistan

(Combined Wire Services)

President Johnson cut off U. S. military aid to India and Pakistan last week while United Nations Secretary General Thant sought to turn them away from all-out war.

The United States was in an unenviable position as its two friends in the crucial Asian subcontinent fought fiercely for the state of Kashmir, long a symbol of frenzied nationalism and religious passion.

The President declared a policy of strict neutrality and placed "a great deal of hope" on Thant's cease-fire mission, which Moscow also supported. But Pakistan's price, which India opposes, was a "self-determination" plebiscite among Kashmir's mixed religious population.

* * * *

FEAR of predominantly Hindu India taking over Kashmir, a lush territory rimmed by the Himalayas, has driven Pakistan's Moslem President Ayub Kahn away from the West and into close relations with Red China. This, in turn, has forced the United States to re-examine its once effective anti-Communist bulwark in Asia.

Ayub, even while receiving American planes and weapons himself, has been deeply angered by U.S. arms shipments to India, which got quick help from the West in 1962 when Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's troops crossed the Indian border.

Chou now has rushed to Pakistan's support. He branded India an aggressor hand-maiden of Washington and Moscow. But he stopped short of threatening an invasion. The U.S. State Department called his charge "nonsense."

* * * *

THANT, under U.N. Security Council directive, flew first to Rawalpindi for talks with Ayub, thence to New Delhi to meet with Indian Premier Shastri.

The undeclared war — marked by border skirmishes and aerial bombings —dashed America's long-range design for a Kashmir compromise and an Indian-Pakistani reconciliation. The last, like the freedom of South Viet Nam, is regarded as a prerequisite in keeping Red China from swallowing all Asia.

In Congress the House passed and sent to the Senate a $3.28 billion foreign military-economic aid appropriation after beating down Republican attempts to deny all assistance to India and Pakistan.

* * * *

IN VIET NAM meantime U. S. forces scored more gains, aided by Giant B52 bombers which blasted a heretofore untouchable Communist Viet Cong stronghold northeast of Saigon.

At home, South Florida and Louisiana were battered by hurricane Betsy, a monstrous storm that first pursued an erratic course up the Atlantic coast, then back-tracked to hit the Bahamas, Florida, and finally the New Orleans-Baton Rouge section of Louisiana and then Arkansas.

President Johnson flew over the New Orleans-Baton Rouge sections to get a first-hand picture of the devastation. Earlier he had dispatched damage survey crews to Florida.

Betsy lost her punch as she rolled Southeast of Alexandria, La., toward Arkansas. Hurricane warnings were lowered but cyclone signals were raised for states in Betsy's path.

On the legislative front, a bill to create a new cabinet-level department of housing and urban development.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, Ill., announced he would lead a Senate filibuster "until the snow falls" in an attempt to defeat Johnson's bill to nullify state right-to-work laws.

* * * *

DIRKSEN scored on another front. He forced the Senate Judiciary Committee to approve his constitutional amendment on state legislative reapportionment as the price of sending the President's House-passed immigration reform bill to the floor. The Senate already has defeated one such Dirksen amendment.

Congress sent to the White House for signature a $1.2 billion appropriation to finance Johnson's primary and secondary school aid program and other "great society" projects.

In Paris, French President Charles de Gaulle, still determined to oust the U.S. from military leadership in Western Europe, told reporters that by 1969 France will end its "subordinate" role in the North Atlantic Treaty defense alliance.

* * * *

THE 75-year-old leader has been demanding sweeping changes in NATO to end what he calls "placing our destinies in the hands of foreigners." He admitted, however, that he believes an alliance for European defense will be necessary for a long time to come.

In other news spheres, the Vatican announced that Pope Paul VI will fly to U.N. headquarters in New York Oct. 4 to appeal to world leaders for a lasting peace.

The nation's businessmen — and Johnson — heaved a collective sigh of relief when the big 10 steel companies and the AFL-CIO Steel Workers Union formally signed a 35-month wage contract. The union won an aggregate 47.3 cents-an-hour package over the term of the pact. Whether steel prices will be raised was conjectural.

The President's new national crime commission organized and agreed to make early recommendations on control of weapons and narcotics and on police administration "to strengthen the arm of law enforcement."

"God" died in Philadelphia. Father Divine, a cherubic Negro probably born as plain George Baker nearly a century ago in Georgia, expired Friday of the infirmities of age.

His demise occurred in a 32-room mansion known as the Mount of the House of the Lord, world center for Father Divine's Kingdom of Peace cult.

Most members of the Kingdom of Peace were Negro, but there were many whites and Father Divine fought unceasingly against racial segregation. His only survivor is a white woman, Edna Rose Ritchings, whom he married in 1946, three years after the death of his first wife. Miss Ritchings, then a 21-year-old Canadian stenographer, adopted the name "Sweet Angel" when she entered the cult.

Quotes of the Week:

"We are at war." President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

"I don't have to say I'm god, and I don't have to say I'm not god. I said there are thousands of people call me god." Father Divine.

Accuse Man of $100,000 Stickup Job

Lakewood sheriff's deputies say a complaint will be filed Monday in Los Cerritos Municipal Court charging an escaped convict with the $100,000 holdup last April of the Lakewood May Co. store.

Being held in lieu of $100,000 bail is Odell Clarence Haston, 23, of Hawthorne.

Haston had been sought by law-enforcement officers since he and a companion, Donald W. McDowell, escaped from Chino State Prison in October, 1964.

* * * *

HASTON was arrested Friday afternoon when a dozen deputies from Lakewood, Lennox and headquarters surrounded an Inglewood automobile agency and waited for Haston to drive in his 1965 luxury auto for servicing.

Sgt. Sam Savage said Haston offered no resistance when he was captured.

Sgt. Savage said Haston is believed to be one of the two masked, armed bandits who terrorized several May Co. employes last April in a spectacular closing-time robbery of the May Co. department store.

* * * *

IN 1963, Haston and McDowell were sentenced to prison after pleading guilty to three armed-robbery charges. After their escape from Chino, McDowell was recaptured in Orange County and returned to confinement, this time in Soledad.

McDowell was not recaptured until after the May Co. holdup, deputies said.

By late Saturday, Haston had made no statements to deputies, they reported.

Window Forced, Apartment Entered

An apartment burglar took two wristwatches, three knives and $100 in cash Saturday in a break-in at the home of Christopher F. Wesenberg, 716 Lewis Ave.

A prowler got $180 in change Saturday in a burglary at the Buckhorn Inn, 2835 E. Artesia Blvd.

Officer Louis Montini said the thief pried open a door and spent several hours looting various vending and amusement machines.

Nattily Attired Prowler Sought

Police were looking for a well-dressed car prowler in Long Beach Saturday after a tuxedo was reported stolen.

William Kolsky, 1031 Amelia Drive, told officers the tuxedo, valued at $175, was taken while his sports sedan was parked in the 2400 block on Santa Fe Avenue.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

U.S. Declares Neutral Stand on India-Pakistan

(Combined Wire Services)

President Johnson cut off U. S. military aid to India and Pakistan last week while United Nations Secretary General Thant sought to turn them away from all-out war.

The United States was in an unenviable position as its two friends in the crucial Asian subcontinent fought fiercely for the state of Kashmir, long a symbol of frenzied nationalism and religious passion.

The President declared a policy of strict neutrality and placed "a great deal of hope" on Thant's cease-fire mission, which Moscow also supported. But Pakistan's price, which India opposes, was a "self-determination" plebiscite among Kashmir's mixed religious population.

* * * *

FEAR of predominantly Hindu India taking over Kashmir, a lush territory rimmed by the Himalayas, has driven Pakistan's Moslem President Ayub Kahn away from the West and into close relations with Red China. This, in turn, has forced the United States to re-examine its once effective anti-Communist bulwark in Asia.

Ayub, even while receiving American planes and weapons himself, has been deeply angered by U.S. arms shipments to India, which got quick help from the West in 1962 when Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's troops crossed the Indian border.

Chou now has rushed to Pakistan's support. He branded India an aggressor hand-maiden of Washington and Moscow. But he stopped short of threatening an invasion. The U.S. State Department called his charge "nonsense."

HERSHEY 72

Puts In Good Word for Young

LEWIS B. HERSHEY
"Greetings . . .

By W. JOYNES MacFARLAN

Hershey has had the top hand in drafting more than 13 million young men for military service, an experience qualifying him for comment on what to expect from youth. He puts his feelings this way in a pre-birthday interview:

"I do not agree with those who say our kids are different than those of past years, except of course they lead a different sort of life.

"I believe kids will respond about as they always did. They have the capacity to do right if well led."

Hershey, now a lieutenant general, has headed a federal agency longer than any other man except FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

He has no plans to retire. He retired from the Army Dec. 31, 1946 and was ordered back to active duty the next day. His status is unusual, if not unique. The 70-year retirement rule that applies to civilians in government service does not apply to him.

Right now Hershey is busy with plans for his Selective Service System to provide whatever additional manpower the nation may need in its current and potential crises.

President Lyndon B. Johnson has announced that draft calls would be increased to about 35,000 a month, nearly six times what they were in 1963, to help meet the demands growing from the war in Viet Nam.

* * * *

HERSHEY said he sees no current need for any change in the deferment policies in order to meet the anticipated draft calls. But he thinks the groundwork should be laid now regarding how to tighten deferments.

Local draft boards throughout the country have been instructed to review the records of all married men classified as 1-A and bring them up-to-date, although no change has been made in the procedure under which these men are passed over automatically when reached on the induction list.

Should any within the ages of 19 and 26 be found no longer to be married, they face action by their local boards. Should any be found to have become fathers they are to be given deferments even though they may not have previously notified their boards. Men between the ages of 19 and 26 who married after midnight Aug. 26 will be subject to the draft on the same basis as single men.

The local boards also have been reminded that they have authority to seek transcripts of the school records of all students holding deferments to ascertain if the youths are carrying on their education in a manner satisfactory to the local board. Indications are that many local boards which have been granting deferments to part time students may discontinue the practice.

Lose 10-15 Lbs. a Month on New Air Force Diet

Often Called the Drinking Man's Diet

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special)—This is the revolutionary new low carbohydrate diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. It is known variously as the Air Force Diet, the Astronaut's Diet, the Airline Pilot's Diet, and sometimes popularly known as the Drinking Man's Diet. In effect, it allows you to drink all the liquor you want, enjoy formerly "forbidden" foods such as big steaks trimmed with fat, rich gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon, fats, sausages and scrambled eggs—and still lose 10-15 lbs. a month. This is the one diet that really works. Senators in Washington, D. C., and members of Parliament in Ottawa, Canada, report losing 40 to 50 pounds with ease. Women report equally startling results. Calories play no part in this diet. What you do is count your carbohydrate grams, and limit your starch and sugar intake to 60 grams daily. The reason for this is simple. When your body doesn't burn up all starches and sugars you eat, the excess carbohydrates quickly turn into unsightly fat. On a low carbohydrate diet your body is forced to call on its own fat (stored carbohydrates) for energy and thus you lose fat. When the fat is gone you will cease to lose weight, and your weight will remain constant. Counting carbohydrate grams is easy. The new Air Force Diet manual lists the carbohydrate content of over 1,500 foods and 50 alcoholic beverages. And gives the detailed rules to follow this new diet. It also gives typical low-gram menus that are every bit as pleasant as not dieting at all. The new Air Force diet manual was primarily designed for Air Force personnel to keep in fighting trim. But it has proven to be more than that. It has proven to be a Godsend for people who hate dieting—who find salad without dressing unbearable, eggs without bacon unthinkable, dinner without martinis uncivilized. In short, if you like to live well and have a weight problem, this new diet manual will change your life, as it has for thousands of others. Recently published as a private edition in Canada, the diet manual can now be obtained by sending $2 to AIR FORCE DIET, Room 511A, 92 King Street East, Toronto 1, Canada. Unconditional money back guarantee. If after trying the diet for 30 days you have not lost 10-15 lbs., simply return the diet manual and your $2 (plus postage) will be refunded promptly and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim attractive figure of your youth — while still enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners —and drinking all the liquor you want. Order now before others snap up the limited supply.

Ex-Judge Shot in His Home

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Former Bell County Judge and District Attorney Thomas Raymond Thornton was shot and killed Saturday at his Houston home.

Police said the man suspected of doing the shooting turned his pistol on himself as officers attempted to arrest him. The suspected assailant was taken to Ben Taub Hospital in critical condition with a gunshot wound in the head.

Bell County is in central Texas.

Police said Thornton, 38, was shot six times after an argument about money. He died at 11 a.m.

Thornton worked with a Houston group called Houston Action for Youth. He was a legal adviser to the organization.

Police said the mortally wounded Thornton was still able to speak as he was rushed to the hospital.

Officers said Thornton told them that the man who shot him was Bruce Raybuck, 30.

When officers went to Raybuck's home, he fired one shot at them and then shot himself with a .32 caliber pistol. A suicide note was found at Raybuck's house, police said.

Calls for 90c Check, 28 Years After

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Eldridge Moss dropped by city hall recently and asked for the 90-cent paycheck the city has owed him for 28 years.

Moss said he worked one day for John Gaston Municipal Hospital in 1937 but never picked up his check. The comptroller's office verified the claim. The amount due Moss was based on his old $27 monthly salary. A city commission resolution is needed to authorize the payment.

"I believe kids will respond about as they always did. They have the capacity to do right if well led."

Hershey, now a lieutenant general, has headed a federal agency longer than any other man except FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

He has no plans to retire. He retired from the Army Dec. 31, 1946 and was ordered back to active duty the next day. His status is unusual, if not unique. The 70-year retirement rule that applies to civilians in government service does not apply to him.

Right now Hershey is busy with plans for his Selective Service System to provide whatever additional manpower the nation may need in its current and potential crises.

President Lyndon B. Johnson has announced that draft calls would be increased to about 35,000 a month, nearly six times what they were in 1963, to help meet the demands growing from the war in Viet Nam.

* * * *

HERSHEY said he sees no current need for any change in the deferment policies in order to meet the anticipated draft calls. But he thinks the groundwork should be laid now regarding how to tighten deferments.

Local draft boards throughout the country have been instructed to review the records of all married men classified as 1-A and bring them up-to-date, although no change has been made in the procedure under which these men are passed over automatically when reached on the induction list.

Should any within the ages of 19 and 26 be found no longer to be married, they face action by their local boards. Should any be found to have become fathers they are to be given deferments even though they may not have previously notified their boards. Men between the ages of 19 and 26 who married after midnight Aug. 26 will be subject to the draft on the same basis as single men.

The local boards also have been reminded that they have authority to seek transcripts of the school records of all students holding deferments to ascertain if the youths are carrying on their education in a manner satisfactory to the local board. Indications are that many local boards which have been granting deferments to part time students may discontinue the practice.

Lose 10-15 Lbs. a Month on New Air Force Diet

Often Called the Drinking Man's Diet

WASHINGTON, D. C. (Special)—This is the revolutionary new low carbohydrate diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. It is known variously as the Air Force Diet, the Astronaut's Diet, the Airline Pilot's Diet, and sometimes popularly known as the Drinking Man's Diet. In effect, it allows you to drink all the liquor you want, enjoy formerly "forbidden" foods such as big steaks trimmed with fat, rich gravies, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon, fats, sausages and scrambled eggs—and still lose 10-15 lbs. a month. This is the one diet that really works. Senators in Washington, D. C., and members of Parliament in Ottawa, Canada, report losing 40 to 50 pounds with ease. Women report equally startling results. Calories play no part in this diet. What you do is count your carbohydrate grams, and limit your starch and sugar intake to 60 grams daily. The reason for this is simple. When your body doesn't burn up all starches and sugars you eat, the excess carbohydrates quickly turn into unsightly fat. On a low carbohydrate diet your body is forced to call on its own fat (stored carbohydrates) for energy and thus you lose fat. When the fat is gone you will cease to lose weight, and your weight will remain constant. Counting carbohydrate grams is easy. The new Air Force Diet manual lists the carbohydrate content of over 1,500 foods and 50 alcoholic beverages. And gives the detailed rules to follow this new diet. It also gives typical low-gram menus that are every bit as pleasant as not dieting at all. The new Air Force diet manual was primarily designed for Air Force personnel to keep in fighting trim. But it has proven to be more than that. It has proven to be a Godsend for people who hate dieting—who find salad without dressing unbearable, eggs without bacon unthinkable, dinner without martinis uncivilized. In short, if you like to live well and have a weight problem, this new diet manual will change your life, as it has for thousands of others. Recently published as a private edition in Canada, the diet manual can now be obtained by sending $2 to AIR FORCE DIET, Room 511A, 92 King Street East, Toronto 1, Canada. Unconditional money back guarantee. If after trying the diet for 30 days you have not lost 10-15 lbs., simply return the diet manual and your $2 (plus postage) will be refunded promptly and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim attractive figure of your youth — while still enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners - and drinking all the liquor you want. Order now before others snap up the limited supply.

Ex-Judge Shot in His Home

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Former Bell County Judge and District Attorney Thomas Raymond Thornton was shot and killed Saturday at his Houston home.

Police said the man suspected of doing the shooting turned his pistol on himself as officers attempted to arrest him. The suspected assailant was taken to Ben Taub Hospital in critical condition with a gunshot wound in the head.

Bell County is in central Texas.

Police said Thornton, 38, was shot six times after an argument about money. He died at 11 a.m.

Thornton worked with a Houston group called Houston Action for Youth. He was a legal adviser to the organization.

Police said the mortally wounded Thornton was still able to speak as he was rushed to the hospital.

Officers said Thornton told them that the man who shot him was Bruce Raybuck, 30.

When officers went to Raybuck's home, he fired one shot at them and then shot himself with a .32 caliber pistol. A suicide note was found at Raybuck's house, police said.

Calls for 90c Check, 28 Years After

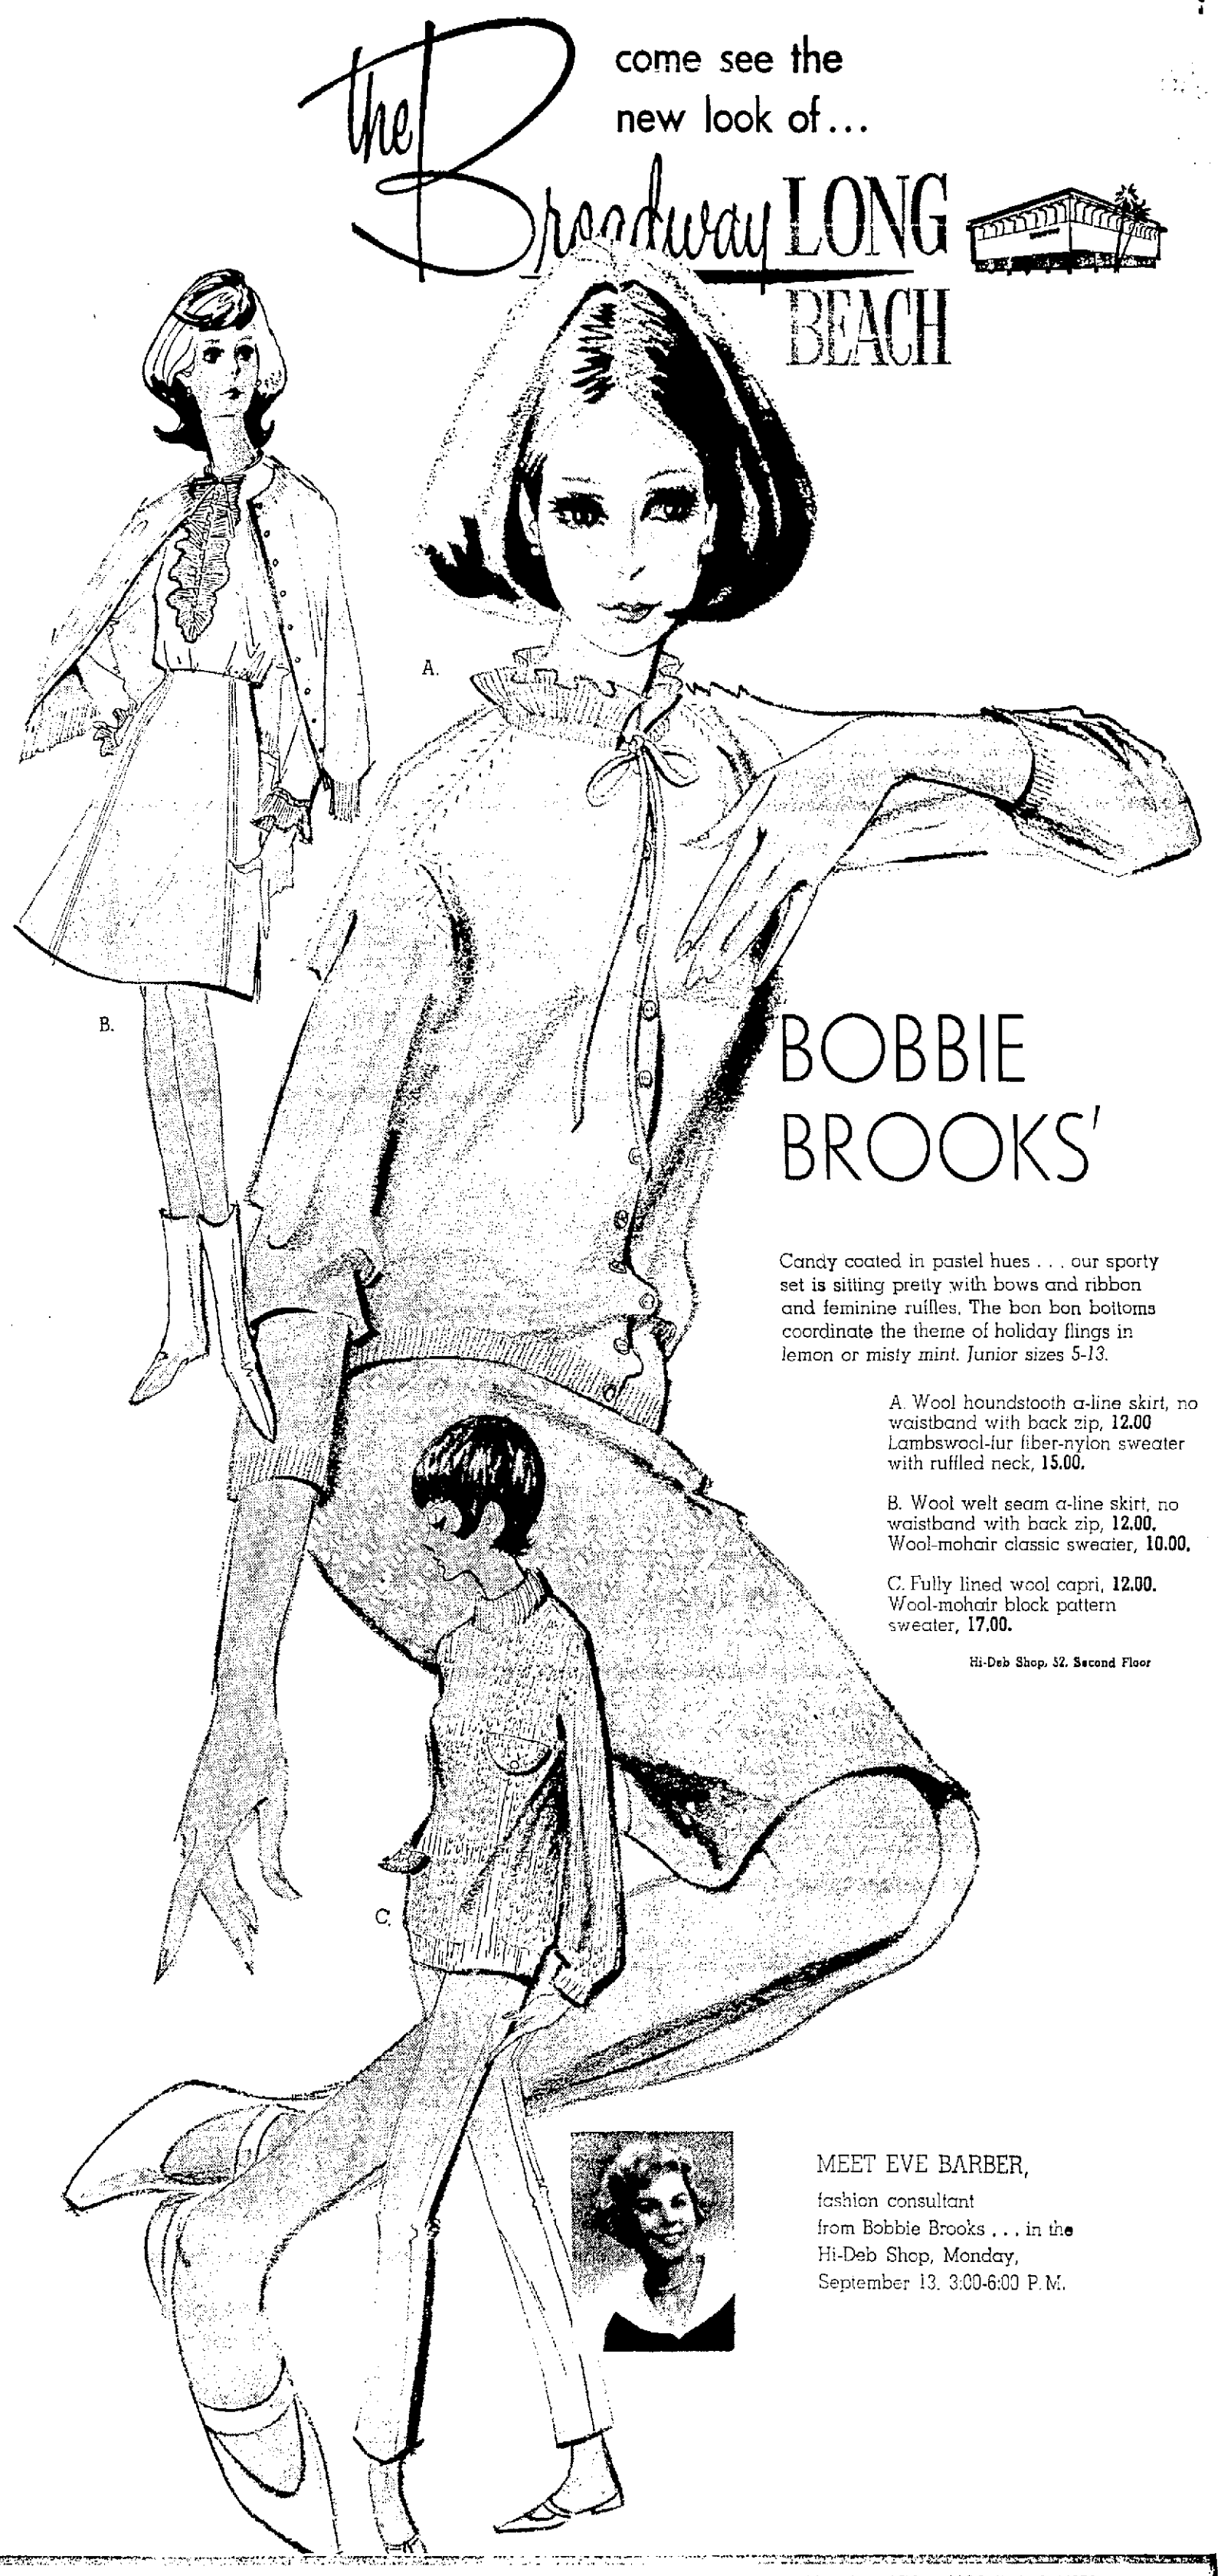

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Eldridge Moss dropped by city hall recently and asked for the 90-cent paycheck the city has owed him for 28 years.

Moss said he worked one day for John Gaston Municipal Hospital in 1937 but never picked up his check. The comptroller's office verified the claim. The amount due Moss was based on his old $27 monthly salary. A city commission resolution is needed to authorize the payment.

Brown Names Cohn to Recreation Post

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Brown today announced the appointment of San Francisco attorney Nathan Cohn to the State Recreation Commission.

Cohn, 47, will succeed Marshall Naify of San Francisco, who resigned.

100,000 RETURN TO SCHOOLS

Classes Are Smaller

By ROBERT WILCOX
I. P-T Education Editor

Nearly 100,000 students will bid goodby to the beach and summer jobs to return to the 77 Long Beach public schools Monday for the opening of the fall term.

The "new look" this year is in smaller class sizes throughout much of the school district in one of the most extensive reduction in average classroom numbers in Long Beach history.

Short sessions will be observed on opening day at all elementary schools and junior and senior highs. The hours are 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. for the grade schools and 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. for junior and senior highs. All school cafeterias will be open. The regular school hours will start Tuesday.

CLASSES AT all campuses of Long Beach City College will open on a full schedule Monday with registration for some continuing throughout the week and beyond. However, registration for day classes at the liberal arts campus closed last week with a record total of nearly 6,000 students.

Enrollment is expected to rise slightly this year at the college and the high schools and dip slightly at the junior highs and elementary schools. By the end of the first school month, the total in kindergarten through 12th grade is expected to be about 73,000.

PRIMARY-GRADE classes will average only about 30 students, and 4th through 6th grades 32. High school English classes have been cut to an average of 32 and social studies to 35.

Continued will be special teaching, library and counseling services at six elementary schools serving primarily children from low-income areas. These are Lincoln, Roosevelt, Whittier, Barnett, Barton and Edison.

The school district, which had already complied with the new state 6th grade foreign language requirements, has beefed up its language programs in both the 6th and 7th grades. In the high schools, driver education, a requirement for graduation, has been moved outside the regular school day. However, many of the students took the six-week course in summer session.

LONG BEACH kindergartens and first grades will welcome 650 new pupils readied for the experience in the summers' eight-week federally financed Project Head Start.

To be admitted to kindergarten a child must have been 4 years and 9 months of age on or before Sept. 1. The first-grade requirement is 5 years and 9 months by the same date. Parents enrolling children are required to furnish proof of the pupil's age.

All new pupils must file polio immunization forms in accordance with state laws. The forms may be obtained at the schools.

STUDENTS AT Hill Junior High School will be greeted by a $275,000 six-classroom building completed during the summer. A $240,000 eight-classroom building will open about Dec. 1 at Newcomb School.

Special first-day bus transportation will be provided for Poly High students who live west of the Los Angeles River flood control channel. Pickup time is 8 a.m.

LATE REGISTRATION continues through most of the week at the business and technology campus of Long Beach City College, with some classes open through Sept. 21.

At the colleges' liberal arts campus, late registration for evening classes will be conducted from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the women's gymnasium.

Enrollment starts Monday in all day and evening classes at the Millikan, Lakewood, Jordan and West adult centers and other locations for evening classes throughout the school district.

LBSC to Take All Students

It is "probable" that Long Beach State College will be able to accept all qualified students who met admission requirements by the annual Sept. 1 deadline, college officials reported Saturday.

However, many of the thousands of students who start registering Tuesday will not have their complete choice of classes.

LBSC was authorized by Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke to reject as many as 750 qualified students this year to meet an impending professor shortage. However, college officials said that a faculty recruiting drive has filled a large number of vacancies. Chief deficiencies are in sociology and history.

The college expects a total enrollment of 18,500 this year, up about 1,000 from last September.

Officials were "cautiously optimistic" that registration, a chief source of complaints due to delays, will operate more smoothly this year because the college held a general pre-registration last spring for the first time and registered more than 8,000 continuing students.

Registration for freshmen opens at 9 a.m. Tuesday. All other students will register from Wednesday through Saturday.

A general faculty meeting will be held at 9 a.m. Monday.

HEARING MONDAY

Ambulance Fee Hike Proposed

By GEORGE WEEKS
I. P-T City Hall Reporter

A proposed 25% increase in the basic charge for Long Beach ambulance service will be aired Monday before the City Bureau of Franchises.

Bureau members have scheduled a hearing at 9:30 a.m. on the application of Bowers Ambulance Service and Dilday Ambulance Service for authority to hoost the "answer to call" rate from $20 to $25.

This is the charge immediately posted when an ambulance responds to a call. The companies propose no increases in their current charges for mileage, night service, emergency response or other special services.

* * * *

BUREAU staff members estimated the average charge for each call will be raised from $27 to $32 if the application is granted.

Bowers Ambulance Service, which operates nine ambulances from five stations throughout Long Beach, has submitted preliminary figures indicating a loss of $4,000 annually on the operation. Dilday, with two ambulances, his filed no financial information.

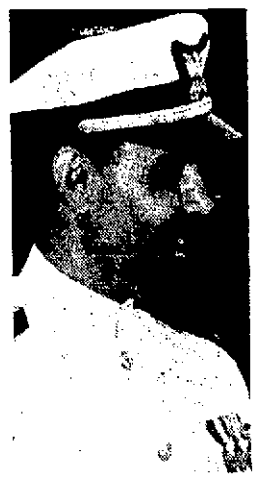

According to the application, the higher basic rate is necessary for a fair return because of rising costs of labor and supplies. The current charges have been in effect since August, 1961.

* * * *

THE LOS ANGELES City Board of Utilities and Public Transportation recently approved an increase from $20 to $25 in the basic charge there. But the board also ordered the elimination of the special $3.50 charge for an emergency response with use of sirens. This extra rate also is levied here in emergency cases.

Aside from the impact on individuals, a rate raise would increase city costs. The city picks up the tab, at a 25% discount, for uncollectible bills for emergency service by its contractor, Bowers Ambulance Service.

Bureau staff members said they hope to elicit information at the hearing on the future effect of Medicare on the collectibility of bills charged elderly patients.

Veterans Day Parade Set for Nov. 13

The U.S. Army and the Military Order of the Purple Heart will be honored units in the 20th anniversary celebration of Veterans Day to be marked by a parade here at 11 a.m. Nov. 13.

Fred Nessler, prade director, said Lt. Gen. J. L. Richardson, USA, commanding general, Sixth Army, of the Presidio, San Francisco, will be grand marshal.

"The U.S. Department of Defense and the Veterans Administration have designated the city of Long Beach as a regional site for the 1965 Veterans' Day Parade and ceremonies," said Nessler, and all branches of the Armed Forces will participate.

Beach Combing
With Malcolm Epley

AN AUDIBLE rumble of public disapproval has followed the release of a lady embezzler after she served only 60 days of her original one-year sentence.

Letters from citizens of the area indicate considerable disgust with the whole report of the treatment of Mrs. Bonnie Gay Holmes, who was convicted of embezzling $89,000 from her employer, a Long Beach firm.

They seem to think it's a little overly gallant, to say the least, to move the lady prisoner from one jail to another because she didn't like the first one, to let her go free after serving only a fraction of her sentence, and to reject a probation dept. recommendation that she be sent to state prison.

Writes one mother: "I tell my teenagers to be honest and never break the law and then they read about Bonnie Gay and her 60 days for $89,000. . . These youngsters aren't blind or stupid. . . . I sure hope if my kids ever come up for embezzlement, that same fellow's the judge who sits in their case."

Other letters critical of the decision by Judge George Francis follow the same line. "It looks to me as if the judge favors the wrong people in our society," snaps Milton Ammann.

ANSWERING questions from some readers: Superior Judge Francis was appointed to a judgeship in Los Angeles County by Gov. Edmund G. Brown in November, 1961. Previously he had long served as superior judge in Alpine County, and had come to Los Angeles and Long Beach frequently on assignment, small Alpine County apparently not having enough court work to keep him busy.

After his appointment in L. A. County, Judge Francis ran successfully for reelection and his post will be up for election again in 1968. He is a highly regarded jurist.

Judge Francis apparently accepted the theory of Bonnie Gay Holmes' attorney that the woman should be with her children "who need her." But the rumble indicates a lot of citizens, who certainly have a right to consider and weigh the work of the public courts, do not agree.

REGARDLESS of the merits of this case, it suggests the problem involved in bringing public opinion to bear upon the courts in connection with the issues in the handling of criminal cases.

No one who can hear or read can be unaware of a great surge of public unrest over what is generally tabbed as "coddling of criminals."

Yet how is this going to be communicated to the courts and how will they react? Judges, handling technical situations in which the average layman is ill-informed, are usually immune to criticisms that would disturb other public officials and shake them in the security of their jobs.

FURTHERMORE, at least in Los Angeles County, the elective process really does not constitute a real test of public sentiment on judges. Here we elect scores of judges all at once on a county-wide basis and it is virtually impossible to make the election a clear-cut test of opinion on the work of any particular judge.

Most of them, in fact, run without opposition. Cases in which an incumbent has failed of reelection have been rare, indeed.

So unless things change mightily here, there's not much chance that the public sentiment for sterner treatment of criminals can make itself felt through the judicial elections. It has to come in some other way, if it comes at all.

L.B. City Employees To Picnic

The annual picnic sponsored by the Long Beach City Employees' Association will attract at least 1,500 adults and children to Recreation Park next Saturday for an all-day outing, CEA officials predicted Saturday.

Entertainment will feature games with prizes for all ages, along with clowns and pony rides. All municipal employes and their families are eligible to attend. Events are scheduled from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. There will be a picnic buffet from 11:30 until 2.

Tickets are being sold at the association's office, 3540 Atlantic Ave., and by 29 CEA directors in various city departments. None will be sold at the park.

Youth Corps Offers 45 New Posts

More than 45 new jobs under the Neighborhood Youth Corps program will be available to young men and women in the Los Angeles area beginning Monday, according to Mrs. Marion Aronowitz, youth services supervisor for the State Department of Employment.

Mrs. Aronowitz said youths from 16 through 21 may apply for the positions—most being with military installations in the harbor area — at the employment office, 400 N. Marine Ave., Wilmington.

The jobs include teletype and radio repair, auto mechanics, electrical work, service station attendants, fork lift operation, carpentry, plumbers, cook's assistant, retail sales and keypunch, switchboard and multilith operators, she said.

Bicycle Races Sept. 26

There's a place for every type of bicycle in the Third Annual Bicycle Competitions Sept. 26.

The competitions, to be held on Ocean Boulevard between Loma and Linden avenues, opens at noon with an 1885-vintage high wheeler, unicycle clowns, bands, dignitaries, pretty girls—all the makings of a perfect summer Sunday afternoon parade.

The races begin after the parade, and last until 4 p.m.

Events include competitions ranging from children's tricycle to senior citizens, unicycle to his and hers tandem bikes to an eight-mile cycling club race.

Applications to enter the races are available at most local bicycle shops and at the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber and Century Club sponsor the event.

Trophies will be presented to winners of the first three spots in all events at Linden Avenue and Ocean Boulevard, where bleachers will be set up to accommodate non-peddling spectators.

STATE ASSEMBLY UNIT

Set 2-Day L.B., L.A. Ports Study

By LOU JOBST
I. P-T Marine Editor

California State Assembly-men will make a detailed study of the operations of the commercial harbors of Long Beach and Los Angeles Tuesday and Wednesday.

The study is being made by an interim committee of the Assembly Public Utilities and Corporations Committee, headed by Assemblyman Jnseph Kennick, D-Long Beach.

Interim committee members plan to tour both harbors by land and water Tuesday and conduct a brief morning hearing, beginning at 10 a.m., in the Commission Room of the Long Beach Harbor Department Administration Bldg. Wednesday.

* * * *

APPROXIMATELY 10 persons including both Assemblymen and staff are expected to participate in the investigation.

While not an official agenda item, subject of consolidation of the two harbors into a single port district may pop up.

City Attorney Leonard Putnam, official hearing spokesman for the city, has been preparing himself on the subject.

Representative for the port of Los Angeles will be John F. Parkinson, assistant general manager. Parkinson has been ordered not to make any statement of content or policy about merger of the harbors, but to discuss only issues relative to operation of the port.

* * * *

Several legislative hearings and proposals considering consolidation have cropped-up in the past.

Among the more recent actions was a resolution by Assemblyman Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, asserting "there is unnecessary duplication of facilities and administration" by the two local ports.

Dymally claimed a joint authority would reduce administrative costs and lower taxes.

* * * *

THE KENNICK committee previously had considered holding hearings here in August, but put off the sessions until this month due to the fact many of the key personnel and legislators were on vacation.

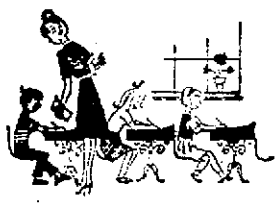

Specifically, the Kennick committee is exploring resources of the various California ports and looking into the different administrative set-ups and modes of operation.

USS Yorktown Wins Three Top Awards

Long Beach's USS Yorktown has picked up three top awards in last competitive cycle conducted by the commander, Naval Air Force, Pacific.

This was the fourth time in five tries for the engineers, commanded by Cmdr. R. S. Fogg. Cmdr. J. B. Bailey heads the air department and Cmdr. S. S. Stevens is the supply department boss.

Nearly 100,000 students will bid goodby to the beach and summer jobs to return to the 77 Long Beach public schools Monday for the opening of the fall term.

The "new look" this year is in smaller class sizes throughout much of the school district in one of the most extensive reduction in average classroom numbers in Long Beach history.

Short sessions will be observed on opening day at all elementary schools and junior and senior highs. The hours are 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. for the grade schools and 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. for junior and senior highs. All school cafeterias will be open. The regular school hours will start Tuesday.

CLASSES AT all campuses of Long Beach City College will open on a full schedule Monday with registration for some continuing throughout the week and beyond. However, registration for day classes at the liberal arts campus closed last week with a record total of nearly 6,000 students.

Enrollment is expected to rise slightly this year at the college and the high schools and dip slightly at the junior highs and elementary schools. By the end of the first school month, the total in kindergarten through 12th grade is expected to be about 73,000.

PRIMARY-GRADE classes will average only about 30 students, and 4th through 6th grades 32. High school English classes have been cut to an average of 32 and social studies to 35.

Continued will be special teaching, library and counseling services at six elementary schools serving primarily children from low-income areas. These are Lincoln, Roosevelt, Whittier, Barnett, Barton and Edison.

The school district, which had already complied with the new state 6th grade foreign language requirements, has beefed up its language programs in both the 6th and 7th grades. In the high schools, driver education, a requirement for graduation, has been moved outside the regular school day. However, many of the students took the six-week course in summer session.

LONG BEACH kindergartens and first grades will welcome 650 new pupils readied for the experience in the summers' eight-week federally financed Project Head Start.

To be admitted to kindergarten a child must have been 4 years and 9 months of age on or before Sept. 1. The first-grade requirement is 5 years and 9 months by the same date. Parents enrolling children are required to furnish proof of the pupil's age.

All new pupils must file polio immunization forms in accordance with state laws. The forms may be obtained at the schools.

STUDENTS AT Hill Junior High School will be greeted by a $275,000 six-classroom building completed during the summer. A $240,000 eight-classroom building will open about Dec. 1 at Newcomb School.

Special first-day bus transportation will be provided for Poly High students who live west of the Los Angeles River flood control channel. Pickup time is 8 a.m.

LATE REGISTRATION continues through most of the week at the business and technology campus of Long Beach City College, with some classes open through Sept. 21.

At the colleges' liberal arts campus, late registration for evening classes will be conducted from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the women's gymnasium.

Enrollment starts Monday in all day and evening classes at the Millikan, Lakewood, Jordan and West adult centers and other locations for evening classes throughout the school district.

LBSC to Take All Students

It is "probable" that Long Beach State College will be able to accept all qualified students who met admission requirements by the annual Sept. 1 deadline, college officials reported Saturday.

However, many of the thousands of students who start registering Tuesday will not have their complete choice of classes.

LBSC was authorized by Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke to reject as many as 750 qualified students this year to meet an impending professor shortage. However, college officials said that a faculty recruiting drive has filled a large number of vacancies. Chief deficiencies are in sociology and history.

The college expects a total enrollment of 18,500 this year, up about 1,000 from last September.

Officials were "cautiously optimistic" that registration, a chief source of complaints due to delays, will operate more smoothly this year because the college held a general pre-registration last spring for the first time and registered more than 8,000 continuing students.

Registration for freshmen opens at 9 a.m. Tuesday. All other students will register from Wednesday through Saturday.

A general faculty meeting will be held at 9 a.m. Monday.

HEARING MONDAY

Ambulance Fee Hike Proposed

By GEORGE WEEKS
I. P-T City Hall Reporter

A proposed 25% increase in the basic charge for Long Beach ambulance service will be aired Monday before the City Bureau of Franchises.

Bureau members have scheduled a hearing at 9:30 a.m. on the application of Bowers Ambulance Service and Dilday Ambulance Service for authority to boost the "answer to call" rate from $20 to $25.

This is the charge immediately posted when an ambulance responds to a call. The companies propose no increases in their current charges for mileage, night service, emergency response or other special services.

BUREAU staff members estimated the average charge for each call will be raised from $27 to $32 if the application is granted.

Bowers Ambulance Service, which operates nine ambulances from five stations throughout Long Beach, has submitted preliminary figures indicating a loss of $4,000 annually on the operatinn. Dilday, with two ambulances, his filed no financial information.

According to the application, the higher basic rate is necessary for a fair return because of rising costs of labor and supplies. The current charges have been in effect since August, 1961.

* * * *

THE LOS ANGELES City Board of Utilities and Public Transportation recently approved an increase from $20 to $25 in the basic charge there. But the board also ordered the elimination of the special $3.50 charge for an emergency response with use of sirens. This extra rate also is levied here in emergency cases.

Aside from the impact on individuals, a rate raise would increase city costs. The city picks up the tab, at a 25% discount, for uncollectible bills for emergency service by its contractor, Bowers Ambulance Service.

Bureau staff members said they hope to elicit information at the hearing on the future effect of Medicare on the collectibility of bills charged elderly patients.

Veterans Day Parade Set for Nov. 13

The U.S. Army and the Military Order of the Purple Heart will be honored units in the 20th anniversary celebration of Veterans Day to be marked by a parade here at 11 a.m. Nov. 13.

Fred Nessler, prade director, said Lt. Gen. J. L. Richardson, USA, commanding general, Sixth Army, of the Presidio, San Francisco, will be grand marshal.

"The U.S. Department of Defense and the Veterans Administration have designated the city of Long Beach as a regional site for the 1965 Veterans' Day Parade and ceremonies," said Nessler, and all branches of the Armed Forces will participate.

Beach Combing
With Malcolm Epley

AN AUDIBLE rumble of public disapproval has followed the release of a lady embezzler after she served only 60 days of her original one-year sentence.

Letters from citizens of the area indicate considerable disgust with the whole report of the treatment of Mrs. Bonnie Gay Holmes, who was convicted of embezzling $89,000 from her employer, a Long Beach firm.

They seem to think it's a little overly gallant, to say the least, to move the lady prisoner from one jail to another because she didn't like the first one, to let her go free after serving only a fraction of her sentence, and to reject a probation dept. recommendation that she be sent to state prison.

Writes one mother: "I tell my teenagers to be honest and never break the law and then they read about Bonnie Gay and her 60 days for $89,000. . . These youngsters aren't blind or stupid. . . . I sure hope if my kids ever come up for embezzlement, that same fellow's the judge who sits in their case."

Other letters critical of the decision by Judge George Francis follow the same line. "It looks to me as if the judge favors the wrong people in our society," snaps Milton Ammann.

ANSWERING questions from some readers: Superior Judge Francis was appointed to a judgeship in Los Angeles County by Gov. Edmund G. Brown in November, 1961. Previously he had long served as superior judge in Alpine County, and had come to Los Angeles and Long Beach frequently on assignment, small Alpine County apparently not having enough court work to keep him busy.

After his appointment in L.A. County, Judge Francis ran successfully for reelection and his post will be up for election again in 1968. He is a highly regarded jurist.

Judge Francis apparently accepted the theory of Bonnie Gay Holmes' attorney that the woman should be with her children "who need her." But the rumble indicates a lot of citizens, who certainly have a right to consider and weigh the work of the public courts, do not agree.

REGARDLESS of the merits of this case, it suggests the problem involved in bringing public opinion to bear upon the courts in connection with the issues in the handling of criminal cases.

No one who can hear or read can be unaware of a great surge of public unrest over what is generally tabbed as "coddling of criminals."

Yet how is this going to be communicated to the courts and how will they react? Judges, handling technical situations in which the average layman is ill-informed, are usually immune to criticisms that would disturb other public officials and shake them in the security of their jobs.

FURTHERMORE, at least in Los Angeles County, the elective process really does not constitute a real test of public sentiment on judges. Here we elect scores of judges all at once on a county-wide basis and it is virtually impossible to make the election a clear-cut test of opinion on the work of any particular judge.

Most of them, in fact, run without opposition. Cases in which an incumbent has failed of reelection have been rare, indeed.

So unless things change mightily here, there's not much chance that the public sentiment for sterner treatment of criminals can make itself felt through the judicial elections. It has to come in some other way, if it comes at all.

L.B. City Employees To Picnic

The annual picnic sponsored by the Long Beach City Employees' Association will attract at least 1,500 adults and children to Recreation Park next Saturday for an all-day outing, CEA officials predicted Saturday.

Entertainment will feature games with prizes for all ages, along with clowns and pony rides. All municipal employes and their families are eligible to attend. Events are scheduled from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. There will be a picnic buffet from 11:30 until 2.

Tickets are being sold at the association's office, 3540 Atlantic Ave., and by 29 CEA directors in various city departments. None will be sold at the park.

Youth Corps Offers 45 New Posts

More than 45 new jobs under the Neighborhood Youth Corps program will be available to young men and women in the Los Angeles area beginning Monday, according to Mrs. Marion Aronowitz, youth services supervisor for the State Department of Employment.

Mrs. Aronowitz said youths from 16 through 21 may apply for the positions—most being with military installations in the harbor area — at the employment office, 400 N. Marine Ave., Wilmington.

The jobs include teletype and radio repair, auto mechanics, electrical work, service station attendants, fork lift operation, carpentry, plumbers, cook's assistant, retail sales and keypunch, switchboard and multilith operators, she said.

PEDALERS ON PARADE

Bicycle Races Sept. 26

There's a place for every type of bicycle in the Third Annual Bicycle Competitions Sept. 26.

The competitions, to be held on Ocean Boulevard between Loma and Linden avenues, opens at noon with an 1885-vintage high wheeler, unicycle clowns, bands, dignitaries, pretty girls—all the makings of a perfect summer Sunday afternoon parade.

The races begin after the parade, and last until 4 p.m.

Events include competitions ranging from children's tricycle to senior citizens, unicycle to his and hers tandem bikes to an eight-mile cycling club race.

Applications to enter the races are available at most local bicycle shops and at the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber and Century Club sponsor the event.

Trophies will be presented to winners of the first three spots in all events at Linden Avenue and Ocean Boulevard, where bleachers will be set up to accommodate non-peddling spectators.

STATE ASSEMBLY UNIT

Set 2-Day L.B., L.A. Ports Study

By LOU JOBST
I. P-T Marine Editor

California State Assemblymen will make a detailed study of the operations of the commercial harbors of Long Beach and Los Angeles Tuesday and Wednesday.

The study is being made by an interim committee of the Assembly Public Utilities and Corporations Committee, headed by Assemblyman Joseph Kennick, D-Long Beach.

Interim committee members plan to tour both harbors by land and water Tuesday and conduct a brief morning hearing, beginning at 10 a.m., in the Commission Room of the Long Beach Harbor Department Administration Bldg. Wednesday.

* * * *

APPROXIMATELY 10 persons including both Assemblymen and staff are expected to participate in the investigation.

While not an official agenda item, subject of consolidation of the two harbors into a single port district may pop up.

City Attorney Leonard Putnam, official hearing spokesman for the city, has been preparing himself on the subject.

Representative for the port of Los Angeles will be John F. Parkinson, assistant general manager. Parkinson has been ordered not to make any statement of content or policy about merger of the harbors, but to discuss only issues relative to operation of the port.

* * * *

Several legislative hearings and proposals considering consolidation have cropped up in the past.

Among the more recent actions was a resolution by Assemblyman Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, asserting "there is unnecessary duplication of facilities and administration" by the two local ports.

Dymally claimed a joint authority would reduce administrative costs and lower taxes.

* * * *

THE KENNICK committee previously had considered holding hearings here in August, but put off the sessions until this month due to the fact many of the key personnel and legislators were on vacation.

Specifically, the Kennick committee is exploring resources of the various California ports and looking into the different administrative set-ups and modes of operation.

USS Yorktown Wins Three Top Awards

Long Beach's USS Yorktown has picked up three top awards in last competitive cycle conducted by the commander, Naval Air Force, Pacific.

This was the fourth time in five tries for the engineers, commanded by Cmdr. R. S. Fogg. Cmdr. J. B. Bailey heads the air department and Cmdr. S. S. Stevens is the supply department boss.

Sunday Blues

MOTHER AND FATHER look at each other with affectionate loathing as they drink their sixth cup of coffee, gradually converting their hangovers into caffeine jitters. The wreck of the half-read Sunday paper lies around them. The children, thank heaven, have gone to the playground.

For many, a cure for Sunday blues would be to dress in their best and go to church.

GOING TO CHURCH is good emotional therapy, even for people whose faith is shaky. For in church one gets a glimpse "as in a mirror darkly" of what man is and what man can become. Hymns, prayers and sermon turn his mind away from the petty routines of existence to larger ideas.

The unchurched give many reasons for their indifference. America has a strong tradition of agnosticism. This is good, because without doubters, there can be no freedom. And yet, "I don't know" is a negative attitude which gives little peace of mind.

Haters of churches often point to intolerance, bickering, bad thinking, hypocrisy and outright chicanery among the "people of God." So what else is new? Do not such conditions exist in every human organization?

INTELLECTUALS, who probably remember the simplified teachings of Sunday school, think of religion as naive. On many levels it is. However, religious philosophy as expressed by its best thinkers is sophisticated beyond the reach of secular intellectuals. The ideas of Christianity and Judaism have been time-tested over thousands of years.

Church is not for everyone. Some people have neither the understanding nor the recognized emotional need. For millions, however, church provides a center and meaning in their lives. It links them with the past that created our culture, with their living fellow men and with hope for a glorious future.

Uncle and You

UNCLE SAM'S anti-poverty program does not relieve the citizen of his duty to support community services through voluntary contributions.

"It is vitally important that these services be maintained," says Sargent Shriver, director of the Economic Opportunity Act. "Any reduction would be unthinkable."

Many people think of the money they give to the United Crusade and to various church and fraternal organizations as "charity." The word should be understood in its highest sense, meaning concern and help for one's fellow men. Several of the agencies, such as the Salvation Army, do give direct alms, but they do so with the purpose of helping the recipients to find better, happier, more useful ways of life.

THESE SERVICES exist to help all who are in need. The Boy Scouts, for example, exists to give all boys, the rich and the poor, an opportunity to participate in the character-building experience of Scouting. Incidentally, a rich boy may be more underprivileged, more in need of the Scouts, than many a poor boy, but the dollars given to the Scouts make it possible for any boy, no matter how poor, to be a member.

The anti-poverty program does not replace any of these services. Its purpose is to relieve the stresses of poverty and to provide opportunity for the poor. Its success will depend in large part upon the cooperation of the volunteer community agencies.

"It would be a great tragedy if the poverty program were interpreted by anyone as a substitute for local initiative by volunteer citizens, or as a reason not to continue support of voluntary services. . . . The Economic Opportunity Act specifically prohibits use of these new federal funds to replace any existing financial resources," Shriver said.

THE VOLUNTARY services are a form of cooperative insurance and self-help. Anyone, rich or poor, might need the help of the Red Cross on a day of disaster. Anyone might need the counsel, guidance and help of one of the various agencies in a period of personal need. And a good community depends upon the ideals and training fostered by the youth programs.

We live in a time in which citizens should do more, not less, to help their neighbors and themselves.

Raising the Roof Again

JOHN O'HARA

A Hope for a Young Negro Not Hoaxed by 'Brotherhood'

I LIKE TO think that at Tuskegee, or Fordham, or the University of Washington there is a young Negro who is quietly watching what is going on, and does not like what he sees. I like to think that this mythical young man, who would be someone on the order of Bill Cosby and Bob Teague, is taking a cold and dim view of the activities of Martin Luther King and James Farmer and Dick Gregory and Cassius Clay and James Baldwin, and of the white men who are so free with the epithet, Uncle Tom, and its verb form Tomming.

* * * *

THIS DEEPLY disturbed young man is in for a lot of unhappiness. The vituperation he will get from the Baldwins and the Kings will be so discouraging that he may want to give up—in which case he is not my man. My man will not give up. He will not give up under attack by his own people, or succumb to the blandishments or the insults of white politicians. He will have to learn to be suspicious of white-colored or black-colored people who yap about the brotherhood of man.

Is there a brotherhood of man, and if so, just what does it mean? And when did it begin? I do not wish to be a brother to Bishop James Pike or to Sukarno or to Frank Sinatra or to Louis Auchincloss, and I will not have a true fraternal feeling for Sammy Davis Jr. or Bobby Kennedy, even at the point of a gun.

* * * *

THERE ARE people I like and people I don't like. Thirty years ago there was a Negro entertainer called George Dewey Washington, who always finished his act with the statement, "I want you to know that your applause goes to my heart and not to my head." The statement used to go to my stomach—and turn it. The late Richard Wright once told me that a story of mine was the only one about Negroes by a white author that he could take. But I did not then become a brotherhood-of-man salesman; I reserved the right to go on thinking that Pearl Bailey is just as much of a bore as Sophie Tucker, and that Ella Fitzgerald is as fine an artist as Gladys Swarthout.

My mythical student will find out soon enough that the brotherhood of man is a term that is usually invoked when someone is making a pitch; whether it's a religious or political or charitable pitch, the pitchman wants something, whether he's wearing a Roman collar or a Brooks Brothers shirt. Having learned that great truth, my man is ready for some others. He will learn, for instance, that it will surely take five hundred years (and maybe five thousand) before cross-breeding of the races produces a tan that will be the uniform color of all human skin. The human toe may disappear before all our descendants are of the same color. (The human race itself, of course, may disappear the day after tomorrow, but we are leaving out that possibility as too frivolous for this serious discussion.)

* * * *

BUT WHEN this toeless tan man, with his plastic organs and transistor brain, has been perfected, the creature will still find something to quarrel over. That is basic to the human condition. I am not a reader of science fiction. I am sixty years old, and the crazy stuff I used to read in Popular Mechanics when I was a kid is all commonplace now, and I can't go through that again. But while the soul of man remains, the need to do something naughty will linger on. My mythical student will know these things because he will be smarter than I was at his age. Knowing them, and being smarter, he will decide for himself how far into the future he wishes to lead his race.

For that is what he will be—the leader of his race. He will not be the leader of my race, any more than Abraham Lincoln was the leader of the Negro race. He will not waste his time in declamations of his pride in being a Negro or in the conventional eulogies of George Washington Carver and Booker T. Washington. He will have to deal with my people, because we have the money. But he will be smart enough to know that when he deals with politicians, the federal government politicians and the ward heelers, he must be careful not to sell his vote.

* * * *

THE VOTE is being sold now, today, in the process of being bought by civil rights and anti-poverty programs that are so inextricably indentified with the Democratic Party that the Republican Party is being eliminated. My mythical student will be taking a particularly hard look at that development, because he is smart enough to know that when the Republican Party has been nullified, the Negro will have only one place to go. And the vote that he has fought for will be useless in a one-party system.

I have striven to avoid making the hard-sell pitch in these messages, and it is an exercise in futility to make a pitch to a mythical man. But if my mythical man is real, I urge him to consider the hazards of the one-party system. It would be tragic if my mythical man remains a myth because the Democrats have a monopoly on the mythical brotherhood of man.

Some Party Wounds Healing Amid Early Political Gunfire

I, P-T Political Editor

EXAMINING the targets of early political sniping, one finds patterns ranging from rifle to buckshot—and an intimation that before it's all over, 1966's riddled ballot will be reduced to full-choke bore.

HOUSER

Michael Cullen, the 1964 Democratic opponent to Long Beach area Congressman Craig Hosmer, has received a letter from one James B. Adler on the letterhead of New York publishers G. P. Putnam's Sons seeking Cullen's opinion on whether Hosmer had used his position in Congress to advance his personal outside business interests and law practice.

"We are aware," said the letter, "these conflicts may not be illegal, but we want to explore whether they are improper."

The letter also queried whether Hosmer had performed any special favors for big campaign contributors. The research—all to be verified by the publishers—is expected to be completed in time to publish a book on the subject of congressional conflicts before the 1966 congressional campaign.

Cullen, himself an attorney, replied:

"I am happy to advise you that the conduct and personal affairs of my 1964 opponent, Congressman Craig Hosmer, 32nd California Congressional District, have been above reproach.

"Your objective of publishing, in my opinion, a muckraking book concerning our nation's congressmen is personally repugnant to me and falls far below the standards established by G. P. Putnam's Sons over the past century."

ON ANOTHER front there are indications that strength is building on the side of reconstruction in the state's Republican Party.

A case in point—the recent response to Los Angeles County Young Republicans' attempt to read Sen. Thomas Kuchel out of the GOP and suggestion that he become a Democrat.

The new and moderate California Republican League hit the idea as "immature, irresponsible and disrupting" and—significantly—"not representative of the vast majority of its (YR) membership."

County GOP Chairman Jud Leetham met the same issue in another context. A resolution had been placed before the conservative United Republicans of California calling for Kuchel to declare himself out of the governor's race in 1966. Also before UROC was a proposal to censure its state chairman, Fred Nagel, for his announcement that he would support whomever is nominated by the GOP next year.

UROC rejected the resolution and the censure proposal.

Such a demand of Kuchel, said Leetham, was "totally meaningless except as another clamorous and regressive public exhibition of party disunity. Such a "fruitless charade," said Leetham, when the GOP is so much in need of healing and has such a short recovery time "suggests that some of us have learned little from our 1964 ordeal."

NO SUCH breach-healing is evident as yet in the imminent gubernatorial candidacy of actor Ronald Reagan.

GOP Central Committee members James Reynolds (L. A. County Committee) and Vernon Davis of Fresno (State Committee) have urged Reagan to withdraw as a possible candidate.

Their request is based on Reagan's discussion of possible Birch Society support with John Rousselot, the society's national public relations director.

"By coveting Birch Society support," said Reynolds and Davis, Reagan shows he would be "the most disruptive candidate the GOP could offer and, as a candidate, he would cause the defeat of our other statewide candidates."

Public Forum

Time for a Stand

EDITOR:

I wish I could find the words to answer Mrs. Kimball's letter in the Public Forum about the faith she has in young people who, in her words, "would pitch in and fight if our country faced invasion and destruction." What do you think we are facing right now?

My husband happens to be in Viet Nam at the present time. He is there because there is a job to be done; a job that must be done, if we are to remain a strong and free America. You say we are branding them. I, for one, disagree. They are branding themselves. And I am sure that the America we present to them is worthy. Hundreds of thousands of our men are bearing mute testimony to that fact. They are fighting and dying to prove just that.

I haven't forgotten that our nation is sharply divided on the Viet Nam situation. But, how do you justify the division? The stand must be taken to stop the forces of evil in the world and in "My America" every man, woman and child should be strongly behind our fighting men instead of finding ways to avoid doing what they should do proudly.

I am proud to be an American and proud of the many men who are fighting for my right to stay that way. What better presentation can you offer the young people than our way of life compared to the other countries of the world today? If you asked any of the men in Viet Nam I don't think they would tell you they want to be there, but that they must.

No one wants a fight but there comes a time when we must make a stand and this is America's time and place.

Wrong-Way Police

EDITOR:

I live on the corner of Linden and Seaside and I'm wondering what makes our city servants so special. Police cars go out on Rainbow Pier against traffic on a one-way street, just to talk to the boys at the lifeguard station, or drink coffee or kill time. It sure isn't an emergency or in the course of duty. The lifeguards drive private cars out the same way to go to work in the morning. The lifeguard chief drops by once in a while to check on the station. All of them drive the wrong way on a one-way street.

Are these people so very special? What would happen if one of these cars met two cars abreast and someone got confused or excited? Let a lowly citizen get caught out there going the wrong way and what do you suppose would happen?

Great Document

EDITOR:

The article by George Schuyler, Negro intellect, editor and author, "Career Agitators Lead Negro Astray," should be filed in the archives of history alongside other outstanding documents. It rates with the Gettysburg Address and other historical writings. It is a true, unbiased article written by a Negro about the Negro situation today.

I wrote Mr. Schuyler and received a courteous thank you note from him. He remarked that the national reaction to his article had been terrific.

Semantics of Public Arena Too 'Enriched' for Comfort

Independent, Press-Telegram State Bureau

Don't let 'em fool you. The same old things are happening. It merely is that politicos are using the Madison Avenue approach. They exaggerate the good and sugar-coat the bad by coining new phrases.

M'CAULEY

No state bureaucrat ever would be caught dead urging merely that additional funds go to school districts. Rather, the aid is to "enrich the program."

Politicos long ago dropped the subject of soaking the rich to help the poor. Now they plug for broad "equalization" programs—the same thing.

* * * *

THE STATE at one time had a prison board and prison guards. Now it has an Adult Authority and correctional officers. Previously, the state tried to reform criminals. Now it rehabilitates 'em.

Nobody ever goes on the welfare (or relief) rolls in California. They're placed on categorical aid or public assistance.

You can't possibly wind up in a California insane asylum. Instead, you'd be sent to a state hospital under the care of the Mental Hygiene Department. Only the names have been changed, however.

If you call your friendly state bureaucrat when he is out to coffee, his secretary probably will tell you he is in a staff conference.

Republicans no longer present alternative suggestions to the administrative program. The GOP suggestions are "action programs."

* * * *

NO PIECE of legislation ever is really killed. It either gaes to interim for a deep study or remains with the committee that clobbered it.

California isn't growing fast. Rather, it has a population explosion.

Sacramento no longer comes up with new ideas. Instead, it scores breakthroughs.

California doesn't have reform schools—just training schools, reception centers, etc.

The days when legislators all had a No. 1 secretary are over. Now they are called a consultant or administrative assistant.

* * * *

IT HAS BEEN months since Gov. Brown appointed a plain old committee. But every week he turns up with a new "blue-ribbon committee" or a Governor's Conference on Flop-Eared Jack Rabbits.

A potential political candidate who knocks 'em dead at the polling places used to be a good vote-getter. Now, he is rated as having an excellent image.

A state press agent seldom is called a state press agent. Usually he is an assistant director—or some loftier title.

Significance: California not only is first in population, but also in stretching the English language.

LBJ, HHH Plan Tours in Autumn

I, P-T National Bureau

WASHINGTON—Both President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey are planning wide range autumnal tours to check first hand on the state of the consensus.

The presidential tour is slated next month, but could be later if Congress dawdles and doesn't adjourn by early October.

The President's itinerary still is tentative, but would take him across the Midwest and on to the West Coast. California Democratic bigshots have been advised to expect him in Los Angeles on Oct. 15. The President probably would return via the southern route, with a rest and recreation stop at the LBJ Ranch.

Humphrey's journey to the hustings is being planned for November. He'd journey to the Pacific Northwest, up to Alaska for two days and wind up in Hawaii. After several days of soaking up sunshine and political luaus, the Vice President would return direct to Washington.

Also in the works is another presidential tour in the early spring, undoubtedly timed and planned for its effect on primary battles in districts where the President would like to see conservative Democrats bested by candidates more in tune with the Great Society.

There's also going to be considerably more journeying to the boondocks by those lower on the rungs of the governmental ladder.

A bill signed by Johnson last week increases the number of trips between Washington and his district a congressman may make at government expense.

A little noticed section of the new law also authorized such trips for the real shock troops of Capitol Hill—the 3,000 or more members of congressmen's staffs.

Under the bill, each congressman is authorized two paid staff round trips annually between the Capital and the solon's district.

The provision is a long-overdue effort to help the lawmakers' aides become more intimately familiar with the areas their bosses represent.

Sunday Blues

MOTHER AND FATHER look at each other with affectionate loathing as they drink their sixth cup of coffee, gradually converting their hangovers into caffeine jitters. The wreck of the half-read Sunday paper lies around them. The children, thank heaven, have gone to the playground.

This is Sunday morning in many an American home.

For many, a cure for Sunday blues would be to dress in their best and go to church.

GOING TO CHURCH is good emotional therapy, even for people whose faith is shaky. For in church one gets a glimpse "as in a mirror darkly" of what man is and what man can become. Hymns, prayers and sermon turn his mind away from the petty routines of existence to larger ideas.

The unchurched give many reasons for their indifference. America has a strong tradition of agnosticism. This is good, because without doubters, there can be no freedom. And yet, "I don't know" is a negative attitude which gives little peace of mind.

Haters of churches often point to intolerance, bickering, bad thinking, hypocrisy and outright chicanery among the "people of God." So what else is new? Do not such conditions exist in every human organization?

INTELLECTUALS, who probably remember the simplified teachings of Sunday school, think of religion as naive. On many levels it is. However, religious philosophy as expressed by its best thinkers is sophisticated beyond the reach of secular intellectuals. The ideas of Christianity and Judaism have been time-tested over thousands of years.

Church is not for everyone. Some people have neither the understanding nor the recognized emotional need. For millions, however, church provides a center and meaning in their lives. It links them with the past that created our culture, with their living fellow men and with hope for a glorious future.

Uncle and You

UNCLE SAM'S anti-poverty program does not relieve the citizen of his duty to support community services through voluntary contributions.

"It is vitally important that these services be maintained," says Sargent Shriver, director of the Economic Opportunity Act. "Any reduction would be unthinkable."

Many people think of the money they give to the United Crusade and to various church and fraternal organizations as "charity." The word should be understood in its highest sense, meaning concern and help for one's fellow men. Several of the agencies, such as the Salvation Army, do give direct alms, but they do so with the purpose of helping the recipients to find better, happier, more useful ways of life.

THESE SERVICES exist to help all who are in need. The Boy Scouts, for example, exists to give all boys, the rich and the poor, an opportunity to participate in the character-building experience of Scouting. Incidentally, a rich boy may be more underprivileged, more in need of the Scouts, than many a poor boy, but the dollars given to the Scouts make it possible for any boy, no matter how poor, to be a member.

The anti-poverty program does not replace any of these services. Its purpose is to relieve the stresses of poverty and to provide opportunity for the poor. Its success will depend in large part upon the cooperation of the volunteer community agencies.

"It would be a great tragedy if the poverty program were interpreted by anyone as a substitute for local initiative by volunteer citizens, or as a reason not to continue support of voluntary services. . . . The Economic Opportunity Act specifically prohibits use of these new federal funds to replace any existing financial resources," Shriver said.

THE VOLUNTARY services are a form of cooperative insurance and self-help. Anyone, rich or poor, might need the help of the Red Cross on a day of disaster. Anyone might need the counsel, guidance and help of one of the various agencies in a period of personal need. And a good community depends upon the ideals and training fostered by the youth programs.

We live in a time in which citizens should do more, not less, to help their neighbors and themselves.

Raising the Roof Again

JOHN O'HARA

A Hope for a Young Negro Not Hoaxed by 'Brotherhood'

I LIKE TO think that at Tuskegee, or Fordham, or the University of Washington there is a young Negro who is quietly watching what is going on, and does not like what he sees. I like to think that this mythical young man, who would be someone on the order of Bill Cosby and Bob Teague, is taking a cold and dim view of the activities of Martin Luther King and James Farmer and Dick Gregory and Cassius Clay and James Baldwin, and of the white men who are so free with the epithet, Uncle Tom, and its verb form Tomming.

* * * *

THIS DEEPLY disturbed young man is in for a lot of unhappiness. The vituperation he will get from the Baldwins and the Kings will be so discouraging that he may want to give up—in which case he is not my man. My man will not give up. He will not give up under attack by his own people, or succumb to the blandishments or the insults of white politicians. He will have to learn to be suspicious of white-colored or black-colored people who yap about the brotherhood of man.

Is there a brotherhood of man, and if so, just what does it mean? And when did it begin? I do not wish to be a brother to Bishop James Pike or to Sukarno or to Frank Sinatra or to Louis Auchincloss, and I will not have a true fraternal feeling for Sammy Davis Jr. or Bobby Kennedy, even at the point of a gun.

* * * *

THERE ARE people I like and people I don't like. Thirty years ago there was a Negro entertainer called George Dewey Washington, who always finished his act with the statement, "I want you to know that your applause goes to my heart and not to my head." The statement used to go to my stomach—and turn it. The late Richard Wright once told me that a story of mine was the only one about Negroes by a white author that he could take. But I did not then become a brotherhood-of-man salesman; I reserved the right to go on thinking that Pearl Bailey is just as much of a bore as Sophie Tucker, and that Ella Fitzgerald is as fine an artist as Gladys Swarthout.

My mythical student will find out soon enough that the brotherhood of man is a term that is usually invoked when someone is making a pitch; whether it's a religious or political or charitable pitch, the pitchman wants something, whether he's wearing a Roman collar or a Brooks Brothers shirt. Having learned that great truth, my man is ready for some others. He will learn, for instance, that it will surely take five hundred years (and maybe five thousand) before cross-breeding of the races produces a tan that will be the uniform color of all human skin. The human toe may disappear before all our descendants are of the same color. (The human race itself, of course, may disappear the day after tomorrow, but we are leaving out that possibility as too frivolous for this serious discussion.)

* * * *

BUT WHEN this toeless tan man, with his plastic organs and transistor brain, has been perfected, the creature will still find something to quarrel over. That is basic to the human condition. I am not a reader of science fiction. I am sixty years old, and the crazy stuff I used to read in Popular Mechanics when I was a kid is all commonplace now, and I can't go through that again. But while the soul of man remains, the need to do something naughty will linger on. My mythical student will know these things because he will be smarter than I was at his age. Knowing them, and being smarter, he will decide for himself how far into the future he wishes to lead his race.

For that is what he will be—the leader of his race. He will not be the leader of my race, any more than Abraham Lincoln was the leader of the Negro race. He will not waste his time in declamations of his pride in being a Negro or in the conventional eulogies of George Washington Carver and Booker T. Washington. He will have to deal with my people, because we have the money. But he will be smart enough to know that when he deals with politicians, the federal government politicians and the ward heelers, he must be careful not to sell his vote.

* * * *

THE VOTE is being sold now, today, in the process of being bought by civil rights and anti-poverty programs that are so inextricably indentified with the Democratic Party that the Republican Party is being eliminated. My mythical student will be taking a particularly hard look at that development, because he is smart enough to know that when the Republican Party has been nullified, the Negro will have only one place to go. And the vote that he has fought for will be useless in a one-party system.

I have striven to avoid making the hard-sell pitch in these messages, and it is an exercise in futility to make a pitch to a mythical man. But if my mythical man is real, I urge him to consider the hazards of the one-party system. It would be tragic if my mythical man remains a myth because the Democrats have a monopoly on the mythical brotherhood of man.

I, P-T Political Editor

EXAMINING the targets of early political sniping, one finds patterns ranging from rifle to buckshot—and an intimation that before it's all over, 1966's riddled ballot will be reduced to full-choke bore.

HOUSER

Michael Cullen, the 1964 Democratic opponent to Long Beach area Congressman Craig Hosmer, has received a letter from one James B. Adler on the letterhead of New York publishers G. P. Putnam's Sons seeking Cullen's opinion on whether Hosmer had used his position in Congress to advance his personal outside business interests and law practice.

"We are aware," said the letter, "these conflicts may not be illegal, but we want to explore whether they are improper."

The letter also queried whether Hosmer had performed any special favors for big campaign contributors. The research—all to be verified by the publishers—is expected to be completed in time to publish a book on the subject of congressional conflicts before the 1966 congressional campaign.

Cullen, himself an attorney, replied:

"I am happy to advise you that the conduct and personal affairs of my 1964 oppunent, Congressman Craig Hosmer, 32nd California Congressional District, have been above reproach.

"Your objective of publishing, in my opinion, a muckraking book concerning our nation's congressmen is personally repugnant to me and falls far below the standards established by G. P. Putnam's Sons over the past century."

ON ANOTHER front there are indications that strength is building on the side of reconstruction in the state's Republican Party.

A case in point—the recent response to Los Angeles County Young Republicans' attempt to read Sen. Thomas Kuchel out of the GOP and suggestion that he become a Democrat.

The new and moderate California Republican League hit the idea as "immature, irresponsible and disrupting" and—significantly—"not representative of the vast majority of its (YR) membership."

County GOP Chairman Jud Leetham met the same issue in another context. A resolution had been placed before the conservative United Republicans of California calling for Kuchel to declare himself out of the governor's race in 1966. Also before UROC was a proposal to censure its state chairman, Fred Nagel, for his announcement that he would support whomever is nominated by the GOP next year.

UROC rejected the resolution and the censure proposal.

Such a demand of Kuchel, said Leetham, was "totally meaningless except as another clamorous and regressive public exhibition of party disunity. Such a "fruitless charade," said Leetham, when the GOP is so much in need of healing and has such a short recovery time "suggests that some of us have learned little from our 1964 ordeal."

NO SUCH breach-healing is evident as yet in the imminent gubernatorial candidacy of actor Ronald Reagan.

GOP Central Committee members James Reynolds (L. A. County Committee) and Vernon Davis of Fresno (State Committee) have urged Reagan to withdraw as a possible candidate.

Their request is based on Reagan's discussion of possible Birch Society support with John Rousselot, the society's national public relations director.

"By coveting Birch Society support," said Reynolds and Davis, Reagan shows he would be "the most disruptive candidate the GOP could offer and, as a candidate, he would cause the defeat of our other statewide candidates."

Public Forum

Time for a Stand

EDITOR:

I wish I could find the words to answer Mrs. Kimball's letter in the Public Forum about the faith she has in young people who, in her words, "would pitch in and fight if our country faced invasion and destruction." What do you think we are facing right now?

My husband happens to be in Viet Nam at the present time. He is there because there is a job to be done; a job that must be done, if we are to remain a strong and free America. You say we are branding them. I, for one, disagree. They are branding themselves. And I am sure that the America we present to them is worthy. Hundreds of thousands of our men are bearing mute testimony to that fact. They are fighting and dying to prove just that.

I haven't forgotten that our nation is sharply divided on the Viet Nam situation. But, how do you justify the division? The stand must be taken to stop the forces of evil in the world and in "My America" every man, woman and child should be strongly behind our fighting men instead of finding ways to avoid doing what they should do proudly.

I am proud to be an American and proud of the many men who are fighting for my right to stay that way. What better presentation can you offer the young people than our way of life compared to the other countries of the world today? If you asked any of the men in Viet Nam I don't think they would tell you they want to be there, but that they must.

No one wants a fight but there comes a time when we must make a stand and this is America's time and place.

Wrong-Way Police

EDITOR:

I live on the corner of Linden and Seaside and I'm wondering what makes our city servants so special. Police cars go out on Rainbow Pier against traffic on a one-way street, just to talk to the boys at the lifeguard station, or drink coffee or kill time. It sure isn't an emergency or in the course of duty. The lifeguards drive private cars out the same way to go to work in the morning. The lifeguard chief drops by once in a while to check on the station. All of them drive the wrong way on a one-way street.

Are these people so very special? What would happen if one of these cars met two cars abreast and someone got confused or excited? Let a lowly citizen get caught out there going the wrong way and what do you suppose would happen?

Great Document

EDITOR:

The article by George Schuyler, Negro intellect, editor and author, "Career Agitators Lead Negro Astray," should be filed in the archives of history alongside other outstanding documents. It rates with the Gettysburg Address and other historical writings. It is a true, unbiased article written by a Negro about the Negro situation today.

I wrote Mr. Schuyler and received a courteous thank you note from him. He remarked that the national reaction to his article had been terrific.

Semantics of Public Arena Too 'Enriched' for Comfort

Independent, Press-Telegram State Bureau

Don't let 'em fool you. The same old things are happening. It merely is that politicos are using the Madison Avenue approach. They exaggerate the good and sugar-coat the bad by coining new phrases.

M'CAULEY

No state bureaucrat ever would be caught dead urging merely that additional funds go to school districts. Rather, the aid is to "enrich the program."

Politicos long ago dropped the subject of soaking the rich to help the poor. Now they plug for broad "equalization" programs—the same thing.

* * * *

THE STATE at one time had a prison board and prison guards. Now it has an Adult Authority and correctional officers. Previously, the state tried to reform criminals. Now it rehabilitates 'em.

Nobody ever goes on the welfare (or relief) rolls in California. They're placed on categorical aid or public assistance.

You can't possibly wind up in a California insane asylum. Instead, you'd be sent to a state hospital under the care of the Mental Hygiene Department. Only the names have been changed, however.

If you call your friendly state bureaucrat when he is out to coffee, his secretary probably will tell you he is in a staff conference.

Republicans no longer present alternative suggestions to the administrative program. The GOP suggestions are "action programs."

* * * *

NO PIECE of legislation ever is really killed. It either gaes to interim for a deep study or remains with the committee that clobbered it.

California isn't growing fast. Rather, it has a population explosion.

Sacramento no longer comes up with new ideas. Instead, it scores breakthroughs.

California doesn't have reform schools—just training schools, reception centers, etc.

The days when legislators all had a No. 1 secretary are over. Now they are called a consultant or administrative assistant.

* * * *

IT HAS BEEN months since Gov. Brown appointed a plain old committee. But every week he turns up with a new "blue-ribbon committee" or a Governor's Conference on Flop-Eared Jack Rabbits.

A potential political candidate who knocks 'em dead at the polling places used to be a good vote-getter. Now, he is rated as having an excellent image.

A state press agent seldom is called a state press agent. Usually he is an assistant director—or some loftier title.

Significance: California not only is first in population, but also in stretching the English language.

LBJ, HHH Plan Tours in Autumn

I, P-T National Bureau

WASHINGTON—Both President Johnson and Vice President Humphrey are planning wide range autumnal tours to check first hand on the state of the consensus.

The presidential tour is slated next month, but could be later if Congress dawdles and doesn't adjourn by early October.

The President's itinerary still is tentative, but would take him across the Midwest and on to the West Coast. California Democratic bigshots have been advised to expect him in Los Angeles on Oct. 15. LBJ Lauds Critic Morse on Steel Peace

WASHINGTON — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., was at the Maryland State Fair at Timonium showing his Red Devon cattle when he was called into the phone booth. It was the President of the United States phoning him from Texas.

"Wayne, where were you all yesterday evening? I had the Secret Service and the White House telephone operator looking for you, and they couldn't find you any place."

"Mrs. Morse and I were in our office until 11:30 working," Morse replied.

"Well, you call up the telephone operator at the White House and give her what-for for not being able to find you," said the President.

"I will do no such thing, Mr. President. You should have known where I usually am on most evenings."

The President then proceeded to tell the Senator from Oregon, sometimes his critic, what a great job he had done in settling the steel dispute. The President was glowing in his praise.

"If it hadn't been for you, Wayne, we might have a steel strike on our hands right now," he said.

"Don't kid yourself, Mr. President. It was you who did it," Morse replied. And when he got back to Washington, Morse made it official by delivering a speech on the Senate floor giving Johnson the credit for settling the steel strike.

As the dispute approached a showdown with neither side able to agree, Johnson called Morse at his Maryland farm.

"Wayne was out taking care of his cattle," the President told friends afterward. "I told him I wanted him to go to Pittsburgh and offered to send a helicopter to bring him into Washington. He said he could get there under his own steam just as quick, and sure enough he turned up at the White House almost immediately."

* * * *

AFTER ONE day conferring in Pittsburgh, Morse and Under Secretary of Commerce Leroy Collins returned to report to the President, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, and Secretary of Commerce John Connor.

"They've got their feet in cement, and it is hardening so fast that you'll have to chisel off their legs to get them out," Morse told the President.

Some of the presidential advisers felt it was unwise for the President himself to get into the negotiations immediately, that he should keep aloof while Secretary Wirtz and Secretary Connor talked to union and management, then intervene at the last minute if necessary.

"Listen, Gentlemen, the President is in this over his head already," said Morse. "He was in it before he sent Collins and me to Pittsburgh. With the whole economy of the country at stake, he's got to bring 'em in here and talk to them himself. Furthermore if he talks to them first and then turns them over to the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Commerce, the position of these two is strengthened."

This procedure was followed. At this point in the negotiations the industry had proposed an increase of approximately 40.4 cents.

Collins and Morse reported that the final package should range between 45 and 48 cents, and they thought industry would accept this.

* * * *

WIRTZ and Connor were opposed to having the government make any concrete suggestions, but Morse and Collins argued that the government had to make suggestions. The President accepted their recommendation, and in the end it was the government which virtually settled the steel strike. The increase was around 47 cents.

The President was at the LBJ Ranch when the final settlement came in. What pleased him most was that both I. W. Abel of the United Steelworkers and Roger Blough of U.S. Steel telephoned him to express the feeling that it was a good deal all the way around and to thank him for his intervention.

GEORGE S. SCHUYLER

Negro Author Says De Facto Education Is What Counts

EDITORS NOTE: As millions of Negro students go back to school, with the prospects of more school boycotts and 'busing' controversies in sight, N.A.N.A. asked George S. Schuyler, the conservative Negro newspaperman and author, what advice he had for these young Negroes. His counsel, as spelled out in this article, adds up to: "Study hard!" Mr. Schuyler, author of "Black No More," has written for Negro publications for more than 40 years.

NEW YORK—While the civil-rights sociologists continue their mental gymnastics to explain "Watt" happened to make Los Angeles Negroes riot, and split hairs over whether firemen in a colored neighborhood should be white or Negro, it is pertinent to point out that six million "revolutionaries" are going back to school this month.

These six million young Negroes—or at least a good number of them—have it within them to continue the true Negro Revolution in America. It is a revolution of learning, and it has been going on for the last 40 years. It requires going to school every day, studying hard, doing your homework, staying out of trouble, and not letting envy of the other guy fill your heart with hate.

The Negro in America enjoys something far more important than de facto integration or de facto segregation. He has de facto education, and it is up to him whether he wants to spend his time studying English and history and mathematics—or studying the city bus routes and playing armchair superintendent of schools.

Thanks to this real Negro revolution—of studious boys and girls who kept their nose to the books and tried to make something of themselves—there is no limit today to what the qualified Negro youth can accomplish, with ambition and study. The observation of other Negroes' success should be a powerful stimulant to acquiring a good education, and more and more of these colored youths headed for school and college recognize that not even all the speechifying of the Reverend Martin Luther King, nor all the picketing of Mr. James Farmer can make a doctor or a lawyer out of a drop-out.

ON THE OTHER HAND, there is also a phony Negro revolution, and unfortunately it is the one that makes all the headlines because headlines are what its leaders want. The phony revolution is created out of artificially stimulated frustration, the blighting of unrealistically inflated hopes, and the basic corrosion effected by the deceptive doctrine of non-violence and civil disobedience.

The phony Negro revolution is clothed in self-righteousness, but in actuality it has increased the hostility of the criminal element toward the law and opened the door to racist and subversive incendiarism. This exploitation of community and national anxieties has indirectly imperiled the development of the other, more meaningful revolution. There must be many a confused Negro youngster who thinks the most exalted feat a Negro can perform in America is picket a lunch counter.

It is becoming clearer, even to the most obtuse and immature, that civil rights alone are not enough for salvation—or else all white people would be prosperous and happy! After "freedom now" there is still to overcome automation, urban decay, family disintegration and the entrapment of urban slums; and it cannot be frightened away by floundering salamander-like on the streets or singing slave songs on courthouse steps and clamoring for a "moral confrontation."

The uneducated and untrained sense that they are losing out, and their self-styled leaders constantly remind them of it, but the educated and hard-working Negroes are gaining daily in giant steps.

The unballyhooed educational revolution began to roll in the early twenties when Negro college fraternities trumpeted the slogan: "Go to High School-Go to College." Then there were not a dozen accredited high schools for Negroes in the entire South where nine-tenths resided.

At the time, a college education meant little to a Negro not intending to teach school or to pursue a career as physician or dentist, usually "among his own people." The bristling barriers facing him resembled a stockade. Business, industry, science and politics were almost exclusively lily-white, and had nothing to offer the colored man with a college degree. He was a strange bird on the American scene and few knew what to make of him. The biggest employers of colored college men were the railroads in their terminals as red caps and the Pullman cars as porters.

Negro lawyers were scarce and usually briefless. Those aspiring to become physicians and dentists could get training at only two Negro medical schools, internship only in Negro municipal hospitals, and could not attend their patients in the few private hospitals that admitted them. The professional societies were as white as a sheet.

IT TOOK A LOT OF FAITH, courage, ambition and persistence then for a young Negro to continue through college, with the help of poor parents and odd jobs, for a career in doubt from the start.

Under the circumstances it is truly remarkable that each year since World War I around 5,000 graduated and now it is close to 15,000. There were mighty few scholarships available. Today, with doors open on every side and mountains of scholarships available, a Negro youth has to be very backward not to be able to win a degree and a good job after graduation.

Since 1945 and wars' end, when the quiet revolution picked up steam, the number of Negroes in professional pursuits has increased 32 times. They now constitute 13% of federal civil service employes, and a significant number in the higher pay brackets as executives and sub-executives proliferate. There are more than three score Negro judges on various levels from the municipal to federal benches. At least two districts have colored federal attorneys. They fill 280 elective offices, including six congressmen and 90-odd state legislators—10 in Georgia alone.

Yes, it is not lack of opportunity, nor lack of educational facilities, that is "holding back" the Negro masses of America. Indeed America, North and South, eagerly awaits the growing numbers of industrious, responsible, educated Negroes who can play a constructive role in society. One Negro chemist or one Negro shop owner is—in the true Negro Revolution—worth a thousand complaining picketers.

The school-bound Negro youngster who is interested in industry, commerce, manufacture and finance may take courage to pursue his studies by considering what has happened in those fields since the quiet revolution got up full steam after World War II. Big corporations today are hunting as assiduously for educated Negroes as the antebellum slavers sought husky ones.

AS A RESULT of this Negro Revolution, there are hundreds of Negro scientists and executives working for big corporations. Eisenhower.

Perhaps the most spectacular aspect of the quiet Negro Revolution has been the acceptance of the Negro in the armed forces on a completely integrated basis, a fact for the past 15 years, despite initial objections of the highest officers, including General Eisenhower.

So, the quiet Negro Revolution marked by the acceptance and the success of the educated colored folk goes on. They are still too few but they are increasing because, in the paucity of training and talent, America needs and wants them, and has proved it. One does not have to harp to the intelligent Negroes on the need for staying in school. They will learn that de facto education is more important than de facto integration; that singing the blues never advanced anyone but entertainers, and that the worst schools are better than those attended by Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln.

LBJ Lauds Critic Morse on Steel Peace

WASHINGTON — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., was at the Maryland State Fair at Timonium showing his Red Devon cattle when he was called into the phone booth. It was the President of the United States phoning him from Texas.

"Wayne, where were you all yesterday evening? I had the Secret Service and the White House telephone operator looking for you, and they couldn't find you any place."

"Mrs. Morse and I were in our office until 11:30 working," Morse replied.

"Well, you call up the telephone operator at the White House and give her what-for for not being able to find you," said the President.

"I will do no such thing, Mr. President. You should have known where I usually am on most evenings."

The President then proceeded to tell the Senator from Oregon, sometimes his critic, what a great job he had done in settling the steel dispute. The President was glowing in his praise.

"If it hadn't been for you, Wayne, we might have a steel strike on our hands right now," he said.

"Don't kid yourself, Mr. President. It was you who did it," Morse replied. And when he got back to Washington, Morse made it official by delivering a speech on the Senate floor giving Johnson the credit for settling the steel strike.

"Wayne was out taking care of his cattle," the President told friends afterward. "I told him I wanted him to go to Pittsburgh and offered to send a helicopter to bring him into Washington. He said he could get there under his own steam just as quick, and sure enough he turned up at the White House almost immediately."

* * * *

AFTER ONE day conferring in Pittsburgh, Morse and Under Secretary of Commerce Leroy Collins returned to report to the President, Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, and Secretary of Commerce John Connor.

"They've got their feet in cement, and it is hardening so fast that you'll have to chisel off their legs to get them out," Morse told the President.

Some of the presidential advisers felt it was unwise for the President himself to get into the negotiations immediately, that he should keep aloof while Secretary Wirtz and Secretary Connor talked to union and management, then intervene at the last minute if necessary.

"Listen, Gentlemen, the President is in this over his head already," said Morse. "He was in it before he sent Collins and me to Pittsburgh. With the whole economy of the country at stake, he's got to bring 'em in here and talk to them himself. Furthermore if he talks to them first and then turns them over to the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Commerce, the position of these two is strengthened."

This procedure was followed. At this point in the negotiations the industry had proposed an increase of approximately 40.4 cents. Collins and Morse reported that the final package should range between 45 and 48 cents, and they thought industry would accept this.

* * * *

WIRTZ and Connor were opposed to having the government make any concrete suggestions, but Morse and Collins argued that the government had to make suggestions. The President accepted their recommendation, and in the end it was the government which virtually settled the steel strike. The increase was around 47 cents.

The President was at the LBJ Ranch when the final settlement came in. What pleased him most was that both I. W. Abel of the United Steelworkers and Roger Blough of U.S. Steel telephoned him to express the feeling that it was a good deal all the way around and to thank him for his intervention.

GEORGE S. SCHUYLER

Negro Author Says De Facto Education Is What Counts

EDITORS NOTE: As millions of Negro students go back to school, with the prospects of more school boycotts and 'busing' controversies in sight, N.A.N.A. asked George S. Schuyler, the conservative Negro newspaperman and author, what advice he had for these young Negroes. His counsel, as spelled out in this article, adds up to: "Study hard!" Mr. Schuyler, author of "Black No More," has written for Negro publications for more than 40 years.

NEW YORK—While the civil-rights sociologists continue their mental gymnastics to explain "Watt" happened to make Los Angeles Negroes riot, and split hairs over whether firemen in a colored neighborhood should be white or Negro, it is pertinent to point out that six million "revolutionaries" are going back to school this month.

These six million young Negroes—or at least a good number of them—have it within them to continue the true Negro Revolution in America. It is a revolution of learning, and it has been going on for the last 40 years. It requires going to school every day, studying hard, doing your homework, staying out of trouble, and not letting envy of the other guy fill your heart with hate.

The Negro in America enjoys something far more important than de facto integration or de facto segregation. He has de facto education, and it is up to him whether he wants to spend his time studying English and history and mathematics—or studying the city bus routes and playing armchair superintendent of schools.

Thanks to this real Negro revolution—of studious boys and girls who kept their nose to the books and tried to make something of themselves—there is no limit today to what the qualified Negro youth can accomplish, with ambition and study. The observation of other Negroes' success should be a powerful stimulant to acquiring a good education, and more and more of these colored youths headed for school and college recognize that not even all the speechifying of the Reverend Martin Luther King, nor all the picketing of Mr. James Farmer can make a doctor or a lawyer out of a drop-out.

ON THE OTHER HAND, there is also a phony Negro revolution, and unfortunately it is the one that makes all the headlines because headlines are what its lenders want. The phony revolution is created out of artificially stimulated frustration, the blighting of unrealistically inflated hopes, and the basic corrosion effected by the deceptive doctrine of non-violence and civil disobedience.

The phony Negro revolution is clothed in self-righteousness, but in actuality it has increased the hostility of the criminal element toward the law and opened the door to racist and subversive incendiarism. This exploitation of community and national anxieties has indirectly imperiled the development of the other, more meaningful revolution. There must be many a confused Negro youngster who thinks the most exalted feat a Negro can perform in America is picket a lunch counter.

It is becoming clearer, even to the most obtuse and immature, that civil rights alone are not enough for salvation—or else all white people would be prosperous and happy! After "freedom now" there is still to overcome automation, urban decay, family disintegration and the entrapment of urban slums; and it cannot be frightened away by floundering salamander-like on the streets or singing slave songs on courthouse steps and clamoring for a "moral confrontation."

The uneducated and untrained sense that they are losing out, and their self-styled leaders constantly remind them of it, but the educated and hard-working Negroes are gaining daily in giant steps.

The unballyhooed educational revolution began to roll in the early twenties when Negro college fraternities trumpeted the slogan: "Go to High School-Go to College." Then there were not a dozen accredited high schools for Negroes in the entire South where nine-tenths resided.

At the time, a college education meant little to a Negro not intending to teach school or to pursue a career as physician or dentist, usually "among his own people." The bristling barriers facing him resembled a stockade. Business, industry, science and politics were almost exclusively lily-white, and had nothing to offer the colored man with a college degree. He was a strange bird on the American scene and few knew what to make of him. The biggest employers of colored college men were the railroads in their terminals as red caps and the Pullman cars as porters.

Negro lawyers were scarce and usually briefless. Those aspiring to become physicians and dentists could get training at only two Negro medical schools, internship only in Negro municipal hospitals, and could not attend their patients in the few private hospitals that admitted them. The professional societies were as white as a sheet.

IT TOOK A LOT OF FAITH, courage, ambition and persistence then for a young Negro to continue through college, with the help of poor parents and odd jobs, for a career in doubt from the start.

Under the circumstances it is truly remarkable that each year since World War I around 5,000 graduated and now it is close to 15,000. There were mighty few scholarships available. Today, with doors open on every side and mountains of scholarships available, a Negro youth has to be very backward not to be able to win a degree and a good job after graduation.

Since 1945 and wars' end, when the quiet revolution picked up steam, the number of Negroes in professional pursuits has increased 32 times. They now constitute 13% of federal civil service employes, and a significant number in the higher pay brackets as executives and sub-executives proliferate. There are more than three score Negro judges on various levels from the municipal to federal benches. At least two districts have colored federal attorneys. They fill 280 elective offices, including six congressmen and 90-odd state legislators—10 in Georgia alone.

Yes, it is not lack of opportunity, nor lack of educational facilities, that is "holding back" the Negro masses of America. Indeed America, North and South, eagerly awaits the growing numbers of industrious, responsible, educated Negroes who can play a constructive role in society. One Negro chemist or one Negro shop owner is—in the true Negro Revolution—worth a thousand complaining picketers.

The school-bound Negro youngster who is interested in industry, commerce, manufacture and finance may take courage to pursue his studies by considering what has happened in those fields since the quiet revolution got up full steam after World War II. Big corporations today are hunting as assiduously for educated Negroes as the antebellum slavers sought husky ones.

AS A RESULT of this Negro Revolution, there are hundreds of Negro scientists and executives working for big corporations, Eisenhower.

Perhaps the most spectacular aspect of the quiet Negro Revolution has been the acceptance of the Negro in the armed forces on a completely integrated basis, a fact for the past 15 years, despite initial objections of the highest officers, including General Eisenhower.

So, the quiet Negro Revolution marked by the acceptance and the success of the educated colored folk goes on. They are still too few but they are increasing because, in the paucity of training and talent, America needs and wants them, and has proved it. One does not have to harp to the intelligent Negroes on the need for staying in school. They will learn that de facto education is more important than de facto integration; that singing the blues never advanced anyone but entertainers, and that the worst schools are better than those attended by Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln.

NEW PORT CAPTAIN

Pissichio Post Goes to Bills

By BOB SHIBLEY

"I've lived in 22 places during my 25 years in the Coast Guard," Capt. James Bills explained, "and I've gotten used to moving."

Bills took over as Captain of the Port last week, replacing Cmdr. Sam Pissichio, who retired.

As Captain of the Port, Bills has the responsibility of maintaining law enforcement within the vast Long Beach-Los Angeles harbors.

His range of jurisdiction extends from about a mile inland to two and a half miles at sea. In width, it ranges from San Pedro, Wilmington and parts of Los Angeles to the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station.

His crew consists of about 50 men, including six officers, six 40-foot utility boats and two harbor tugs.

"We are like an accident-prevention bureau," Bills explained. We always have at least one boat patroling the area. Our main goal is to prevent dangers in the harbor before they appear."

The Captain of the Port, he said, gives all foreign cargo-carrying vessels the green light to enter the harbor.

"The foreign boats must contact the office at least 24 hours before they arrive to ask for entry permission. If they meet the Code of Federal Regulations (the Bible of commercial navigation) standards, we give them affirmative."

Bills added that it is seldom any of the boats give the Coast Guard any trouble. "They are commercial ships and they stand both the use of the ship and money if they don't comply with rules."

The father of three children—Terence, 20, Linda, 18, and Chick, 14—Bills lives with his wife, Sheila, and youngest child at 901 Driftwood Ave., Seal Beach. His older son is a junior at the University of Hawaii, while his daughter attends UCLA.

Temple Dedication Today

By LES RODNEY
I. P-T Religious News Editor

Affixing of the Mezuzah, traditional Jewish home symbol, to the new entrance will mark the dedication program for the $200,000 addition to Temple Israel today at 3 p.m. Children of the religious school will participate in the ribbon cutting.

The 42-year-old temple at Third Street and Loma Avenue has added 14 classrooms, a youth lounge, library, administrative offices, auxiliary sanctuary, and combination conference room-bridal suite. The main sanctuary has been completely renovated.

Superior Judge Max Z. Wiscot, a past president of the temple, will be master of ceremonies, with area rabbis and ministers also taking part. An open house will follow.

Rabbi Wolli Kaelter characterized the additions as "maintaining the comfortable tradition and feeling of the old temple while adding very much needed, modern facilities for our constantly growing congregation."

The Mezuzah is a sacred symbol which people of the Jewish faith attach to the door posts of their homes. It contains a scroll proclaiming, in words from the fourth chapter of Deuteronomy, the Unity of God and the love which links men to Him. Attaching the Mezuzah to the doorpost of the Temple marks the dedication of the congregational home to the spirit of God's Holy Word.

SANCTUARY . . . Completely Renovated

MEZUZAH—sacred symbol—contains scroll with words from Deuteronomy proclaiming unity of God and love which links men to Him.

L.B. Sister City Lunch on Friday

Chilean National Independence Day will be marked at a luncheon Friday in the Edgewater Inn Hotel, while the Long Beach-Valparaiso Sister City Committee pushes efforts to ship blankets to aid victims of a hurricane there.

Alan Sieroty, deputy director the Chile-California program, will be the speaker at the luncheon which will honor Chilean counsul general Miguel Bravo. A highlight of the event, will be an amplified live telephone conversation between Mayor Juan Montedonic of Valparaiso and Mayor Edwin W. Wade of Long Beach.

Reservations may be made for the luncheon by calling Mrs. Lloyd H. Smith, 5313 E. Second St., by Monday evening.

Bill Wray, vice-president of the Sister City Committee, said efforts are being made to make the first shipment of blankets to Valparaiso on Saturday. Those wishing to donate blankets should take them to the Empire Savings and Loan Association office, 454 Pacific Ave.

FIRST BLANKET FOR CHILE

Law School Enrolls Wednesday

Enrollment for first year students in the Law School of Pacific Coast University of Long Beach will take place from noon to 7 p.m. Wednesday and again Sept. 22 and 29, at 236 Newport Ave. Classes begin Sept. 30.

Dr. Carl H. Manson, dean, said upper classes are filled. The school begins its 38th year of operation this month.

Curricula leading to degrees of Bachelor of Laws and Master of Laws are offered in the school in which all students are employed full-time and attend night classes.

Prof. Harry M. Hunt will return to the staff this semester following a year's sabbatical leave. He will instruct the course on Evidence.

Walter Reuther Speaker at UAW Dedication Today

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (AFL-CIO) will speak at the dedication of the new UAW Local 148 Union Service Center, 3971 Pixie Ave., Lakewood, at 4 p.m. today.

The structure to house activities of the big union that represents 14,000 Douglas Aircraft Long Beach plant workers is scheduled for completion in December.

WALTER REUTHER
Dedication Speaker

Local president Ed Wiancecki said the auditorium and office building will cover approximately 9,000 square feet on a site west of the Long Beach Douglas plant.

Currently offices of the local are at 4120 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach.

AF Reserve Training Classes Set

Air Force Reservists classes in staff development, intelligence and general training are being offered by the 9450th Air Reserve Squadron of Long Beach which meets at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays at the Army Reserve Center, 3800 Willow St.

Col. Robert S. Meyer, commanding officer, said points for promotion and retirement can be earned by attending.

Class vacancies for Reservists exist at both locations, said Col. Meyer.

Driving Class Set to Open

An eight-hour defensive driving course will be offered by the Long Beach Safety Council on three week nights beginning this week.

Classes will be forming on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights, according to Bud Mowry, council manager.

Illustrated lectures, films and general discussions on aspects of traffic safety will be featured. Courses will be held in two-hour sessions in the Long Beach Police Department academy classroom.

Ordinance Unit Postpones Meet

A meeting of the Long Beach City Council's Ordinance Committee originally scheduled for Monday has been set forward one week to Sept. 20 at 9:30 a.m., Chairman Robert F. Crow has announced.

The delay was caused by conflict with the City Bureau of Franchises meeting.

Items on the committee's agenda include possible new controls over the vending of ice cream from trucks near schools, regulations limiting the number, type and size of roof signs, new regulations applying to entertainment cafes and social clubs, and a proposed amendment to require placement of public utility facilities underground in new subdivisions.

The Mezuzah is a sacred symbol which people of the Jewish faith attach to the door posts of their homes. It contains a scroll proclaiming, in words from the fourth chapter of Deuteronomy, the Unity of God and the love which links men to Him. Attaching the Mezuzah to the doorpost of the Temple marks the dedication of the congregational home to the spirit of God's Holy Word.

L.B. Sister City Lunch on Friday

Chilean National Independence Day will be marked at a luncheon Friday in the Edgewater Inn Hotel, while the Long Beach-Valparaiso Sister City Committee pushes efforts to ship blankets to aid victims of a hurricane there.

Alan Sieroty, deputy director the Chile-California program, will be the speaker at the luncheon which will honor Chilean counsul general Miguel Bravo. A highlight of the event, will be an amplified live telephone conversation between Mayor Juan Montedonic of Valparaiso and Mayor Edwin W. Wade of Long Beach.

Reservations may be made for the luncheon by calling Mrs. Lloyd H. Smith, 5313 E. Second St., by Monday evening.

Bill Wray, vice-president of the Sister City Committee, said efforts are being made to make the first shipment of blankets to Valparaiso on Saturday. Those wishing to donate blankets should take them to the Empire Savings and Loan Association office, 454 Pacific Ave.

FIRST BLANKET FOR CHILE

Law School Enrolls Wednesday

Enrollment for first year students in the Law School of Pacific Coast University of Long Beach will take place from noon to 7 p.m. Wednesday and again Sept. 22 and 29, at 236 Newport Ave. Classes begin Sept. 30.

Dr. Carl H. Manson, dean, said upper classes are filled. The school begins its 38th year of operation this month.

Curricula leading to degrees of Bachelor of Laws and Master of Laws are offered in the school in which all students are employed full-time and attend night classes.

Prof. Harry M. Hunt will return to the staff this semester following a year's sabbatical leave. He will instruct the course on Evidence.

Walter Reuther Speaker at UAW Dedication Today

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (AFL-CIO) will speak at the dedication of the new UAW Local 148 Union Service Center, 3971 Pixie Ave., Lakewood, at 4 p.m. today.

The structure to house activities of the big union that represents 14,000 Douglas Aircraft Long Beach plant workers is scheduled for completion in December.

WALTER REUTHER
Dedication Speaker

Local president Ed Wianecki said the auditorium and office building will cover approximately 9,000 square feet on a site west of the Long Beach Douglas plant.

Currently offices of the local are at 4120 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach.

AF Reserve Training Classes Set

Air Force Reservists classes in staff development, intelligence and general training are being offered by the 9450th Air Reserve Squadron of Long Beach which meets at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays at the Army Reserve Center, 3800 Willow St.

Col. Robert S. Meyer, commanding officer, said points for promotion and retirement can be earned by attending.

Class vacancies for Reservists exist at both locations, said Col. Meyer.

Driving Class Set to Open

An eight-hour defensive driving course will be offered by the Long Beach Safety Council on three week nights beginning this week.

Classes will be forming on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights, according to Bud Mowry, council manager.

Illustrated lectures, films and general discussions on aspects of traffic safety will be featured. Courses will be held in two-hour sessions in the Long Beach Police Department academy classroom.

Ordinance Unit Postpones Meet

A meeting of the Long Beach City Council's Ordinance Committee originally scheduled for Monday has been set forward one week to Sept. 20 at 9:30 a.m., Chairman Robert F. Crow has announced.

The delay was caused by conflict with the City Bureau of Franchises meeting.

Items on the committee's agenda include possible new controls over the vending of ice cream from trucks near schools, regulations limiting the number, type and size of roof signs, new regulations applying to entertainment cafes and social clubs, and a proposed amendment to require placement of public utility facilities underground in new subdivisions.

COMEDY AT PLAYHOUSE

Fun in 'Paradise' --Two Wives Help

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

First let us pay our audience dues and say Alec Coppel's comedy "The Captain's Paradise," now at the Community Playhouse, seemed to a fashionable opening night crowd, including the Mayor of Long Beach and Mrs. Wade a pleasant way to regain another man's idea of paradise.

Another man's idea since nobody who is good at matrimonial mathematics, or who is keen on not spending his days in "paradise-lost" — and the nearest prison cell — will try to emulate what went on in the infirmary of Captain St. James's (Frank Keith) mind. And in reality, too.

This otherwise punctilious captain of the S.S. Piccolo got the idea that one way to beat boredom when in frequented ports was to have two wives in different ports — bedrooms.

* * * *

IT WAS NICE bedroom-to-bedroom work if you could get it and this roue captain played with relish (though not sufficient mustard and Heinz-variety — as yet — by lead Keith with corkingly good Worcester-English accent), made sure that he tried.

You can't blame him for trying. The wives wooed and lost, Doris Parenteau and Joan Elms, in "sharp-ending bliss" — the captain finally joining a nomadic Arab tribe with malice, no, marriage aforethought — are attractive enough to make a man strong on sex, but arithmetic-weak, say ONE PLUS ONE, in different ports, are (or is) ONE.

Miss Parenteau, a liberally proportioned blonde, is no newcomer to the local stage, having at one time been one of the leading lights of the pioneering Lakewood Players. She is solid as the domesticated English wife, Maude, in the captain's Gibraltar home, although she can't stage-cry a lick.

* * * *

DARK-HAIRED Joan Elms as wife Nita in Port Linea is a peppy newcomer from Torrance, who among interesting work experiences, is currently the "Voice" on Nortronics Voice interruptions systems warning pilots of malfunctions in their planes.

Well, under this Elms is many a lively curve which simply induces spiritual malfunctions in men — and they don't have to be pilots either. Never saw so many male-factoring malfunctions in my life as when the spirited Miss Elms was on-stage making a sizzling fandango out of the captain's twoports' life. She promises to get even better when director John Williams gets off it and lets her have her "voice" and speed and catlike moves.

Together with other-wife Doris Parenteau, Miss Elms puts on one swell unknown confrontations scene. They gabbed about the husband neither knew the other had. It was contrived plot-making, but Williams who is still too conservative and inconsistent, directed this one sequence with the speed, pace and abandon the whole darn play needs. In fact, "Paradise" more attuned to the movie camera, has several siestas which demand sharp inventive work to keep things bright.

* * * *

HOWEVER, from the driving finish shared by the wives, Parenteau and Elms, and two-time husband Keith and featuring an excellent supporting player, South Gate's Harold Nelson, and Bellflower's able, Akim Tamiroff-talking Frank Boreffi as a scheming Absolem, "Paradise" promises that with a couple more outings it will provide an even lovelier place to spend an evening. Director Williams was hitting all the creative corners during these delightful moments.

Dick Davis (Lawrence St. James), James Baxes (Police Sergeant Watkins), Doug Sewell (Delivery man), Duan Posson (Bnb), Doug Sewell (Pedros) and Sherlah Ivie (Mrs. Reid) got into the act well. The set — Dennis King's? — though as overcrowded as the captain's life, was OK.

N.Y. Schools Expect Record Enrollment

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — School enrollments in New York State are expected to hit a record 4.7 million when the new school year begins.

The state Education Department says a total of 4.1 million pupils will enter elementary and high schools. College and university enrollments will pass the 600,000 mark.

Musical Summer Lingers

By DANIEL CARIAGA

The summer season is not over yet. Hollywood Bowl has finally closed its gates, after hosting two post-season events last week, but the Greek Theater, presenting Judy Garland and guests, remains open another week, and the final Starlight Serenade takes place Tuesday night in Bixby Park.

Last week ended on two happy notes: the Sibelius Centennial Concert at the Bowl Thursday, conducted by Jussi Jalas, with violinist Tossy Spivakovsky and Finnish baritone Matti Lehtinen; and the third program of the American Ballet Theater in the Greek Friday night.

For its last offering, Ballet Theater presented three of its most acclaimed works: "La Fille Mal Gardee," Tudor's "Jardin aux Lilas," and "Fancy Free." The choice was fortunate, not only for happy variety, but also because each work was well-cast and well-danced.

* * * *

LUPE SERRANO and Scott Douglas, the pastoral lovers in "La Fille," projected their characterizations and danced elegantly. Their fellow principals, led by Enrique Martinez (an hilarious yet restrained Madame Simone), Paul Sutherland, and Basil Thompson, followed suit.

The corps caught the mood set by the principals, and seemed to enjoy themselves; the still-spectacular finale went off without a hitch.

Anthony Tudor's "Lilac Garden," 25 years after its American premiere, retains the aura of avant-gardism, though Tudor's highly stylized choreography has been long assimilated, and there never was anything esoteric about Chausson's "Poeme."

Sallie Wilson, Judith Lerner, Gayle Young, and Tom Adair were the mismatched couples of this purposely-bad dream, and made their dramatic points effectively.

Conductor Kenneth Schermerhorn and violinist Alexander Horvath had obviously made compromises in tempi and emphasis to suit the dancers' needs; not surprisingly, these compromises made hash out of Chausson's filet.

* * * *

SCHERMERHORN, who led all three works Friday, gave us a bright, unerring, properly bucolic "Fille;" in "Fancy Free," he did his best conducting all week.

"Fancy Free," the work that, 21 years ago, introduced Jerome Robbins, Leonard Bernstein, and Oliver Smith to the general public, looks and sounds not at all as old as it is. Compared to "Oklahoma," which preceded it by a year, it is practically new.

Bernstein's jazzy, bump-by-bump realization of Robbins' scenario still has much life of its own; like the famous Rumble Music he wrote 13 years later, it can be played effectively all by itself.

The sailors were Eliot Feld, William Glassman, and Edward Verso. Glassman, whose technical equipment includes a flexible, articulate face, and an actor's projection, danced a dazzling Variation.

The Sibelius Concert Thursday introduced works of Uuno Klami, Yrjo Kilpinen, and Sibelius to California audiences. It also presented here for the first time the leading baritone of the National Opera of Finland, Matti Lehtinen.

Mr. Lehtinen, in the "Lament" from Sibelius' Kullervo Symphony, and in the beautiful cycle, "Sons of the Fells," by Kilpinen, demonstrated a voice of beauty, power, and expressiveness. The Kilpinen work, as worthy as similar efforts by Berlioz, Falla, and Canteloube, deserves wide hearing.

Conductor Jussi Jalas led the accompaniments with discretion, the orchestral works with authority. The Seventh Symphony, brooding and exalted by turns, was a revelation of clarity.

No Funeral for Father Divine, 100

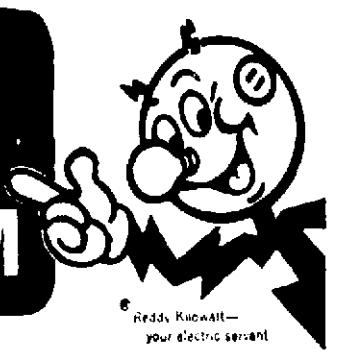

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —There will be no funeral for Father Divine, Negro cult leader whom thousands revered as "God," it was announced Saturday.

Divine died Friday of a heart ailment at his palatial estate in suburban Gladwyne, which served as international headquarters for his religious movement. J. Austin Norris, his attorney, said Divine was about 100 years old.

Norris said the body would not be cremated, but the manner of its disposal had not been decided upon.

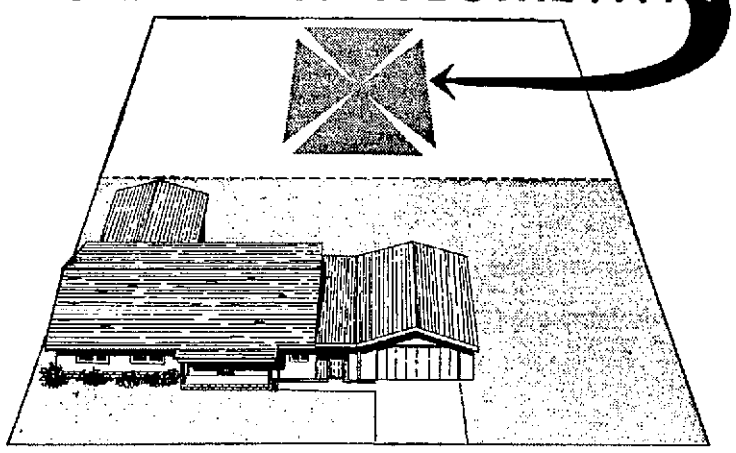

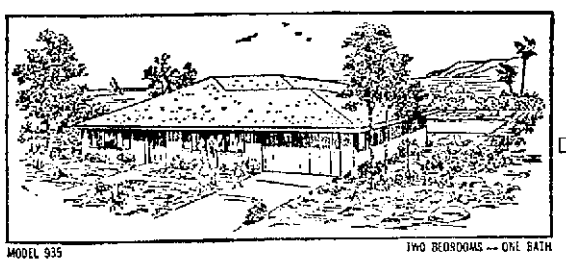

A public viewing will be held, however, all day today on the 73-acre estate, known as Woodmont.

SWEET MUSIC to you will be buyers for the piano you want to sell . . . who come after you start an ad. Dial IIE 2-5959 to start it.

IN OSCAR'S BOOK

The Needle for All

By EARL WILSON

BEVERLY HILLS — Oscar Levant was apprehensive, sitting in pajamas in his living room at 6 p.m., that his old friend Leonard Bernstein might be offended because he wrote in his new book that Bernstein "has been disclosing musical secrets that have been well known for hundreds of years."

LEVANT

"I just want to palliate it a little," Oscar said earnestly. "He's always been nice . . . I went too far with him."

It was the nearest Oscar's ever come to an apology. His delightful book, "Memoirs of an Amnesiac," insults all his best friends. They forgive him because Oscar is Oscar and, they hope, always will be.

OSCAR BOASTS in his book of walking out of a Bernstein concert. But he said to me "It was Bernstein's sister who suggested it—and who"—with a satanic chuckle—"is going to resist walking out of a Bernstein concert? It's like me in conversation, I will do anything for a good line.

"When Bernstein offered me tickets to a concert that people couldn't get seats for, I couldn't resist saying to him, 'I prefer seeing you without an orchestra.'"

LEVANT SAID he'd been quite impossible since sleeping pill addiction and other problems sent him to various hospitals.

His beautiful wife June sat there listening — constructively, and critically. "You remember," Oscar said, "that in proposing I said to her, 'Marry me and make me the most confused man in the world.' Afterward, I said, 'I'm only marrying you to get even.'"

June spoke up quickly: "P.S. He did!"

"I asked my editor," Oscar said, "'Why does June emerge as the hero of my book?' He said, 'Endurance.'"

Levant recalled that once he flew from LA to NY with a doctor to give him a sleeping potion — "I'm afraid to fly and didn't want to have a waking minute on the plane" — and then took an ambulance to do a Steve Allen show.

"After I did the the show, I phoned June for her reaction. She said I was excellent. That really hurt me. Certainly I was better than 'excellent.'"

THE REVELATIONS he made of institutions he was in will lead to reform of those places, he says. Under analysis for 30 years, he says one analyst began injecting him with demoral and made him an addict.

Still, he talks of it with amusement. He smiled over a story that a physician warned Dorothy Parker that if she didn't quit drinking she'd die in a year. "Promises, promises!" she said.

Levant feels his life is summed up this way: "My mother used to tell me to send my money home to her and she'd put it in the bank for me. She did put it in the bank, and the bank failed."

STELLAR ICE PERFORMER

Chance Caused Champ Skaters to Team Up

It was not a case of love at first sight.

When Ken Ormsby met Paulette Doan in Toronto she was just a pretty little girl who needed a partner for her dance on ice.

Ken was without a partner, too, so he agreed to take Paulette through "a couple of dances."

A week later, Ken and Paulette won the Canadian sectional championship. That qualified them for the national junior competition.

"We won the Canadian junior championship in the afternoon," Ken says, "and in the evening we finished second in the national seniors."

* * * *

"PAULETTE is very hard to dance with because she is so small," Ken says. "I had to change my whole style to work with her."

They'll show their intricate maneuvers at the Long Beach Arena Sept. 24-Oct. 3.

* * * *

THE CHANGE of style worked wonders for both Ken and Paulette. No North American dance pair had ever won the world championship. They determined to try.

As it happened, Ken and Paulette did not make it. They finished second in world competition in 1964 after winning the North American championship in 1963 and taking a third place in the world competition.

After the 1964 competition they took a long look at their situation. Both desperately wanted the world title, but the lure of attractive Ice Follies contracts swayed them into pro ranks.

IN OSCAR'S BOOK

The Needle for All

By EARL WILSON

BEVERLY HILLS — Oscar Levant was apprehensive, sitting in pajamas in his living room at 6 p.m., that his old friend Leonard Bernstein might be offended because he wrote in his new book that Bernstein "has been disclosing musical secrets that have been well known for hundreds of years."

LEVANT

"I just want to palliate it a little," Oscar said earnestly. "He's always been nice . . . I went too far with him."

It was the nearest Oscar's ever come to an apology. His delightful book, "Memoirs of an Amnesiac," insults all his best friends. They forgive him because Oscar is Oscar and, they hope, always will be.

Compton Schools Receive $428,086 Special Grants

Compton Union High School District was granted $428,086 of a total $7 million now approved for countywide antipoverty programs.

The Compton district will use its money to add reading, tutorial and antidropout programs at seven schools serving the "designated poverty area," Dr. Carl J. Burk, assistant superintendent in charge of instruction, said.

Included are Compton and Centennial High Schools and Bunche, Enterprise, Vanguard, Walton and Willowbrook Junior Highs.

The reading program, including a reading laboratory and special reading assistant aat each school, and the tutorial program will take four or five weeks to put into effect, Dr. Burk said.

Project "Stay," the antidropout program, will require about five months to get under way because it involves installation of classrooms as well as additional teachers, Burk explained.

The $428,000 grant will cover cost of the programs through next June 30.

Leaders Seek Fish Survey

A meeting held this week in Wilmington to discuss problems of the local fishing industry decided that what was needed first was a government survey of just what these ills were.

A group of 25 federal and state officials and representatives of the local fishing industry attending the meeting, sponsored by the California and World Fishery Association to Correct Inequities, heard Tony S. Ostoich, association chairman, declare that marketing fish products was one of the prime problems.

The proposed survey, the conferees decided, might be made by the federal government under funds provided by the Economic Development Act, and Ostoich was directed to request such a study.

Garbage Collections

Beginning Thursday, city garbage crews will revert to the normal schedule of weekly collections, Long Beach officials have announced. Twice weekly pickups have been in effect since June.

FIGHT ASTHMA & BRONCHITIS TO SLEEP BETTER

At the first sign of wheezing, difficult breathing or coughing from recurring Bronchial Asthma or Bronchitis, aggravated by air contamination by smoking, smog, dust and pollens, take quick acting MENDACO. It combats allergy, relaxes bronchial tubes, thins and helps remove thick, choking phlegm. This usually eases breathing fast, allays coughing, thus promoting better sleep. Get MENDACO at druggists. Let it help you.

BACKACHE & TENSION SECONDARY TO KIDNEY IRRITATION

After 31, common Kidney or Bladder Irritations affect twice as many women as men and may make you tense and nervous from too frequent, burning or itching urination both day and night. Secondarily, you may lose sleep and suffer from Headaches, Backaches and feel old, tired, depressed. In such irritation, CYSTEX usually brings fast, relaxing comfort by curbing irritating germs in strong, acid urine and by analgesic pain relief. Get CYSTEX at druggists. Feel better fast.

Californian Selected for Defense Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday he will nominate Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., to be director of defense research and engineering — the No. 3 post at the Pentagon.

Foster, 42, will succeed Dr. Harold Brown, who will become secretary of the Air Force on Oct. 1.

Johnson also announced he will nominate Robert A. Brooks, a management consultant from Cambridge, Mass., to be assistant secretary of the Army for installations and logistics. Brooks, 44, will take over from Daniel M. Luevano, recently named San Francisco regional director of the antipoverty program.

* * * *

THE CHIEF executive disclosed, too, a change in the American contingent at the United Nations. Mrs. Jane Warner Dick is resigning as U. S. representative on the social commission of the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

Being nominated to succeed her is Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, former associate judge of the juvenile court of the District of Columbia. Mrs. Lawson, now in private law practice in the capital, is a Negro.

The Pentagon's new research director has been head of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory for the past four years and has been associated with the lab since 1952.

A native of New Haven, Conn., he graduated from McGill University in Canada in 1948 and obtained his doctorate in Physics at the University of California in 1952. During World War II he worked in radar technology at Harvard University, then served two years as field adviser with the 15th Air Force.

* * * *

BROOKS, born in Calcutta of American parents, has been associated since 1951 with the Boston management-consultant firm of Harbridge House Inc. He is a graduate of Harvard and received two advanced degrees there.

During World War II, he was an Army Air Corps officer in the Pacific and was described by the White House as having had "extensive experience in design, development and testing of management systems" for the Defense Department.

Playground Memorial to Aviator

"There are probably people present here who wouldn't be alive today if Hank had not ridden down with his plane," said Vice Adm. P. D. Stroops.

"He sacrificed his life to save others."

* * * *

THEN the admiral presented the Distinguished Flying Cross, awarded Stanley posthumously, to Stanley's widow, Mary Ann, who lives in Coronado with her three children.

When Stanley's T33 became disabled, he had his copilot parachute to safety. But Stanley stayed with the plane, barely missing a high school as it came in low.

Californian Selected for Defense Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday he will nominate Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif., to be director of defense research and engineering — the No. 3 post at the Pentagon.

Foster, 42, will succeed Dr. Harold Brown, who will become secretary of the Air Force on Oct. 1.

Johnson also announced he will nominate Robert A. Brooks, a management consultant from Cambridge, Mass., to be assistant secretary of the Army for installations and logistics. Brooks, 44, will take over from Daniel M. Luevano, recently named San Francisco regional director of the antipoverty program.

* * * *

THE CHIEF executive disclosed, too, a change in the American contingent at the United Nations. Mrs. Jane Warner Dick is resigning as U. S. representative on the social commission of the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

Being nominated to succeed her is Mrs. Marjorie Lawson, former associate judge of the juvenile court of the District of Columbia. Mrs. Lawson, now in private law practice in the capital, is a Negro.

The Pentagon's new research director has been head of the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory for the past four years and has been associated with the lab since 1952.

A native of New Haven, Conn., he graduated from McGill University in Canada in 1948 and obtained his doctorate in Physics at the University of California in 1952. During World War II he worked in radar technology at Harvard University, then served two years as field adviser with the 15th Air Force.

BROOKS, born in Calcutta of American parents, has been associated since 1951 with the Boston management-consultant firm of Harbridge House Inc. He is a graduate of Harvard and received two advanced degrees there.

During World War II, he was an Army Air Corps officer in the Pacific and was described by the White House as having had "extensive experience in design, development and testing of management systems" for the Defense Department.

Playground Memorial to Aviator

"There are probably people present here who wouldn't be alive today if Hank had not ridden down with his plane," said Vice Adm. P. D. Stroops.

"He sacrificed his life to save others."

* * * *

THEN the admiral presented the Distinguished Flying Cross, awarded Stanley posthumously, to Stanley's widow, Mary Ann, who lives in Coronado with her three children.

When Stanley's T33 became disabled, he had his co-pilot parachute to safety. But Stanley stayed with the plane, barely missing a high school as it came in low.

ROUTS BUENO IN STRAIGHT SETS!

BILLIE JEAN MOFFITT
Guns for Biggest Title

Combined Wire Services

Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, who has been knocking at the door of Wimbledon singles fame only to be turned away, goes for the biggest plum of her career today when she plays Margaret Smith of England for the women's title in the U.S. National Tennis Championships.

Just as at Wimbledon, Miss Moffitt, over the past few years, has failed to reach the finals but, playing the best tennis of her career, defeated top-seeded and defending champion Maria Bueno of Brazil, 6-2, 6-3, Saturday to gain the finals against her nemesis, Miss Smith, who trounced Nancy Richey of Dallas, America's top-ranked player, 6-2, 6-2.

In men's singles, Manuel Santana of Spain spoiled upstart Arthur Ashe's bid with a 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 victory and will meet Cliff Drysdale of South Africa for the title today. Drysdale, surprise of the tournament which began a week ago, dropped Rafael Osuna of Mexico, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Moffitt has teamed with Miss Bueno several times for doubles victories, including this year's Wimbledon doubles crown, but she had seldom beaten her partner in singles. Her opponent today has been even tougher. Only once in the classics has Miss Moffitt defeated Miss Smith and that was at Wimbledon two years ago in the quarterfinals.

Miss Moffitt, charging the net confidently behind a big service recently restyled by Australian pro Mervyn Rose, brushed aside Miss Bueno so quickly on a side court that many in the crowd of 13,000 packing the main stand were unaware the match was in progress.

Billie Jean wound it up by sweeping the last nine points from Miss Bueno, who had reigned supreme in this championship for two straight years.

Ashe hoped to become the first American winner since Tony Trabert in 1955 after blasting Australia's Roy Emerson in the semifinals.

The lanky, 22-year-old Negro kept hammering away at the versatile Santana as he had against Emerson, but he had to do a lot of reaching for the Spaniard's craftly angled shots and spinning service. That led Ashe into numerous errors and eventually defeat.

It took Santana a full set to explore weaknesses in Ashe's game and he dropped that first set, 6-2, offering little resistance. After that it was all Santana.

Drysdale had too much power for Osuna and was almost as deft as the agile Mexican on the frequent occasions where both were at the net matching volley for volley.

The South African, again relying heavily on his two-handed backhand, scored a big service break in the sixth game of the first set when Osuna apparently was upset by a questionable call on one of Drysdale's lobs to the baseline for a placement. The Mexican then netted an easy volley.

Miss Smith required only 44 minutes to dispose of Miss Richey, who had beaten the Australian three times in minor tournaments earlier this year.

Robert Sherman of Temple City, Calif., won the national seniors crown for players 45 and over with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Robert Freedman of Springfield, Mass. Sherman whipped six-time champion Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., en route to the final.

CUBS TURN FLUB INTO GIANT OUT

Chicago Cubs' second baseman Glenn Beckert (18) trips over fallen shortstop Jim Stewart after both tried to field single by San Francisco's Len Gabrielson. Center fielder Don Landrum (top) charged in to scoop up ball and throw Gabrielson out trying for second, but Giants won, 6-4.

McCovey Homers in 6-4 Victory, Shaw Wins 16th Game

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Willie McCovey, fresh from hitting a grand slam Friday night, belted a three-run homer in the first inning Saturday and then the league-leading San Francisco Giants hung on to win their eighth straight, 6-4 over the Chicago Cubs.

McCovey lifted his season total to 35 when he lined one of loser Bill Faul's deliveries over the right field fence after Jay Alou walked and Willie Mays singled.

The Cubs never pulled even although Ron Santo smashed a homer with two on, his 29th, in the sixth and they mounted big threats in the seventh and eighth innings.

Bob Shaw, with the aid of Masanori Murakami and Gaylord Perry, picked up his 16th win of the season against eight setbacks.

Faul, the last pitcher to beat the Giants before they went on their current splurge, now is 5-4.

* * * *

THE CUB righthander staked the Giants to another pair of runs in the fourth inning when he made a two-base throwing error and followed that with a wild pitch. Jim Ray Hart hit a run-scoring double off relief pitcher Billy Hoeft in the sixth for the Giants' final run.

Head coach Lou Klein of Chicago used a total of eight pinch hitters and a pinch runner during the contest. Chicago loaded the bases on Murakami in the seventh, then the Japanese southpaw retired Glenn Beckert on a pop fly to end the uprising.

Perry took over for Murakami with two aboard in the eighth and closed down that inning by striking out Ernie Banks and Jim Stewart while Hart made a fine play at third base to retire Don Young for a key out.

Dodgers Keep Pace, Win 8-3

By GEORGE LEDERER

Claude Osteen staggered through 7⅔ innings and was a winner Saturday night because the Astros staggered the imagination.

With the help of five Houston errors, the Dodgers won, 8-3, and continued their close pursuit of the Giants, who lead by one-half game.

Rowdy Dick Farrell was the loser in several ways as the Dodgers made it seven in a row over the Astros and three in a row since dropping the big series with the Giants.

Farrell drew a warning from plate umpire Doug Harvey after hitting Ron Fairly with a pitch in the fifth inning. It cost Farrell an automatic $50 fine and sent his temperature to the boiling point.

Farrell was dismayed not only by Harvey's decision and the atrocious fielding of his teammates, but also tangled verbally with the official scorer for inflating his earned run average.

Before taking his shower, Farrell telephoned the press box and demanded a word with the scorer, whose initials are G.L. In Farrell's opinion, three Dodger runs in the fifth inning were unearned. In G.L.'s opinion, they were earned.

So much for Farrell's triple loss.

Osteen's 13th win was something else. He allowed 12 hits, matching the Dodgers' total, and needed help from Bob Miller and Ron Perranoski.

Miller wasn't of much help when he entered with two on, two out and two runs across in the eighth inning. Miller walked Eddie Kasko to fill the bases, and manager Walter Alston walked to the mound to escort Miller to the dugout.

Perranoski was superb, as he has been for the past five weeks. He disposed of the last four Astros in order, giving him a streak of 24⅓ scoreless innings in 13 appearances since Aug. 7.

Houston's defense, which cost Robin Roberts three runs Friday night, put Farrell behind by three in the first inning and became progressively worse.

The first-inning trio, by the way, was unearned.

With two out and Jim Gilliam on first with a walk, Joe Morgan failed to handle Fairly's bouncer to second, placing Dodgers on first and third.

Lou Johnson followed with a two-run double and scored the third run as Joe Gaines dropped Jim Lefebvre's line drive in right field.

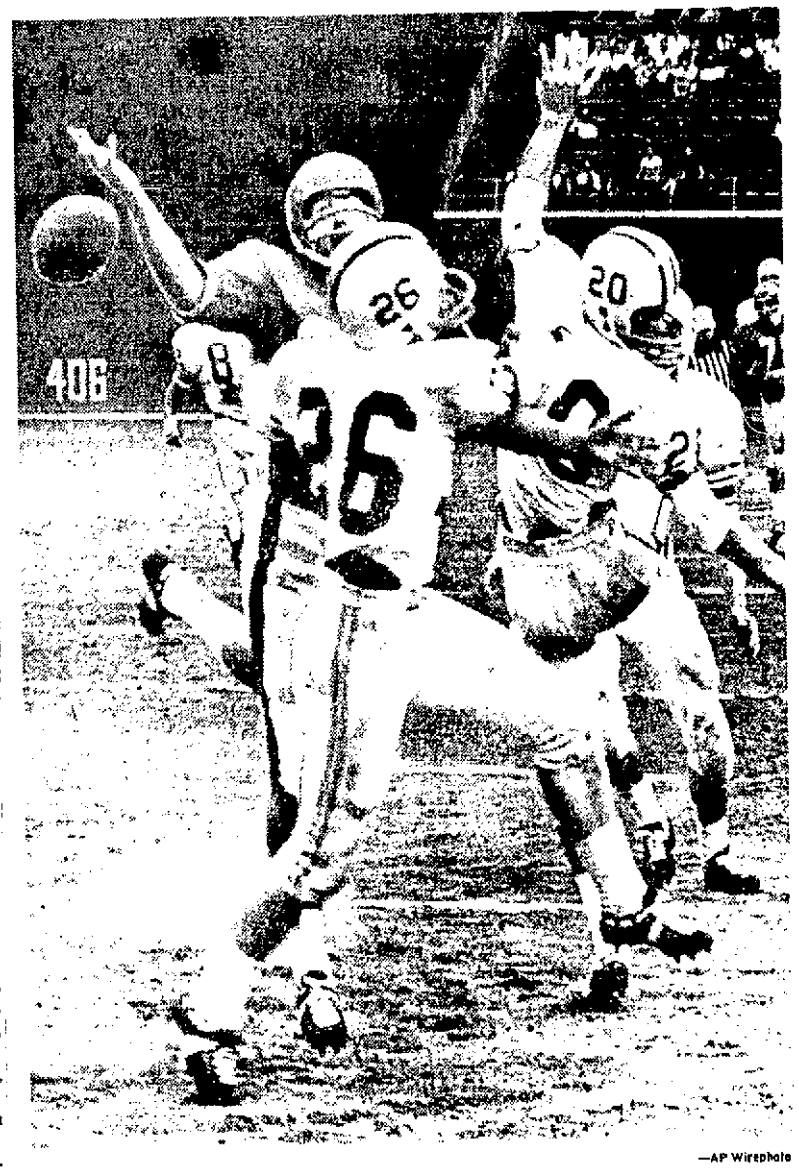

Houston cut the margin to 3-1 in the fourth, at which time Osteen had allowed five hits. Osteen walked Walt Bond after decking him with a fast ball and Bond scored on Lee Maye's single to center.

The Bond incident was to

PACKERS BURY CARDS, 31-13

Hot Starr Passes for 3 TDs; Hornung Sharp Both Ways

PAUL HORNUNG
'Best Game in 3 Years'

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Paul Hornung, looking better than he has in three years, and Bart Starr, enjoying his best start ever, ran and passed the Green Bay Packers to a 31-13 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday night before a record Wisconsin professional football crowd.

Starr passed for three touchdowns and Hornung for one in the rout of the team generally considered to be the best in the National Football League's Eastern Division. The Packers finished with a 4-2 exhibition season record and St. Louis finished with a win, a tie and three losses.

A crunching defense that bothered St. Louis quarterback Charley Johnson throughout the game held the Cards without a touchdown until the final quarter.

A break manufactured by the Packers toward the end of the first quarter touched off the Green Bay explosion. With the score tied 3-3, on 15 yard field goals by Jim Bakken of St. Louis and Don Chandler of Green Bay, Bill Triplett fumbled and Tom Brown recovered for the Packers on the Cards' 30.

On the first play, Hornung, running the option, threw a strike to Marv Fleming and Fleming bulled the final 10 yards into the end zone.

Seconds later, the Packers started a drive on their own and marched 51 yards for a score. Starr tossed seven yards to Boyd Dowler for that one.

Hornung caught a five-yard pass from Starr for Green Bay's third touchdown near the end of the third quarter, and in the fourth period after Johnson had passed 19 yards to Sonny Randle for a St. Louis touchdown, Max McGee hauled in a 17-yard Starr pass to score.

Hornung gained 31 yards in seven carries and sparked two of the touchdown drives. It was his 34-yard reception of a Starr pass that set up the Green Bay field goal.

Rookie Allen Jacobs led the Green Bay ground gainers with 45 yards — all in the final period.

The crowd of 50,858 was the largest ever to attend a professional football game in Wisconsin.

BILLIE JEAN MOFFITT
Guns for Biggest Title

Combined Wire Services

Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach, who has been knocking at the door of Wimbledon singles fame only to be turned away, goes for the biggest plum of her career today when she plays Margaret Smith of England for the women's title in the U.S. National Tennis Championships.

Just as at Wimbledon, Miss Moffitt, over the past few years, has failed to reach the finals but, playing the best tennis of her career, defeated top-seeded and defending champion Maria Bueno of Brazil, 6-2, 6-3, Saturday to gain the finals against her nemesis, Miss Smith, who trounced Nancy Richey of Dallas, America's top-ranked player, 6-2, 6-2.

In men's singles, Manuel Santana of Spain spoiled upstart Arthur Ashe's bid with a 2-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4 victory and will meet Cliff Drysdale of South Africa for the title today. Drysdale, surprise of the tournament which began a week ago, dropped Rafael Osuna of Mexico, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Moffitt has teamed with Miss Bueno several times for doubles victories, including this year's Wimbledon doubles crown, but she had seldom beaten her partner in singles. Her opponent today has been even tougher. Only once in the classics has Miss Moffitt defeated Miss Smith and that was at Wimbledon two years ago in the quarterfinals.

Miss Moffitt, charging the net confidently behind a big service recently restyled by Australian pro Mervyn Rose, brushed aside Miss Bueno so quickly on a side court that many in the crowd of 13,000 packing the main stand were unaware the match was in progress.

Billie Jean wound it up by sweeping the last nine points from Miss Bueno, who had reigned supreme in this championship for two straight years.

Ashe hoped to become the first American winner since Tony Trabert in 1955 after blasting Australia's Roy Emerson in the semifinals.

The lanky, 22-year-old Negro kept hammering away at the versatile Santana as he had against Emerson, but he had to do a lot of reaching for the Spaniard's craftily angled shots and spinning service. That led Ashe into numerous errors and eventually defeat.

It took Santana a full set to explore weaknesses in Ashe's game and he dropped that first set, 6-2, offering little resistance. After that it was all Santana.

Drysdale had too much power for Osuna and was almost as deft as the agile Mexican on the frequent occasions where both were at the net matching volley for volley.

The South African, again relying heavily on his two-handed backhand, scored a big service break in the sixth game of the first set when Osuna apparently was upset by a questionable call on one of Drysdale's lobs to the baseline for a placement. The Mexican then netted an easy volley.

Miss Smith required only 44 minutes to dispose of Miss Richey, who had beaten the Australian three times in minor tournaments earlier this year.

Robert Sherman of Temple City, Calif., won the national seniors crown for players 45 and over with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Robert Freedman of Springfield, Mass. Sherman whipped six-time champion Gardnar Mullov of Coral Gables, Fla., en route to the final.

Editors Favor Interleague Play

What do YOU think of interleague play in major league baseball? That is, the Yankees playing the Dodgers during regular season play . . . the Angels meeting the Giants . . . the Mets opposing the Angels (and what a quinela that would be!), etc.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

The subject was brought before The National Academy of Sports, which is comprised of sports editors from 100 of the nation's largest newspapers. Our opinion was cited in the last news release of The Academy because this writer a few years ago already had polled the populace and returned a 100% verdict in favor of interleague competition.

There is no valid reason why American League teams should not play National League teams even though some writers think interleague clashes would hurt both the All-Star game and the World Series. Bosh! The two pro football leagues already have shown that interleague (or interdivision) competition is the spice of gridiron life.

This mixed competition hasn't injured their Pro Bowls nor their championship playoffs one iota.

Before quoting various sports editors on this most timely subject, we'd like to ask you again: What do YOU think of interleague play? Just drop a "yes" or "no" vote to this department on your opinion; we'll get another area sentiment and also toss YOUR vote into the national hopper.

P. S. Members of The National Academy of Sports voted in favor of interleague play in major league baseball by a strong five to one ratio.

Following are some of the reasons.

SI BURDICK, Dayton News: "Interleague competition when involving the top clubs would stimulate attendance and even though lower-echelon clubs might not attract too much business, there would be enthusiasm in American League cities over seeing what makes the Mets tick, and in National League cities for a look at Carl Yastrzemski, or even Charley Finley's mule."

Leo Fisher, Chicago American: "Pro football, which is so progressive that it makes baseball look as though it's standing still, has tried the idea successfully, and there is no reason why it shouldn't work in the majors."

Wayne Fuson, Indianapolis News: "From the attendance figures I've seen Americans aren't exactly knocking down the gates getting into see their national pasttime. Consequently, I'd think a little something new might help."

Dick Hackenberg, Chicago Sun-Times: "Popularity has been proven by interdivision play in the NFL and AFL. Set up natural rivalries such as Cleveland and Cincinnati."

BILL REDDY, Syracuse Post-Standard: "Certainly, games between the Chicago, Los Angeles and New York teams (i.e. two-team cities), should result in bigger attendance."

Leighton Housh, Des Moines Register & Tribune: "Baseball needs fresh ideas. We in Iowa are nearest to two American League clubs — Minnesota and Kansas City — and it would be a real bonus to fans of this area to get a chance to look at National League teams and stars once a year without having to go to St. Louis or Chicago."

Charlie Johnson, Minneapolis Tribune & Star: "Look at what such a plan would do to bolster attendance. Smart scheduling would draw nothing but people if leaders in both leagues visit parks of tailenders."

Mike Kanaley, Buffalo Courier Express: "Baseball needs all the help it can get — from any source."

Tom Kelly, St. Petersburg Times: "If nothing else, it would expose the present inequality of the two leagues and perhaps face adjustments in personnel to improve the over-all play of the American League."

Bob Roesler, New Orleans Times Picayune: "Since baseball magnates seem to have just one thing in mind—MONEY, I can't for the world understand why they have not tried interleague competition."

Cliff Sundberg, Boston Traveler: "It certainly would create interest in cities like ours where baseball is dying because of a poor ball club. Our fans would like to see Mays and Koufax and it sure would help Boston's dwindling gate."

ON THE OTHER HAND:

Furman Bisher, Atlanta Journal: "If we're going to do this, shouldn't sports editors swap around and write columns for each other's papers on a regularly scheduled basis?"

Bill Hodge, Wichita Eagle & Beacon: "No doubt interleague play would help line the pockets of major league owners in sume cases, but it would not be in the interests of the sports public which is what must concern writers."

Tom Siler, Knoxville News-Sentinel: "Interleague play during the season is certain to weaken the draw of the World Series." (Aw, now, Tom, you must be kidding.)

Dress Rehearsal Today for Rams at Coliseum

By AL LARSON

The Rams and San Francisco 49ers will conclude their pre-season muscle stretching today and the only one who says pro football exhibition games don't count is probably a worried coach.

With a crowd of 30,000 expected to witness the final dress rehearsal for both NFL rivals at the Coliseum, now's the time for the figure filberts to compare last year's pre-season results to 1965s and then forecast the regular campaign.

An armchair quarterback who predicted the 1964 National Football League finish on the basis of the pre-season standings must have felt like a swami.

The top two finishers in both divisions during the 1964 exhibition season were either first or second in league play while, on the other end, the last-place team in each division during the regular campaign was also in the cellar when the games didn't "count."

Cleveland, the NFL champion, proved true to form after finishing on top during pre-season competition and Eastern Divisinn runner-up St. Louis also followed the Browns in the exhibition standings. New York, last during the regular campaign, was at the bottom during pre-season play.

Baltimore and Minnesota switched roles for the 1964 campaign, much to the disappointment of Viking fans. Baltimore finished second to Minnesota during exhibition play but the Colts placed a notch ahead of the Vikings to capture the Western crown.

San Francisco, last at the end of the regular season, was in the same position following the pre-season warfare.

But when the 49ers line up for today's 1 o'clock kickoff, they'll present new and impressive credentials. Coach Jack Christiansen's Bay Area club has a 2-1-1 record to date. And according to Ram coach Harland Svare, "this is the toughest club we will have met up to now."

New in the 49ers' scheme of things is this year's top pick Ken Willard of North Carolina, a 6-2, 230-pound tackle-buster. He's the club's leading ground gainer with 120 yards in 24 carries for an even 5-yard average.

Off-season trade acquisition John David Crow has been sidelined with a broken left hand but sophs Gary Lewis and Dave Kopay will take up the slack.

San Francisco considers its front four of ends Dan Colchico and Clark Miller and tackles Charlie Krueger and Roland Lakes the equal of the Ram foursome and it looked to be every bit that good in the final '64 meeting at San Francisco. They threw Bill Munson for losses 10 times and limited the Rams to 15 net rushing yards.

The Rams finished 3-2 in pre-season play last year and wound up fifth in league action. Munson will make his third successive start today as the Rams, a 4-point favorite, try to match last year's final exhibition record.

Tulsa Aerial Attack Sinks Houston in Astrodome Tilt

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Bill Anderson, a former defensive halfback, threw two touchdown passes Saturday in leading the 1965 edition of the aerial minded Tulsa Hurricanes to a 14-0 victory over the University of Houston in the air conditioned Astrodome.

	Tulsa	Houston

Houston was a narrow favorite, but Anderson's passes, specatcular catches by Howard Twilley and Neal Sweeny, and a rugged Hurricane defense that caused four Houston fumbles permitted Tulsa domination most of the way.

A few fists flew and two players were ejected.

Four first half Houston fumbles were charged to Warren McVea, a sophomore speedster. McVea carried 11 times for a net of 21 yards.

VIKES' EXHIBITION SLATE UNBLEMISHED

Tarkenton Hurls 3 TD Strikes 2nd Half

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Fran Tarkenton sat out the first half, then threw three touchdown passes to bring the Minnesota Vikings a 24-9 victory over the New York Giants Saturday, in a National Football League exhibition game before 14,250.

The victory was the Vikings' fifth in an unbeaten pre-season schedule and 11th in a row for pre-season games. It was New York's third loss against one victory and a tie.

Tarkenton pitched two quick passes for a score at the start of the third quarter to break a 3-3 tie after coach Norm Van Brocklin had given rookie Bob Berry his first professional game experience in the first half.

	Vikings	Giants
First downs	15	16
Rushing yardage	265	226

Yards penalized	69	83

Berrry, yearling quarterback from Oregon, connected on only three of nine pass attempts for a total of 39 yards, as defenses for both teams dominated first half play.

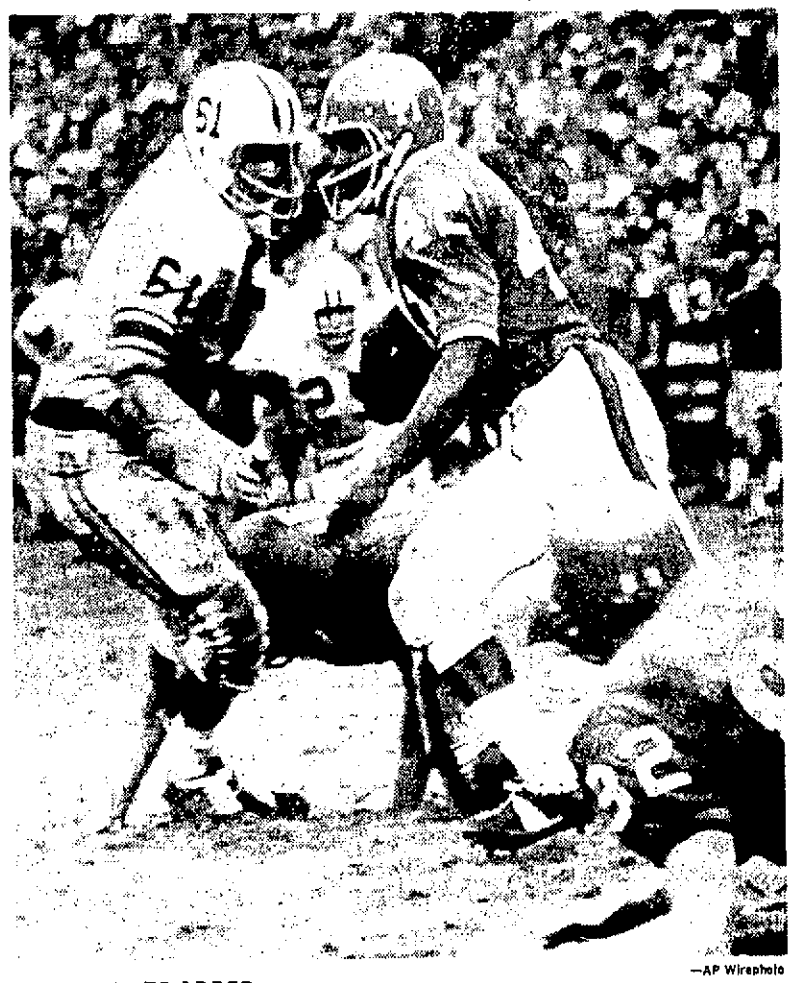

Earl Morrall, acquired by the Giants recently from Detroit, suffered also at the hands of a charging defense. He gained 105 yards on 11 completions in 31 tries.

Gary Wood took over as Giant quarterback with 7½ minutes to go. He threw 12 yards to Bob Crespino for New York's only touchdown with 3:24 to play and had moved the Giants close to the goal once more when the gun sounded.

Tarkenton quickly put the Vikings in front when he entered the game. He pitched 19 yards to halfback Bill Brown, another star who rested the first half, then lofted one to Paul Flatley, who outran Dick Lynch to complete a 61-yard scoring play with 4:26 gone in the third period.

Dress Rehearsal Today for Rams at Coliseum

By AL LARSON

The Rams and San Francisco 49ers will conclude their pre-season muscle stretching today and the only one who says pro football exhibition games don't count is probably a worried coach.

With a crowd of 30,000 expected to witness the final dress rehearsal for both NFL rivals at the Coliseum, now's the time for the figure filberts to compare last year's preseason results to 1965s and then forecast the regular campaign.

An armchair quarterback who predicted the 1964 National Football League finish on the basis of the pre-season standings must have fell like a swami.

The top two finishers in both divisions during the 1964 exhibition season were either first or second in league play while, on the other end, the last-place team in each division during the regular campaign was also in the cellar when the games didn't "count."

Cleveland, the NFL champion, proved true to form after finishing on top during pre-season competition and Eastern Division runner-up St. Louis also followed the Browns in the exhibition standings. New York, last during the regular campaign, was at the bottom during pre-season play.

Baltimore and Minnesota switched roles for the 1964 campaign, much to the disappointment of Viking fans. Baltimore finished second to Minnesota during exhibition play but the Colts placed a notch ahead of the Vikings to capture the Western crown.

San Francisco, last at the end of the regular season, was in the same position following the pre-season warfare.

But when the 49ers line up for today's 1 o'clock kickoff, they'll present new and impressive credentials. Coach Jack Christiansen's Bay Area club has a 2-1-1 record to date. And according to Ram coach Harland Svare, "this is the toughest club we will have met up to now."

New in the 49ers' scheme of things is this year's top pick Ken Willard of North Carolina, a 6-2, 230-pound tackle-buster. He's the club's leading ground gainer with 120 yards in 24 carries for an even 5-yard average.

Off-season trade acquisition John David Crow has been sidelined with a broken left hand but sophs Gary Lewis and Dave Kopay will take up the slack.

San Francisco considers its front four of ends Dan Colchico and Clark Miller and tackles Charlie Krueger and Roland Lakes the equal of the Ram foursome and it looked to be every bit that good in the final '64 meeting at San Francisco. They threw Bill Munson for losses 10 times and limited the Rams to 15 net rushing yards.

The Rams finished 3-2 in pre-season play last year and wound up fifth in league action. Munson will make his third successive start today as the Rams, a 4-point favorite, try to match last year's final exhibition record.

Hadl's Bomb to Alworth Nips Broncs

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A 39-yard John Hadl to Lance Alworth scoring pass proved the deciding margin Saturday night in a see-saw 34-31 San Diego Chargers win over the Denver Broncs in the American Football League opener for both.

Tulsa Aerial Attack Sinks Houston in Astrodome Tilt

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Bill Anderson, a former defensive halfback, threw two touchdown passes Saturday in leading the 1965 edition of the aerial minded Tulsa Hurricanes to a 14-0 victory over the University of Houston in the air conditioned Astrodome.

Houston was a narrow favorite, but Anderson's passes, specatcular catches by Howard Twilley and Neal Sweeny, and a rugged Hurricane defense that caused four Houston fumbles permitted Tulsa domination most of the way.

A few fists flew and two players were ejected.

Four first half Houston fumbles were charged to Warren McVea, a sophomore speedster. McVea carried 11 times for a net of 21 yards.

VIKES' EXHIBITION SLATE UNBLEMISHED

Tarkenton Hurls 3 TD Strikes 2nd Half

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Fran Tarkenton sat out the first half, then threw three touchdown passes to bring the Minnesota Vikings a 24-9 victory over the New York Giants Saturday, in a National Football League exhibition game before 14,250.

The victory was the Vikings' fifth in an unbeaten pre-season schedule and 11th in a row for pre-season games. It was New York's third loss against one victory and a tie.

Tarkenton pitched two quick passes for a score at the start of the third quarter to break a 3-3 tie after coach Norm Van Brocklin had given rookie Bob Berry his first professional game experience in the first half.

	Vikings	Giants

Berrry, yearling quarterback from Oregon, connected on only three of nine pass attempts for a total of 39 yards, as defenses for both teams dominated first half play.

Earl Morrall, acquired by the Giants recently from Detroit, suffered also at the hands of a charging defense. He gained 105 yards on 11 completions in 31 tries.

Gary Wood took over as Giant quarterback with 7½ minutes to go. He threw 12 yards to Bob Crespino for New York's only touchdown with 3:24 to play and had moved the Giants close to the goal once more when the gun sounded.

Tarkenton quickly put the Vikings in front when he entered the game. He pitched 19 yards to halfback Bill Brown, another star who rested the first half, then lofted one to Paul Flatley, who outran Dick Lynch to complete a 61-yard scoring play with 4:26 gone in the third period.

THE COLLEGES

USC Pick vs. Gophers

HALL

By JEROME HALL

West Coast football's struggle against the world gets a stern test next weekend as the '65 package is unwrapped all across the country.

On the opening-week schedule for AAWU teams are four collisions with the Big Ten, one with Pitt and one with the monsters from Notre Dame.

It's a schedule that will strain the claim that Western football is on the rise. The Pacific Coast teams will be underdogs in four of them. Only USC (against Minnesota) will be favored. Oregon and Pitt rate even.

If you measure Pacific Coast football only by the won-lost figures in the Rose Bowl, the improvement may be unclear. But if you measure it by balanced competition within the league and excitement during the games, the AAWU might rank ahead of the Southwest, the Southeast, the Midwest and even the pros.

A year ago the tug-o'-war for the championship of the AAWU, the Pacific 8 as it might be better called, ended in a tie between Oregon State and USC. Oregon was only a half game behind in the standings and was only 90 seconds shy of an undefeated season.

As UCLA coach Tommy Prothro points out, "Going into the eighth or ninth games of the season last year there hadn't been a game played in the conference that was decided by more than seven points."

The prospect for equality is equally good this year.

Favorite for the AAWU title and the Rose Bowl nomination is USC. Every coach in the league, aside from Trojan chief John McKay, says so. The 40 Skywriters who just completed a tour of the conference training camps say so. They voted almost unanimously for the Trojans to finish on top. A scattering of Northwest votes went to Washington's team.

The Rose Bowl race can be oversimplified, with considerable accuracy, by saying that the team that wins the USC vs. Washington game will be dueling with the Big Ten come New Year's Day.

Last year this formula was departed from only slightly. If USC hadn't lost to Washington, USC would have gone to the Rose Bowl.

The Trojans and the Huskies will collide Oct. 9 at Seattle.

But standing in the wings waiting for the rest of the contenders to eliminate each other is the team from the University of Oregon. There is considerable chance that the Trojans will lose to Washington, that Washington will lose to Stanford and Stanford will lose to USC, among others.

Such an eventuality would leave the path open to the Webfoots, who play Washington and Stanford and a bunch of other teams they should defeat. Oregon has almost it's entire team back from last season, a season that would have been joyous in the extreme but for two last-minute losses.

Friday night the Trojans go on display in the Coliseum. The opponent is Minnesota, a team rated as middle-class within the Big Ten, no Michigan, but no Indiana, either.

The Trojans have become famed for their multi-facet offense in recent seasons. With Mike Garrett running up the middle and cutting for the outside, with Red Sherman cutting outside and swivelling out of tacklers' arms and with a monsterous set of linebackers, the USCers may have the goods to put the West back into the driver's seat in intercollegiate football, as they did in 1962. For certain, they'll be entertaining.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

How Pacific-8 Rate

1. USC.....Probably go off odds-on favorite.
2. Oregon.....Could make it if top one falters.
3. Washington.....Good chance if it comes up mud.
4. Stanford.....Will have to prove itself.
5. Oregon State.....Last one was a fluke.
6. UCLA.....Good enough to beat California.
7. California.....No Idaho on schedule this trip.
8. Washington State..Tough task until in top shape.

IVES

L.B. STATE

CCAA Title for Diablos

By DOUG IVES

You don't need a crystal ball or a ouija board to forecast that the CCAA football title will be decided on the night of Oct. 16.

That's the evening Long Beach State plays Santa Barbara in a meaningless game and the night Los Angeles hosts San Diego in a slugfest between giants with national reputations.

And how will this battle of the bigs come out? This fearless prognosticator — with a peek into the crystal ball this time—calls it 13-7 for the Diablos — and the devil take the front, not the hind road.

The trusty ouija board sees a third-place finish for Long Beach, a fourth-place standing for Fresno and a fifth-place station for San Fernando over Cal Poly.

As for regaining their national stature, Los Angeles lost too much to repeat as No. 1, but the Diablos will be among the top 10 and so will arch-rival San Diego.

Here's a quickie rundown on each team:

Los Angeles — With 18 lettermen, 21 junior college recruits and a meaningful asterisk at the bottom of their roster, the Diablos will come close to filling the shoes of departed super-stars Dunn Marteen and Art Robinson.

Ray Jones, an all-conference halfback in 1964, takes over for Marteen at quarterback, and he'll have a bevy of fleet backs with which to hand the ball.

The asterisk on the roster denotes eight players who found their way from the wilderness into Homer Beatty's camp despite heavy smog. And all came from a long distance.

The eight are from such places as New Mexico State, Florida A&M, Colorado State, Utah, Washington State and Miami, where they presumably found the academic climate too much to cope with.

Defense, like last year, will decide it for Los Angeles. Gone is Walter Johnson, but returning are two boys big enough to make a seismograph tremble. They are 6-6, 250-pound Richard Davis and 6-7½, 265-pound Jim Weatherwax.

As for maturity, 10 Diablos are age 23 or older . . . and many of them played football in the armed services.

The wily Beatty, a Long Beach resident, also has left an open date prior to his team's meeting with San Diego, which means the Diablos will have two weeks to prepare for the Aztecs.

San Diego — Heavily hit by graduation, the Aztecs beat the bushes and came up with nearly two dozen recruits to put them in position to easily duplicate last year's 8-2 record.

The prize catch was Don Shy, the Mt. San Antonio JC phenom who Long Beach State wanted desperately to corral. Shy, presumably, will be the No. 1 running threat.

Gary Garrison, the former Millikan flash, returns at flanker or split end and should be good for 60 receptions if San Diego can find a decent thrower. Harbor's Don Horn is in the running.

The team that scored over 50 points five times in 1964 can't possibly match that effort with fullback Jim Allison and his cohorts gone. Also irreplaceable is guard John Farris, now a Charger along with Allison.

Long Beach — The 49ers' personnel has been discussed in detail earlier, so suffice to say that beating either San Diego or L. A. is "possible but not probable." State always reaches its peak against the Diablos, which is some ray of hope.

Fresno State — After their worst season (4-6) in recent memory in 1964, the Bulldogs are on the road back, but their loudest growl will be trying to wrest the No. 3 spot from Long Beach.

Coach Phil Krueger, the former LBCC aide, has 16 lettermen, including all-conference center Paul Warkenton and defensive back Dave Plump. The defense appears adequate but the offense needs a hypo.

San Fernando — Coach Sam Winningham has 13 lettermen, and perhaps the best set of ends the Matadors have ever had. Nick Howard, a 250-pound tackle who won the CCAA wrestling title, anchors the line, but still the Mats will have only enough strength to beat Cal Poly.

Cal Poly — Winless in 1964, the Mustangs are still de-emphasizing football. That the school's publicity office is sending out basketball press notices indicates what they think of the football team.

How the CCAA Will Play

1. L. A. State ..... Champ until Uncrowned
2. San Diego St. ..... One Break and Could Take it All
3. Long Beach St. ..... Too Many Ifs to Go All Way
4. Fresno St. ..... Definitely on Upswing
5. Valley St. ..... Always an Also Ran
6. Cal Poly (SLI) .....Likes Life in cellar

Nebraska to Be Nation's Top Team, Say Experts

By Associated Press

A panel of 46 sports writers and broadcasters has chosen Nebraska as the top team in the country in The Associated Press' annual preseason college football poll.

The Cornhuskers, who won their first nine games last season but then dropped their last regular season game against Oklahoma and were beaten by Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl, received 11 fist place votes and a total of 311 points in the polling.

Alabama, the defending National Champion, and Arkansas, No. 2 finisher last year, dipped to fifth and sixth in the poll.

The top ten, with first place votes and last year's records in parenthesis:

1.	Nebraska (11, 9-1)	311
2.	Texas (7, 9-1)	292
3.	Notre Dame (7, 6-1)	282
4.	Michigan (5, 8-1)	277
5.	Alabama (4, 10-0)	267
6.	Arkansas (6, 10-0)	210
7.	Southern California (4, 7-3)	210
7.	Southern California (4, 7-3)	210
9.	Purdue (1, 6-3)	118
10.	Ohio State (1, 7-2)	77

Other teams receiving votes in alphabetical order

Army, Auburn, Duke, Florida, Florida State, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Miami, Michigan State, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Oregon, Oregon State, Penn State, Stan, Syracuse, UCLA, Washington, Wyoming.

Skywriters Pick Purdue

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) —Although defending champion Michigan got more first place votes, Purdue was rated the likely 1965 Big Ten football champion Saturday in a poll of writers touring conference camps by plane.

The largest Skywriter group in the tour's 12-year history gave Purdue the slight edge over Michigan, 258 points to 255. Ohio State was tabbed third, Michigan State fourth.

THE PROS

Vikings, Browns in NFL's Lead Roles

LARSON

By AL LARSON

Minnesota and Cleveland appear the teams to beat as the National Football League heads into its 46th season.

And Green Bay and St. Louis appear to be the teams that can do the beating.

Firing begins in earnest for the NFL's 14 clubs next Sunday, when the 14-week, 98-game schedule opens with seven games.

The league drew an astonishing 4.5 million cash customers last year and it's possible that's the saturation point. But it's also possible it will be surpassed this fall.

In opening games next Sunday, Jim Brown, the fullback non-pareil, and Frank Ryan, the erudite quarterback, lead the defending league champion Browns against the steadily improving Redskins.

St. Louis' Cardinals almost made the top last year and rank in most quarters today as Eastern Division's biggest threat to dethrone the Cleveland Browns.

The Dallas Cowboys are coming, but present potential chinks.

New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh seem destined to be Eastern also-rans. The Giants solved a quarterback problem in acquiring Earl Morrall from Detroit in that three-way trade, but look weak on the offensive line and in pass receiving.

Minnesota, Baltimore's defending Western champion and powerful Green Bay are a toss-up for that division's title.

The Vikings are given a solid shot in the West, with Fran Tarkenton, that scramblin' man, star runners Tommy Mason and Bill Brown, a nifty crop of receivers, and veterans acquired to strengthen several spots.

The rugged, methodical Packers corrected a major falldown of last year — Paul Hornung's placekicking — by getting Don Chandler from the Giants. They added to their riches with seasoned pass catcher Carroll Dale from the Rams.

And rookie Dick Butkus at linebacker and Gayle Sayers at running back of the Chicago Bears seem headed for pro stardom.

But the West's upper echelon undoubtedly is out of reach for these four clubs.

Potential Is There, but..

RAUSCH

By GARY RAUSCH

Long Beach City College may not lose a football game in 1965 and its toughest foe may be of an internal nature.

The Vikings open their campaign Friday with potentially the finest team in the school's history. But remember, we said potentially.

Head coach Rollie Eilerts is blessed with amazing depth. He has such fine talent that some positions run four-deep without wavering in skill.

But the big question remains today, as it will all season: Can the abundance of green but talented freshmen supercede the need for seasoned, unspectacular sophomores?

Offensively, the Vikes exude the same explosiveness that made the national champions of 1964 a powerhouse.

For pass receivers LBCC will bank on all-America split end Ron Drake and freshman tight end Rick Bartnett.

Keeping the air full of footballs is the passingest quarterback in City College annals, Greg Barton. Greg rewrote the record book last term and will be the most sought-after JC quarterback in the nation come February.

Typical of Eilerts' depth "problem" is at left half where he has three of the six Long Beach preps who've amassed more than 1,000 yards in one season.

Foremost, of course, is all-America Marv Motley, the slippery speedster who won player of the game honors in the Junior Rose Bowl. Closing in on Motley are Al Nichols and Larry Walters, both all-CIF as preps.

The fullbacks will once again be blockers and Elwood Stewart has no equal.

Platoon football will remain with the defense a separate team.

Steve Swanson, the demon linebacker, will be in the middle of things, as always.

LBCC will never lack manpower this fall and there's not a foe on the schedule it fears. But the constant threat of overconfidence will loom large.

Wilson Tabbed to Dethrone Poly

McCORMACK

By JIM McCORMACK

Predicting the outcome of a title chase after being on a beat less than a week would normally, to say the least, be foolhardy.

Fortunately, in the Moore League, history records that only two schools —Wilson and Poly—have ever won the coveted football championship and this year should be no exception.

In the first eight years of Moore League existence, Poly has won four titles, Wilson three and they tied for the other.

Since the Rabbits won in '64, we'll go with the Bruins this term. Yet, nothing has changed, the crown will be on the line Saturday, Nov. 6, at Veterans Stadium when the two teams tangle in the Big Game.

Picking the last four finishers is as difficult as it is simple to name the top two.

Falling back on history again, we'll go with Lakewood to finish third, Millikan fourth, Jordan fifth and Downey sixth. Over in the Catholic League, look for St. Anthony to finish fourth.

Lakewood coach John Ford and his charges should occupy third spot, but must replace 17 starters from last year's 6-2 team.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Moore League Forecast

1. Wilson .....Good record for consistency.
2. Poly .....Has speed to win.
3. Lakewood .....Good show bet.
4. Millikan .....Could move up.
5. Jordan .....Finished strong last.
6. Downey .....Been away a long time.

Jordan, coached this year by Ron Johnson, showed signs of life late last season and finished as strong as any Moore League squad.

Millikan, who was the usual third-place team until unseated last year, has a new coach, Roger Hull, and new enthusiasm as 96 varsity candidates reported. The Rams could get third back.

Wilson is the talk of the league with 12 starters returning from last year's second-place squad. Included in Owen Dixon's returnees are All-City athletes John Crabb, guard, and Terry DeKraai, split end.

Poly lost its entire great backfield and must find replacements for several key linemen, but coach Al Matz has three league champions, Santa Barbara, Hawthorne and Santa Ana Valley, on his non-league schedule, so the Rabbits should be tough by the time it counts.

St. Anthony coach Tom Carroll expects a fine season if he can escape injury to his top 11 gridders (as he spoke two of the Saints were being sidelined for three-four weeks).

THE COLLEGES

USC Pick vs. Gophers

HALL

By JEROME HALL

West Coast football's struggle against the world gets a stern test next weekend as the '65 package is unwrapped all across the country.

On the opening-week schedule for AAWU teams are four collisions with the Big Ten, one with Pitt and one with the monsters from Notre Dame.

It's a schedule that will strain the claim that Western football is on the rise. The Pacific Coast teams will be underdogs in four of them. Only USC (against Minnesota) will be favored. Oregon and Pitt rate even.

If you measure Pacific Coast football only by the won-lost figures in the Rose Bowl, the improvement may be unclear. But if you measure it by balanced competition within the league and excitement during the games, the AAWU might rank ahead of the Southwest, the Southeast, the Midwest and even the pros.

A year ago the tug-o'-war for the championship of the AAWU, the Pacific 8 as it might be better called, ended in a tie between Oregon State and USC. Oregon was only a half game behind in the standings and was only 90 seconds shy of an undefeated season.

As UCLA coach Tommy Prothro points out, "Going into the eighth or ninth games of the season last year there hadn't been a game played in the conference that was decided by more than seven points."

The prospect for equality is equally good this year.

Favorite for the AAWU title and the Rose Bowl nomination is USC. Every coach in the league, aside from Trojan chief John McKay, says so. The 40 Skywriters who just completed a tour of the conference training camps say so. They voted almost unanimously for the Trojans to finish on top. A scattering of Northwest votes went to Washington's team.

The Rose Bowl race can be oversimplified, with considerable accuracy, by saying that the team that wins the USC vs. Washington game will be dueling with the Big Ten come New Year's Day.

Last year this formula was departed from only slightly. If USC hadn't lost to Washington, USC would have gone to the Rose Bowl.

The Trojans and the Huskies will collide Oct. 9 at Seattle.

But standing in the wings waiting for the rest of the contenders to eliminate each other is the team from the University of Oregon. There is considerable chance that the Trojans will lose to Washington, that Washington will lose to Stanford and Stanford will lose to USC, among others.

Such an eventuality would leave the path open to the Webfoots, who play Washington and Stanford and a bunch of other teams they should defeat. Oregon has almost it's entire team back from last season, a season that would have been lopsided in the extreme but for two last-minute losses.

Friday night the Trojans go on display in the Coliseum. The opponent is Minnesota, a team rated as middle-class within the Big Ten, no Michigan, but no Indiana, either.

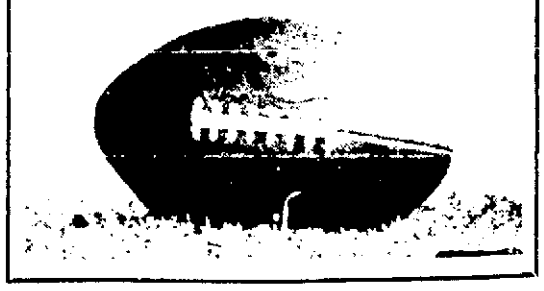

The Trojans have become famed for their multi-facet offense in recent seasons. With Mike Garrett running up the middle and cutting for the outside, with Red Sherman cutting outside and swivelling out of tacklers' arms and with a monsterous set of linebackers, the USCers may have the goods to put the West back into the driver's seat in intercollegiate football, as they did in 1962. For certain, they'll be entertaining.

How Pacific-8 Rate

1. USC.....Probably go off odds-on favorite.
2. Oregon.....Could make it if top one falters.
3. Washington.....Good chance if it comes up mud.
4. Stanford.....Will have to prove itself.
5. Oregon State.....Last one was a fluke.
6. UCLA.....Good enough to beat California.
7. California.....No Idaho on schedule this trip.
8. Washington State..Tough task until in top shape.

THE PROS

Vikings, Browns in NFL's Lead Roles

LARSON

By AL LARSON

Minnesota and Cleveland appear the teams to beat as the National Football League heads into its 46th season.

And Green Bay and St. Louis appear to be the teams that can do the beating.

Firing begins in earnest for the NFL's 14 clubs next Sunday, when the 14-week, 98-game schedule opens with seven games.

The league drew an astonishing 4.5 million cash customers last year and it's possible that's the saturation point. But it's also possible it will be surpassed this fall.

In opening games next Sunday, Jim Brown, the fullback non-pareil, and Frank Ryan, the erudite quarterback, lead the defending league champion Browns against the steadily improving Redskins.

St. Louis' Cardinals almost made the top last year and rank in most quarters today as Eastern Division's biggest threat to dethrone the Cleveland Browns.

The Dallas Cowboys are coming, but present potential chinks.

New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh seem destined to be Eastern also-rans. The Giants solved a quarterback problem in acquiring Earl Morrall from Detroit in that three-way trade, but look weak on the offensive line and in pass receiving.

Minnesota, Baltimore's defending Western champion and powerful Green Bay are a toss-up for that division's title.

The Vikings are given a solid shot in the West, with Fran Tarkenton, that scramblin' man, star runners Tommy Mason and Bill Brown, a nifty crop of receivers, and veterans acquired to strengthen several spots.

CCAA Title for Diablos

By DOUG IVES

You don't need a crystal ball or a ouija board to forecast that the CCAA football title will be decided on the night of Oct. 16.

That's the evening Long Beach State plays Santa Barbara in a meaningless game and the night Los Angeles hosts San Diego in a slugfest between giants with national reputations.

And how will this battle of the bigs come out? This fearless prognosticator — with a peek into the crystal ball this time—calls it 13-7 for the Diablos — and the devil take the front, not the hind road.

The trusty ouija board sees a third-place finish for Long Beach, a fourth-place standing for Fresno and a fifth-place station for San Fernando over Cal Poly.

As for regaining their national stature, Los Angeles lost too much to repeat as No. 1, but the Diablos will be among the top 10 and so will arch-rival San Diego.

Here's a quickie rundown on each team:

Los Angeles — With 18 lettermen, 21 junior college recruits and a meaningful asterisk at the bottom of their roster, the Diablos will come close to filling the shoes of departed super-stars Dunn Marteen and Art Robinson.

Ray Jones, an all-conference halfback in 1964, takes over for Marteen at quarterback, and he'll have a bevy of fleet backs with which to hand the ball.

The asterisk on the roster denotes eight players who found their way from the wilderness into Homer Beatty's camp despite heavy smog. And all came from a long distance.

The eight are from such places as New Mexico State, Florida A&M, Colorado State, Utah, Washington State and Miami, where they presumably found the academic climate too much to cope with.

Defense, like last year, will decide it for Los Angeles. Gone is Walter Johnson, but returning are two boys big enough to make a seismograph tremble. They are 6-6, 250-pound Richard Davis and 6-7½, 265-pound Jim Weatherwax.

As for maturity, 10 Diablos are age 23 or older . . . and many of them played football in the armed services.

The wily Beatty, a Long Beach resident, also has left an open date prior to his team's meeting with San Diego, which means the Diablos will have two weeks to prepare for the Aztecs.

San Diego — Heavily hit by graduation, the Aztecs beat the bushes and came up with nearly two dozen recruits to put them in position to easily duplicate last year's 8-2 record.

The prize catch was Don Shy, the Mt. San Antonio JC phenom who Long Beach State wanted desperately to corral. Shy, presumably, will be the No. 1 running threat.

Gary Garrison, the former Millikan flash, returns at flanker or split end and should be good for 60 receptions if San Diego can find a decent thrower. Harbor's Don Horn is in the running.

The team that scored over 50 points five times in 1964 can't possibly match that effort with fullback Jim Allison and his cohorts gone. Also irreplaceable is guard John Farris, now a Charger along with Allison.

Long Beach — The 49ers' personnel has been discussed in detail earlier, so suffice to say that beating either San Diego or L. A. is "possible but not probable." State always reaches its peak against the Diablos, which is some ray of hope.

Fresno State — After their worst season (4-6) in recent memory in 1964, the Bulldogs are on the road back, but their loudest growl will be trying to wrest the No. 3 spot from Long Beach.

Coach Phil Krueger, the former LBCC aide, has 16 lettermen, including all-conference center Paul Warkenton and defensive back Dave Plump. The defense appears adequate but the offense needs a hypo.

San Fernando — Coach Sam Winningham has 13 lettermen, and perhaps the best set of ends the Matadors have ever had. Nick Howard, a 250-pound tackle who won the CCAA wrestling title, anchors the line, but still the Mats will have only enough strength to beat Cal Poly.

Cal Poly — Winless in 1964, the Mustangs are still de-emphasizing football. That the school's publicity office is sending out basketball press notices indicates what they think of the football team.

Nebraska to Be Nation's Top Team, Say Experts

By Associated Press

A panel of 46 sports writers and broadcasters has chosen Nebraska as the top team in the country in The Associated Press' annual preseason college football poll.

The Cornhuskers, who won their first nine games last season but then dropped their last regular season game against Oklahoma and were beaten by Arkansas in the Cotton Bowl, received 11 first place votes and a total of 311 points in the polling.

Alabama, the defending National Champion, and Arkansas, No. 2 finisher last year, dipped to fifth and sixth in the poll.

The top ten, with first place votes and last year's records in parenthesis:

1. Nebraska (11, 9-1)		311
2. Texas (7, 9-1)		292
3. Notre Dame (7, 9-1)		282
4. Michigan (5, 8-1)		277
5. Alabama (4, 10-0)		267
6. Arkansas (6, 10-0)		210
7. Southern California (4, 7-3)		210
8. Southern California (4, 7-3)		210
9. Purdue (1, 6-3)		118
10. Ohio State (1, 7-2)		77

Other teams receiving votes in alphabetical order:

Army, Auburn, Duke, Florida, Florida State, Georgia Tech, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland, Miami, Michigan State, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Oregon, Oregon State, Penn State, Stan, Syracuse, UCLA, Washington, Wyoming.

Skywriters Pick Purdue

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Although defending champion Michigan got more first place votes, Purdue was rated the likely 1965 Big Ten football champion Saturday in a poll of writers touring conference camps by plane.

The largest Skywriter group in the tour's 12-year history gave Purdue the slight edge over Michigan, 258 points to 255. Ohio State was tabbed third, Michigan State fourth.

Inside Straight

The Love of Mike

By RICH ROBERTS

GARRETT

". . . People want to meet you. It's pleasant. I like it just as much as any other person does. I've been reading about Jon Arnett and Jim Brown all my life. Why is it bad to read about myself? It's sort of egotistical, but I might not ever be able to read about myself again the rest of my life. This might be the end of my being a star."

Mike Garrett, campus football hero, resides on the top floor of an eight-story dormitory on the fringe of USC next to Figueroa Avenue. The name of the place is Marks Tower, but it might as well be Ivory Tower.

From a tiny room he shares with teammate Rod Sherman, the Trojans' all-America halfback candidate looks out upon his domain—his for the next few months, anyway. There lies L.A.'s culture . . . the Music Center, Dodger Stadium and Felix Chevrolet.

There, a mile or so to the right of City Hall, submerged in the shower of sparkling lights is Roosevelt High, where Mike first saw his name in print. Now his sharp eyes pick out the time and temperature on the top of a savings and loan far downtown.

FROM THIS HIGH-PRICED view, coming to Mike through the courtesy of USC, he can't see Watts. As a sociology major, and as a Negro who grew up in L.A., Mike figures maybe that was the problem last month. Most people couldn't see Watts.

"When there's a lot of frustration and people just sort of feel tired, they think maybe this is the time to do something about it . . . and they did it the wrong way.

"I feel bad about it, but yet it's probably done some good, too. It's awakened a lot of people. I once heard that no matter how bad something is, something good comes out of it. I hope something good comes out of this.

"I've been working with kids, talking to as many groups as possible, but I guess I didn't do my job there."

HOWEVER, GARRETT'S achievements and his citizenship record fulfill any obligations to society for the time being. He's one of six kids, and his father, a shipping clerk for May Co., and mother, a civil service employe for the city, have worked hard to be proud of them.

An older brother, John, is settled into family life while his two older sisters are in the police department. One of his two younger sisters attends USC, working her way through "with a little help from us whenever we can." The fourth sister is still in high school.

His stable home life helps Mike adjust to his role.

"The boys rely on me a little more, and people look at you all the time. I have to get used to this pressure now. I think I can.

"I think in some boys it brings out the best. Others might get nervous and not do too well. I don't think it'll bother me."

WHEN GARRETT graduated from Roosevelt he had his choice of scholarships offered by "all the schools on the coast, a couple in the Big Ten and a couple others—Pittsburgh, for one."

One of the Big Ten pitches came from Minnesota, USC's opening opponent at the Coliseum next Friday night, but Mike says, "I wanted to play in front of my folks—and I was always a UCLA Bruin fan. But UCLA wanted me to go to junior college first.

"I told them, 'No, too many backs get hurt in jc and never make it to college.'

"So I stayed back a semester in high school to go to UCLA. Then I had a 2.7 (grade point average) and that's all I needed, I thought, because that's what they told me, and they said, 'No, we still want you in a jc.'

"I said, 'Look, I waited a whole semester in high school for you. I won't go to your school now.' Well, in '62 SC had a great year, and I liked coach (John) McKay when I met him, so they finally persuaded me to come here and I liked it. I'm glad I did."

SO, UCLA'S LOSS and USC's gain can be measured off in yardage, you might say, as Garrett roars into his senior season. He's been the AAWU's leading rusher the last two years.

He won't play much defense for the Trojans, unless you believe Playboy's pre-season all-America. And anybody who reads Playboy for football news is on the wrong track, anyway.

But Mike will catch some passes ("I sort of like it in open field with the other guy, one on one") and he'll carry the ball like mad, which is what he really lives for.

"It's a big thrill, just like skiing. You know, you fall down and hit the water . . . like playing baseball, when the pitcher throws one high and tight and you drop. I like it, going through the line and getting popped on the shoulders. It feels real good. I like to get hit and I like to hit people. It's just a big kick."

Redlegs Keep Pitching With Maloney, 3-2

Pirates' Sisk Early Victim; Bailey Starts It

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jim Maloney pitched a five-hitter Saturday and singled home the winning run to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Maloney went the distance, striking out 9 and walking 3. He retired 14 batters in a row from the third to the eighth innings.

The Pirates took a 2-0 lead in the third inning. Bob Bailey led off on a walk, Bill Virdon doubled and then Willie Stargell drove in both men with a single. The runs gave Stargell 100 rbi for the season.

Tommy Sisk started for the Pirates and was tagged with his third loss in nine decisions.

Ford Wins No. 231, Ties Red Ruffing

CHICAGO (AP) — Veteran southpaw Whitey Ford tied Red Ruffing as the New York Yankees' all-time winning pitcher Saturday night with a 3-1 victory over the skidding Chicago White Sox, who lost their fifth in a row.

The victory was the 15th of the season for Ford and the 231st of his 14-year major league career.

TOUGH YEAR FOR CATCHERS

Gatewood, Coates Offer Fresh Relief

By ROSS NEWHAN
I.-P.-T Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Angels will attempt to squeeze Vaseline pitcher John Wyatt out of Kansas City's palms this winter, but Bill Rigney may find relief in his own backyard.

Strong late-inning efforts by Aubrey Gatewood and Jim Coates preserved a 6-5 victory over Washington Saturday and while the win is meaningless, it proved again that not all the flowers bloom in the spring, tra-la.

For example, Rigney proclaimed that upon their return from Seattle Ed Kirkpatrick and Rick Reichardt would play every day and, playing every day, Kirkpatrick is batting .375 and Reichardt .333.

Couple this with the development of Aubrey Gatewood's knuckler and Coates' stylish work and it is no wonder that Rigney is humming a September song.

In the final month of the long, hot summer, the Angels' bullpen is indeed wearing a fresh new look.

"We will still try and trade for some help for the big man (Bob Lee), but suddenly it does not seem so imperative," confided Rigney.

The big man has worked long (120 innings) and often (64 appearances) and it is beginning to show. He failed to hold a 3-1 ninth-inning lead for Dean Chance Wednesday in Kansas City and he yielded a three-run homer to Jim King in the sixth-inning Saturday.

Now, however, ascending heights in Angel plans are Gatewood and Coates. The latter, 33, saved the former's, 26, win Saturday with a scoreless two innings which lowered his ERA to 1.80.

ANGEL OF DAY

JIM FREGOSI doubled home tying runs and scored decider as Angels edged Washington, 6-5.

Gatewood followed his impressive stint of Friday night by knuckling the Senators under without a hit for 1.3 frames Saturday.

"Now," said Rigney, "not only does he have confidence in the pitch but so does the manager. It could add 10 years to his career. It did exactly that for Hoyt Wilhelm."

While the Angels' youth movement detours in several spots, when Kirkpatrick and Reichardt play every day equipment manager John Fitzpatrick stocks the lockers with pablum instead of chewing tobacco.

Aside from pitchers, Bob Rodgers 27, was again the oldest man on the field Saturday. Kirkpatrick, 20, Reichardt, 22, Paul Schaal, 22, Charlie Dees, 25, and Bobby Knoop, 26, all contributed clutch hits.

Then there is 24-year-old Jim Fregosi who doubled home the tying runs and scored the decider in a three-run eighth-inning rally. He is first in RBI (58), first in inspiration and you can bet he will be the first captain of the California Angels.

ANGEL ANGLES: Game delayed 25 minutes by rain . . . Today it's Dean Chance (13-9) against Frank Kreutzer (1-4) . . . Says Chance: "I think Juan Marichal will win the Cy Young award this year although the perfect game makes it hard to vote against Sandy." . . . Says Buddy Blattner: "It'll sure be a busy man next year if all the stories I read are true. I'm not going to Cincinnati, I'm not going back to St. Louis and I haven't talked to the Lakers." . . . As reported here often this summer, Blattner has three years remaining on his Angel contract and the club plans no changes except, possibly, adding a third announcer. . . . Rigney is enthusiastic about Jim Spencer, the first baseman from Maryland who was the Angels' top pick in the recent free-agent draft. "Some swing," waxed Rig as Spencer took batting practice. . . . Spencer reports next spring. . . . McMullen has 12-game hitting streak . . . Jose Cardenal benched again . . . in his last 66 at-bats, Jose has only 11 hits . . . Through 57 dates, Nats have drawn 518,916, a comparable average to Angels' 542,278 for 61 dates.

Twins Beat 'Cousins' for 16th Time in 17 Meetings

BOSTON (AP)—The Minnesota Twins' pennant-bound express picked up added steam Saturday as Camilo Pascual turned in a strong pitching performance in an 8-4 romp over the Boston Red Sox.

The Twins' fourth straight victory was their 16th in 17 meetings with the Red Sox this season.

DODGERS WIN, 8-3

lead to part of Farrell's troubles in the fifth inning. The third and fourth Houston bobbles of the evening also helped to give Osteen a 6-1 cushion.

Maury Wills, hitless in his last nine times up, started the fifth with a bunt single and continued to second on Farrell's wild throw. Wills stopped at third on Gilliam's single and both scored as Willie Davis ran a single into two bases.

Davis dived into second, got up and made it a round-trip on Gaines' second error, a wild throw to second. A two-out bloop single by Lefebvre made the three runs earned.

Fairly followed Davis to the plate and took Farrell's first pitch in the ribs.

After Harvey issued his warning, Farrell gained some satisfaction hy picking Fairly off base.

Two innings later, Fairly was forced to leave the game because of a painful bruise on his right side. It is doubtful whether he will play today.

Johnny Podres (6-6) gets his first start in more than three weeks when he faces rookie Larry Dierker (7-7) in the final game of the home stand this afternoon. Podres has picked up his last two wins in relief, one against the Astros.

Mets Fall in Same 1-Hit Trap

Three Brave pitchers combined for a one-hitter Friday night and Cloninger duplicated the feat all by himself.

It was the first time in almost 50 years that a major league team has been held to one hit in consecutive games. It first happened to Boston in 1916 in the National League and to Chicago in the American League in 1917.

Sports in Brief

'Hello John, This is Joe'

A record American Football League opening-day crowd of 50,000 is expected to turn out for the Houston Oilers' clash with the New York Jets today — but the most expensive quarterbacks will not be on the field at kickoff time.

Joe Namath, last year's grid genius for Alabama, reportedly signed for $400,000. He will be on the bench with a telephone in his hand, a la Terry Baker of the Rams.

On the other end of the line, in the press box, will be last year's clutch artist for Notre Dame — John Huarte, who reportedly got half as much for giving his allegiance to the Jets. Mike Taliaferro will start at qb.

The Love of Mike

By RICH ROBERTS

GARRETT

". . . People want to meet you. It's pleasant. I like it just as much as any other person does. I've been reading about Jon Arnett and Jim Brown all my life. Why is it bad to read about myself? It's sort of egotistical, but I might not ever be able to read about myself again the rest of my life. This might be the end of my being a star."

Mike Garrett, campus football hero, resides on the top floor of an eight-story dormitory on the fringe of USC next to Figueroa Avenue. The name of the place is Marks Tower, but it might as well be Ivory Tower.

From a tiny room he shares with teammate Rod Sherman, the Trojans' all-America halfback candidate looks out upon his domain—his for the next few months, anyway. There lies L.A.'s culture . . . the Music Center, Dodger Stadium and Felix Chevrolet.

There, a mile or so to the right of City Hall, submerged in the shower of sparkling lights is Roosevelt High, where Mike first saw his name in print. Now his sharp eyes pick out the time and temperature on the top of a savings and loan far downtown.

FROM THIS HIGH-PRICED view, coming to Mike through the courtesy of USC, he can't see Watts. As a sociology major, and as a Negro who grew up in L.A., Mike figures maybe that was the problem last month. Most people couldn't see Watts.

"When there's a lot of frustration and people just sort of feel tired, they think maybe this is the time to do something about it . . . and they did it the wrong way.

"I feel bad about it, but yet it's probably done some good, too. It's awakened a lot of people. I once heard that no matter how bad something is, something good comes out of it. I hope something good comes out of this.

"I've been working with kids, talking to as many groups as possible, but I guess I didn't do my job there."

HOWEVER, GARRETT'S achievements and his citizenship record fulfill any obligations to society for the time being. He's one of six kids, and his father, a shipping clerk for May Co., and mother, a civil service employe for the city, have worked hard to be proud of them.

An older brother, John, is settled into family life while his two older sisters are in the police department. One of his two younger sisters attends USC, working her way through "with a little help from us whenever we can." The fourth sister is still in high school.

His stable home life helps Mike adjust to his role.

"The boys rely on me a little more, and people look at you all the time. I have to get used to this pressure now, I think I can.

"I think in some boys it brings out the best. Others might get nervous and not do too well. I don't think it'll bother me."

WHEN GARRETT graduated from Roosevelt he had his choice of scholarships offered by "all the schools on the coast, a couple in the Big Ten and a couple others—Pittsburgh, for one."

One of the Big Ten pitches came from Minnesota, USC's opening opponent at the Coliseum next Friday night, but Mike says, "I wanted to play in front of my folks—and I was always a UCLA Bruin fan. But UCLA wanted me to go to junior college first.

"I told them, 'No, too many backs get hurt in jc and never make it to college.'

"So I stayed back a semester in high school to go to UCLA. Then I had a 2.7 (grade point average) and that's all I needed, I thought, because that's what they told me, and they said, 'No, we still want you in a jc.'

"I said, 'Look, I waited a whole semester in high school for you. I won't go to your school now.' Well, in '62 SC had a great year, and I liked coach (John) McKay when I met him, so they finally persuaded me to come here and I liked it. I'm glad I did."

SO, UCLA'S LOSS and USC's gain can be measured off in yardage, you might say, as Garrett roars into his senior season. He's been the AAWU's leading rusher the last two years.

He won't play much defense for the Trojans, unless you believe Playboy's pre-season all-America. And anybody who reads Playboy for football news is on the wrong track, anyway.

But Mike will catch some passes ("I sort of like it in open field with the other guy, one on one") and he'll carry the ball like mad, which is what he really lives for.

"It's a big thrill, just like skiing. You know, you fall down and hit the water . . . like playing baseball, when the pitcher throws one high and tight and you drop. I like it, going through the line and getting popped on the shoulders. It feels real good. I like to get hit and I like to hit people. It's just a big kick."

Redlegs Keep Pitching With Maloney, 3-2

Pirates' Sisk Early Victim; Bailey Starts It

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jim Maloney pitched a five-hitter Saturday and singled home the winning run to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Maloney went the distance, striking out 9 and walking 3. He retired 14 batters in a row from the third to the eighth innings.

The Pirates took a 2-0 lead in the third inning. Bob Bailey led off on a walk, Bill Virdon doubled and then Willie Stargell drove in both men with a single. The runs gave Stargell 100 rbi for the season.

Tommy Sisk started for the Pirates and was tagged with his third loss in nine decisions.

Ford Wins No. 231, Ties Red Ruffing

CHICAGO (AP) — Veteran southpaw Whitey Ford tied Red Ruffing as the New York Yankees' all-time winning pitcher Saturday night with a 3-1 victory over the skidding Chicago White Sox, who lost their fifth in a row.

The victory was the 15th of the season for Ford and the 231st of his 14-year major league career.

Twins Beat 'Cousins' for 16th Time in 17 Meetings

BOSTON (AP)—The Minnesota Twins' pennant-bound express picked up added steam Saturday as Camilo Pascual turned in a strong pitching performance in an 8-4 romp over the Boston Red Sox.

The Twins' fourth straight victory was their 16th in 17 meetings with the Red Sox this season.

lead to part of Farrell's troubles in the fifth inning. The third and fourth Houston bobbles of the evening also helped to give Osteen a 6-1 cushion.

Maury Wills, hitless in his last nine times up, started the fifth with a bunt single and continued to second on Farrell's wild throw. Wills stopped at third on Gilliam's single and both scored as Willie Davis ran a single into two bases.

Davis dived into second, got up and made it a round-trip on Gaines' second error, a wild throw to second. A two-out bloop single by Lefebvre made the three runs earned.

Fairly followed Davis to the plate and took Farrell's first pitch in the ribs.

After Harvey issued his warning, Farrell gained some satisfaction by picking Fairly off base.

Two innings later, Fairly was forced to leave the game because of a painful bruise on his right side. It is doubtful whether he will play today.

Johnny Podres (6-6) gets his first start in more than three weeks when he faces rookie Larry Dierker (7-7) in the final game of the home stand this afternoon. Podres has picked up his last two wins in relief, one against the Astros.

Gatewood, Coates Offer Fresh Relief

By ROSS NEWHAN
I-P-T Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The Angels will attempt to squeeze Vaseline pitcher John Wyatt out of Kansas City's palms this winter, but Bill Rigney may find relief in his own backyard.

Strong late-inning efforts by Aubrey Gatewood and Jim Coates preserved a 6-5 victory over Washington Saturday and while the win is meaningless, it proved again that not all the flowers bloom in the spring, tra-la.

For example, Rigney proclaimed that upon their return from Seattle Ed Kirkpatrick and Rick Reichardt would play every day and, playing every day, Kirkpatrick is batting .375 and Reichardt .333.

Couple this with the development of Aubrey Gatewood's knuckler and Coates' stylish work and it is no wonder that Rigney is humming a September song.

In the final month of the long, hot summer, the Angels' bullpen is indeed wearing a fresh new look.

"We will still try and trade for some help for the big man (Bob Lee), but suddenly it does not seem so imperative," confided Rigney.

The big man has worked long (120 innings) and often (64 appearances) and it is beginning to show. He failed to hold a 3-1 ninth-inning lead for Dean Chance Wednesday in Kansas City and he yielded a three-run homer to Jim King in the sixth-inning Saturday.

Now, however, ascending heights in Angel plans are Gatewood and Coates. The latter, 33, saved the former's, 26, win Saturday with a scoreless two innings which lowered his ERA to 1.80.

Gatewood followed his impressive stint of Friday night by knuckling the Senators under without a hit for 1.3 frames Saturday.

"Now," said Rigney, "not only does he have confidence in the pitch but so does the manager. It could add 10 years to his career. It did exactly that for Hoyt Wilhelm."

While the Angels' youth movement detours in several spots, when Kirkpatrick and Reichardt play every day equipment manager John Fitzpatrick stocks the lockers with pablum instead of chewing tobacco.

Aside from pitchers, Bob Rodgers 27, was again the oldest man on the field Saturday. Kirkpatrick, 20, Reichardt, 22, Paul Schaal, 22, Charlie Dees, 25, and Bobby Knoop, 26, all contributed clutch hits.

Then there is 24-year-old Jim Fregosi who doubled home the tying runs and scored the decider in a three-run eighth-inning rally. He is first in RBI (58), first in inspiration and you can bet he will be the first captain of the California Angels.

ANGEL ANGLES: Game delayed 25 minutes by rain . . . Today it's Dean Chance (10-9) against Frank Kreutzer (1-4) . . . Says Chance: "I think Juan Marichal will win the Cy Young award this year although the perfect game makes it hard to vote against Sandy." . . . Says Buddy Blattner: "I'll sure be a busy man next year if all the stories I read are true. I'm not going to Cincinnati, I'm not going back to St. Louis and I haven't talked to the Lakers." . . . As reported here often this summer, Blattner has three years remaining on his Angel contract and the club plans no changes except, possibly, adding a third announcer. . . . Rigney is enthusiastic about Jim Spencer, the first baseman from Maryland who was the Angels' top pick in the recent free-agent draft. . . . "Some swing," waxed Rig as Spencer took batting practice. . . . Spencer reports next spring. . . . McMullen has 12-game hitting streak . . . Jose Cardenal benched again . . . In his last 66 at-bats, Jose has only 11 hits . . . Through 57 dates, Nats have drawn 518,914, a comparable average to Angels' 542,278 for 63 dates.

Mets Fall in Same 1-Hit Trap

Three Brave pitchers combined for a one-hitter Friday night and Cloninger duplicated the feat all by himself.

It was the first time in almost 50 years that a major league team has been held to one hit in consecutive games. It first happened to Boston in 1916 in the National League and to Chicago in the American League in 1917.

Lyford Bests Lacy in National Air Races

RENO (UPI) — Chuck Lyford, Bellevue, Wash., streaked to victory over Clay Lacy of Canoga Park, Calif., Saturday in a wingtip-to-wingtip duel of F51 Mustangs over the Nevada sagebrush in the final unlimited class heat of the National Air Races.

Judy Wagner of Palos Verdes, Calif., flew a Beachcraft Bonanza to first place in the women's pylon race at a speed of 182.232.

Sports in Brief

'Hello John, This is Joe'

A record American Football League opening-day crowd of 50,000 is expected to turn out for the Houston Oilers' clash with the New York Jets today — but the most expensive quarterbacks will not be on the field at kickoff time.

Joe Namath, last year's grid genius for Alabama, reportedly signed for $400,000. He will be on the bench with a telephone in his hand, a la Terry Baker of the Rams.

On the other end of the line, in the press box, will be last year's clutch artist for Notre Dame — John Huarte, who reportedly got half as much for giving his allegiance to the Jets. Mike Taliaferro will start at qb.

* * * *

THE Detroit Pistons of the NBA open practice Monday with "bad boy" Reggie Harding on the spot and top scorer Terry Dischinger in the Army.

Harding, publicly contrite after paying a $2,000 fine for a run-in with police, holds the key to Piston hopes. He is the team's only center except Bill Chmielewski, a Cincinnati castoff whom the Pistons picked up for insurance.

* * * *

"THE field is hard and you couldn't cut as sharply," Tulsa end Howard Twilley said after his team's 14-0 win over Houston in the Astrodome.

Houston coach Bill Yeoman said the turf had nothing to do with the Cougars' loss. "Our defense held up pretty well. Our team was wound up too tight."

The game was the first to be played inside the domed stadium. Twilley, who caught 11 passes for 111 yards, said, "We're making no excuses about the field because both teams had the same disadvantage."

They were among the crowd of 98,395 which saw the lead change many times before St. Kilda won, 102-101. Dozens of other fans were treated for nervous exhaustion.

Orioles Clipped by Athletics, 3-2

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Dick Green rapped a single in the ninth inning that enabled Bill Bryan to slide home with the tie-breaking run as the Kansas City Athletics defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 3-2, Saturday night.

No. 1 Rating Up for Grabs

The college football campaign swings into high gear next weekend and if the pre-season "line" is true, one of the wildest scrambles for the No. 1 rating in many years is in store for fans.

If the first "line" issued by leading handicappers holds up, no less than six teams have excellent chances of going through undefeated—Notre Dame, Michigan, Nebraska, Alabama, Texas and Syracuse.

ARA PARSEGHIAN
Zeroes in on Trojans

And these clubs are expected to provide the only defeats for such teams as USC, Ohio State, Purdue, Louisiana State, Arkansas and Penn State.

Of course, the bounce of the ball could drastically change the picture around in such head-to-head showdowns between USC and the Fighting Irish, Michigan-Ohio State and Michigan-Purdue, Alabama-Louisiana State, Texas-Arkansas and Syracuse-Penn State.

Notre Dame fans will long remember how the Trojans knocked the Irish out of the undefeated ranks and the No. 1 rating in the final game last year after they had rolled up a 17-0 halftime lead on USC.

Meanwhile, if the season runs true to form, it will produce the best crop of bowl teams in some time.

It not only will assure excellent attractions for the eight established bowl games, but possibly enable a couple of others to finally get off the ground after having to be canceled the past couple of years due to the lack of top-flight matches.

As the season begins, there appears to be a minimum of 24 bowl possibilities ranging from "good to excellent."

And there would be even more, of course, but the AAWU and Big Ten only allow one representative school to make a post-season appearance.

Ten of the 16 bowl teams of last season figure to make strong bids for post-season berths again this year . . . showing that there will be no drastic shift in the balance of power around the country.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP picture and bowl possibilities:

AAWU—Trojans of USC strong favorites over Stanford, Oregon and Washington to win conference title and appear in Rose Bowl.

BIG TEN—Michigan, one of six teams conceded excellent opportunity to go unbeaten and bid for No. 1 rating, is ineligible to return to Rose Bowl under conference's once-in-two-years clause. Thus, the "bowl race" figures to be between Ohio State and Purdue. The two teams do not meet, but meet the same foes in their seven conference games, including Michigan. Loop is well balanced again and all teams figure to be tough on outside rivals.

BIG EIGHT—Nebraska, 9-1 last year and winner over Arkansas in Sugar Bowl, expected to win 10 in row this trip, with Missouri tabbed to finish second and possibly land bowl invitation.

EAST—Syracuse and Penn State both figured to turn back all rivals and will meet in their big game on Oct. 16. Syracuse went to Sugar Bowl last season, both in line for major games is not upset along the way.

Atlantic Coast—Maryland strong favorite over Duke. Conference has been bypassed by bowl promoters in recent seasons, but Terrapins have good chance of making it this year.

Southern Conference—Alabama-LSU collision on Nov. 6 should decide title. Two clubs played in Orange and Sugar Bowls a year ago; may well land same two spots this season. Florida, Mississippi and Kentucky considered most dangerous to above two.

Southern Independents—Georgia Tech's schedule arranged perfectly for bowl bid after year's absence from post-season scene. Florida State, winner over Oklahoma in Gator Bowl in '64, also has good chance of landing a bowl assignment for second straight season.

SOUTHWEST CONFERENCE—Texas-Arkansas clash on Oct. 16 figures to decide loop champion and automatic bid to Cotton Bowl. The other probably will go to Orange or Sugar. Baylor and Texas Tech also could make it to bowls. Tech played in Sun Bowl last year.

Rockies—Wyoming can draw attention of bowl promoters with good showings against such foes as Army and USC late in season. New Mexico and Utah could make it to one of lesser bowls. Utah beat West Virginia in last year's Liberty Bowl played indoors at Atlantic City Auditorium.

Rocky Mountain Independents—Utah State is top club.

Midwest Independents—Notre Dame not figured in bowl picture . . . but will be big threat for No. 1 rating.

NOTRE DAME will be high until beaten.

Ara Parseghian's Irish machine is loaded with top material again and in a good position schedule-wise to go all the way this time.

Toughest hurdles figure to be Purdue in second game and USC in fifth game on Oct. 23. They play Trojans at home this year following a bye, thus giving them two weeks to prepare for Southern Cal.

Six offensive starters return plus eight starters from the defensive club that was as much responsible for Notre Dame's fine season last year than the more publicized offense spearheaded by John Huarte.

Clark Wins Pole for Italian Prix

MONZA, Italy (UPI)—Jim Clark of Scotland, driving a Lotus Climax, clocked the fastest time in the trials Saturday and gained the pole position for today's Italian Grand Prix.

Clark, who holds a wide lead in world driving championship standings, roared around the 3.45-mile trial lap in one minute, 35.9 seconds for an average speed of 134.042 mph.

Player Leads World Tee by 1

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — U.S. Open champion Gary Player birdied the 17th hole Saturday to gain the first round lead by a stroke in the 36-hole, $77,500 World Series of golf at the Firestone Country Club.

Player wound up with a par 37-33-70, for his slim margin over Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, who is after his third title in as many appearances in the series.

The final round of the tournament, with $50,000 going to the winner, will be played today.

Behind Nicklaus at three-over-par 73 was British Open winner Peter Thomson followed by PGA titlist Dave Marr with a 74.

Player pulled into a tie with Nicklaus at one-over-par when he birdied the 12th, and then grabbed the lead with his second birdie of the back nine on the 17th.

Nicklaus, winner of the 1962 and 1963 tournaments, played par golf on his return after standing one over at 36 going out. Player was two over on the front nine with two bogeys.

The foursome found the fairways and greens damp, but otherwise in excellent condition as is usual for the 7,165-yard Firestone "monster", under cloudy skies that threatened rain from the edge of dying Hurricane Betsy. It was cool but there was no rain in the more than five hours of play.

Player and Nicklaus agreed the weather was "beautiful" for golf except for the clouded skies. Thomson complained of an occasionally light wind across the course, which he said was from the opposite direction than during his practice round.

"This course gets rougher every year," Player said. "This is a funny golf course . . . a very tough course."

But then he added: "if I were three behind on the 17th I'd feel I still had a chance."

None of the golfers felt the slow pace affected their concentration or games.

The scoring was the highest for a first round in the series since 1963.

Thomson gave up the lead to Nicklaus with a double bogey on the third after his second shot sank in a pond at the front of the green. Marr had dropped two behind by the fifth when his wood left him in a trap for his second bogey. On the seventh, Thomson and Marr both carded bogeys, but on the eighth it was Nicklaus' turn.

Nicklaus' drive on the eighth smashed into a tree 150 yards from the tee and dropped to the left of the course, two feet behind a small fir.

Nicklaus had a second bogey on the ninth when his first putt slipped 15 inches past the cup. He was unable to recover on the straight pars.

Player started back parring the 10th and 11th, then picked up the first of two birdies on the 12th as he carded a two for the par three hole. Then it was par play for the next four holes before he snapped into the lead at the 17th.

Players and officials are reflected in pond water as Peter Thomson, along with referee Steve Shabala, bend over to take look at ball which Thomson knocked into the hazard. Reilly's 3 TD Bombs Pace 49ers

Long Beach State College opened up its offense with aerial fireworks Saturday and struck for four touchdown passes during a scrimmage at its Terminal Island training base.

Jack Reilly, on whose sturdy right arm much of the 49ers' success depends, hurled three TD passes and reserve QB Dave Thompson one. Reilly hit 10 of 18 for 181 yards.

Both Steve Newell and Shelly Novack caught two scoring passes, with Novack the No. 1 split end making six receptions for the day and Newell five.

Meanwhile, Les Shy went through his first contact drill since pulling a hamstring muscle last week and announced he was not yet in peak condition. The all-purpose halfback carried 7 times for 38 yards and scored once on a dandy 15-yard jaunt.

* * * *

INJURIES continued to plague coach Don Reed's squad, but there was good news too with the return of left tackle Phil Metzen, whose broken left hand is on the mend.

Tight end Don Skinner (shoulder) and defensive end Doug Minner (broken thumb) were joined on the casualty list by tackle Ron Ogle (hip point) and halfback Ray Woolsey (knee). Only Minner definitely will miss the opener with Nevada.

Wingback Jack Tucker gained 40 yards on 4 carries during the scrimmage, giving him 100 yards on 10 tries in the two scrums held thus far. The team scrimmages once more next week before breaking camp.

Russ Spikers Roll Up Lead

STUTTGART, Germany (UPI) — The powerful Russian track and field team Saturday racked up seven victories to lead by four points over West Germany at the halfway mark of the European Cup track final.

Bad luck struck France when star runner Michel Jazy, competing in his first 10,000-meter run, suffered a cramp after 6,000 meters. The cramp turned into a pulled muscle and he will not be able to start in the 5,000 meters race today. The winners:

Hammer Throw — Romuald Klim (R), 222, 1.5 inches.
Shotput—Nikolai Karrasiev (R), 62-11.5.
High Jump—Valeriy Brumel, 7¼.
Broad Jump—Igor Ter-Ovanesian (R), 25-9¾.
110-Meter Hurdles — Anatoli Michailov (R), 13.9.
10,000 Meters — Nikolai Dulov (R), 28:42.2.
1,500 Meters—Bodo Tuemmler (WG), 3:47.4.
Sprint Relay—Russia, 39.4.

Sutherland Wins AHRA Fuel Crown

Defeats Dyer for Top Prize Money; McEwen Ties Mark

Paul Sutherland of Long Beach stands today as American Hot Rod Assn. world champion fuel eliminator after defeating Tom Dyer Saturday night in the finals of the AHRA affair at Lions Drag Strip.

Sutherland was given first place after coasting through the lights on his final run. Dyer, of Inglewood, could muster no oil pressure in his rail and had to shut down just off the line in the dash for top prize.

It was a fortunate accident for the 27-year-old Sutherland, who also had to back off after his blower disintegrated halfway through his run.

Driving a 354-cubic inch, super-charged Chrysler, co-owned by Jim Brissette, Sutherland was rewarded for his feat of negotiating four rounds of eliminations without defeat by $6,000 in prize money.

* * * *

ANOTHER Long Beach rail jockey, Tom McEwen turned in the evening's top speed, 210.76 and top time, 7.58 seconds, even though he wasn't in competition for a title.

The Mongoose became the first man in Lions' history ever to win two match races the same evening when he turned 209.78 and 7.66 to clip Ron Hampshire after opening the evening by drubbing James Warren.

McEwen's 210.76 run against Warren, which he successfully backed up again Hampshire, ties the Lions mark for top speed. His 7.56 missed another record by five-hundredths of a second.

Top Fuel—Paul Sutherland, Long Beach, 204.54 mph, 8.01 ET.
Competition Eliminator—Jim Beebe, Los Angeles, 166.01 mph, 8.99.
Middle Eliminator—Shu Matsubura, Los Angeles, 148.76 mph, 9.38 ET.
Street Eliminator—Manuel Herrara, Los Angeles, 137.65 mph, 10.81 ET.

Falcons Vie With Chino in WFL Play

By BILL WASSERZIEHER

The Long Beach Falcons go for their second win of the fledgling Western Football League season today when they journey to Chino to take on the hosting Wolves.

With a 12-0 conquest of the San Pedro Marauders already on the books, the Falcons bid for a victory over the still untried Wolves, who will be making their first start of the season.

Bobo O'Rourke, whose passing engineered the win over San Pedro two weeks ago, has gotten the nod from coach Al Williams and will start at quarterback.

Thompson Shoots Net 66 in Sweeps

Bob Thompson fired a 79-13—66 to win the weekly Virginia Country Club sweepstakes Saturday.

Class A low net—Bob Thompson 79-13—66; Al Davis 75-9—67 & Dan Ridder 74-9—67 (tie for 2nd). Blind Bogey (71)—Ed Spurling, Howell Walker, Jack Tylicki, Noble Millie, Bill Bryant, Milo Dick, Bill Montegomery, Howard Cleveland.
Class B low net—John Halbert 84-15—69, Kelly Kirkwood 90-21—69, Ralph Settles 91-22—69 (3-way tie). Blind Bogey (77)—William Riddell, Ty Ellis.

ONE OF WORLD'S TOP EVENTS

Offshore Power Grand Prix Sept. 25

By DAVE TAYLOR

Sporting an entry list that reads like ocean power boat racing's blue blood register, the Long Beach-Hennessy Offshore Power Boat Grand Prix is odds on to score as one of the world's top speedboat tilts in its first time out Sept. 25.

Among those already dealt in for the 180 mile roughneck speed run are world-famed ocean racing hot dogs Dick Bertram, Merrick Lewis, William Wishnick, Don Aronow, Jack Jenkins and Bill Cooper.

At least 20 of the special ocean racing V-hulls will compete for the Jas. Hennessy & Co. $2,250 first prize purse and the Grand Prix Hennessy Offshore Trophy to be awarded for the first time in this inaugural Long Beach race.

High on the list of favorites is the raring Broad Jumper, considered one of the finest ocean speedsters in the country. The William Wishnick boat is five tons and is powered by twin Holman & Moody 427 cubic inch engines.

Also figuring to make for a hotly contested issue is a revolutionary 28-foot turbine, aluminum craft constructed especially for the race by Yacht Dynamics of Harbor City as well as the "Alimony III" and "Surfrider," both owned by Jack Jenkins of San Diego. Jenkins will pilot "Alimony III" while Dick Bertram takes the helm of "Surfrider."

The race will cover 180 miles over one of the roughest stretches of water in the world. Machines capable of 80-90 mph should be hard-pressed to average 50 mph on the course that will take them from Long Beach to Newport, around both San Clemente and Catalina Islands and back to Long Beach. It will be the longest continuous offshore power boat race in West Coast History — and the richest.

Running in conjunction with the professional event will be a cruiser class competition over a 100-mile offshore course for the traditional Sir Thomas Lipton Trophy. It will be the first time the Lipton Cup has been raced for since 1936.

Long Beach Yacht Club will host both the Hennessy Grand Prix and the Lipton Cup race.

VIKE SEASON TICKETS TO GO ON SALE

Long Beach City College's season ticket sale begins in earnest this week at Lonnie's Sporting Goods (2120 Bellflower Blvd., 596-7113 or 596-6015) and the Liberal Arts Campus' Student Banker's Office.

Lonnie's will have the $10, 6-game tickets on sale Monday (1-5 and 6-9 p.m.) and Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday (10 a.m. to 1 p.m.).

The sale on the LAC will be Tuesday (2-5), Wednesday (6-9), Thursday (2-5) and Friday (9-2). Season ducats may also be purchased at Booth 5 up until kickoff of Friday's season-opener with Everett.

Laver, Rosewall in Pro Tennis Final

PARIS (UPI) — Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall, the world's top ranking pro tennis players, Saturday qualified for an all-Australian men's singles final Sunday at the French tennis championships.

Laver beat his compatriot Mal Anderson, 11-9, 8-6, 2-6, 6-0. Rosewall beat Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3.

Prentice Fires 70 to Lead Ladies Golf

Tanner Takes Cycle Title, Wreck Hospitalizes White

Sammy Tanner of Long Beach, defending national dirt track champion, took the lead on the second lap and breezed to victory Saturday night in the Grand National AMA 8-mile championship race at Ascot Park before 6,700 fans.

The event, scheduled for 20 laps, was called after 15 when Torrance's Ralph White was involved in an accident on the South turn.

The veteran lost control of his bike and fell. He was then hit in the back while trying to raise and was taken unconscious to Gardena Hospital.

A hospital spokesman reported late Saturday that White was in satisfactory condition with a possible broken collarbone.

Amateur main—Eddie Hammond (Lynwood), BSA; Gene Romero (San Luis Obispo), Triumph; Cris Draayer (Salt Lake City), Harley-Davidson; Chuck Palgren (Newark, N. J.), Triumph; Sonny Nutter (Mar Vista), BSA; 6:06.47 (track record, old mark 6:12.8), by Dan Haaby (Torrance) 1964.

Kathy Harter Gains in Tennis Tourney

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) —John Powlews, Madison, Wis., and Donald Dell, Bethesda, Md., Saturday advanced to the finals in the tennis tournament.

Miss Kathleen Harter, Seal Beach, Calif., defeated Miss Connie Christler, Kansas City, 6-3, 6-2.

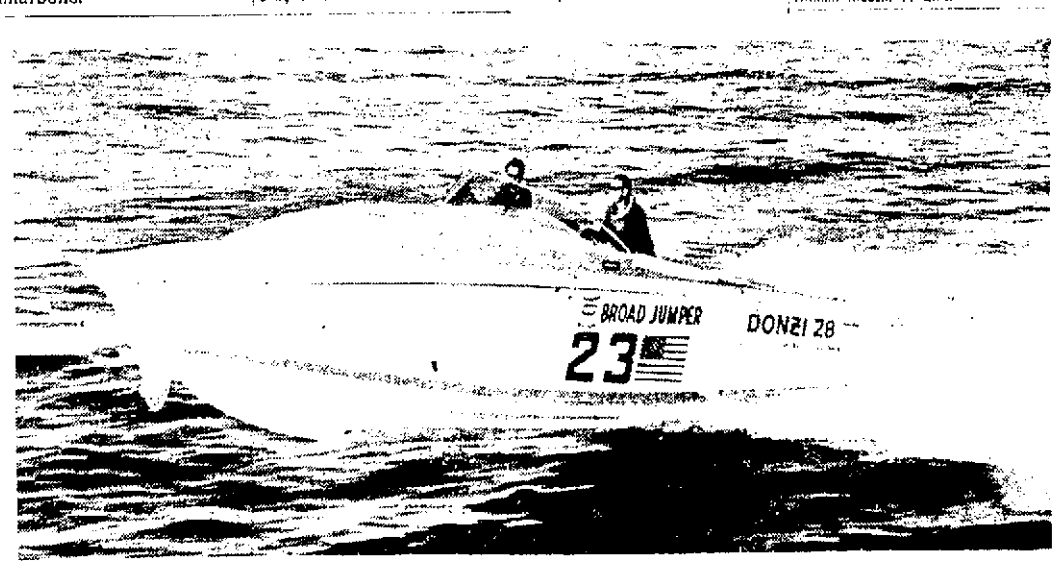

LBCC, L.B. STATE FETED

Century Club Kickoff Thurs.

The annual Long Beach Century Club kickoff banquet for Long Beach State and City College football players will be held Thursday at 8 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Eddie Meador, defensive captain of the Rams.

Any interested male booster of either team is invited to attend the affair. Tickets may be secured at the door. Those interested may secure pertinent information from the athletic departments of either school.

JUMPING THE RIPPLES

Warming up for 180-mile Long Beach-Hennessy Grand Prix offshore powerboat race Sept. 25, William Wishnick puts his 28-foot Donzi, Broad Jumper, through its paces. Considered one of the best ocean racers in country, Broad Jumper was shipped from East to Long Beach Yacht Club last week.

MONZA, Italy (UPI)—Jim Clark of Scotland, driving a Lotus Climax, clocked the fastest time in the trials Saturday and gained the pole position for today's Italian Grand Prix.

Clark, who holds a wide lead in world driving championship standings, roared around the 3.45-mile trial lap in one minute, 35.9 seconds for an average speed of 134.042 mph.

Player Leads World Tee by 1

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — U.S. Open champion Gary Player birdied the 17th hole Saturday to gain the first round lead by a stroke in the 36-hole, $77,500 World Series of golf at the Firestone Country Club.

Player wound up with a par 37-33-70, for his slim margin over Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, who is after his third title in as many appearances in the series.

The final round of the tournament, with $50,000 going to the winner, will be played today.

Behind Nicklaus at three-over-par 73 was British Open winner Peter Thomson followed by PGA titlist Dave Marr with a 74.

Player pulled into a tie with Nicklaus at one-over-par when he birdied the 12th, and then grabbed the lead with his second birdie of the back nine on the 17th.

Nicklaus, winner of the 1962 and 1963 tournaments, played par golf on his return after standing one over at 36 going out. Player was two over on the front nine with two bogeys.

The foursome found the fairways and greens damp, but otherwise in excellent condition as is usual for the 7,165-yard Firestone "monster", under cloudy skies that threatened rain from the edge of dying Hurricane Betsy. It was cool but there was no rain in the more than five hours of play.

Player and Nicklaus agreed the weather was "beautiful" for golf except for the clouded skies. Thomson complained of an occasionally light wind across the course, which he said was from the opposite direction than during his practice round.

"This course gets rougher every year," Player said. "This is a funny golf course . . . a very tough course."

But then he added: "If I were three behind on the 17th I'd feel I still had a chance."

None of the golfers felt the slow pace affected their concentration or games.

The scoring was the highest for a first round in the series since 1963.

Thomson gave up the lead to Nicklaus with a double bogey on the third after his second shot sank in a pond at the front of the green. Marr had dropped two behind by the fifth when his wood left him in a trap for his second bogey. On the seventh, Thomson and Marr both carded bogeys, but on the eighth it was Nicklaus' turn.

Nicklaus' drive on the eighth smashed into a tree 150 yards from the tee and dropped to the left of the course, two feet behind a small fir.

Nicklaus had a second bogey on the ninth when his first putt slipped 15 inches past the cup. He was unable to recover on the straight pars.

Player started back parring the 10th and 11th, then picked up the first of two birdies on the 12th as he carded a two for the par three hole. Then it was par play for the next four holes before he snapped into the lead at the 17th.

MIRROR, MIRROR . . .

Players and officials are reflected in pond water as Peter Thomson, along with referee Steve Shahala, bend over to take look at ball which Thomson knocked into the hazard. Gary Player (in black) and Jack Nicklaus of the big four in World Series of Golf, look on. Thomson took penalty stroke but managed to par hole.

Reilly's 3 TD Bombs Pace 49ers

Long Beach State College opened up its offense with aerial fireworks Saturday and struck for four touchdown passes during a scrimmage at its Terminal Island training base.

Jack Reilly, on whose sturdy right arm much of the 49ers' success depends, hurled three TD passes and reserve QB Dave Thompson one. Reilly hit 10 of 18 for 181 yards.

Both Steve Newell and Shelly Novack caught two scoring passes, with Novack the No. 1 split end making six receptions for the day and Newell five.

Meanwhile, Les Shy went through his first contact drill since pulling a hamstring muscle last week and announced he was not yet in peak condition. The all-purpose halfback carried 7 times for 38 yards and scored once on a dandy 15-yard jaunt.

INJURIES continued to plague coach Don Reed's squad, but there was good news too with the return of left tackle Phil Metzen, whose broken left hand is on the mend.

Tight end Don Skinner (shoulder) and defensive end Doug Minner (broken thumb) were joined on the casualty list by tackle Ron Ogle (hip point) and halfback Ray Woolsey (knee). Only Minner definitely will miss the opener with Nevada.

Wingback Jack Tucker gained 40 yards on 4 carries during the scrimmage, giving him 100 yards on 10 tries in the two scrums held thus far. The team scrimmages once more next week before breaking camp.

Russ Spikers Roll Up Lead

STUTTGART, Germany (UPI) — The powerful Russian track and field team Saturday racked up seven victories to lead by four points over West Germany at the halfway mark of the European Cup track final.

Bad luck struck France when star runner Michel Jazy, competing in his first 10,000-meter run, suffered a cramp after 6,000 meters. The cramp turned into a pulled muscle and he will not be able to start in the 5,000 meters race today. The winners:

Hammer Throw — Romuald Klim (R), 222-1.5 inches.
Shotput—Nikolai Karrasiev (R), 62-11.5.
High Jump—Valeriy Brumel, 7'4.
Broad Jump—Igor Ter-Ovanesian (R), 25-9¾.
110-Meter Hurdles — Anatoli Michailov (R), 13.9.
10,000 Meters — Nikolai Dufov (R), 28:42.2.
1,500 Meters—Bodo Tuemmler (WG), 3:47.4.
Sprint Relay—Russia, :39.4.

Tanner Takes Cycle Title, Wreck Hospitalizes White

Sammy Tanner of Long Beach, defending national dirt track champion, took the lead on the second lap and breezed to victory Saturday night in the Grand National AMA 8-mile championship race at Ascot Park before 6,700 fans.

The event, scheduled for 20 laps, was called after 15 when Torrance's Ralph White was involved in an accident on the South turn.

The veteran lost control of his bike and fell. He was then hit in the back while trying to raise and was taken unconscious to Gardena Hospital.

A hospital spokesman reported late Saturday that White was in satisfactory condition with a possible broken collarbone.

Amateur main—Eddie Hammond (Lynwood), BSA; Gene Romero (San Luis Obispo), Triumph; Cris Dreayer (Salt Lake City), Harley-Davidson; Chuck Palgren (Newark, N. J.), Triumph; Sonny Nutter (Mar Vista), BSA; 6:06.47 (track record, old mark 6:17.81, by Dan Haaby (Torrance) 1962)

Miss Kathleen Harter, Seal Beach, Calif., defeated Miss Connie Christler, Kansas City, 6-3, 6-2.

ONE OF WORLD'S TOP EVENTS

Offshore Power Grand Prix Sept. 25

By DAVE TAYLOR

Sporting an entry list that reads like ocean power boat racing's blue blood register, the Long Beach-Hennessy Offshore Power Boat Grand Prix is odds on to score as one of the world's top speedboat tilts in its first time out Sept. 25.

Among those already dealt in for the 180 mile roughneck speed run are world-famed ocean racing hot dogs Dick Bertram, Merrick Lewis, William Wishnick, Don Aronow, Jack Jenkins and Bill Cooper.

At least 20 of the special ocean racing V-hulls will compete for the Jas. Hennessy & Co. $2,250 first prize purse and the Grand Prix Hennessy Offshore Trophy to be awarded for the first time in this inaugural Long Beach race.

High on the list of favorites is the raring Broad Jumper, considered one of the finest ocean speedsters in the country. The William Wishnick boat is five tons and is powered by twin Holman & Moody 427 cubic inch engines.

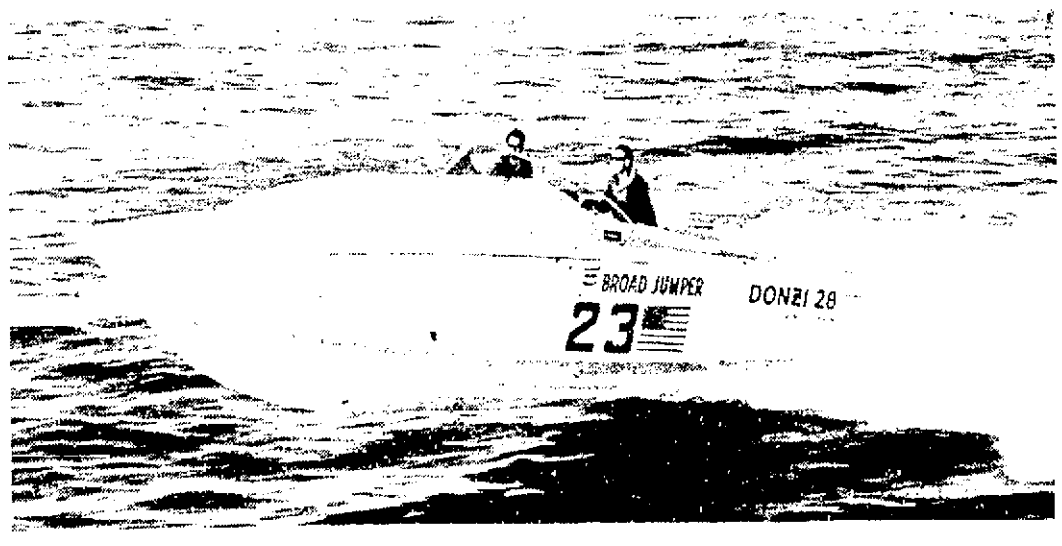

Also figuring to make for a hotly contested issue is a revolutionary 28-foot turbine, aluminum craft constructed especially for the race by Yacht Dynamics of Harbor City as well as the "Alimony III" and "Surfrider," both owned by Jack Jenkins of San Diego. Jenkins will pilot "Alimony III" while Dick Bertram takes the helm of "Surfrider."

The race will cover 180 miles over one of the roughest stretches of water in the world. Machines capable of 80-90 mph should be hard-pressed to average 50 mph on the course that will take them from Long Beach to Newport, around both San Clemente and Catalina Islands and back to Long Beach. It will be the longest continuous offshore power boat race in West Coast History — and the richest.

The $2,250 first prize put up by the 200-year-old French cognac producing firm of Jas. Hennessy & Co. makes the purse one of the largest to the winner of any comparable event in the Western Hemisphere.

Running in conjunction with the professional event will be a cruiser class competition over a 100-mile offshore course for the traditional Sir Thomas Lipton Trophy. It will be the first time the Lipton Cup has been raced for since 1936.

Long Beach Yacht Club will host both the Hennessy Grand Prix and the Lipton Cup race.

JUMPING THE RIPPLES

Warming up for 180-mile Long Beach-Hennessy Grand Prix offshore powerboat race Sept. 25, William Wishnick puts his 28-foot Donzi, Broad Jumper, through its paces. Considered one of the best ocean racers in country, Broad Jumper was shipped from East to Long Beach Yacht Club last week.

Sutherland Wins AHRA Fuel Crown

Defeats Dyer for Top Prize Money; McEwen Ties Mark

Sutherland was given first place after coasting through the lights on his final run. Dyer, of Inglewood, could muster no oil pressure in his rail and had to shut down just off the line in the dash for top prize.

It was a fortunate accident for the 27-year-old Sutherland, who also had to back off after his blower disintegrated halfway through his run.

Driving a 354-cubic inch, super-charged Chrysler, co-owned by Jim Brissette, Sutherland was rewarded for his feat of negotiating four rounds of eliminations without defeat by $6,000 in prize money.

* * * *

ANOTHER Long Beach rail jockey, Tom McEwen turned in the evening's top speed, 210.76 and top time, 7.58 seconds, even though he wasn't in competition for a title.

The Mongoose became the first man in Lions' history ever to win two match races the same evening when he turned 209.78 and 7.66 to clip Ron Hampshire after opening the evening by drubbing James Warren.

McEwen's 210.76 run against Warren, which he successfully backed up against Hampshire, ties the Lions mark for top speed. His 7.56 missed another record by five-hundredths of a second.

Competition Eliminator—Jim Beebe, Los Angeles, 166.01 mph, 8.99.
Middle Eliminator—Shu Matsubura, Los Angeles, 143.76 mph, 9.88 ET.
Street Eliminator—Manuel Herrara, Los Angeles, 127.65 mph, 10.81 ET

Falcons Vie With Chino in WFL Play

By BILL WASSERZIEHER

The Long Beach Falcons go for their second win of the fledgling Western Football League season today when they journey to Chino to take on the hosting Wolves.

With a 12-0 conquest of the San Pedro Marauders already on the books, the Falcons bid for a victory over the still untried Wolves, who will be making their first start of the season.

Bobo O'Rourke, whose passing engineered the win over San Pedro two weeks ago, has gotten the nod from coach Al Williams and will start at quarterback.

Kickoff time is 12:30 at the Wolves' field located just off Highway 71 in Chino.

Thompson Shoots Net 66 in Sweeps

Bob Thompson fired a 79-13—66 to win the weekly Virginia Country Club sweepstakes Saturday.

Class B low net—John Halbert 84-15—69, Kelly Kirkwood 95-21—69, Ralph Settles 91-22—69 (3-way tie). Blind Bogey (77)—William Riddell, Ty Ellis.

SWITCHBACK was never far from the pace while saving some ground and advancing steadily well out from the rail on the stretch overtook CARANG and was slowly drawing out. CARANG, on the outside early, took over nearing the stretch turn and saved some ground but was doing his best to retain second place. CHOSEN VICTORY was badly outrun for six furlongs then closed much ground on the outside. COVER WAVE dropped back when in close quarters on the backstretch but came again. MAINSHEET, rather badly outrun early, moved to the outside after leaving the backstretch but failed to threaten. ASK FATHER was between the leaders for seven furlongs then weakened. NASSAU RULER and PRINCE LEONARD also tired, EXPONENT was in close quarters in the stretch.

Switchback Closes, Wins in Escondido

Carang Fades Near Finish; Mainsheet, Ask Father Out

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR — The Pam Stable's consistent Switchback overcame early trouble to score a driving triumph in the 13th running of the $23,150 Escondido Handicap before 14,982 fans here this afternoon.

With jockey Miguel Yanez in the saddle, the five-year-old Bernwood gelding defeated Carang by 1½ lengths in the mile and one-eighth test over Del Mar's infield turf course. Chosun Victory was third and Cover Wave fourth in the field of 14 horses.

Switchback, packing second highweight of 120 pounds, was timed in 1:50 2-5, only two ticks off the track and stakes record set by Victory Beauty in this same event a year ago. The winner returned $25.80, $15.20 and $9.80, Carang paid $6.20 and $4.80 and Chosun Victory returned $7.20.

Switchback was squeezed back sharply at the break and then encountered traffic troubles into the first turn. Yanez roused his mount entering the backstretch and Switchback responded to move into contention as Nassau Ruler was setting the pace.

* * * *

SWITCHBACK moved strongly on the outside turning for home and, under left-handed punishment by Yanez, overhauled Carang inside the final sixteenth and was drawing away at the wire.

Carang held on gamely for second, a half-length ahead of the swiftly-closing three-year-old Chosun Victory, who rallied from last place to be three-quarters of a length before fourth-place Cover Wave. Mainsheet, the 5-2 choice, was fifth and Lava Flow, topweight at 122 pounds, finished 12th. Heavily backed Ask Father also finished out of the money.

Buckpasser Wins $335,475 Futurity

Compiled from Wire Reports

Buckpasser, the 4-5 favorite, won the $335,475 Arlington-Washington Futurity — billed as the world's richest thoroughbred horse race—by about one-half length over fast-closing Father's Image at Chicago's Arlington Park Saturday.

Buckpasser, owned by Ogden Phipps of Wheatley Hills, Long Island, N.Y., and ridden by Braulio Baeza, captured the lead at the eighth pole only to have Father's Image, a 23-1 shot, drive up steadily and nearly nip him at the wire.

Time of the seven furlongs was 1:23, compared to the track mark of 1:21.

Flame Tree was third and Our Michael fourth in a field of 10 juveniles.

Buckpasser, son of the great Tom Fool, won his eighth straight race after losing his initial start.

He paid 3.60, $3 and $2.60 to backers in a crowd of 30,347. Father's Image returned $11.20 and $7 while Flame Tree paid $5.20.

CLAIBORNE FARM'S Moccasin made a major bid for 2-year-old filly honors Saturday, romping to an impressive six-length victory in the $108,680 Matron at Aqueduct in New York.

Larry Adams, her regular jockey, took the filly over the six furlongs in 1:11.3 and had her eased up in the last sixteenth.

The fleet filly, the odds-on choice of a crowd of 42,683, paid $2.80, $2.60 and $2.20 and collected $67,717, richest purse ever in the Matron.

Lyvette, a 70-1 shot, was second and returned $20.40 and $7.60. Shimmering Gold paid $4.60 to show.

A major disappointment was Calumet Farm's Another Love, who held the early lead, then faded badly.

* * * *

LOW SON, allowed to go off at odds of 34-1, won the $30,000 Playground Stakes at Atlantic City by a nose over Deck Hand. Model Fool finished third and the winning time for the seven furlongs was 1:23 4/5.

Low Son returned $70.60, $21.40 and $8.80. Deck Hand paid $8.60 and $4.80 and Model Fool $4.20.

SWITCHBACK was never far from the pace while saving some ground and advancing steadily well out from the rail in the stretch overtook CARANG and was slowly drawing out. CARANG, on the outside early, took over nearing the stretch turn and saved some ground but was doing his best to retain second place. CHOSEN VICTORY was badly outrun for six furlongs then closed much ground on the outside. COVER WAVE dropped back when in close quarters on the backstretch but came again. MAINSHEET, rather badly outrun early, moved on the outside after leaving the backstretch but failed to threaten. ASK FATHER was between the leaders for seven furlongs then weakened. NASSAU RULER and PRINCE LEONARD also tired. EXPONENT was in close quarters in the stretch.

Switchback Closes, Wins in Escondido

Carang Fades Near Finish; Mainsheet, Ask Father Out

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR — The Pam Stable's consistent Switchback overcame early trouble to score a driving triumph in the 13th running of the $23,150 Escondido Handicap before 14,982 fans here this afternoon.

With jockey Miguel Yanez in the saddle, the five-year-old Bernwood gelding defeated Carang by 1½ lengths in the mile and one-eighth test over Del Mar's infield turf course. Chosun Victory was third and Cover Wave fourth in the field of 14 horses.

Switchback, packing second highweight of 120 pounds, was timed in 1:50 2-5, only two ticks off the track and stakes record set by Victory Beauty in this same event a year ago. The winner returned $25.80, $15.20 and $9.80, Carang paid $6.20 and $4.80 and Chosun Victory returned $7.20.

Switchback was squeezed back sharply at the break and then encountered traffic troubles into the first turn. Yanez roused his mount entering the backstretch and Switchback responded to move into contention as Nassau Ruler was setting the pace.

SWITCHBACK moved strongly on the outside turning for home and, under left-handed punishment by Yanez, overhauled Carang inside the final sixteenth and was drawing away at the wire.

Carang held on gamely for second, a half-length ahead of the swiftly-closing three-year-old Chosun Victory, who rallied from last place to be three-quarters of a length before fourth-place Cover Wave. Mainsheet, the 5-2 choice, was fifth and Lava Flow topweight at 122 pounds, finished 12th. Heavily backed Ask Father also finished out of the money.

Buckpasser Wins $335,475 Futurity

Compiled from Wire Reports

Buckpasser, the 4-5 favorite, won the $335,475 Arlington-Washington Futurity — billed as the world's richest thoroughbred horse race—by about one-half length over fast-closing Father's Image at Chicago's Arlington Park Saturday.

Buckpasser, owned by Ogden Phipps of Wheatley Hills, Long Island, N.Y., and ridden by Braulio Baeza, captured the lead at the eighth pole only to have Father's Image, a 23-1 shot, drive up steadily and nearly nip him at the wire.

Time of the seven furlongs was 1:23, compared to the track mark of 1:21.

Flame Tree was third and Our Michael fourth in a field of 10 juveniles.

Buckpasser, son of the great Tom Fool, won his eighth straight race after losing his initial start.

He paid 3.60, $3 and $2.60 to backers in a crowd of 30,347. Father's Image returned $11.20 and $7 while Flame Tree paid $5.20.

CLAIBORNE FARM'S Moccasin made a major bid for 2-year-old filly honors Saturday, romping to an impressive six-length victory in the $108,680 Matron at Aqueduct in New York.

Larry Adams, her regular jockey, took the filly over the six furlongs in 1:11.3 and had her eased up in the last sixteenth.

The fleet filly, the odds-on choice of a crowd of 42,683, paid $2.80, $2.60 and $2.20 and collected $67,717, richest purse ever in the Matron.

Fyvette, a 70-1 shot, was second and returned $20.40 and $7.60. Shimmering Gold paid $4.60 to show.

A major disappointment was Calumet Farm's Another Love, who held the early lead, then faded badly.

LOW SON, allowed to go off at odds of 34-1, won the $30,000 Playground Stakes at Atlantic City by a nose over Deck Hand. Model Fool finished third and the winning time for the seven furlongs was 1:23 4/5.

Low Son returned $70.60, $21.40 and $8.80. Deck Hand paid $8.60 and $4.80 and Model Fool $4.20.

Fly-Fishing Season at Crowley

The special fly-fishing season at Lake Crowley opens Wednesday and continues through Oct. 31 when all fishing ceases in the Sierra Nevada. Only artificial flies with barbless hooks may be used and the limit is five trout with minimum size of 12 inches.

The special season was created by the Fish and Game Commission for the benefit of those purists who had rather fish and release than to catch and take home. It isnt' easy to bring a fighting trout to shore when there is no barb on the hook. Actually, the fish has a good chance of going free. Fishing will be limited to the shore between North Landing and Convict Creek.

The Long Beach Casting Club has planned a trip to Crowley and with a group of "graduates" from its summer casting class, there probably will be quite a crowd. They will be taking their fly creations along, but it might be wise to stop at Jim Brock's tackle store in Bishop and get first-hand information about what the Crowley trout are taking.

A Bishop scout for this column reported that Sgt. Coy Ziglar caught a 15½-pound brown trout in Lower Twin Lake (Bridgeport) Thursday. The big fish hit a trolled Rebel lure. It is believed to be the largest trout caught this year in the Sierra.

MAN AND THE SEA, a new science course, will start at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Excelsior High School, 15711 S. Pioneer Blvd., Norwalk. H. Parke Young, of the Department of Fish and Game marine research staff, will serve as instructor, bringing the marine world to adult students who enroll Wednesday night.

The world's greatest storehouse of foods and minerals is in the ocean, Biologists say that enough food is in the world's oceans to feed millions. Man and the Sea will explore man's relationships with the sea. Students will learn to identify fish, sea animals and plant life, learning their worth and their dangers. Problems of pollution, habitat creation and diving safety will be part of the course.

Young was one of the first to pioneer the use of scuba gear for marine research. He also has received high praise for his research into the kelp bass situation several years ago. It was largely through his efforts that size and fish limits were placed on the bass. As a result, the kelp bass today is the bread-and-butter fish of Southern California.

He served as a member of the State Kelp Study Committee at Scripps Institute of Oceanography. He has published many articles in the field of fisheries management. The class is for adults and will last three hours each Wednesday night and through the entire semester.

THE ANNUAL BENEFIT DINNER for the Ocean Fish Protective Association will be held by the Long Beach Sportsman's Club Monday, Sept. 27, at the clubhouse, 3223 Santa Fe Ave. The OFPA has been largely responsible for the successful fights to save the anchovies from commercial reduction. It currently is staging another battle to keep the Fish and Game Commission from agreeing to the DFG anchovy recommendations as ordered by Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Jim Corbell, Garcia casting expert, and others will give exhibitions at the club's pool from 6 to 7 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. and Charles (Bub) Thomas will be master of ceremonies and provide the entertainment.

All of the proceeds will go to help the OFPA. The dinner ticket is $4 and may be reserved by calling Harry Dubay at HE 6-7265 or Paul Lowder at TE 2-0248.

Currently there is a census being taken of the outdoor-loving people, or, perhaps I should say about 9,000 of them, as to their preferences in recreation. The Census Bureau is doing the job for the Department of the Interior to learn what outdoor activity has the highest interest—fishing, hunting, camping, boating, etc. The Interior Department will use the information in developing the first long-range comprehensive outdoor recreation plan.

THREE NEW OUTDOOR BOOKS came to my attention last week. First of all, let's take a look at the 1966 Gun Digest. How John T. Amber, editor of that publication, continues to come up with new ideas, articles and pictures is something of a wonder. The 20th anniversary Gun Digest is indeed a special gun book.

The 1966 Digest, for the first time, has a 32-page, four-color section of contemporary, historical and custom guns. Amber, by omitting type matter from the pages, made it possible for readers to remove those beautiful pages for framing. The book is available at sporting goods stores, book or news dealers, or can be ordered from the Gun Digest Association, 4540 Madison St., Chicago. It costs $4.95.

Hart Publishing Company, 74 Fifth Ave., New York 11, N.Y., has published two paperbacks at $1.95 each that originally, in hard cover, were priced at $6 each.

One is entitled "Small Boat Engines," by Conrad Miller. It is an up-to-the-minute, comprehensive handbook for pleasure-boat operators on the care and maintenance of boat engines. Miller is editor-in-chief of Rudder magazine. The other book is "How to Build Your Home in the Woods," by Bradford Angier, who has had first-rate practical knowledge of his subject. There are many illustrations and drawings of plans.

Dodger-Giant Playoff? Giles Hopes Not

The Dodgers and Giants, less than one game apart at the top of the National League, had their last confrontation of the season last week and, while they did the eyeball-to-eyeball bit in Walter O'Malley's gaudy goat pasture, Juan Marichal was up in San Francisco polishing his batting stroke, whether he needed it or not.

GILES

Barring a post-season playoff, the Giants' best pitcher will not get another chance to take fungo practice on John Roseboro's skull until next year. By that time tempers will have cooled or Marichal will have improved his technique with a Louisville Slugger, or both.

On the question of a playoff, Warren Giles was noncommittal. "Is this now a closed incident?" the league president was asked. "Suppose theres' a playoff in Los Angeles."

"Well," he said, and hesitated, and left the question unanswered. Though he dotes on attendance records for his league, this is one time when he would gladly pass up the chance to draw 150,000 extra customers in a three-game San Francisco-Los Angeles series.

If the league president lives clean, thinks pure thoughts, and gazes steadfastly in the opposite direction, the problem will go away; the Giants and Dodgers won't finish in a tie and Warren won't have to decide whether the City of Angels is off-limits for Juan the Ripper in October.

The handling of Operation Skullcrack has created wide confusion. When Giles fined Marichal $1,750 and suspended him for eight playing days for creasing the Roseboro coco, the disinterested concensus was that he had stopped short of letting the punishment fit the crime. At that stage Warren could be accused of nothing worse than excessive clemency.

He got in deeper by explaining that he had been reluctant to penalize Marichal's employers and playmates by depriving them of their best pitcher at the height of the pennant race. Naturally, it was pointed out immediately that this rendered aggravated assault a lesser crime for a player on a pennant contender than for a member of a team in eighth place.

"I thought of that," Warren said.

"I don't know whether I was right or wrong. "Maybe being connected with a club isn't the best training for judicial job. We won two pennants when I wa swith the Reds, you know. I just couldn't help putting myself in the Giants' place and considering the club and the other players."

Before the first flurry of criticism had died, it became known that Giles had ordered the Giants not to take Marichal to Los Angeles, though those games were played after the pitcher had served out his suspension. This had not been mentioned in the president's telegram to Marichal imposing the fine and suspension.

"What is this?" people asked. "Double jeopardy?" Maybe Marichal got off too easily, but a judge can't make a ruling and then have second thoughts, not to mention third and fourth and fifth thoughts.

"It was discussed at the time, Aug. 23," Giles said. "I told the Giants—Chub Feeney and Horace Stoneham—it would be best if he didn't go to Los Angeles. I can't truthfully say the club was in complete agreement, but they were very cooperative and understood the situation from the start.

"We thought at first the normal rotation would take care of the situation and Marichal's turn wouldn't come up in Los Angeles. When it began to appear that it wouldn't, I announced the order to leave him home."

As it turned out, Marichal resumed pitching in Philadelphia last week, then worked with two days' rest and won his 20th victory in Chicago Sunday. So he didn't miss the turn that otherwise would have come up in Los Angeles, and the Giants beat the Dodgers without his help.

"You understand the reason for this, of course," Giles said.

"You mean the climate in Los Angeles right now? The Watts area rioting "

"Yes, let's face it. He (Marichal) is dynamite there."

"But isn't the home club responsible for keeping order?"

"Yes, but I've learned that it's possible to incite trouble by trying to prevent it. You take special precautions, increase the security force, and so on, and everything you do stirs up talk of possible trouble. It can put ideas in some people's heads.

"I didn't want the chief of police in on this, or the district attorney. I didn't want petitions. I didn't want the mayor to ask me to do anything. I just did it, right or wrong."

Get your trophy deer in UTAH!

Hunters, the big deer season in Utah starts October 23. Last season 5 out of 7 got their deer. Hunters in some areas scored 100%. In 1963, a Utah deer placed in the all-time five (biggest deer) in the Boone and Crockett competition.

This years deer herd numbers more than 750,000 and there's over 40,000 miles of deer country in Utah. That means there are almost 20 deer per square mile. Can't beat this — and plenty of uncrowded areas to hunt, too!

To help you plan a great hunt this fall, we are offering FREE a complete hunting information package. It contains a proclamation, application for hunting license, complete data on all areas to hunt, available campsites, maps, etc. Use the coupon below. Send for this big hunting package today.

See you October 23rd in

Get your trophy deer in UTAH!

Hunters, the big deer season in Utah starts October 23. Last season 5 out of 7 got their deer. Hunters in some areas scored 100%. In 1963, a Utah deer placed in the all-time five (biggest deer) in the Boone and Crockett competition.

This year's deer herd numbers more than 750,000 and there's over 40,000 miles of deer country in Utah. That means there are almost 20 deer per square mile. Can't beat this — and plenty of uncrowded areas to hunt, too!

To help you plan a great hunt this fall, we are offering FREE a complete hunting information package. It contains a proclamation, application for hunting license, complete data on all areas to hunt, available campsites, maps, etc. Use the coupon below. Send for this big hunting package today.

IN NEXT SUNDAY'S I, P-T COLOR COMICS—A COMPLETE, ORIGINAL CHILDREN'S BOOK

THE KNOTTY ELEPHANT
by GEORGE CONNOLLY, SR.

Here's wholesome fun for children of all ages—a complete, original, illustrated children's book once a month in the Independent, Press-Telegram color comics.

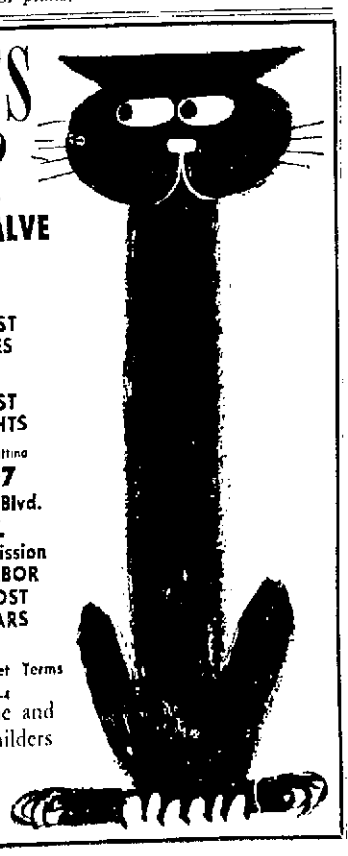

Written by America's best-known storytellers, illustrated by America's most talented illustrators, each is carefully designed to become a classic of children's literature.

The first, "The Knotty Elephant," by George Connolly, Sr., tells how Tony, the forgetful elephant, remembered to remember, a story that will charm you as it charms your children.

If you have young children, you will want to read "The Knotty Elephant" to them, then save it for them to read over and over again by themselves. Watch for a new children's book every month.

CAN AID 5,000 YEARLY

Rehab Center—A New Look

By KEN KNIGHT

A building may be just a building but to many afflicted persons the new glistening Rehabilitation Center of the Orange County Society for Crippled Children and Adults holds a promise for a better life.

For 14 years, the Orange County organization operated out of a small, old farmhouse and a tin roofed barn and managed to assist some 800 adults and children a year who suffered from a variety of afflictions that ranged from multiple sclerosis to birth defects to injuries caused by traffic accidents.

* * * *

TODAY, WITH the new building at La Veta and Tustin avenues, the trained staff of 20 technicians now can help some 5,000 persons a year. Unfortunately, statistics reveal that there are some 40,000 men, women and children in Orange County who could benefit from the services offered at the "rehab center."

In the new $350,000 building, the latest techniques of physical therapy are available and they include massage, directed exercise, ultrasound, electro-muscle stimulation, diathermy, infra-red and ultra violet lamp and paraffin baths.

* * * *

PATIENTS are sent to the center by their doctors and are admitted after each case has been studied by the staff.

The patients may range in age from 2 to 90, but each patient has one thing in common—they need help.

Sometimes the doctors will prescribe what should be done and in other cases the staff at the center will decide what is the best treatment.

* * * *

THE PATIENTS all come to the center for treatment and the exercises as there are no facilities for "in" patients.

"Everybody pays what they can afford as it takes some $175,000 a year to operate the clinic," according to John Rowett, director of community relations for the center.

Many times the treatment consists of just teaching a person how to open a door or say a simple word.

"They have all done it once but now because of an injury or affliction they can't do it now," Rowett explained.

Patients can be treated for as long as four years or as short as a few weeks depending upon their rate of progress and recovery.

About two-thirds of the patients are adults.

As soon as the new center gets into full scale operation, the patient ratio is expected to be about half adults and half children.

To get into operation, the rehab center with its swimming pools, whirl baths and facilities will be dedicated Thursday, Sept. 23 at 5 p.m.

Three Authors Share $1,000 Prize

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The $1,000 Woodrow Wilson Foundation prize for political science research and writing will be shared by three authors.

The foundation said the winnners were Robert E. Agger and Daniel Goldrich, co-authors of the "Rulers And The Ruled." The other winner was Samuel J. Eldersveld for his book "Political Parties: A Behavioral Analysis."

COMPUTER DEVELOPMENT
We are looking for professionally dedicated engineering personnel who consider themselves to be technical specialists, who are interested in making contributions to advance the state-of-the-art in the Digital Computer field.

Digital Circuit Design
Must have progressive experience in several of the following areas: Digital Circuit design and Analysis, including the use of a Digital Computer in problem solving; application of integrated circuits in Digital Systems, and an intimate knowledge of their characteristics and limitations.
Must have a knowledge of mathematical models of components including semiconductors, transformers, transmission lines, and other passive elements. Must also understand the constraints which circuit limitations place upon the logical designer, and have worked with them closely enough to know their problems.

Logical Design
Must have experience in logic design of military computers. Experience in advanced organization techniques and integrated circuits preferred. Systems analysis of memory and logic requirements. Perform original logic design, Boolean function reduction and detailed definition of logical interconnections through wired and etched circuitry. Define logical test requirements. A working knowledge of computer circuits and memory systems is most desirable.

Memory Specialist
Must be expert in the design and analysis of Memory Systems such as Core, NDRO and DRO Memories. Must be knowledgeable of the memory elements available, and of current developments; understand the characteristics of each and the ways in which they must be organized into a working memory.
The above described persons, should have a Bachelor Degree and preferably an advanced degree due to the high degree of analysis employed in design and development. However, applicants must have an appreciation for hardware, as the final objective is to produce a computer.

Mechanical Design
Design test will include discrete component and integrated circuit packaging for airborne environments, supporting structures and housing design. Capabilities should include thermal and dynamic analysis. Circuit board layout and design. Familiarity with hermetic seals, connectors, adhesives, encapsulents, mechanical tolerances, and military specifications.

Scientific Computer Programmers
Machine language programming for real-time, astro-inertial guidance systems.

Must be expert in the design and analysis of Memory Systems such as Core, NDRO and DRO Memories. Must be knowledgeable of the memory elements available, and of current developments; understand the characteristics of each and the ways in which they must be organized into a working memory.

The above described persons, should have a Bachelor Degree and preferably an advanced degree due to the high degree of analysis employed in design and development. However, applicants must have an appreciation for hardware, as the final objective is to produce a computer.

Mechanical Design
Design test will include discrete component and integrated circuit packaging for airborne environments, supporting structures and housing design. Capabilities should include thermal and dynamic analysis. Circuit board layout and design. Familiarity with hermetic seals, connectors, adhesives, encapsulents, mechanical tolerances, and military specifications.

Scientific Computer Programmers

21 Good Jobs FOR 21 Good Men

NO FEE

This is our first ad for 21 men & we hope 21 good men will answer this to fill good jobs. It doesn't matter what your past work has been if you can qualify. All we ask is study & learn as you will be selected to an which will tell whether you possess the fundamental ability necessary for success in our electrical industry. You will enjoy taking this test, it is free & upon completion you will be given an interview. Our work is not hard & we are not the type of a company to stand over a man & drive him. We do, however, expect an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. Your earnings may start from per week plus bonus & cash advance commission. If you are sincere, clean cut, ambitious, willing to work & can start immediately.

Unbiased Scientific Aptitude Test

$110 to $258.85

Gov't. Empl. Service 26

SALES
I want 2 neat-appearing men with cars to represent an old natl. concern, one of the largest of its kind in the country with offices established in this area.
If you are willing to work hard each week don't pass up this ad. If you are a man of average intelligence I want to talk to you. I know what you are probably thinking as you read this, the same as I thought in many times when I was job hunting. "This is just another ad with a lot of promise." Believe me, it is not! I don't care what your previous experience has been, if you are able to open your mouth & talk to me, I will show you how to earn more money than you ever thought possible with this company. If accepted, you will be employed by one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country. We will give you complete training—you will be kept busy constantly calling on prospects in the Long Beach area with qualified appointments with people demanding our representative to call on them. This is a job with security on the ground floor. You owe it to yourself to answer this ad! You have nothing to lose & everything to gain. Come in & let us prove to you that this is what you have been waiting for. For personal interview call Mr. Clark. HE 7-1416 9 to 12 daily.

SALES
I want 2 neat-appearing men with cars to represent an old mail concern, one of the largest of its kind in the country with offices established in this area.
If you are willing to work hard each week don't pass up this ad. If you are a man of average intelligence & like to talk to you, I know what you are probably thinking as you read this, the same as I thought many times when I was job hunting. "This is just another job with a lot of promise." believe me, it is not! I don't care what your previous experience has been, if you are able to open your mouth & talk to me, I will show you how to earn more money than you ever thought possible with this company. If accepted, you will be employed by one of the largest concerns of its kind in the country. We will give you complete training—you will be kept busy constantly calling on prospects in the Long Beach area with qualified appointments with people demanding our representative call on them. This is a job with security on the ground floor. You owe it to yourself to answer this ad! You have nothing to lose & everything to gain. Come on and let us prove to you that this is what you have been waiting for. For personal interview call Mr. Clark, HE 7-1416 9 to 12 daily.

THE NEWPORT THE CAPE COD THE MARINA

— OPPORTUNITY —
Now is an excellent opportunity for the forward investor to take a good look at the potential of these luxurious MODEL BEACH HOMES. By purchasing now you, the Home Buyer, will save as much as $7,000 on total sales price-plus enjoy the advantages of living in a modern, completely carpeted, 2 story, 3 bedroom, 2 bath, professionally color co-ordinated and decorated home.

— INVESTMENT —
Many professional investors have bought two or more of these homes for they recognize the fact that property adjacent to water and with a view of the Marina is bound to increase in value. YOU TOO CAN have all the advantages of living in a beautiful home and enjoy the possibility that the natural increase in property value will enhance your investments for the benefit of your CHILDREN — and FUTURE.

— HISTORY —
History repeats itself—look back at property values of 1951. Consider these values as of now and anticipate the value in 1971. You can recognize this great opportunity to participate in a normal in-crease in value.

— SUGGESTION —
Come and see these beautiful homes while you can still have some selection of style and location.

THE MARINA

— OPPORTUNITY —

Now is an excellent opportunity for the forward investor to take a good look at the potential of these luxurious MODEL BEACH HOMES. By purchasing now you, the Home Buyer, will save as much as $7,000 on total sales price-plus enjoy the advantages of living in a modern, completely carpeted, 2 story, 3 bedroom, 2 bath, professionally color co-ordinated and decorated home.

— INVESTMENT —

Many professional investors have bought two or more of these homes for they recognize the fact that property adjacent to water and with a view of the Marina is bound to increase in value. YOU TOO CAN have all the advantages of living in a beautiful home and enjoy the possibility that the natural increase in property value will enhance your investments for the benefit of your CHILDREN — and FUTURE.

— HISTORY —

History repeats itself—look back at property values of 1951. Consider these values as of now and anticipate the value in 1971. You can recognize this great opportunity to participate in a normal increase in value.

— SUGGESTION —

Come and see these beautiful homes while you can still have some selection of style and location.

Realtor of the Week

Daryl Ellison

"Things are working better . . . I used to work a long day for one dollar, but now I earn a bit more, thanks to inflation." DARYL ELLISON'S comment on his present condition is typical of his general attitude toward life. Mr. Ellison opened ELLISON REALTY, 1720 E. Pacific Coast Highway, in 1959.

He has been in Real Estate most of the time since 1947. Ellison Realty specializes in investment properties and in the upgrading of properties. Clients of Ellison Realty won the contest "Build Long Beach Better" in the Income class division in 1964.

Daryl owned his first small business at the age of eighteen, and since has owned a market, a Gas station and a mail order business. He has worked as an aircraft technical illustrator and shipyard draftsman. "I always worked hard to compensate for other inadequacies, such as money," quips Daryl. "I was fired from one job. This was dishwashing, and it wasn't my fault . . . a frustrated owner couldn't make a simple decision of whether the dishes should be washed slow and clean or fast and dirty."

Mr. Ellison's hobbies are political analysis, wrestling, cartooning and his eight-year-old son, Byrwec.

Realtor of the Week

Daryl Ellison

"Things are working better . . . I used to work a long day for one dollar, but now I earn a bit more, thanks to inflation." DARYL ELLISON'S comment on his present condition is typical of his general attitude toward life. Mr. Ellison opened ELLISON REALTY, 1720 E. Pacific Coast Highway, in 1959.

He has been in Real Estate most of the time since 1947. Ellison Realty specializes in investment properties and in the upgrading of properties. Clients of Ellison Realty won the contest "Build Long Beach Better" in the Income class division in 1964.

Daryl owned his first small business at the age of eighteen, and since has owned a market, a Gas station and a mail order business. He has worked as an aircraft technical illustrator and shipyard draftsman. "I always worked hard to compensate for other inadequacies, such as money," quips Daryl. "I was fired from one job. This was dishwashing, and it wasn't my fault . . . a frustrated owner couldn't make a simple decision of whether the dishes should be washed slow and clean or fast and dirty."

Mr. Ellison's hobbies are political analysis, wrestling, cartooning and his eight-year-old son, Byrwec.

Skin Shows Galore

By WILLIAM GLOVER

LONDON (AP) — The glossy prints thumbtacked in the windows are all busty and hippy, with names like Lillian, Marlene, Tessa or maybe Shirley underneath.

The flashing signs, with one neon tube somehow always forlornly burned out, wink invitations to the passing throng:

"Stay as long as you like."

"Never has so much been shown by so many for so little."

And there you are, with promised paradise for 10 shillings, picking among the 18 or so least exclusive clubs in Londontown, the strip joints of Soho.

That familiar landmark, the Windmill Theater, used to thrive around the corner. Statuesque nudes posed motionless there throughout Hitler's blitz, but were unable to survive the competition of the upstart free-motion sisterhood.

* * * *

THE NEW thrills are for sale now in such cellars as Metro Revue Club, the Carnival, Carousel, Naked City and La Sexy, purveying tease, sometimes to stray tourists, but mainly to up-country Britons and office boys out for a lark.

Nobody knows just how many such places there are. Like gypsy fortune bazaars, addresses can shift overnight.

One club operates beside a faded building on which appears the blue circle marking an historic shrine. "Thomas Sheraton, furniture designer, lived here," doesn't get much attention from strollers, though. An oil gent keeps crying the wares next door in a sing song voice.

"Showjuststarting, showjuststarting," he chants from the sanctuary of the doorway. Whenever anyone goes by anytime from 11 a.m. to after midnight, the show is just starting.

* * * *

SLOUCHED at a table in the entrance way is another sallow citizen. Like the shill, he gives you a brief, hard look before passing over a one-day membership. The 10-shilling fee translates into $1.40, but to a modest-budget Englishman that's about like $5 to an American.

Down a narrow stairway is the "clubroom," a raised platform at one side, enough chairs for 50 to 100 "members," a not-very hi-fi rig blaring away in the corner.

At some of the places you can leave, return later in the day.

* * * *

THE PICTURES in upstair show-windows bear an unaccidental resemblance from place to place since the girls on exhibit go round and round the Soho circuit, day in and night out.

"It's a grind in more ways than one," says one observer of the stripperies. "There are eight or so girls who make most of the joints, working on a timetable.

"There's never any problem about getting fresh recruits for the work when one drops out, because the jobs pay about 30 pounds a week ($84), which is pretty nice compared with 14 or 15 pounds for a good secretary."

It is the device of private membership which enables the places to put on uninhibited if tawdry programs. A man's home is his castle still in England, and that goes for his club, too.

If the spots called the 10-shilling fee a simple ticket of admission, the Lord Chamberlain's rather puritanical rules about public performances would apply. By making the fee a membership, the enterprise eludes censorship.

Alcoholic beverages aren't sold, which eliminates another kind of governmental supervision.

* * * *

WHEN a guest has had enough of the basement entertainment and heads for the exit, he's apt to run into someone solicitously enquiring:

"Would you like to talk with a pretty girl, or have a drink?"

A nod, and the dubious wonders of the upstairs clubroom are made available. For 10 shillings per glass, there's soda pop and idle conversation.

And that's all.

Occasionally this kind of pastime wears thin. A visitor who complains too loudly about value received finds a beefy club aide escorting him rudely to the street where membership is cancelled.

Seeking access to the impresarios of the peel parlor is an unrewarding skirmish.

"Is the manager in?" gets a steady glare from the man at the door.

"Who wants to know?"

"Just thought I'd like to talk to him."

After all, a clubman has a right to privacy, hasn't he?

LEGENDARY SILVER CACHE

Treasure Clue From Ship Captain's Journal

By CHARLES K. PENTECOST

CAMPTON, Ky. (UPI)—For many years now, the journal of an 18th century ship captain has made interesting reading for treasure hunters.

It tells of silver coins stashed near creeks and in caves in eastern Kentucky and through the years, Capt. John Swift's Journal has prompted hundreds of explorations.

The latest attempt to find the legendary silver cache is being made by the Mountaineer Mining & Exploring Co., of Clarksburg, W. Va. It is concentrating its efforts in Wolfe County near the county seat of Campton, derived from "Camp Town," Swift's legendary camp in the then unexplored forests of Kentucky.

* * * *

SWIFT, an adventurer — and, as contemporaries whispered, a pirate who scoured the Spanish Main—was one of the most colorful figures in Kentucky's colonial era.

He and a group of foreigners, either French or Spanish, and Indians are known to have made frequent forays into the then unknown Appalachian area from 1760 to the 1790s.

They went in with pack trains carrying supplies and came out with the animals staggering under bulging bags —reportedly filled with silver coins.

Some said Swift had found silver veins, but modern geologists say no workable silver veins ever have been found in the Blue Grass State, and add that "metamorphic and igneous rock which might contain silver are rare in Kentucky."

* * * *

SO TREASURE-HUNTERS have another theory to explain the bulging packs. They think Swift and his companions took in silver plate from his admitted "seafaring interests," melted it in the wilderness of what was then Western Virginia, and brought out counterfeit coin by pack train.

Swift's Journal, left with a Mrs. Joseph Renfro when he was old and blind just before he disappeared forever from the 18th century Kentucky frontier, has been copied and recopied.

One entry reads:

"On the 1st of September, 1769, we left between 22,000 and 30,000 in dollars and crowns on a large creek running a south course, and close to the spot we marked our names Smith, (Shadrach) Jefferson, and (Jonathan) Munday."

Other Journal entries describe stuffing other thousands of coins in the cracks in a "rockhouse" and burying additional treasure at still other sites, including the larger part in a "Shawnese Cave."

The cave location sounds very much like the Breaks-Of-The-Sandy Pound, Va., area, where Indians are known to have conducted religious ceremonies in caves.

OVER THE past 200 years, Swift's "mine" has been variously placed in eastern Kentucky, West Virginia, southwest Virginia and northeast Tennessee.

Every now and then, a discovery is made to set new groups of treasure hunters heading for the hills, in the early 1800's Josiah Sprinkle, of Washington County, came into Springfield with a buckskin pouch filled with shiny silver dollars.

The coins bore a crudely stamped owl on one side and a 6-pointed star on the obverse side. Sprinkle assured doubters that the coins were good "except they weren't made by the U.S. mint."

Arrested on charges of counterfeiting, he was acquitted when it was determined the coins contained purer silver than those of the government's.

Sprinkle even paid his attorney with the silver coins. Questioned as to their source, he would say only, "Oh, never you mind—there's plenty of it left."

And Salyersville, Ky., residents tell of a 19th century farmer who plowed up a gray metal bar one spring and gave it to the village blacksmith. The smith used the dull gray metal — later found to be nearly pure silver—to braze church and farm bells.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Blue Chip Stocks Take Leadership in Market

By JAMES T. McCAUSLAND

NEW YORK (UPI)—Predictions of a booming economy and removal of the steel strike threat pushed stock prices higher and returned market leadership to blue chip stocks in a holiday-shortened week. Trading was fairly active.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, announced that business growth will continue through 1966 and that the only foreseeable temporary setbacks would be caused by liquidation of steel inventories, built up in case of a strike. He also said the Gross National Product should reach $670 billion, up 6.6% from last year.

Brokers feel that the market proved its firm undertone when it did not react prematurely to the India-Pakistan crisis. The drop in steel production, which was to be expected, was not as sharp as had been predicted. Production should rise in the coming months.

* * * *

THE QUESTION of the possible devaluation of the British pound sterling was also clarified further last week and bolstered trader's confidence.

Some analysts feel that a rest period can be expected after the recent surge and that profit-taking in issues that have been selling many times over their earnings, would not be cause for alarm.

On the technical side, the picture was equally as bright. The Dow-Jones Industrial average at times seemed to outperform the market. The average registered a gain every day last week and extended its upward streak to seven consecutive sessions. Brokers feel that the next psychological resistance level might be the 940 mark, above the record highs recorded in May. Now that the traditional Labor Day turning point has been passed, the path of least resistance for the market seems to be upward.

* * * *

DOW-JONES Industrial average jumped 10.98 to 918.95 for the week. Considering the short week a very healthy gain. The rail indicator, which has advanced in only two sessions since reaching the 1965 record high on August 27, fell 0.86 to 216.21 on the week. Utilities advanced 1.12 to 157.78. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index jumped 1.06 to 89.12.

Volume totaled 26,028,570 shares for the four trading days compared with 27,976,200 shares the previous week and 20,886,764 shares last year.

Of the 1, 524 issues to gross the tape, 836 advanced, 531 declined and 157 remained unchanged while 170 stocks reached new 1965 highs and 35 reached new lows.

Pan American Sulphur topped the active list with a turnover of 446,000 shares. The issue closed out the week at 19⅝ up 1⅝. There has been speculation that Cities Service might be trying to take over the company but these rumors were unconfirmed. Cities Service climbed 4 points to 83¼.

* * * *

SPERRY RAND took second place on 402,900 shares, advancing only ⅝ to 14. American Telephone captured the third spot.

Turnover totaled 300,200 shares and it rose 1¾ to 68¾. The issue has been locked in a narrow range for the past several months but renewal of traders confidence in the economy revived this blue chip.

Commonwealth Oil was fourth on 296,800 shares. The low-priced issue only rose ⅛ to 12¼. RCA, which announced an all out advertising campaign to push sales in view of the approaching fall and Christmas buying season, climbed 1⅜ to 39¾ on sales of 284,900 shares.

Although the steel labor settlement aided the rest of the market, steel issues; for the time being, did not respond with a rise in prices. There was some uncertainty expressed as to the effect the new contract would have on profits. There was some talk of raising the prices of steel but President Johnson urged management not to do so. Steel stocks are expected to recover in the near future, most analysts feel, as soon as these issues are settled.

* * * *

JONES & Laughlin dropped 3¾ and Lukens lost 3⅛. U.S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet each slipped 1¾ and Republic Steel lost a point.

Motors were firm last week. General Motors made good headway, tacking on 4¾. There have been unconfirmed rumors that a stock split is imminent. American Motors which has revamped its new 1966 line of cars to offer more competition for the "big three" moved up ⅞. Chrysler added ¼ and Ford slipped ⅛.

The wide-moving electronics group turned mixed on the week. Fairchild Camera paced the upsiders with a 5⅞ points advance. Motorola climbed 3¼ on strength of an improved sales report for its color television sets. Litton added 4¼ but IBM fell ¼.

* * * *

CHEMICALS had a busy week and most issues in this group advanced. Du Pont led the pack, climbing 5 points. Eastman Kodak jumped 2¾, despite some profit-taking at the end of the week. Union Carbide and Monsanto each lacked on 1¾ and Allied Chemical lost ½.

Oils moved mostly lower although there were some bright spots. Standard Oil of California added 2 points and Texaco spurted 2¾ higher.

Tidewater Oil fell 3¼. George F. Getty II, president of Tidewater announced Friday that the company would no longer consider proposals to purchase Tidewater's western marketing and manufacturing facilities, including one

Pisa Tower Study of Soil Under Way

PISA, Italy (AP) — After years of perplexity, pondering and paperwork, technicians have begun on-site labors aimed at keeping the leaning tower from toppling. Soil samples are being taken from test borings in the broad green lawn of the Piazza Dei Miracoli (Square of Miracles) to determine whether the water table contributes to instability under the 13th century bell tower.

France Notes 1,000th Anniversary of Abbey

MONT - SAINT - MICHEL, France (AP)—France this weekend began a year-long celebration billed as the 1,000th anniversary of the famous abbey of this islet on the English Channel coast of Normandy.

The original abbey was founded in 708 A.D. by Aubert, bishop of Avranches, but through the years and centuries it became a monastery-fortress, prison complex, and was made a national monument by Napoleon III. Sponsors said the abbey part being commemorated was commissioned in 965 A.D. by Richard I of Normandy.

Skin Shows Galore

By WILLIAM GLOVER

LONDON (AP) — The glossy prints thumbtacked in the windows are all busty and hippy, with names like Lillian, Marlene, Tessa or maybe Shirley underneath.

The flashing signs, with one neon tube somehow always forlornly burned out, wink invitations to the passing throng:

"Stay as long as you like."

"Never has so much been shown by so many for so little."

And there you are, with promised paradise for 10 shillings, picking among the 18 or so least exclusive clubs in Londontown, the strip joints of Soho.

That familiar landmark, the Windmill Theater, used to thrive around the corner. Statuesque nudes posed motionless there throughout Hitler's blitz, but were unable to survive the competition of the upstart free-motion sisterhood.

* * * *

THE NEW thrills are for sale now in such cellars as Metro Revue Club, the Carnival, Carousel, Naked City and La Sexy, purveying tease, sometimes to stray tourists, but mainly to up-country Britons and office boys out for a lark.

Nobody knows just how many such places there are. Like gypsy fortune bazaars, addresses can shift overnight.

One club operates beside a faded building on which appears the blue circle marking an historic shrine. "Thomas Sheraton, furniture designer, lived here," doesn't get much attention from strollers, though. An oil gent keeps crying the wares next door in a sing song voice.

"Showjuststarting, showjuststarting," he chants from the sanctuary of the doorway. Whenever anyone goes by anytime from 11 a.m. to after midnight, the show is just starting.

* * * *

SLOUCHED at a table in the entrance way is another sallow citizen. Like the shill, he gives you a brief, hard look before passing over a one-day membership. The 10-shilling fee translates into $1.40, but to a modest-budget Englishman that's about like $5 to an American.

Down a narrow stairway is the "clubroom," a raised platform at one side, enough chairs for 50 to 100 "members," a not-very hi-fi rig blaring away in the corner.

At some of the places you can leave, return later in the day.

* * * *

THE PICTURES in upstair show-windows bear an unaccidental resemblance from place to place since the girls on exhibit go round and round the Soho circuit, day in and night out.

"It's a grind in more ways than one," says one observer of the stripperies. "There are eight or so girls who make most of the joints, working on a timetable.

"There's never any problem about getting fresh recruits for the work when one drops out, because the jobs pay about 30 pounds a week ($84), which is pretty nice compared with 14 or 15 pounds for a good secretary."

It is the device of private membership which enables the places to put on uninhibited if tawdry programs. A man's home is his castle still in England, and that goes for his club, too.

If the spots called the 10-shilling fee a simple ticket of admission, the Lord Chamberlain's rather puritanical rules about public performances would apply. By making the fee a membership, the enterprise eludes censorship.

Alcoholic beverages aren't sold, which eliminates another kind of governmental supervision.

* * * *

WHEN a guest has had enough of the basement entertainment and heads for the exit, he's apt to run into someone solicitously enquiring:

"Would you like to talk with a pretty girl, or have a drink?"

A nod, and the dubious wonders of the upstairs clubroom are made available. For 10 shillings per glass, there's soda pop and idle conversation.

And that's all.

Occasionally this kind of pastime wears thin. A visitor who complains too loudly about value received finds a beefy club aide escorting him rudely to the street where membership is cancelled.

Seeking access to the impresarios of the peel parlor is an unrewarding skirmish.

"Is the manager in?" gets a steady glare from the man at the door.

"Who wants to know?"

"Just thought I'd like to talk to him."

After all, a clubman has a right to privacy, hasn't he?

LEGENDARY SILVER CACHE

Treasure Clue From Ship Captain's Journal

By CHARLES K. PENTECOST

CAMPTON, Ky. (UPI)—For many years now, the journal of an 18th century ship captain has made interesting reading for treasure hunters.

It tells of silver coins stashed near creeks and in caves in eastern Kentucky and through the years, Capt. John Swift's Journal has prompted hundreds of explorations.

The latest attempt to find the legendary silver cache is being made by the Mountaineer Mining & Exploring Co., of Clarksburg, W. Va. It is concentrating its efforts in Wolfe County near the county seat of Campton, derived from "Camp Town," Swift's legendary camp in the then unexplored forests of Kentucky.

* * * *

SWIFT, an adventurer — and, as contemporaries whispered, a pirate who scoured the Spanish Main—was one of the most colorful figures in Kentucky's colonial era.

He and a group of foreigners, either French or Spanish, and Indians are known to have made frequent forays into the then unknown Appalachian area from 1760 to the 1790s.

They went in with pack trains carrying supplies and came out with the animals staggering under bulging bags —reportedly filled with silver coins.

Some said Swift had found silver veins, but modern geologists say no workable silver veins ever have been found in the Blue Grass State, and add that "metamorphic and igneous rock which might contain silver are rare in Kentucky."

* * * *

SO TREASURE-HUNTERS have another theory to explain the bulging packs. They think Swift and his companions took in silver plate from his admitted "seafaring interests," melted it in the wilderness of what was then Western Virginia, and brought out counterfeit coin by pack train.

Swift's Journal, left with a Mrs. Joseph Renfro when he was old and blind just before he disappeared forever from the 18th century Kentucky frontier, has been copied and recopied.

One entry reads:

"On the 1st of September, 1769, we left between 22,000 and 30,000 in dollars and crowns on a large creek running a south course, and close to the spot we marked our names Smith, (Shadrach) Jefferson, and (Jonathan) Munday."

Other Journal entries describe stuffing other thousands of coins in the cracks in a "rockhouse" and burying additional treasure at still other sites, including the larger part in a "Shawnese Cave."

The cave location sounds very much like the Breaks-Of-The-Sandy Pound, Va., area, where Indians are known to have conducted religious ceremonies in caves.

* * * *

OVER THE past 200 years, Swift's "mine" has been variously placed in eastern Kentucky, West Virginia, southwest Virginia and northeast Tennessee.

Every now and then, a discovery is made to set new groups of treasure hunters heading for the hills, in the early 1800's Josiah Sprinkle, of Washington County, came into Springfield with a buckskin pouch filled with shiny silver dollars.

The coins bore a crudely stamped owl on one side and a 6-pointed star on the obverse side. Sprinkle assured doubters that the coins were good "except they weren't made by the U.S. mint."

Arrested on charges of counterfeiting, he was acquitted when it was determined the coins contained purer silver than those of the government's.

Sprinkle even paid his attorney with the silver coins. Questioned as to their source, he would say only, "Oh, never you mind—there's plenty of it left."

And Salyersville, Ky., residents tell of a 19th century farmer who plowed up a gray metal bar one spring and gave it to the village blacksmith. The smith used the dull gray metal — later found to be nearly pure silver—to braze church and farm bells.

Blue Chip Stocks Take Leadership in Market

DOW-JONES Industrial average jumped 10.98 to 918.95 for the week. Considering the short week a very healthy gain. The rail indicator, which has advanced in only two sessions since reaching the 1965 record high on August 27, fell 0.86 to 216.21 on the week. Utilities advanced 1.12 to 157.78. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index jumped 1.06 to 89.12.

Volume totaled 26,028,570 shares for the four trading days compared with 27,976,200 shares the previous week and 20,886,764 shares last year.

Of the 1,524 issues to gross the tape, 836 advanced, 531 declined and 157 remained unchanged while 170 stocks reached new 1965 highs and 35 reached new lows.

Pan American Sulphur topped the active list with a turnover of 446,000 shares. The issue closed out the week at 19⅝ up 1⅝. There has been speculation that Cities Service might be trying to take over the company but these rumors were unconfirmed. Cities Service climbed 4 points to 83¼.

* * * *

American Telephone captured the third spot.

Turnover totaled 300,200 shares and it rose 1¾ to 68¾. The issue has been locked in a narrow range for the past several months but renewal of traders confidence in the economy revived this blue chip.

Commonwealth Oil was fourth on 296,800 shares. The low-priced issue only rose ⅛ to 12¼. RCA, which announced an all out advertising campaign to push sales in view of the approaching fall and Christmas buying season, climbed 1⅜ to 39¾ on sales of 284,900 shares.

Although the steel labor settlement aided the rest of the market, steel issues, for the time being, did not respond with a rise in prices. There was some uncertainty expressed as to the effect the new contract would have on profits. There was some talk of raising the prices of steel but President Johnson urged management not to do so. Steel stocks are expected to recover in the near future, most analysts feel, as soon as these issues are settled.

* * * *

JONES & Laughlin dropped 3¾ and Lukens lost 3½. U.S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet each slipped 1¾ and Republic Steel lost a point.

Motors were firm last week. General Motors made good headway, tacking on 4¾. There have been unconfirmed rumors that a stock split is imminent. American Motors which has revamped its new 1966 line of cars to offer more competition for the "big three" moved up ⅞. Chrysler added ¼ and Ford slipped ⅛.

The wide-moving electronics group turned mixed on the week. Fairchild Camera paced the upsiders with a 5⅞ points advance. Motorola climbed 3¼ on strength of an improved sales report for its color television sets. Litton added 4¼ but IBM fell ¼.

* * * *

CHEMICALS had a busy week and most issues in this group advanced. Du Pont led the pack, climbing 5 points. Eastman Kodak jumped 2¾, despite some profit-taking at the end of the week. Union Carbide and Monsanto each tacked on 1¾ and Allied Chemical lost ½.

Oils moved mostly lower although there were some bright spots. Standard Oil of California added 2 points and Texaco spurted 2¾ higher.

Tidewater Oil fell 3¼. George F. Getty II, president of Tidewater announced Friday that the company would no longer consider proposals to purchase Tidewater's western marketing and manufacturing facilities, including one proposal from Shaheen Natural Resources, which was a particularly interested buyer. Mission Development, also controlled by Getty, fell 2 points.

* * * *

CHICAGO & North Western bucked the trend of a lower rails section and added 2⅞. KLM paced the airlines with a gain of 3⅛ and Boeing led the aircrafts, soaring 8⅛.

Xerox had a good week, rising 8¼. Gulf & Western jumped 9⅜.

Anaconda, Cerro and Kennecott gained 3⅝, 2 and ⅜ respectively when approval of a bill in the Chilean senate which would provide for Chilean participation in American-developed copper industries there, was announced Thursday.

France Notes 1,000th Anniversary of Abbey

MONT - SAINT - MICHEL, France (AP)—France this weekend began a year-long celebration billed as the 1,000th anniversary of the famous abbey of this islet on the English Channel coast of Normandy.

The original abbey was founded in 708 A.D. by Aubert, bishop of Avranches, but through the years and centuries it became a monastery-fortress, prison complex, and was made a national monument by Napoleon III. Sponsors said the abbey part being commemorated was commissioned in 965 A.D. by Richard I of Normandy.

Pisa Tower Study of Soil Under Way

PISA, Italy (AP) — After years of perplexity, pondering and paperwork, technicians have begun on-site labors aimed at keeping the leaning tower from toppling. Soil samples are being taken from test borings in the broad green lawn of the Piazza Dei Miracoli (Square of Miracles) to determine whether the water table contributes to instability under the 13th century bell tower.

H. B. Rides High Trail Into Future

By VERN ANTHONY
Progress Section Editor

Destiny rides tall in the saddle at Huntington Beach these days as the fast-growing coastal city of more than 50 square miles eyes vast potentials of the future.

Called Pacific City when it was laid out as a 40-acre town site in 1901, the area was given its present name to help persuade H. E. Huntington to extend the Pacific Electric Railway to the seaside village in 1904.

Today, population has passed the 70,000 mark and building valuation for this year is within $8 million of San Diego's, according to Jack Cleveland, city building director.

* * * *

A MAJOR ADVANTAGE will be scored in a month or so when a new segment of the San Diego Freeway is slated to open, giving freeway access from Beach Boulevard into Los Angeles.

Opening about Nov. 15 near the freeway intersection with Beach Boulevard will be a new Broadway department store, part of the new Huntington Shopping Center, which also will include a covered mall and a major Montgomery Ward store to open in the fall of 1966.

The center is being developed by the Huntington Beach Co. and Gordon L. MacDonald & Associates of Santa Barbara.

* * * *

THE HUNTINGTON BEACH CO., which has a multi-million-dollar program of projects for the area, recently announced plans for a $3 million 130-acre golf course on the northwest side of 23rd Street, to be ready for play in about two years. This will replace the present golf course, on which luxury homes and apartments are to be built.

The company also has proposed a 107-unit oceanfront apartment complex.

Groundbreaking was held last week for a new Huntington Valley Bank, on Beach Boulevard near Warner Avenue. The bank also plans to build at Adams Avenue and Cannery Street.

United California Bank is building a new office on the south side of Edinger Street west of Beach Boulevard. This is just south of the Broadway store shopping area.

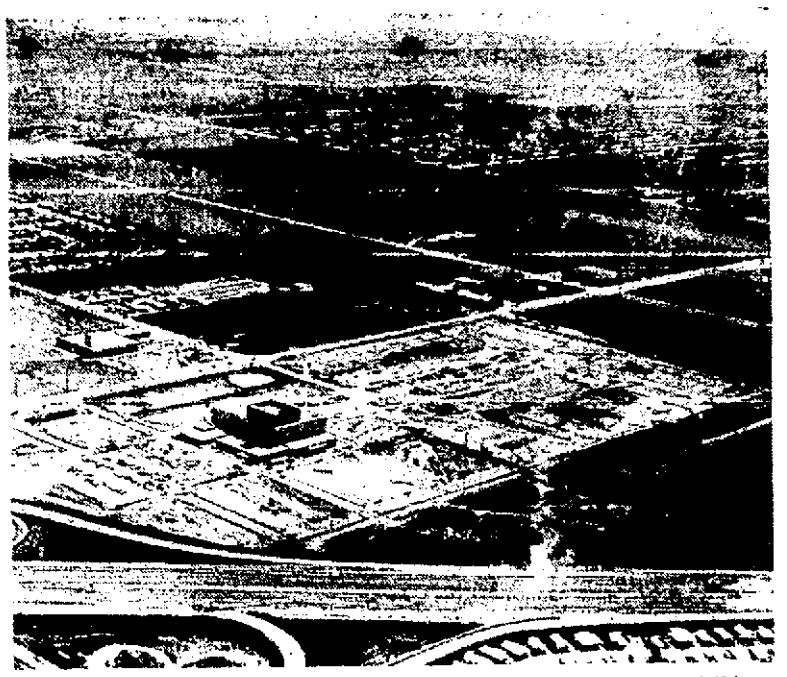

* * * *

A NEW RESEARCH LABORATORY building is going up at Douglas Space Center, already established as one of the top such facilities in the nation.

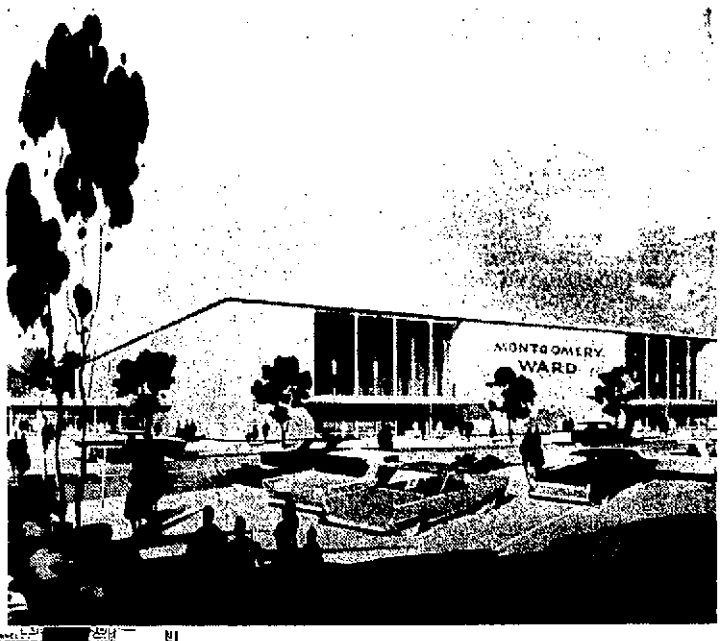

On the east side of Beach Boulevard at Five Points is a new Town and Country shopping center being developed by Cal-Growth Corp., headed by Guy H. Cherry, president. This center, to open about Sept. 20, includes 16 stores and eight offices in addition to a restaurant and auto service station already in operation.

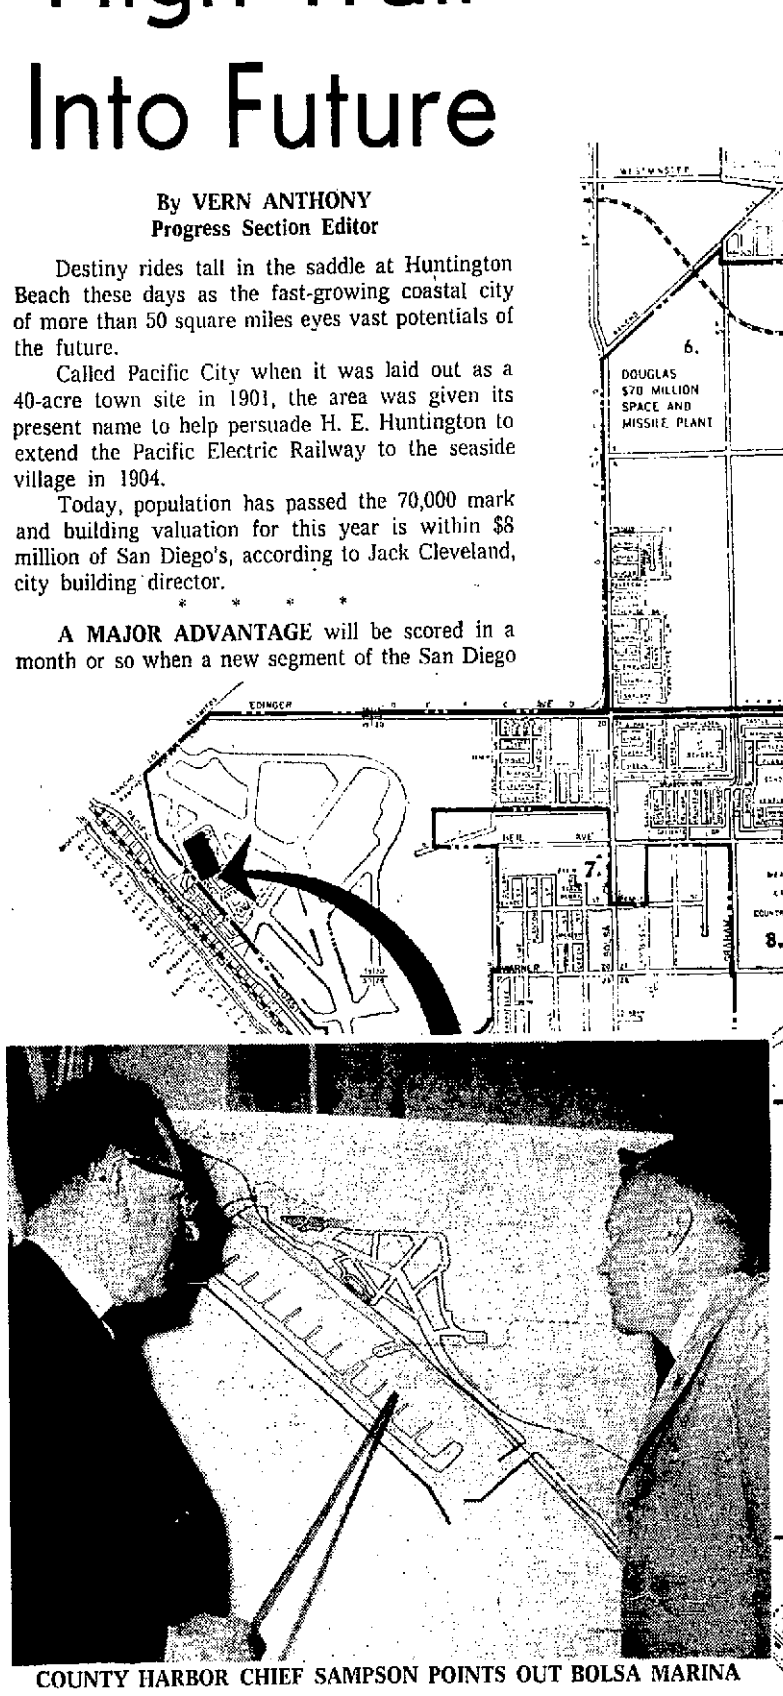

Cherry said Cal-Growth also plans a similar center at the southeast corner of Crenshaw and Sepul-

Andy's Hotcake House on Pine Avenue Sold to Hubert H. Hust

By VERA WILLIAMS

Pine Avenue won't be the same again.

Andy has moved away.

Last Tuesday, Anderson Gassaway—bet you didn't even know his name!—sold his Andy's Hotcake House, 643½ Pine Ave., to Hubert H. Hust, a fellow-Oklahoman and friend of many years.

Hust bought the whole works: hotcake house, name and good will — which is enormous.

Then 6-foot, 220-pound Andy, in the white smock and tall white chef's hat he always wears at work, betook himself to Andy's Restaurant, Anaheim Street and Pacific Avenue, which he opened four years ago.

He will actively run that restaurant, but he thinks it will not take as much time as the pancake house.

* * * *

ANDY HOPES he'll be able to read some history and religion again—there's a book on Egyptian history he has been trying to get to for years. And maybe he again can swim around Rainbow Pier every day. It might help his left leg, badly swollen from years of standing and serving.

Andy's is quite a story. Born in 1909 at Hulbert, Cherokee County, Akla., of a half-Cherokee mother and an Irish rancher father, Andy was reared in Oklahoma, and came to Long Beach in 1931. He worked in various restaurants, was a bookkeeper at the Bank of America at Fourth Street and Pine Avenue, served 43 months and 11 days in the Navy in the Aleutian Islands.

* * * *

ON AUG. 10, 1949, he opened Andy's Hutcake House—only he didn't call it that — on "less than a shoestring."

HUBERT, ANDY AND FRIEND

Peggy Snow and Martha Link, who had operated a small chicken pie restaurant at that location, turned it over to him, nothing down, a 20-year note at 4%, payments $100 a month. Also they loaned him $2,000 working capital, taking a mortgage on some Oklahoma property.

"They sold chicken pies, regular pies, cakes and hamburgers," recalls Andy. "After a while I started making buttermilk hotcakes. Then we began serving meals, buffet style, but we didn't have much to serve. We were losing money.

* * * *

"I HAD BEEN in business 13 months when the March of Dimes came along. I said I'd give all proceeds for that day to the March of Dimes. It was $156. And do you know, from that day business picked up, and we began making money!"

Andy recalls that when he started his day began at 4 a.m. and ended about 9:30 p.m. "I rode a bicycle to work and home. At 4 a.m. I'd be on the job peeling apples for apple pies."

Through the years, Andy has stressed quality. A sign on the back door, addressed to deliverymen says "If you do not believe that the goods you are delivering are the best obtainable in the United States, don't bring them in."

Andy always has used pure butter in his pastry and seasoning.

* * * *

THE PUBLIC'S favorite, he has found, is prime beef — with Virginia ham and corned beef runners-up. He serves only four salads: carrot and raisin, coleslaw, applesauce and prunes — OF COURSE applesauce and prunes are salad.

Andy figures that in his 16 years in business in Long Beach, he has served 8 million hotcakes.

He never has refused to give a recipe.

"You can't receive with a closed fist," he says.

He never has refused a hungry person a meal—unless that person is drunk. If he is drunk, Andy says only "Come back later." He has "carried" quite a few people, and he never has pressed to collect a bill.

The other day a woman paid him $10 which she said she had owed him for a long time—and Andy didn't even remember the debt.

* * * *

FOR A number of years, he donated the proceeds of two days each week to charity, preferably a charity that benefits children.

In recent years he has concentrated on the Community Chest and the March of Dimes. Last year, for instance, he gave $3,800 to the Community Chest and $575 to the March of Dimes.

Through the years, he figures his contributions to charity have come close to $50,000.

For years Andy did all of his cooking. For the last nine years, Ruth Diebold has helped him in the kitchen. She will stay on to help the new owner.

But Ruby Henderson, cashier and general manager for 16 years for Andy and 17 years in the chicken pie place before him, will hold a similar position at Andy's Restaurant, Anaheim and Pacific.

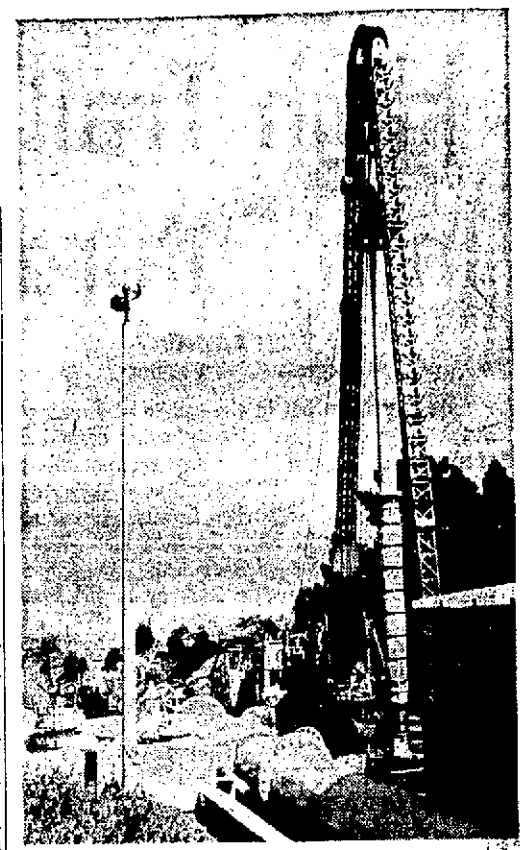

Submersible Pump to Give Palos Verdes More Water

With recent installation of a new 450-horsepower, 2,300-volt Byron Jackson submersible pump, there is 25% more water available to residents of Palos Verdes, Paul Kydd, vice president and general manager of the Palos Verdes Water Co. said last week. The water supply, now available marks an all-time high for residents of the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

The installation of the pump is the half-way point in the Palos Verdes Water Co. expansion plans which eventually will supply the projected population of 120,000 people on the Peninsula by 1980.

In addition to other expansion areas, four pumps similar to that just put into operation will be installed over the next decade and one-half, increasing the water supply over 150%.

The pumps will be encased underground in soundproof entombments. According to a water company spokesman, it will be impossible to detect any operational sound closer than 10 feet, and at that distance all that can be heard is a murmer.

ABOUT TO GO UNDERGROUND

Despite its space-bound appearance, this actually was about to be buried underground. The mysterious projectile-like object is a 450-horsepower, 2,300-volt submersible pump installed recently by the Palos Verdes Water Co.

Work Tops $16 Billion

The nation's 400 largest construction contractors last year took on new contracts worth $16.1 billion, reports Engineering News-Record, McGraw-Hill publication.

This contract volume included $14 billion for projects in the U.S. and $2.1 billion for jobs overseas.

In 1964, there were 23 contractors with over $100 million in U.S. project awards. Only 12 had $100 million or more in U.S. contracts in 1963.

Twenty-one of the 23 contractors with over $100 million in business split the $2.1 billion melon made up of contracts outside the U.S.

The biggest gains in construction awards in 1964 came in types of work these top 400 contractors specialize in such as manufacturing and chemical process plants, power plants, space program facilities, bridges, college buildings and hospitals.

Drilling Co. Gets Loan

SANTA FE SPRINGS—Santa Fe Drilling Co. has completed negotiations for a $16,750,000 unsecured eight-year 5½% term loan from United California Bank (Los Angeles), Ed L. Shannon, Jr., president of Santa Fe, announced last week.

Approximately one-half of the proceeds of the financing will be used to retire substantially all the short-term bank debt and to prepay the outstandings ship's mortgage on Blue Water No. 2, a semi-submersible offshore drilling platform.

The remainder will be used to finance the company's continuing offshore expansion.

This particularly includes the construction of Blue Water No. 3, a semi-submersible platform now being built at Orange, Texas, and a drilling rig to be installed on a jack-up platform now under construction in England. Payments on principal, starting in September, 1965, will not be at the maximum rate until the full amount of the loan has been drawn down.

Dividend Declared

The Board of Directors of Southern California Edison Co. on Sept. 16 declared the regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share on the common stock, payable Oct. 31 to stockholders of record Oct. 5.

APL to Add 5 Automated Ships

American President Lines and the Maritime Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce, have accepted a bid of $13,189,265 by the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp., Pascagoula, Miss., to increase a new ship construction project from four to five Seamaster cargoliners, it was announced last week by George Killion, APL president. The original contract, calling for four ships with an option of the fifth, was signed last Dec. 31.

The five advanced and automated cargoliners, a $68 million ship replacement program, will rank among the largest and fastest general cargo-carrying ships now operating under any flag.

The ships are scheduled for use in APL's Atlantic-Straits service carrying cargoes and passengers between east and west coasts of the U.S. to ports in the Orient and Southeast Asia—the longest American flag service in terms of nautical miles.

* * * *

THE INGALLS shipyard, a division of Litton Industries, already has begun construction of the first ship and the keel is scheduled for placement on the ways on Jan. 4, 1966.

All five ships—to be named (in order) President Van Buren, President Grant, President Taft, President Johnson, and President Fillmore—will be completed and delivered to APL in mid-1968.

Design of the new APL cargoliners is a significant step forward in ship construction and will include a number of new and progressive features including the latest mechanical and automated equipment, some of which never before has been used in marine application. Increased capacity and flexibility of cargo handling and stowage will be featured.

* * * *

THE FIVE sisterships will be 572 feet long, 82 feet wide, and with 21,200 ton displacement. The ships will have a total cargo capacity, including refrigerated space, of 830,400 cubic feet. The liners will be able to handle a variety of cargoes: liquid, reefer, bulk, automobiles, containers and pallets.

The Seamasters will have a steady cruising speed in excess of 23 knots.

Each ship will have luxury accommodations and public areas for a capacity of 12 passengers that will rival those of the latest passenger liners. The decor of the staterooms, lounges and dining areas will be psychologically attuned to the special requirements of a small complement of passengers who will call the ship home for a matter of weeks.

Realtor Group to Hear How to Sell Talk

"How to Sell With Real Intent, Rather Than by Accident" will be told to members of the Lakewood-Los Altos Real Estate Association at their monthly luncheon meeting Tuesday at Hody's Restaurant, Lakewood Center.

AL TOMSICK

Speaker will be Al Tomsick, founder of a sales institute and widely known authority on techniques of salesmanship. He has lectured in many states and holds numerous selling records.

Program chairman for Tuesday is Lou Harmatz, head of the association's Program and Education Committee.

Financing Seminar Set

An all-day finance workshop will be held Wednesday at the Lakewood Country Club under sponsorship of the Education Committee of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors.

Don Jones, chairman, said sessions would be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., with time out for luncheon. There will be no charge for the seminar.

Speakers will be Jack Meyers Sr., property agent for the Department of Veterans' Affairs, who will discuss Cal Vet; Paul Havalock, who will speak on GI; Reg Dupuy, on conventional loans; Robert C. Magnusson, chief of operations, Federal Housing Administration, on FHA; and Carl Seirsen, an exchange financing.

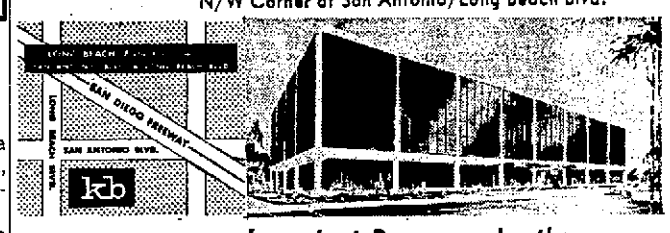

Advance reservations indicate a large attendance, Jones said.

Andy's Hotcake House on Pine Avenue Sold to Hubert H. Hust

By VERA WILLIAMS

Pine Avenue won't be the same again.

Andy has moved away.

Last Tuesday, Anderson Gassaway—bet you didn't even know his name!—sold his Andy's Hotcake House, 343½ Pine Ave., to Hubert H. Hust, a fellow-Oklahoman and friend of many years.

Hust bought the whole works: hotcake house, name and good will — which is enormous.

Then 6-foot, 220-pound Andy, in the white smock and tall white chef's hat he always wears at work, betook himself to Andy's Restaurant, Anaheim Street and Pacific Avenue, which he opened four years ago.

He will actively run that restaurant, but he thinks it will not take as much time as the pancake house.

* * * *

ANDY HOPES he'll be able to read some history and religion again—there's a book on Egyptian history he has been trying to get to for years. And maybe he again can swim around Rainbow Pier every day. It might help his left leg, badly swollen from years of standing and serving.

Andy's is quite a story. Born in 1909 at Hulbert, Cherokee County, Akla., of a half-Cherokee mother and an Irish rancher father, Andy was reared in Oklahoma, and came to Long Beach in 1931. He worked in various restaurants, was a bookkeeper at the Bank of America at Fourth Street and Pine Avenue, served 43 months and 11 days in the Navy in the Aleutian Islands.

* * * *

ON AUG. 10, 1948, he opened Andy's Hotcake House—only he didn't call it that — on "less than a shoestring."

HUBERT, ANDY AND FRIEND

Peggy Snow and Martha Link, who had operated a small chicken pie restaurant at that location, turned it over to him, nothing down, a 20-year note at 4%, payments $100 a month. Also they loaned him $2,000 working capital, taking a mortgage on some Oklahoma property.

"They sold chicken pies, regular pies, cakes and hamburgers," recalls Andy. "After a while I started making buttermilk hotcakes. Then we began serving meals, buffet style, but we didn't have much to serve. We were losing money.

* * * *

"I HAD BEEN in business 13 months when the March of Dimes came along. I said I'd give all proceeds for that day to the March of Dimes. It was $156. And do you know, from that day business picked up, and we began making money!"

Andy recalls that when he started his day began at 1 a.m. and ended about 9:30 p.m. "I rode a bicycle to work and home. At 4 a.m. I'd be on the job peeling apples for apple pies."

Through the years, Andy has stressed quality. A sign on the back door, addressed to deliverymen says "If you do not believe that the goods you are delivering are the best obtainable in the United States, don't bring them in."

Andy always has used pure butter in his pastry and seasoning.

* * * *

THE PUBLIC'S favorite, he has found, is prime beef — with Virginia ham and corned beef runners-up. He serves only four salads: carrot and raisin, coleslaw, applesauce and prunes — OF COURSE applesauce and prunes are salad.

Andy figures that in his 16 years in business in Long Beach, he has served 8 million hotcakes.

He never has refused to give a recipe.

"You can't receive with a closed fist," he says.

He never has refused a hungry person a meal—unless that person is drunk. If he is drunk, Andy says only "Come back later." He has "carried" quite a few people, and he never has pressed to collect a bill.

The other day a woman paid him $10 which she said she had owed him for a long time—and Andy didn't even remember the debt.

* * * *

FOR A number of years, he donated the proceeds of two days each week to charity, preferably a charity that benefits children.

In recent years he has concentrated on the Community Chest and the March of Dimes. Last year, for instance, he gave $3,800 to the Community Chest and $575 to the March of Dimes.

Through the years, he figures his contributions to charity have come close to $50,000.

For years Andy did all of his cooking. For the last nine years, Ruth Diebold has helped him in the kitchen. She will stay on to help the new owner.

But Ruby Henderson, cashier and general manager for 16 years for Andy and 17 years in the chicken pie place before him, will hold a similar position at Andy's Restaurant, Anaheim and Pacific.

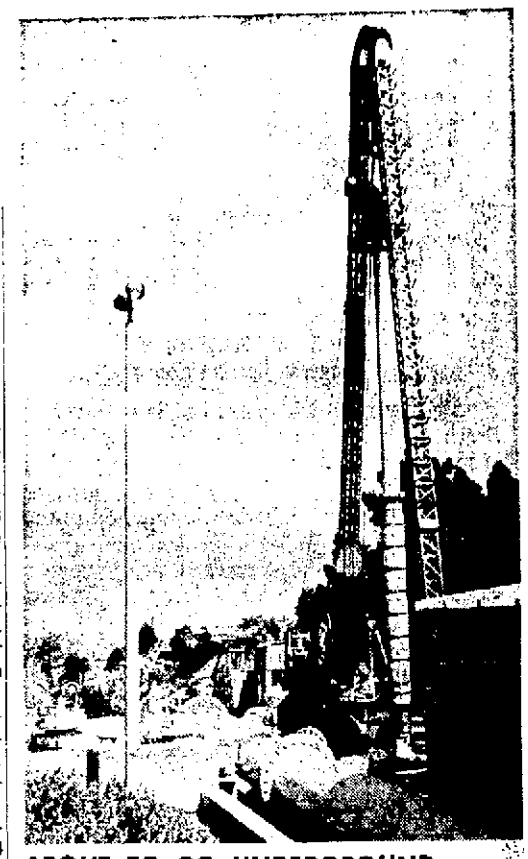

Submersible Pump to Give Palos Verdes More Water

With recent installation of a new 450-horsepower, 2,300-volt Byron Jackson submersible pump, there is 25% more water available to residents of Palos Verdes, Paul Kydd, vice president and general manager of the Palos Verdes Water Co. said last week. The water supply, now available marks an all-time high for residents of the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

The installation of the pump is the half-way point in the Palos Verdes Water Co. expansion plans which eventually will supply the projected population of 120,000 people on the Peninsula by 1980.

In addition to other expansion areas, four pumps similar to that just put into operation will be installed over the next decade and one-half, increasing the water supply over 150%.

The pumps will be encased underground in soundproof entombments. According to a water company spokesman, it will be impossible to detect any operational sound closer than 10 feet, and at that distance all that can be heard is a murmer.

ABOUT TO GO UNDERGROUND

Despite its space-bound appearance, this actually was about to be buried underground. The mysterious projectile-like object is a 450-horsepower, 2,300-volt submersible pump installed recently by the Palos Verdes Water Co.

Work Tops $16 Billion

The nation's 400 largest construction contractors last year took on new contracts worth $16.1 billion, reports Engineering News-Record, McGraw-Hill publication.

This contract volume included $14 billion for projects in the U.S. and $2.1 billion for jobs overseas.

In 1964, there were 23 contractors with over $100 million in U.S. project awards. Only 12 had $100 million or more in U.S. contracts in 1963.

Twenty-one of the 23 contractors with over $100 million in business split the $2.1 billion melon made up of contracts outside the U.S.

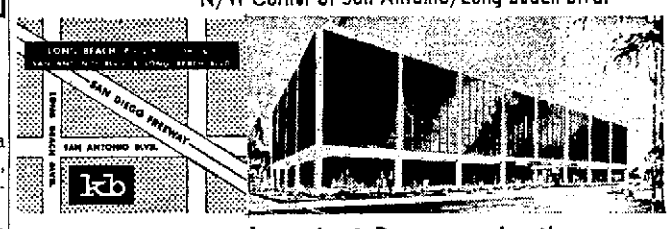

The biggest gains in construction awards in 1964 came in types of work these top 400 contractors specialize in such as manufacturing and chemical process plants, power plants, space program facilities, bridges, college buildings and hospitals.

Drilling Co. Gets Loan

SANTA FE SPRINGS—Santa Fe Drilling Co. has completed negotiations for a $16,750,000 unsecured eight-year 5½% term loan from United California Bank (Los Angeles), Ed L. Shannon, Jr., president of Santa Fe, announced last week.

Approximately one-half of the proceeds of the financing will be used to retire substantially all the short-term bank debt and to prepay the outstandings ship's mortgage on Blue Water No. 2, a semi-submersible offshore drilling platform.

The remainder will be used to finance the company's continuing offshore expansion.

This particularly includes the construction of Blue Water No. 3, a semi-submersible platform now being built at Orange, Texas, and a drilling rig to be installed on a jack-up platform now under construction in England. Payments on principal, starting in September, 1965, will not be at the maximum rate until the full amount of the loan has been drawn down.

Dividend Declared

The Board of Directors of Southern California Edison Co. on Sept. 16 declared the regular quarterly dividend of 30 cents per share on the common stock, payable Oct. 31 to stockholders of record Oct. 5.

Average U.S. Clerical Salary $84 a Week

Today's average American clerical worker earns $84 a week. This hikes the 1964 figure by $2. The average Canadian office worker gets $67, a $1 gain over last year.

So states the 1965-66 Clerical Salary Survey just completed by the Administrative Management Society.

The study is made each year by most of the society's 178 chapters in the U. S. and Canada.

The 1965-66 survey reports salary and fringe benefit data based on 600,172 office employes in 8,486 companies.

* * * *

COVERED by the survey are 136 cities and 21 different types of business. Positions surveyed include the 20 office jobs most common to the widest segment of business.

The new study points up a continuing rise of clerical earnings. Since 1957 a total of $22 has been tagged on to office pay checks in two or three dollar annual increments. This is a 35% gain over the nine-year period.

As in previous surveys, Western earnings were found to be higher than in any other region of the U. S. The average Western office salary has shot up to a new high of $93 a week, a $5 jump over '64.

Next highest is the East Central region with an $86 average weekly rate. This is followed by the East at $83. The South and West Central regions trail at $81 and $80, respectively.

* * * *

OTHER KEY survey findings are as follows:

While most individual jobs rose $2 or $3 over last year, U. S. stenos and top rated secretaries show a $4 boost.

The workweek appears the be getting gradually shorter. This year, 14.5% of the respondents report a 37½ hour week, as opposed to 6% in 1951. Only 3% indicate a workweek of more than 40 hours.

In Canada, the survey shows, the workweek is shorter and holidays are more liberally granted.

Douglas Stock Added to Mutual Fund's Portfolio

Energy Fund, Inc., a leading "no-load" mutual fund, has added 15,000 shares of common stock of Douglas Aircraft to its portfolio, Donald C. Samuel, president, announced recently.

At the current market price, Energy Fund's investment in the company, a leading manufacturer of military and commercial aircraft, amounts to approximately $675,000.

In announcing the addition of Douglas Samuel said:

"The acquisition reflects Energy Fund's belief that the company's participation in the production of military and commercial aircraft, the missile industry, as well as a number of important space projects supports the thesis that earning power may grow substantially from current levels."

Samuel said other portfolio commitments include 10,000 shares of Union Oil of California, 4,000 shares of Singer Company, 3,000 shares of Xerox Corp. and 2,800 shares of Motorola, Inc.

Builders to Get Baseball Lowdown

Orange County Chapter of the Building Contractors Association of California, Inc., will hold its September meeting at the Revere House in Tustin Monday night. The program will include a talk by Cedric Tallis, business manager of the California Angels, and slides showing progress of the stadium by Tom Liegler, manager of the Stadium and Anaheim Convention Center.

The program will follow a social period and dinner at 7:15 p.m.

Realtors to Hear Woman Attorney

Attorney Borgny Baird will occupy the guest speaker's seat at the Thursday breakfast meeting of the North Long Beach Real Estate Club. Her subject will be "Death and Taxes."

Mrs. Baird, who is a partner is the law firm of Baird, Mooney and Baird, specializes in probates, wills and legal matters pertaining to inheritance taxes.

She will be introduced by Betty Suttie, Realtor.

THE FUTURE also will see development of a 2,000-acre marina and luxury home project in the Bolsa Chica beach area. This is due to involve a high bridge on the Coast Highway at Warner Avenue and some nine miles of small-craft channel.

There's talk of a nuclear desalination plant on an offshore island which would be connected to the mainland by a 4,000-foot bridge.

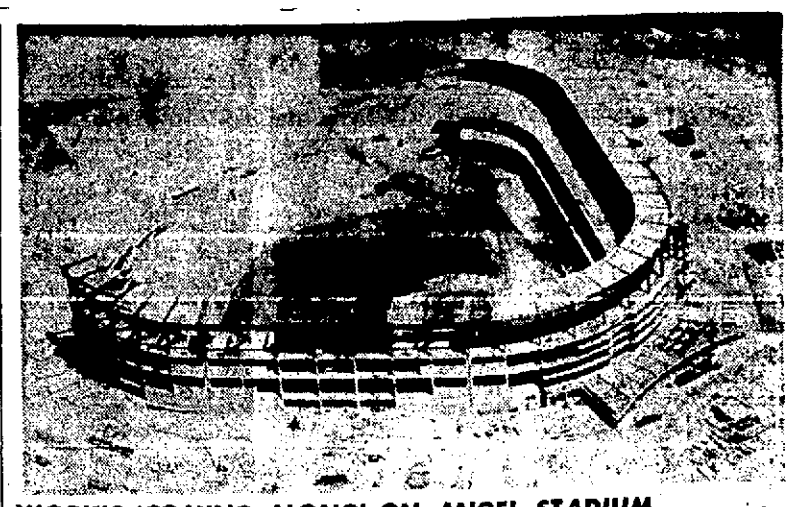

Just west of the Huntington Shopping Center is the site for a new Orange Coast College campus and land preparation already is well under way. The 122-acre campus lies on the east side of Golden West Street, at McFadden Avenue, in the north part of the city near the Westminster boundary.

SO THE STORY GOES, only half told as new projects materialize. But the with growth come problems, too.

Revitalization of the downtown district is one of the major concerns, as are a civic center program, beach development, etc.

However, with vast oil resources, a dream-come-true resort location on the Pacific, climate to brag about and forward-looking leadership, it looks like "all systems go" for Huntington Beach.

Open House Set for Bellflower Realtor Building

BELLFLOWER — Ray T. Smith, president of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors, announced open house for the new board office building at 10140 E. Alondra Blvd. will be held Thursday.

Open house will begin at 2 p.m. with formal opening of the office when a presentation will be made by President David N. Robinson of the California Real Estate Association. The building will be open for public inspection until 7 p.m.

The new facility consists of 3,500 square feet and houses an auditorium, board of directors' room, lounge, two offices and a print room, as well as a large reception room. There is parking at the rear for 57 autos.

Hostesses for the open house will be members of the Women's Council of the local board, with President Gladys Leahy of the women's group in charge of refreshments and hospitality.

Oil Output Steady

U.S. production of crude oil and lease condensate averaged 7,667,900 barrels per day last week, only 400 barrels daily below the previous week, The Oil and Gas Journal says.

WINNER AND RUNNER-UP

Marilyn Buus (left) of Westminster has been chosen by Long Beach Chapter, California Credit Union League, as its entry in the statewide Miss Credit Union Contest. She is from Richfield Employes' No. 4 Credit Union. Runner-up as the chapter's entry is Delores C. Tate (right) of Unity Credit Union, Compton. Contest chairman Herb Bramley said Miss Buus would compete at Sacramento during the annual meeting, Nov. 5-7.

Credit Union Group Elects

Long Beach Chapter, California Credit Union League, elected Dorice Sheppley as new president at a meeting last week in the Lakewood Country Club.

Other officers chosen included:

Vice president, Al Martin;
Secretary, W. H. Zims;
Treasurer, George Wilson;
Executive treasurer, Gene Jimison.

Various appointments were made to the board.

Matson Threatens Suit in Ruling Row

Matson Navigation Co. reports it will go to court if Commerce Secretary Connor refuses to change his July 6 decision permitting States Steamship Co. to double its California - Hawaii sailings while operating subsidized ships in a mixed domestic and foreign trade.

Matson, in a petition to the secretary, also asked as an alternative move that Connor postpone his authorization of States' increased service pending a judicial review of the four-year-old case.

If Connor declines to void or postpone his July 6 decision, Matson asked that his order be implemented to require States to submit pertinent annual information on its future operations. In authorizing States to double its domestic voyages to 26 a year, Secretary Connor stipulated a review after three years operating experience to determine whether any of States' voyages should continue to be allowed.

* * * *

MATSON CONTENDS that the decision "contains essentially the same fundamental errors of law" as an earlier order of the Maritime Subsidy Board which also approved States' application to double its calls at Hawaii.

The differences in the two decisions—Secretary Connor's and the board's—are in matters of tone and degree, not in principle, the Matson petition said.

Matson also noted the "increasing national peril in Vietnam" and said that, while the government recently has taken 14 victory ships out of mothballs for use in the California-Vietnam trade, States proposes to use its subsidized ships for increased calls at Hawaii while Saigon will be entirely by-passed by those ships on its Far East trade route calls.

* * * *

"WE SUBMIT that the interests of the national defense alone require that this subsidized carrier not be permitted to substitute service in domestic commerce at Honolulu for vital service that might otherwise be provided between California and Saigon," Matson declared.

Matson said Connor's decision is the first in the history of the administration of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936 "to permit the diversion of subsidy into the domestic trade in competition with an unsubsidized exclusively domestic operator."

TALKS TUESDAY

James De Cot, of the Lumbleau Real Estate School, will discuss realty exchanges at the 7:15 a.m. Tuesday breakfast meeting of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors in the Crown cafeteria.

L.B. Builders to Hear Corbett, Honor McKenzie

Members of the Builders' Exchange of Long Beach will be told Monday night some of the benefits they receive from their organization.

Frank Corbett, executive director of the California State Builders' Exchange, will address the local group at the September dinner meeting, Lafayette Hotel French Room, at 7 p.m., following a social hour.

Corbett will discuss the Exchange and what it does for the membership and entire construction industry.

One of the evening highlights will be a pre-convention rally honoring Paul F. McKenzie Jr., Long Beach builder soon to become president of the California State Builders' Exchange. He is in line to be elected at the annual convention, Oct. 28-29, in Sacramento.

Made Member of International Realty Group

James Hoffman, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, announced last week that Realtor Laurice "Olly" Livingstone has been admitted to membership in the International Real Estate Federation, through its American Chapter, an affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The organization lists among its objectives the promotion of high professional standards and good relations among individuals engaged in the calling of real estate in all nations and the encouragement of the private ownership of real property and understanding of its obligations.

The International Real Estate Federation was formed nearly 20 years ago and today has members in most of the developed free world countries.

Many Firms Now in New Building

A sizeable list of tenants for K-B Development's striking new $2,500,000 Long Beach Commercial Center Building, just completed, was announced by Arthur Kaplan and Stanley Black, company principals.

Among those leasing in the four-story office building, located in a prime area overlooking the Virginia Country Club at San Antonio and Long Beach Blvd., are Life Circulation Co., Inc.; Certified Mortgage Co.; Insurance Securities, Inc.; U. S. Fidelity and Guaranty Co., and Seaboard Management Corp. Also Sterling E. Gilmore, John Arnold, M. D. and Ferris L. Arnold, M. D., John W. Hancock, Allen and Moore, C. R. Scarborough and Harvey L. Harms.

* * * *

THE PRESTIGE structure is deluxe and completely modern. A 100,000 square foot facility including subterranean garage and outside parking, it marks K-B's third commercial structure in the Long Beach area. A fourth office building is already in the planning stage by Kaplan and Black on a nearby block-long property recently purchased from the Schlumberger Well Surveying Corp. at 3605 Long Beach Blvd.

Other Long Beach structures built by the Hollywood-based company are the Associate Investment Building at 4067 Long Beach Blvd. and the Long Beach Social Security Building on Pacific Ave.

Associated with Kaplan and Black on the project is Martin Hyman, prominent Southern California investment executive.

K-B Development Co. currently has several other construction projects planned or underway.

Goldwater to Talk

Barry M. Goldwater, former Republican presidential candidate, will be principal speaker at the 11th annual Realtor of the Year Awards luncheon Nov. 16 during the annual National Association of Real Estate Boards convention in Chicago Nov. 14-18.

Nominations to Be Made

S. Eugene Stroud, president of the California Building Material Dealers Association, Inc., said last week that the organization's traditional fall membership meetings has been scheduled for the evening of Sept. 28 at Rodger Young Auditorium, Los Angeles.

Stroud, president of Mid-West Building Materials, Orange, noted that nominations for new officers and directors of the statewide association would be aired at this meeting.

As a preliminary step, CBMDA will appoint a nominating committee this week. Ballots will be mailed to the more than 140 dealer members on Sept. 30.

Ballots will be counted and new officers and directors will be installed at the 1965 annual convention of CBMDA, Oct. 22 and 23, at El Mirador Hotel, Palm Springs.

IN VARIED STYLINGS

With up to 2,300 square feet of living area, Fashion Hills homes in East Anaheim offer one and two-story, three through five-bedroom homes priced from $26,900, in Unit 1, with no down VA (except for costs and impounds), low FHA terms and excellent conventional financing available.

Award Winner to Tell Ad Club About Whiskey

Award-winning Ken Hovey will be featured speaker at the Thursday noon luncheon of the Advertising Club of Long Beach in the Panorama Room of the Lafayette Hotel.

Hovey will speak on the "History of Whiskey," in which he will reveal intimate details of the liquor industry. He recently was presented an "Edgar" trophy in New York for his speech.

Frank Schultz, division sales manager for the Southern California Edison Co., will serve as chairman of the day.

The public is invited. Reservations may be made by contacting the club's executive secretary, Helen Perkins, at the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Big Fashion Hills Homes Appealing

A new grade school is slated to be built immediately adjacent to the beautiful Fashion Hills home development in East Anaheim, reports Mervin B. Johnson, builder of the 400 home community in the Santa Ana canyon.

"We, and our purchasers of Fashion Hills homes, are pleased with the fact that the new school is to be so close that children of our homeowners can walk to it," Johnson continued.

Garden Park Boosts Seal Beach Growth

Seal Beach marks its 50th anniversary this year and the College Park unit of Garden Park homes is helping the city celebrate by hanging up new Southland sales records.

Since opening, several weeks ago, College Park has sold more than $5,000,000 in homes, recording the greatest total sales in Seal Beach City history, according to Mark Bader, project sales manager for the builders, S & S Construction Co. The sales were made without a single home being completely built on the premises.

• • • •

FOUR AND THREE-BEDROOM homes in one-story, two-story and split-level models offer many top quality features including lath and plaster walls, acoustical type ceilings, concrete driveways, walks and patios, distinctive fireplaces blending into the individual decor of each home, custom electrical fixtures, forced-air heating, lawns seeded in front, sides and rear, parkway trees, wood shingles, cast-iron tubs and underground utilities.

No down payments for vets, new FHA low-down payments for non-vets and vets with expired eligibility, 30 and 35-year financing, Cal-Vet, and excellent conventional terms, are offered. Furnished models are accessible via San Diego Freeway to Garden Grove Freeway or via Seventh St. to Knott, then north to Garden Park and the College Park Unit display.

GROUND-BREAKING CEREMONIES were held last week at Costa Mesa for one of largest stores ever built by Sears, Roebuck & Co. Store will be in new South Coast Plaza Shopping Center at Bristol Street and Sunflower Avenue. Above sketch shows how store will look on completion a year from now. Drawing at right shows design of mall which will connect Sears and May Co. stores in the plaza. Air-conditioned and covered two-storied mall will be lavishly landscaped and provide areas for civic and cultural activities. Stores and shops in mall will be built with open fronts. When not in business, entire mall will be locked. Mall will contain carousel for children, import bazaars, fountains, gardens and numerous conveniences for pedestrians.

Break Ground for Big Sears Store at Mesa

By VERN ANTHONY
Progress Section Editor

Hailed as the largest outlying Sears, Roebuck & Co. store in the United States, groundbreaking ceremonies were held last week for Sears' new store in the 66-acre South Coast Plaza shopping center in Costa Mesa.

The attending crowd of civic and business leaders in the area included numerous prominent persons from nearby Huntington Beach and Fountain Valley.

* * * *

COMPLETION of the 330,000-square-foot store is slated in about one year, according to John G. Lowe, manager of the firm's 20-store Los Angeles District.

The multi-million-dollar structure will go up on a 23-acre site at the southwest intersection of Bristol Street and Sunflower Avenue near a May Co. store already under construction.

The plaza is being developed by the land-owning Segerstrom family, long prominent in the area.

Three of the family, Mrs. Anton G. Segerstrom, Harold T. Jr., and Henry T. Segerstrom, were among persons introduced at the groundbreaking.

* * * *

SPEAKERS included Fred W. Salyer, Costa Mesa Chamber of Commerce president, master of ceremonies; Mayor Robert Wilson of Costa Mesa; Henry Segerstrom; Arthur M. Wood, vice president, Sears West Coast territory; and Lowe.

The new store will consist of three air-conditioned buildings: the main store, with one sales floor; a basement, and penthouse employe cafeteria; a seasonal sales building, and an automotive center and service station. The latter will be equipped to handle 42 cars simultaneously.

The design was created by the architectural firm of Stiles and Robert Clements.

* * * *

A LARGE portion of the upper level will be devoted to a "penthouse" restaurant and facilities for employes. The remaining upper level space will be used to accommodate utilities and mechanical equipment.

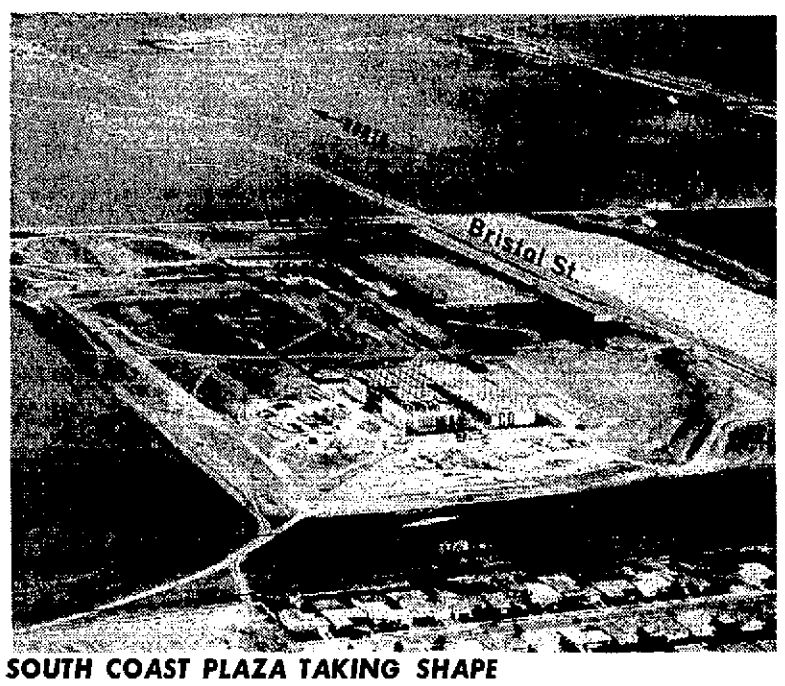

In addition to more than 50 separate merchandise departments, the main structure will house administrative offices, a conference room and a coffee house and snack bar for customers. The building will be serviced by six elevators, two escalators and two automatic conveyor systems.

The seasonal sales building will be connected to the main structure by a canopy-covered, landscaped walk and an underground passageway formed by an extension of the main store's basement.

* * * *

A NOTEWORTHY feature is an arrangement which places all freight supply and service facilities for the new store below ground. Service trucks will enter and leave by means of subterranean ramps, leaving the main ground areas free for parking, and giving access to the store from all sides.

Home Builder Lectures Start Sept. 14 at UCLA

Top authorities in the building industry again will offer a series of 15 lectures on "Home Building and Subdividing" to be presented by the Young Home Builders Council in cooperation with University of California Extension beginning Sept. 14.

The lectures, to be given on the UCLA campus, will pinpoint the special problems facing land planners, appraisers, mortgage bankers, real estate salesmen, home building suppliers, and saving and loan officers, and will afford insights into the goals, incentives and the feelings of successful men.

Leading off on Tuesday evening, Sept. 14, Edward P. Eichler, lecturer, University of California, Berkeley, and Stanford University; formerly vice president of Eichler Homes and chairman, Governor's Housing Commission, will lecture on "The Building Industry in the 1960's."

New Credit Plan at Nahas Stores

True Instant Credit, a new concept in retailing is being introduced by the nine-store chain of Nahas Department Stores throughout Southern California.

Customers may charge immediately by simply completing Nahas' application at the store. No waiting or credit clearance is required. Store officials stress that the only other requirements for Instant Credit are proper identification plus one of the following current credit cards: Sears (Revolving), American Express, BankAmericard, Diners Club, Carte Blanche, Tidewater Oil Co., Chevron Oil Co., Richfield Oil Co., Texaco, Union Oil Co., Wilshire Oil Co. or Hertz Auto Rental.

Ready to Occupy in Fairway Park

Immediate occupancy is now available at the $40 million 1,200 unit community of Fairway Park, reports W. Dean Hanson, vice president of marketing and sales for builder-developer Robert H. Grant & Co.

"The idea of immediate occupancy is especially important to the family moving to the Cypress community from outside the Orange County area," said Hanson.

Located across Cerritos Ave. from the Los Alamitos Golf Course, the development is only minutes from downtown Long Beach or Los Angeles and 10 minutes from the heart of Orange County's industrial area.

The one and two-story homes are featured in five floor plans and 18 different exterior stylings.

* * * *

PRICES FROM $26,500 on VA, FHA, or conventional terms, homes include from three to five bedrooms, up to three baths, and family and laundry rooms, Hanson said.

Fairway Park custom features include crystal chandeliers, wrought iron interior railings, cedar floored wardrobes and Del Piso tile foyers.

Furnished models at Fairway Park are open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. They may be reached from Long Beach by driving out Willow or Spring St. to models.

Distinctive Master Bath in Newest Larwin Homes

Distinctive "Mr. & Mrs." master bath and dressing room suites are now being featured in all Larwin residential communities in Simi and Cypress, according to Michael L. Tenzer, vice president and director of marketing for Larwin Company.

"The master bedrooms in most Larwin homes now feature huge dressing rooms with twin basins surrounded by broad cultured marble countertops, and spacious built-in hardwood cabinets," Tenzer revealed.

"In addition, there are room-size walk-in closets and in many models, our master baths include both tub and separate stall showers," Tenzer continued.

IN THE Orange County community of Cypress, Larwin is currently developing Lake Park, which features three, four and five bedroom homes, priced from $22,350, and Tanglewood Townhomes which offers two, three and four bedroom models, priced from $16,750.

In Simi Valley, Larwin is now developing Valley West and Kingspark, which offer a total choice of eleven different floor plans with three, four or five bedrooms. Homes at Valley West, start at $17,550, and homes at Kingspark start at $21,850.

All Larwin Homes are available on VA, new FHA and conventional terms. In addition, Larwin has recently inaugurated a new "on-the-spot" program which offers the homeowner a guaranteed commitment to trade his present home for a new Larwin home in Valley West, Kingspark or Lake Park.

Model homes and sales offices for all Larwin communities are open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

DESIGNED FOR TWO

Spacious "Mr. and Mrs." master bath and dressing room suites in all Larwin residential developments offer twin basins, twin medicine chests, twin built-in cabinets, and double-size walk-in closets.

Opening Continued in Eastwood Park

Eastwood Park Homes in Artesia, offering quality features at moderate prices, will continue its grand opening today, reports the Jackson Realty Co., sales agent for the Artval Land Co. Development.

"Dollar for dollar we feel the excellent features of these homes cannot be matched in the price range," said a spokesman.

Eastwood Park offers two, three and four-bedroom homes and two or three baths with some models in tri-level designs. They are priced from $31,900 to $36,950.

Among the quality features provided in all designs and models are: Fireplaces in a variety of materials, Westinghouse all-electric kitchens, vinyl floors in kitchens and baths and in some family rooms; ash cabinets and interior doors.

Members of the Artval Land Co., are John H. Gates, John W. Jackson and R. D. Hungerford.

Buying on Credit Easy Now, but You Still Must Pay Up

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

Credit makes the wheels turn in today's business. The nation found years ago that money doesn't grow on trees but it seems credit cards do. For most people, credit is easier to come by now than ever before.

Most department stores will extend a charge account to anyone with two or three qualifications—a job, a bank account, or another charge account.

And, most people are proving very good credit risks, report credit managers of the stores. They seem to prize their credit cards just as if they were cash reserves and do their utmost to keep their credit rating high.

* * * *

SOME FOLKS, who overdid credit buying a few years ago when the credit cards came out, lost their cards and standing. But all is not lost for them. They can confer with such institutions as the Long Beach Credit Bureau and work to establish a new footing in today's "charge it" world.

Just how good a credit risk are you? Here are a few things to check to determine your standing.

Job stability is important. Some folks might think a person is a stick-in-the-mud if he stays with a routine job year after year. But credit managers say sticks-in-the-mud tend to be dependable.

Have you changed your address more than twice in the last three years? Bankers like to know where they can reach people and if they pay their rent.

* * * *

WHEN YOU buy on credit, try to make a good down payment. Bankers say that such down payments indicate you have saved some money ahead before buying and your interest payments will be much less. That's thrift to them.

Maintaining any kind of bank account is in your favor and if you have an ever-ready cushion you maintain in your checking account for emergencies, it shows you are a good credit risk.

Owning a home naturally is a big asset. But if you are buying a home and regular mortgage payments have been made, it indicates you handle credit with responsibility.

Your total debts, according to a rough rule of the thumb, should not exceed a third of your "discretionary" spending for the year. Discretionary money is what's left over after you have paid for essentials such as food, housing, clothing, insurance.

* * * *

A STEADY income is desired. If your earnings depend upon commissions, tips or fees you are less likely to be a good credit risk than the person with a salaried income.

Prompt payment of bills, even small ones and including utilities means much when a banker or credit manager checks on you.

So happy buying — via credit. But don't overdo it just because it seems so easy.

THERE'S A difference in the stepped-up Vietnam war and the Korean strife as noted in California employment.

Above-average gains in employment are being noted in California shipbuilding, air and water transportation. But there has been a decrease in employment in ordnance manufacturing in recent months, while in the Korean conflict employment in those industries increased 17 times in a two-year period.

Wells Fargo Bank, in a study just completed, notes California shipbuilding in July gained 12.5% over a year ago.

* * * *

HEAVY engineering construction contracts awarded in Southern California the first seven months of 1965 reached a peak of $547,033,042, an increase of 94% over the comparable period of 1964. Utility and airport contracts showed the greatest gains, reports the Associated General Contractors.

Previous growth records for Allstate Insurance Companies and Allstate Life Insurance Companies were broken during the first six months of 1965. Sales for fire and casualty lines to car or home owners were up $50,040,000 or 14.1% over the previous record breaking first half of 1964.

Life insurance operations added $369,000,000 of insurance in force for the first half of the year, raising the total to $3 billion 879 million.

Downey Realtors Eye Convention

DOWNEY — President Russell M. Yerkes of Downey Board of Realtors announced last week the Downey board has been receiving advance registrations for the coming California Real Estate Association convention to be held in Los Angeles at the Biltmore Hotel Sept. 24-30.

Yerkes stated a "beautiful entry" in the State Achievement Contest had been submitted for the board as a result of the "hard work" of Realtor Helen Wheelus who chairmanned the Achievement Committee this year.

He said the entry of 15-year old Downey Senior High student Vicki Nadsady has been entered in the State Essay Contest — the theme of which is "What We Expect Of Our Legislators."

BIG HOMES OFFERED
Offering extra-large homes with up to six bedrooms, Fullerton Hills is showing new models at the development.

Fullerton Hills Has New Models

The public is invited to see the new model homes now open at the Fullerton homesite of Fullerton Hills.

A builder's spokesman announced that hundreds of enthused viewers continue to visit the model area at Fullerton Hills weekly.

The landscaped community of 170 homes is situated on Brea Blvd. in Fullerton and has been referred to by many as the newest prestige address in the city. Other highlights are underground utilities, 3-car garages, completely finished inside, pool size lots and optional air conditioning.

* * * *

OFFERED ARE three, four, five and six bedroom homes with two, three and four baths. Both one and two story and tri-level homes are available. The homes have been engineered on terraced lots, many of which afford marine and mountain views. A trade-up program is proving a very satisfactory plan for home-seekers. A $500 landscaping allowance is also offered.

Beautiful furnished model homes are located on Brea Boulevard in Fullerton, just north of the Harbor and Brea Boulevard intersection at Hillcrest Park in Fullerton.

Prices range from $34,950 with excellent financing said to be available.

Veterans Eligible in Barkley Square

A new FHA loan for veterans, in addition to the existing program for World War II and Korean veterans, now permits all veterans to purchase a home at Barkley Square, the newest prestige development in Cypress, with a down payment as low as $1,700 on homes priced from $27,950 to $32,000, reports Stanley W. Sampson, president for Barkley Development Co.

Under the 1965 Housing Act, special FHA loans are now available to cold war veterans who have had 90 days of service and veterans whose GI loan eligibility has expired.

* * * *

UP TO 2,400 square feet of living space under roof is offered in three to four-bedroom models with two to three baths, large family rooms, raised or sunken living rooms, and walk-in wardrobes.

Barkley Square's unique patio-kitchens, designed for indoor and outdoor entertainment, provide all the built-ins.

Furnished models may be reached via Carson to Moody. Turn right on Moody to Barkley Square. Or drive east on Spring (which becomes Cerritos) to Moody. Left on Moody to new homes.

ATTRACTIVE FIREPLACE

SOME FOLKS, who overdid credit buying a few years ago when the credit cards came out, lost their cards and standing. But all is not lost for them. They can confer with such institutions as the Long Beach Credit Bureau and work to establish a new footing in today's "charge it" world.

Just how good a credit risk are you? Here are a few things to check to determine your standing.

Job stability is important. Some folks might think a person is a stick-in-the-mud if he stays with a routine job year after year. But credit managers say sticks-in-the-mud tend to be dependable.

Have you changed your address more than twice in the last three years? Bankers like to know where they can reach people and if they pay their rent.

* * * *

WHEN YOU buy on credit, try to make a good down payment. Bankers say that such down payments indicate you have saved some money ahead before buying and your interest payments will be much less. That's thrift to them.

Maintaining any kind of bank account is in your favor and if you have an ever-ready cushion you maintain in your checking account for emergencies, it shows you are a good credit risk.

Owning a home naturally is a big asset. But if you are buying a home and regular mortgage payments have been made, it indicates you handle credit with responsibility.

Your total debts, according to a rough rule of the thumb, should not exceed a third of your "discretionary" spending for the year. Discretionary money is what's left over after you have paid for essentials such as food, housing, clothing, insurance.

* * * *

A STEADY income is desired. If your earnings depend upon commissions, tips or fees you are less likely to be a good credit risk than the person with a salaried income.

Prompt payment of bills, even small ones and including utilities means much when a banker or credit manager checks on you.

So happy buying — via credit. But don't overdo it just because it seems so easy.

THERE'S A difference in the stepped-up Vietnam war and the Korean strife as noted in California employment.

Above-average gains in employment are being noted in California shipbuilding, air and water transportation. But there has been a decrease in employment in ordnance manufacturing in recent months, while in the Korean conflict employment in those industries increased 17 times in a two-year period.

Wells Fargo Bank, in a study just completed, notes California shipbuilding in July gained 12.5% over a year ago.

HEAVY engineering construction contracts awarded in Southern California the first seven months of 1965 reached a peak of $547,033,042, an increase of 94% over the comparable period of 1964. Utility and airport contracts showed the greatest gains, reports the Associated General Contractors.

Previous growth records for Allstate Insurance Companies and Allstate Life Insurance Companies were broken during the first six months of 1965. Sales for fire and casualty lines to car or home owners were up $50,040,000 or 14.1% over the previous record breaking first half of 1964.

Life insurance operations added $369,000,000 of insurance in force for the first half of the year, raising the total to $3 billion 879 mililon.

Downey Realtors Eye Convention

DOWNEY — President Russell M. Yerkes of Downey Board of Realtors announced last week the Downey board has been receiving advance registrations for the coming California Real Estate Association convention to be held in Los Angeles at the Biltmore Hotel Sept. 24-30.

Yerkes stated a "beautiful entry" in the State Achievement Contest had been submitted for the board as a result of the "hard work" of Realtor Helen Wheelus who chairmanned the Achievement Committee this year.

He said the entry of 15-year old Downey Senior High student Vicki Nadsady has been entered in the State Essay Contest — the theme of which is "What We Expect Of Our Legislators."

BIG HOMES OFFERED
Offering extra-large homes with up to six bedrooms, Fullerton Hills is showing new models at the development.

Fullerton Hills Has New Models

The public is invited to see the new model homes now open at the Fullerton homesite of Fullerton Hills.

A builder's spokesman announced that hundreds of enthused viewers continue to visit the model area at Fullerton Hills weekly.

The landscaped community of 170 homes is situated on Brea Blvd. in Fullerton and has been referred to by many as the newest prestige address in the city. Other highlights are underground utilities, 3-car garages, completely finished inside, pool size lots and optional air conditioning.

* * * *

OFFERED ARE three, four, five and six bedroom homes with two, three and four baths. Both one and two story and tri-level homes are available. The homes have been engineered on terraced lots, many of which afford marine and mountain views. A trade-up program is proving a very satisfactory plan for home-seekers. A $500 landscaping allowance is also offered.

Beautiful furnished model homes are located on Brea Boulevard in Fullerton, just north of the Harbor and Brea Boulevard intersection at Hillcrest Park in Fullerton.

Prices range from $34,950 with excellent financing said to be available.

Veterans Eligible in Barkley Square

A new FHA loan for veterans, in addition to the existing program for World War II and Korean veterans, now permits all veterans to purchase a home at Barkley Square, the newest prestige development in Cypress, with a down payment as low as $1,700 on homes priced from $27,950 to $32,000, reports Stanley W. Sampson, president for Barkley Development Co.

Under the 1965 Housing Act, special FHA loans are now available to cold war veterans who have had 90 days of service and veterans whose GI loan eligibility has expired.

* * * *

UP TO 2,400 square feet of living space under roof is offered in three to four-bedroom models with two to three baths, large family rooms, raised or sunken living rooms, and walk-in wardrobes.

Barkley Square's unique patio-kitchens, designed for indoor and outdoor entertainment, provide all the built-ins.

Furnished models may be reached via Carson to Moody. Turn right on Moody to Barkley Square. Or drive east on Spring (which becomes Cerritos) to Moody. Left on Moody to new homes.

ATTRACTIVE FIREPLACE
Large living rooms with attractive fireplaces are among features of Barkley Square Homes where new FHA loans for veterans are available.

IN DOLPHIN TERRACE
This modern ranch style home with a three-car garage is among the attractive offerings in Dolphin Terrace in Fountain Valley.

Location of Dolphin Terrace Has Big Appeal to Home Buyer

A major factor in the rapidly-increasing sales pace at Dolphin Terrace No. 2 is the proximity to the soon to be completed Garden Grove and San Diego Freeways, according to Robert Plumbleigh, builder-developer of the new Fountain Valley Community.

"Another factor," he explained, is the "bonus room," a large unfinished area which may serve the buyer in many different uses, ranging from a large two or three-bedroom suite, to a spacious rumpus or hobby room.

Plumbleigh pointed out that buyers, who, after viewing the models and plans, decide exactly how the area will fit into the family's individual needs, may have the room finished immediately, with the costs included in the total loan.

* * * *

THE "BONUS ROOM" is just one of the many features incorporated into the architecturally designed Medallion homes, which contain from three to six bedrooms, offered in a wide range of floor plans, and one and two-story or split-level exterior stylings.

The homes also contain numerous features for family convenience, such as formal dining rooms, spacious family rooms and large, two or three car garages. Bathrooms have double pullmans and feature extensive use of ceramic tile.

Other features included in the homes are wall-to-wall carpeting, custom fireplaces, master bedroom suites, and forced-air heating systems.

* * * *

THE HOUSES are situated on large lots, which provide ample room for the installation of a swimming pool, or extensive landscaping and gardens, it was noted. Lawns, sprinklers and year-yard fencing are already provided.

Prices range from $26,950 and the homes can be purchased on terms featuring a down payment of 5%. Plumbleigh pointed out that a guaranteed trade plan is in effect at the development, enabling buyers to move into a new home immediately.

Dolphin Terrace is located on Newhope St., just west of Harbor Blvd. and south of Edinger in Fountain Valley. Furnished model homes are open daily.

Douglas, UAL Speed Technical Data Flow

United Air Lines and Douglas Aircraft Company have worked out advanced data processing techniques which vastly speed the flow of technical information to the air line for maintenance of its DC-8 jetliner fleet.

Called the data line transmission program, the system furnishes concise, accurate and latest technical data in a matter of days, rather than months.

Revisions in the basic parts catalog, formerly made by a conventional printing process—time consuming and expensive—now are accomplished twice weekly by relay between data processing machines at Douglas' Long Beach plant and the UAL base in San Francisco.

Growing Room Feature in New Showcase Home

One of the many features attracting favorable comment from visitors to the new second unit at Showcase Homes is the "custom completion" plan offered purchasers at the Westminster community, it was announced by Frank McFarland Sr., sales agent.

The "custom completion" plan, he explained, gives buyers the choice in many of the custom details and planning options, to suit the family's individual needs and requirements.

One of the major planning options, he pointed out, is the "growing room," an innovation in home design pioneered by Showcase in earlier developments.

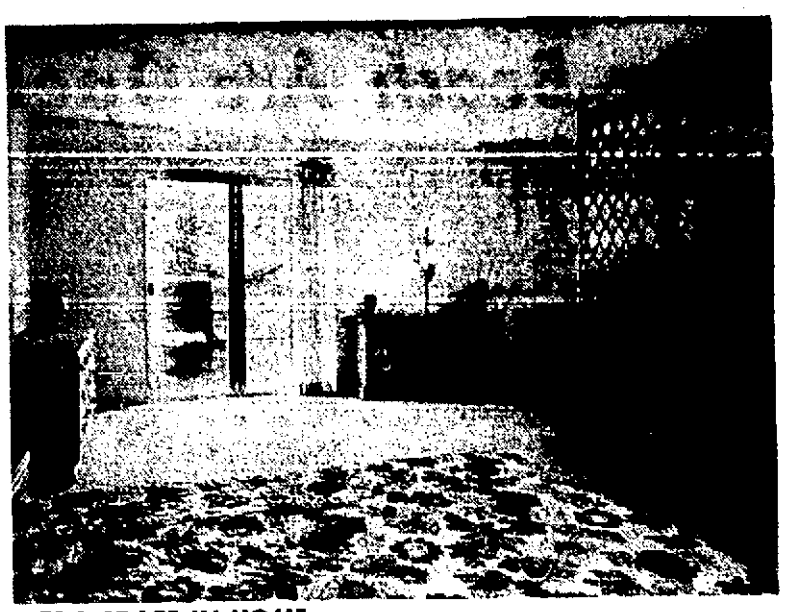

* * * *

THE "GROWING ROOM," featured in many of the plans available, is a spacious area that can be utilized by a family in a variety of ways, from an extra two or three-bedroom suite, to a spacious rumpus or hobby room. Furthermore it can be redesigned over the years to meet the changing needs of the family.

The "growing room," McFarland pointed out, can be finished immediately, if the purchaser so desires, with the improvement costs being added to the original loan.

* * * *

THE MEDALLION development offers homes in a wide variety of exterior stylings, featuring one and two-story designs based on floor plans, providing from three to six bedrooms. All-electric kitchens are equipped with a full compliment of built-in appliances. Homes in the new unit are priced from $25,950. All utility lines in the development are underground, it was noted. The new second unit of Showcase Homes is located on Hazard Ave. at Brookhurst in Westminster and model homes and sales office are open daily from 10:30 to 8 p.m.

EXTRA SPACE IN HOME
A custom completion plan is offered in Showcase Homes newest development under which the large "growing room" may be finished to suit the needs of the family.

Models Are Open Nights

Tremendous interest evinced in the finest of Tustin's residental developments, Red Hill Ridge, has prompted builder Henry C. Cox to extend viewing hours to 9 p.m.

Two of his 24 architect-designed, custom-built homes will be open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. for public convenience.

Completely furnished, the New Orleans French and the California Hacienda are at 2111 and 2132 Saltair Drive, Tustin.

Cox's luxury homes feature more than 100 ideas—a kitchen with 26 built-ins, master suite with separate "his and hers" dressing rooms and individual baths with adjoining shower room and full-sized sauna-steam room.

Buying Power Cut Through Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A man who earned $5,000 to $10,000 a year in 1949 would now have to earn a third again as much to maintain the same purchasing power, according to "Finance Facts."

The publication said a married couple with two children and a $6,000 annual income in 1949 paid $344 in Federal income and social security taxes, leaving $4,656 in spendable income. To have this same purchasing power in 1965, this couple would need an income of $6,781 in 1965.

New Meredith Homes Near Beach Are Open

IN PREVIEW SHOWING

Meredith Gardens in Huntington Beach, located at Brookhurst and Adams, pictures here just one model of "complete street of landscaped and furnished models" now having its preview showing. The $15,000,000 development of split-level and two-story designed homes by veteran builder Eddy Meredith, is drawing hundreds of homeowners every weekend and is reported to have presold over 100 homes.

Among the newest of Huntington Beach's developments making real estate headlines, is Meredith Gardens—a $15,000,000 new homes concept by veteran Orange County builder Eddy Meredith.

Hundreds of homebuyers poured through the new development of split-level and two-story homes last weekend and it is reported by the builder that over 100 homes are already presold in the preview showing now going on.

To make it attractive and to give homeowners a real picture of the development on completion, the builder has completely landscaped and furnished a street of six models, each one in a different design and decor.

The three, four and five-bedroom residences are part of whole community which will have over 400 homes upon completion with their own school and their own private recreational park. All utilities will be underground and the Meredith development is planned on streets complete with cul de sacs, sewers, sidewalks and beauty of variety with homebuyers having the choice of 28 different exteriors.

* * * *

THE ALL - ELECTRIC homes feature formal dining rooms plus informal dining areas, two and three-car garages, large walnut panelled family rooms with massive fireplaces, spacious living rooms and extra large master bedrooms.

All homes feature wall-to-wall carpeting including in the price starting at $32,000 with 90% financing and 30-year loans available.

Other features are massive foyers, GE kitchens with ceramic tile counters, marble pullmans and ceramic tile in the baths, hand rubbed walnut cabinetry throughout, large concrete patio areas, concrete drives and sidewalks, generous use of brick and stone veneer and sewers.

* * * *

THE MEREDITH HOMES are all planned for elegance, space and with walk-in closets and storage areas. A grant deed, no leasehold is another feature.

To reach Meredith Gardens from the Long Beach area drive out the San Diego Freeway to Garden Grove Blvd., and turn south on Brookhurst to just beyond the intersection of Adams or drive down the Coast Hwy. 101 to Brookhurst and turn north to Adams one mile.

Premier's '4 Ways Better' Home Formula Is Appealing

The combination of Huntington Beach location and Premier Homes "4 Ways Better" formula has led to the sale of over 100 homes in the new subdivisions. In reporting this success, sales agent Frank MacFarland said that Premier was still able to offer immediate move-in on some models.

The Realtor pointed out that Huntington Beach had become one of the most desirable residential areas in the Southland since the extension of the San Diego Freeway from Los Angeles. He said that homebuyers in the area had a wide choice of new homes and were shopping extensively before deciding.

"We feel that Premier's '4 Ways Better' formula—which includes a lower price than comparable offerings in Huntington Beach — has proved itself through the exceptional sales and buyer acceptance," he said.

PRIDE OF PLACE among the "4 Ways Better" assets is given to "Total Convenience" kitchens, McFarland reports. Premier Kitchens are all-electric. A double oven with independent controls is featured. The housewife may bake in one oven while broiling in the other. Electric range, range hood, automatic dishwasher, and custom-mounted bench top food center with mixer and blender are included in the kitchen appointments.

Offered in three and four-bedroom models with two baths, the homes are priced from $24,750 with VA no down, FHA minimum down and conventional financing all available.

ATTRACTIVE INTERIOR

Elegant interiors at Premier Homes North and South in Huntington Beach, as typified by this model home, have produced over 100 sales to date. Immediate occupancy is offered still on some models. Prices start at $24,750.

Will Discuss Tax Method

Two speakers will be featured at Thursday's meeting of the Estate Planning and Trust Council at the Petroleum Club.

Wallace Braden, state inheritance tax appraiser, and Margaret Groscup, attorney for the department, will discuss "California's Inheritance Tax Procedures." Their talks will be followed by a question and answer period.

Des Moines to Get Farm Machine Firm

DES MOINES—Purchase of the former Solar Aircraft plant here and relocation of his company's executive offices from Detroit to Des Moines, was announced by John G. Staiger, president of Massey-Ferguson Inc., the third largest farm and industrial equipment manufacturer in the United States.

Staiger said that the 590,000-square-foot factory, purchased from Iowa State University Foundation will become MF's North American Implement Plant. When in full production, the plant will assemble most of the farm implements sold by Massey-Ferguson in North America.

The firm will spend about $2.5 million in renovating and equipping the factory and in doubling the size of the existing office facilities on the 59-acre site.

The combined executive offices and implement assembly plant, said Staiger, will have an eventual total of about 900 employes.

Escrow Exec to Talk

COMPTON—Lloyd Powell, manager of Garfield Escrow Co. in Montebello, will be guest speaker at the Sales Clinic meeting of the Compton-Lynwood Board of Realtors to be held Monday, 8 a.m., at the Board Annex, 409 N. Bullis Road, Compton.

New Meredith Homes Near Beach Are Open

IN PREVIEW SHOWING

Meredith Gardens in Huntington Beach, located at Brookhurst and Adams, pictures here just one model of "complete street of landscaped and furnished models" now having its preview showing. The $15,000,000 development of split-level and two-story designed homes by veteran builder Eddy Meredith, is drawing hundreds of homeowners every weekend and is reported to have presold over 100 homes.

Among the newest of Huntington Beach's developments making real estate headlines, is Meredith Gardens—a $15,000,000 new homes concept by veteran Orange County builder Eddy Meredith.

Hundreds of homebuyers poured through the new development of split-level and two-story homes last weekend and it is reported by the builder that over 100 homes are already presold in the preview showing now going on.

To make it attractive and to give homeowners a real picture of the development on completion, the builder has completely landscaped and furnished a street of six models, each one in a different design and decor.

The three, four and five-bedroom residences are part of whole community which will have over 400 homes upon completion with their own school and their own private recreational park. All utilities will be underground and the Meredith development is planned on streets complete with cul de sacs, sewers, sidewalks and beauty of variety with homebuyers having the choice of 28 different exteriors.

* * * *

THE ALL-ELECTRIC homes feature formal dining rooms plus informal dining areas, two and three-car garages, large walnut panelled family rooms with massive fireplaces, spacious living rooms and extra large master bedrooms.

All homes feature wall-to-wall carpeting including in the price starting at $32,000 with 90% financing and 30-year loans available.

Other features are massive foyers, GE kitchens with ceramic tile counters, marble pullmans and ceramic tile in the baths, hand rubbed walnut cabinetry throughout, large concrete patio areas, concrete drives and sidewalks, generous use of brick and stone veneer and sewers.

* * * *

THE MEREDITH HOMES are all planned for elegance, space and with walk-in closets and storage areas. A grant deed, no leasehold is another feature.

To reach Meredith Gardens from the Long Beach area drive out the San Diego Freeway to Garden Grove Blvd., and turn south on Brookhurst to just beyond the intersection of Adams or drive down the Coast Hwy. 101 to Brookhurst and turn north to Adams one mile.

Premier's '4 Ways Better' Home Formula Is Appealing

The combination of Huntington Beach location and Premier Homes "4 Ways Better" formula has led to the sale of over 100 homes in the new subdivisions. In reporting this success, sales agent Frank MacFarland said that Premier was still able to offer immediate move-in on some models.

The Realtor pointed out that Huntington Beach had become one of the most desirable residential areas in the Southland since the extension of the San Diego Freeway from Los Angeles. He said that homebuyers in the area had a wide choice of new homes and were shopping extensively before deciding.

"We feel that Premier's '4 Ways Better' formula—which includes a lower price than comparable offerings in Huntington Beach — has proved itself through the exceptional sales and buyer acceptance," he said.

PRIDE OF PLACE among the "4 Ways Better" assets is given to "Total Convenience" kitchens, McFarland reports. Premier Kitchens are all-electric. A double oven with independent controls is featured. The housewife may bake in one oven while broiling in the other. Electric range, range hood, automatic dishwasher, and custom-mounted bench top food center with mixer and blender are included in the kitchen appointments.

Offered in three and four-bedroom models with two baths, the homes are priced from $24,750 with VA no down, FHA minimum down and conventional financing all available.

ATTRACTIVE INTERIOR

Elegant interiors at Premier Homes North and South in Huntington Beach, as typified by this model home, have produced over 100 sales to date. Immediate occupancy is offered still on some models. Prices start at $24,750.

Des Moines to Get Farm Machine Firm

DES MOINES—Purchase of the former Solar Aircraft plant here and relocation of his company's executive offices from Detroit to Des Moines, was announced by John G. Staiger, president of Massey-Ferguson Inc., the third largest farm and industrial equipment manufacturer in the United States.

Staiger said that the 590,000-square-foot factory, purchased from Iowa State University Foundation will become MF's North American Implement Plant. When in full production, the plant will assemble most of the farm implements sold by Massey-Ferguson in North America.

The firm will spend about $2.5 million in renovating and equipping the factory and in doubling the size of the existing office facilities on the 59-acre site.

The combined executive offices and implement assembly plant, said Staiger, will have an eventual total of about 900 employes.

Escrow Exec to Talk

COMPTON — Lloyd Powell, manager of Garfield Escrow Co. in Montebello, will be guest speaker at the Sales Clinic meeting of the Compton-Lynwood Board of Realtors to be held Monday, 8 a.m., at the Board Annex, 409 N. Bullis Road, Compton.

Will Discuss Tax Method

Two speakers will be featured at Thursday's meeting of the Estate Planning and Trust Council at the Petroleum Club.

Wallace Braden, state inheritance tax appraiser, and Margaret Gruscup, attorney for the department, will discuss "California's Inheritance Tax Procedures." Their talks will be followed by a question and answer period.

SOLOIST AT BIXBY PARK STARLIGHT SERENADE
A versatile musician, Ralph Gari plays clarinet, saxophone

He's a man of note

headlines Starlight Serenade

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

"We call him the boarder, because we just see him once in a while," said pretty Mrs. Ralph Gari with an Irish twinkle.

Gari, clarinet and saxophone featured soloist for Long Beach Symphony's Starlight Serenade Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Bixby Park, has a schedule only a man who loves his work could keep.

Five days a week he is first clarinet and saxophone soloist for the Disneyland Band. Mondays and Tuesdays he teaches private students at his Laguna music store. Friday and Saturday nights he heads the Ralph Gari Jazz Quartet, now playing at the Outrigger in Laguna. All of this, in addition to concert and recording dates.

Things are busy at the Gari home, too. The couple moved last week into a five-level house that climbs the side of a Laguna canyon.

The movers didn't like the stairs. "They quit after six hours," said Mrs. Gari.

The multi-levels are just fine with the four lively Gari children — Timothy, 14, Tony, 10, Gina, 9, and Lisa, 5. Midnight, the cat, and Dolly, the toy poodle, have settled in nicely, but Murky, a dog of uncertain ancestry, remains faithful to his former home three miles away and has to be picked up there every night before bedtime.

Says first-grader to kindergartener:

'Here's what REALLY happens at school'

". . . remember, only six people on the jungle jim."

This is the week when mamas haul out lunch pails (see story, page W-6) and kids regretfully desert sunlit parks (page W-5). It's summer's end . . . the start of school . . . another year of books, recess and–oh boy! –lunch (for week's menu, see page W-7).

By PAT McDONNELL

For several thousand moppets in the Long Beach area, Monday is a red-letter day.

They will be starting school.

To ease apprehensions, many edgy kindergarteners-to-be have been seeking advice from those more worldly in the ways of schooldom—the experienced first-graders.

Many of these pint-sized authorities were on hand during registration at Bixby School to discuss the pitfalls and fun, the trials and tribulations of kindergarten.

Bill Berry, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Berry had this to contribute:

"First, those kindergarten kids have got to learn the rules. The outside rule is . . . anyone who runs or throws sand has to sit on a bench.

"I had to sit on a bench once.

"The inside rule is you'd better do what the teacher says or you have to stay on the rest mat.

"I had to sit on the mat one time."

When asked what he found most difficult about kindergarten, the one-year school veteran said:

"The rules!

"It really was hard trying to learn those rules. Sometimes I failed on them."

COLETTE CALKINS, 6, took a more detached view of the weighty matter of launching one's education. Her only comment:

"I think those kindergarten kids will do o.k."

Donald Herrbach, 6, wanted to straighten out a "misunderstanding" for kindergarteners who are signing up.

"They shouldn't be afraid of getting 'rolled' in school. I was 'cause rolling makes me dizzy. But all they do is write your name and stuff on paper," he said.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Herrbach also stressed the importance of "listening when the teacher's talkin' 'cause some of those teachers are awful strict."

Denny Dik, 6, was concerned over another phase of kindergarten life.

"They should remember to let only six people on the jungle jim."

Denny also counseled his followers about going down the slide. "Always lie down," he pointed out, "or you might get hurt."

What did he find most difficult in the kindergarten curriculum?

"Lining up right," Denny replied.

The slide also was brought up, too, by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bach's red-haired daughter, Janet.

"I had a hard time learning how to play on it the right way," the freckled miss said.

Janet's favorite kindergarten "subject": playing in the sandbox.

BILL BERRY, FIRST GRADE (L.) AND KELLY GARLAND, KINDERGARTEN
". . . is your name really Jayne Mansfield?"

AND WHEN it comes to sand, 6-year-old Fred Nottage gets downright livid. At least he gets angry about sand that gets in his eyes because kindergarteners are throwing it.

Fred's word to new students: "Don't throw sand in people's eyes!"

"Keeping awake was the hardest thing about kindergarten, I even fall asleep when I'm just sitting."

Joy Backstrom's voice of experience fairly well summed up the kindergarten message for 1965.

The pert blonde advises her juniors "to play nicely with others and to be careful with scissors when cutting out and pasting on."

WILD WAVES SAY

A newsman's lesson in abbreviation

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Society Editor

A MOST delightful report was received from one Eric W. Owens, editor of the Ellesmere Port Pioneer, Wirral, Cheshire, England, along with the picture (right) of our own delightful and long-time court reporter, Lola Stanley, and daughter, Jane Riley.

The picture was made just prior to Lola and Jane's return here a few days ago and the story, in Eric's own words, follows:

"In t hustle and bustle o their 33-days European tour, Mrs. Lola Stanley, an official court reporter, and her dtr, Mrs. Jane Riley, both o Long Beach, California, found time to stop off at Ellesmere Port . . . to be officialy recd by t Mayor and Mayoress o the Cheshire town, Councillor and Mrs. W. Jones.

"Mrs. Stanley is closely associated with Soroptimist Club at Long Beach—the "sister" club to the Soroptimist Club of Ellesmere and t officers o the latter club were delighted to welcome Mrs. Stanley and her dtr.

"T two visitors frm Long Beach were welcomed by the Mayor in the Mayor's parlour in t town's spacious civic hall. T Mayor ws pleased to show t town's civic regalia and plate to t visitors, who were particularly interested in t Mace. This gold Mace is the only one in England which has on it t American eagle emblem and it ws t gift o t Cabot Carbon Co. Ltd., an American firm.

"T Mayor recalled that during t last World War the Long Beach Soroptomist Club sent hundreds of food parcels to Ellesmere and he sd t people o his town wd always remember t people o Long Beach for their sympathy and practical expressions o good-will during t last war."

He concluded that when "t two Californians" were in London they stayed, appropriately, at the Washington Hotel.

FOR HOSTESS type bravery, surely none in this town can equal Carolyn (Mrs. Jack) Stanaland. She is issuing invitations to 2,000 women, who will be the residential workers for the United Crusade Drive, to attend a "coffiesta" on Oct. 18. Now get this. The party will be at her home on Country Club Drive. Carolyn is chairman of the drive's women's committee.

How to handle that many women in a two-hour span, from 10 a.m. to noon? Well, the Stanalands' home is on two acres with a lot of it composed of front yard. It is here that Carolyn will set up umbrella topped tables to take care of the influx of guests.

It would be worth being a volunteer to see how one hostess can handle that many guests. Do know that the I, P-T's "Mac" Epley and a movie star (he'll be virile and famous, that's a committee promise) will be present.

SCORES OF happy people descended on Petroleum Club Thursday to be guests of Marian and Warren Ten Eyck at what had to be one of, if not the most, gala cocktail buffet parties of the week. What added a vibrant, electric spirit to night was when guests discovered it was the Ten Eycks' 40th wedding anniversary, a fact the host and hostess kept secret until their nearest and dearest let the cat out of the bag. Then there were toasts to them in gay and excited profusion.

LOLA HOLDS ONLY MACE IN ENGLAND WITH AMERICAN EAGLE

Assisting during cocktails on the terrace and dinner in the Terrace Room were their sons and daughters-in-law, Dr. Fred and Jane Ten Eyck of Lido Isle (Fred has just begun his new practice in Newport Beach) and Jack and Sue Ten Eyck of San Marino.

HOPING THEIR vacation would never end, but knowing it had to, Dr. Eugene and Romola Temkin and their children, Linda, 14, and Daryl, 12, faced the sort of gray reality of coming home this week after three months in Europe.

They visited 11 countries, all told, with Gene mixing medico business with pleasure in three of them. He participated in medical seminars at Prato Hospital (near Florence) Italy; in Athens, Greece; and had lengthy consultations with leading cardiologists in Paris, France.

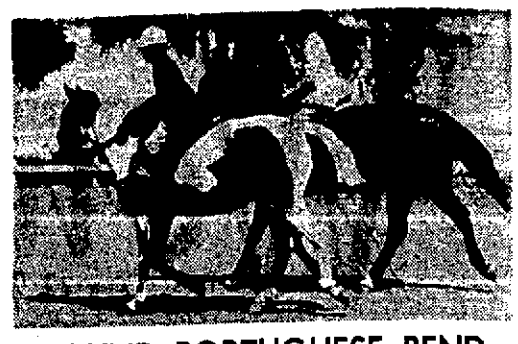

First week of their travels was spent in Israel where they were with a party of celebrities including Dr. Sabin, famed for the Sabin vaccine, and Dr. Joseph Kaplin, retiring professor of physics at UCLA and head of the International Geophysical Year this past year. All were there for dedication of the new Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

The Temkins were entertained by Ben Gurion and Golda Maier, Israel's foreign minister and the only woman who holds such a post in the world. They were in heady company.

TO UNDERSTAND this, you have to be able to read double just about. Dr. Jim and Diane McCray are here from UC at Davis with their twins, Cyndy and Connie, to spend a week with her parents, Dr. Bill and Hazel Fisher. Cyndy and Connie are third generation twins. Granddad Bill is a twin and Mama Diane has a twin brother, Dean Fisher.

Hazel and Bill, incidentally, spent a large hunk of this summer touring 10 countries in Europe where they had a marvelous time (who, pray tell, wouldn't?). Bill staunchly defends Switzerland as his favorite while Hazel (a Spanish teacher) is a true-blue Spain fan.

AROUND PORTUGUESE BEND

Horse show---ready, set and going---is slated Sept. 25-26

PORTUGUESE BEND—The Portuguese Bend National Horse Show (this is the eighth annual) has gotten to be a habit with members of Peninsula Committee for the Children's Hospital.

Again running and gaining stride as one of the largest equestrian events on the West Coast, the show is set for Sept. 25-26 at the Portuguese Bend Riding Club on Narcissa Drive.

More than 750 entries already have been received . . . and those in the know are forecasting an even larger turn out than last year's 5,000 spectators.

* * * *

THE ALL-JUNIOR show, set for the 25th, will have three medal and 11 stake classes among the 18 classes competing. The open show for the 26th will see 11 stake classes competing, along with classes of hunters and jumpers.

Gala event for Saturday night is a dinner dance in the club's historic courtyard, which will sparkle with thouands of miniature lights decorating giant pine trees.

Chairman for the two-day event is Mrs. Albert W. Day; Mmes. Ernest W. Hahn and Frederick H. Reed are co-chairmen. Dinner dance chairman is Mrs. Howard O. Coale, Jr. Directing the planning is committee president Mrs. Charles I. Houghton.

Sunday school teachers bidden

Long Beach Chapter of Child Evangelism Fellowship will sponsor a luncheon Thursday noon at Clifton's Cafeteria, open to all persons interested in conducting church school classes for children. Demonstrations will be given in the use of flannel board, visual aids, flash cards and memory verses. The group is inter-denominational.

Goldenwed pair to be feted today

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Jones Sr., 655 Roycroft Ave., will be feted at a golden wedding open house this afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m. in the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones Jr., 651 Uutimo.

Co-hosting will be their other son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Jones, as well as the goldenweds seven grandchildren.

The honorees were married in Columbus, Ohio, on Sept. 1, 1915. They have been residents of Long Beach for 35 years. Jones, still an active business man, has been in the automobile business and in general contracting since coming to Long Beach.

Approximately 100 friends have been bidden to the celebration.

Antique show set in county

Tenth annual Antique Show and Sale will take place Sept. 23-27 in Retail Clerks Auditorium, Buena Park, under co-sponsorship of Garden Grove Auxiliary to National Assistance League and Southern California Association of Antique Dealers.

Event is open to the public and show hours are noon to 10 p.m. daily, noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Bergland, Bowles names linked by engagement

Engagement of Jean Louise Bergland to John Michael Bowles has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Bergland, Long Beach.

The bride-elect, a teacher at Holmes Elementary School, was graduated from Long Beach State College, where she was president of Alpha Phi and a member of Phi Kappa Tau and Spurs.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bowles, Long Beach, teaches at Poly High School. He also was graduated from LBSC, where he was vice-president of Phi Kappa Tau, a member of Statesmen and the senior class senator.

The wedding will take place Dec. 18.

MR. AND MRS. MARK H. HOUGHTON

Luncheon set

A luncheon-card party will be held at St. Bartholomews Parish Hall Tuesday, 11:30 a.m., with Nellie McKeegan, hostess.

Mark Houghtons plan golden date

A golden wedding reception next Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m., will be given for Mr. and Mrs. Mark H. Houghton in the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Billings, 410 Ultimo Ave.

The Houghtons, residents of Long Beach since 1919, reside at 4218 Vista St.

Married Sept. 21, 1915, in Alameda, they met at Tufts University, Medford, Mass., where both were members of the class of 1911.

* * * *

HOUGHTON was associated with his father in the grocery business at Tenth Street and Alamitos Avenue when first he came here. In 1921 he entered municipal service in the office of Long Beach City Engineer, retiring in 1957 with the title of chief right-of-way engineer for Long Beach.

The goldenweds have a son, Scott Houghton now serving as a petroleum engineer in Nigeria, and five grandchildren.

Mrs. Houghton has been active in many women's organizations during her residency in this city.

WILD WAVES SAY

A newsman's lesson in abbreviation

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Society Editor

A MOST delightful report was received from one Eric W. Owens, editor of the Ellesmere Port Pioneer, Wirral, Cheshire, England, along with the picture (right) of our own delightful and long-time court reporter, Lola Stanley, and daughter, Jane Riley.

The picture was made just prior to Lola and Jane's return here a few days ago and the story, in Eric's own words, follows:

"In t hustle and bustle o their 33-days European tour, Mrs. Lola Stanley, an official court reporter, and her dtr, Mrs. Jane Riley, both o Long Beach, California, found time to stop off at Ellesmere Port . . . to be officialy recd by t Mayor and Mayoress o the Cheshire town, Councillor and Mrs. W. Jones.

"Mrs. Stanley is closely associated with Soroptimist Club at Long Beach—the "sister" club to the Soroptimist Club of Ellesmere and t officers o the latter club were delighted to welcome Mrs. Stanley and her dtr.

"T two visitors frm Long Beach were welcomed by the Mayor in the Mayor's parlour in t town's spacious civic hall. T Mayor ws pleased to show t town's civic regalia and plate to t visitors, who were particularly interested in t Mace. This gold Mace is the only one in England which has on it t American eagle emblem and it ws t gift o t Cabot Carbon Co. Ltd., an American firm.

"T Mayor recalled that during t last World War the Long Beach Soroptomist Club sent hundreds of food parcels to Ellesmere and he sd t people o his town wd always remember t people o Long Beach for their sympathy and practical expressions o good-will during t last war."

He concluded that when "t twn Californians" were in London they stayed, appropriately, at the Washington Hotel.

FOR HOSTESS type bravery, surely none in this town can equal Carolyn (Mrs. Jack) Stanaland. She is issuing invitations to 2,000 women, who will be the residential workers for the United Crusade Drive, to attend a "cofiesta" on Oct. 18. Now get this. The party will be at her home on Country Club Drive. Carolyn is chairman of the drive's women's committee.

How to handle that many women in a two-hour span, from 10 a.m. to noon? Well, the Stanalands' home is on two acres with a lot of it composed of front yard. It is here that Carolyn will set up umbrella topped tables to take care of the influx of guests.

It would be worth being a volunteer to see how one hostess can handle that many guests. Do know that the 1, P-T's "Mac" Epley and a movie star (he'll be virile and famous, that's a committee promise) will be present.

SCORES OF happy people descended on Petroleum Club Thursday to be guests of Marian and Warren Ten Eyck at what had to be one of, if not the most, gala cocktail buffet parties of the week. What added a vibrant, electric spirit to night was when guests discovered it was the Ten Eycks' 40th wedding anniversary, a fact the host and hostess kept secret until their nearest and dearest let the cat out of the bag. Then there were toasts to them in gay and excited profusion.

Assisting during cocktails on the terrace and dinner in the Terrace Room were their sons and daughters-in-law, Dr. Fred and Jane Ten Eyck of Lido Isle (Fred has just begun his new practice in Newport Beach) and Jack and Sue Ten Eyck of San Marino.

HOPING THEIR vacation would never end, but knowing it had to, Dr. Eugene and Romola Temkin and their children, Linda, 14, and Daryl, 12, faced the sort of gray reality of coming home this week after three months in Europe.

They visited 11 countries, all told, with Gene mixing medico business with pleasure in three of them. He participated in medical seminars at Prato Hospital (near Florence) Italy; in Athens, Greece; and had lengthy consultations with leading cardiologists in Paris, France.

First week of their travels was spent in Israel where they were with a party of celebrities including Dr. Sabin, famed for the Sabin vaccine, and Dr. Joseph Kaplin, retiring professor of physics at UCLA and head of the International Geophysical Year this past year. All were there for dedication of the new Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

The Temkins were entertained by Ben Gurion and Golda Maier, Israel's foreign minister and the only woman who holds such a post in the world. They were in heady company.

TO UNDERSTAND this, you have to be able to read double just about. Dr. Jim and Diane McCray are here from UC at Davis with their twins, Cyndy and Connie, to spend a week with her parents, Dr. Bill and Hazel Fisher. Cyndy and Connie are third generation twins. Granddad Bill is a twin and Mama Diane has a twin brother, Dean Fisher.

Hazel and Bill, incidentally, spent a large hunk of this summer touring 10 countries in Europe where they had a marvelous time (who, pray tell, wouldn't?). Bill staunchly defends Switzerland as his favorite while Hazel (a Spanish teacher) is a true-blue Spain fan.

AROUND PORTUGUESE BEND

Horse show---ready, set and going---is slated Sept. 25-26

PORTUGUESE BEND—The Portuguese Bend National Horse Show (this is the eighth annual) has gotten to be a habit with members of Peninsula Committee for the Children's Hospital.

Again running and gaining stride as one of the largest equestrian events on the West Coast, the show is set for Sept. 25-26 at the Portuguese Bend Riding Club on Narcissa Drive.

More than 750 entries already have been received . . . and those in the know are forecasting an even larger turn out than last year's 5,000 spectators.

* * * *

THE ALL-JUNIOR show, set for the 25th, will have three medal and 11 stake classes among the 18 classes competing. The open show for the 26th will see 11 stake classes competing, along with classes of hunters and jumpers.

Gala event for Saturday night is a dinner dance in the club's historic courtyard, which will sparkle with thouands of miniature lights decorating giant pine trees.

Chairman for the two-day event is Mrs. Albert W. Day; Mmes. Ernest W. Hahn and Frederick H. Reed are co-chairmen. Dinner dance chairman is Mrs. Howard O. Coale, Jr. Directing the planning is committee president Mrs. Charles I. Houghton.

Sunday school teachers bidden

Long Beach Chapter of Child Evangelism Fellowship will sponsor a luncheon Thursday noon at Clifton's Cafeteria, open to all persons interested in conducting church school classes for children. Demonstrations will be given in the use of flannel board, visual aids, flash cards and memory verses. The group is inter-denominational.

Goldenwed pair to be feted today

Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Jones Sr., 655 Roycroft Ave., will be feted at a golden wedding open house this afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m. in the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones Jr., 651 Uutimo.

Co-hosting will be their other son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Jones, as well as the goldenweds seven grandchildren.

The honorees were married in Columbus, Ohio, on Sept. 1, 1915. They have been residents of Long Beach for 35 years. Jones, still an active business man, has been in the automobile business and in general contracting since coming to Long Beach.

Approximately 100 friends have been bidden to the celebration.

Antique show set in county

Tenth annual Antique Show and Sale will take place Sept. 23-27 in Retail Clerks Auditorium, Buena Park, under co-sponsorship of Garden Grove Auxiliary to National Assistance League and Southern California Association of Antique Dealers.

Event is open to the public and show hours are noon to 10 p.m. daily, noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Bergland, Bowles names linked by engagement

Engagement of Jean Louise Bergland to John Michael Bowles has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence R. Bergland, Long Beach.

The bride-elect, a teacher at Holmes Elementary School, was graduated from Long Beach State College, where she was president of Alpha Phi and a member of Phi Kappa Tau and Spurs.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bowles, Long Beach, teaches at Poly High School. He also was graduated from LBSC, where he was vice-president of Phi Kappa Tau, a member of Statesmen and the senior class senator.

The wedding will take place Dec. 18.

MR. AND MRS. MARK H. HOUGHTON

Luncheon set

A luncheon-card party will be held at St. Bartholomews Parish Hall Tuesday, 11:30 a.m., with Nellie McKeegan, hostess.

Beach City Engineer, retiring in 1957 with the title of chief right-of-way engineer for Long Beach.

The goldenweds have a son, Scott Houghton now serving as a petroleum engineer in Nigeria, and five grandchildren.

Mrs. Houghton has been active in many women's organizations during her residency in this city.

Mark Houghtons plan golden date

A golden wedding reception next Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m., will be given for Mr. and Mrs. Mark H. Houghton in the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Billings, 410 Ultimo Ave.

The Houghtons, residents of Long Beach since 1919, reside at 4218 Vista St.

Married Sept. 21, 1915, in Alameda, they met at Tufts University, Medford, Mass., where both were members of the class of 1911.

John W. Hancocks to fete their daughter, son-in-law

MR. AND MRS. JAMES P. WALLER JR.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Hancock will entertain at cocktails and a dinner party at Virginia Country Club Saturday in honor of their daughter, Carol Jean, and her bridegroom, James Parrish Waller Jr.

The newlyweds, on a delayed honeymoon trip to Hawaii, will return by jet Thursday. They cruised to the islands aboard the Lurline.

Carol Jean is a graduate of Progress School and attended Redlands University. Her husband, whose parents are Mrs. Adolphe Frezin of Austin, Tex., and James Waller of Fresno, attended Fresno State.

More than 100 invitations have been extended to the 7 p.m. black-tie dinner in the couple's honor. Assisting at the smart, formal affair will be Miss Linda Hancock, Richard Hancock, Mr. and Mrs. John Hancock III and Messrs. and Mmes. Harrill Bower, Jonah Jones, Kenneth Wing, Albert Stevenson and Dan Dunlap.

Joe Moshay's society orchestra will play for dinner dancing.

To greet members at tea

An annual membership tea will be given Thursday, 2 p.m., in Virginia Country Club by Edna Lillich Davidson, heralding the eighth season of her books, plays and music salons.

Books with a champagne touch will be the theme of the affair.

Mrs. Davidson recently returned from her annual visit to the East Coast and New York. She will give highlights of her trip, including up-to-the-minute information regarding publishers, authors, theater personalities and restaurants.

The salon and luncheon series at the club will open in October. Those wishing information about the new season should contact Mary Beery, 361½ Orange Ave.

Grandmothers to play cards

State of California Grandmothers Club 62 will have a luncheon-card party Tuesday, 11 a.m., in the Garden Room, Third Street and Alamitos Avenue.

Baptist ceremony unites local pair

MRS. THOMAS SULLIVAN

Gowned in a gown of silk organza and taffeta, Judy Anne Pearson become the bride of Thomas Don Sullivan at a ceremony Friday in Truett Memorial Baptist Church.

Pam Condgon attended as maid of honor. Karen Pearson, Carolyn Brent and Susan and Sandra Sullivan were bridesmaids, Cheryl Anne Thomas was flower girl.

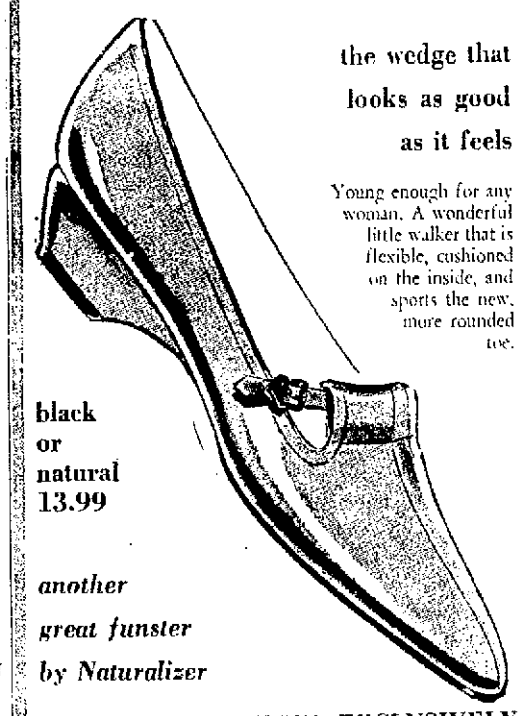

The new Mrs. Sullivan, an alumna of Wilson High School and a student at Long Beach State College, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton P. Pearson, 4508 Lavante St.

THE GROOM, son of the Donald E. Sullivans, 621 Los Altos Ave., also an alumnus of Wilson, attended the University of Nebraska where he was a member of Pi Kappa Phi.

He was attended by Darwin Sterud as best man. Completing the wedding party were James Stoops, Patrick Pope, Allen Pearson and Richard Pearson, ushers.

Following a honeymoon at Lake Tahoe and San Francisco, the newlyweds will make their home in Long Beach.

She has the key to success education . . . you just can't get enough of it

By JOYCE CHRISTENSEN
I, P-T Staff Writer

Exercising a mind that clicks along as quickly as her fingers flick an adding machine keyboard, Serafina Gunter likes to expound on her favorite subject: education. You just can't get enough of it, she believes.

And "Fina"is a gal who practices what she preaches.

Marriage and motherhood interrupted her attendance at University of Arizona after three years, and it was not until her daughter entered Long Beach City College that she went back to school herself—"although I always thought about it," she adds.

That was in the spring of 1959, and she has been a fixture on the Long Beach State College campus ever since. Although an English major in her early college days, accounting had, through the years, captured her interest. It was in that subject that she started back to school "as a lark."

FROM ENROLLMENT in one subject, she progressed to night courses while working at a full-time job, and later to school full time while working 32 to 36 hours a week at a "part-time" job. She received her B.S. degree in accounting in the summer of 1962 and her M.S. in June, 1963—qualifying for membership in Phi Kappa Phi, which demands the same grade point average as Phi Beta Kappa.

She was awarded her Certified Public Accountant's certificate in 1964, quite a feat, since 1964 statistics record the granting of such certificates to only 1,900 women since the first was issued to a woman in 1899.

Today she teaches on a full-time basis as an assistant professor at Long Beach State College and enjoys a partnership in the accounting firm of Knox, Gunter and Knox.

And, she'll show up on campus this fall on the other side of the classroom, too, as a student in the foreign language department.

A POPULAR speaker before clubs and organizations when time allows, she usually titles her talk with the question: "Are women second class citizens?" She promptly answers herself with a resounding, "yes!"

What's more, she's apt to blame women for her answer.

Women, she says, are often their own worst enemies because "they're willing to accept their second class status, are willing to do equal work for less pay."

Girls who prepare only for homemaking waste their creative talents, she feels, but when a women does stay home, it doesn't have to mean a mental blackout. They can avoid coffee hours with the neighbors by using the time to read and to keep interested. Then they are not failing their husbands or themselves as women, says Mrs. Gunter.

"Women's progress comes not through competition, but through cooperation and complimentation of the opposite sex. We must learn to respect ourselves and not to think of ourselves as pale and submissive echoes of our alter egos. We must dispel the masculine standards of what a woman should be.

"Only through hard work can we elevate ourselves from our second-class citizenship."

Goldenweds honored on anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Hellman, Long Beach residents for eight years, marked their 50th wedding anniversary at a family party hosted by their sons and daughters.

Wed in Chicago, Ill., Hellman was employed as an electrical engineer in Downers Grove, Ill., for 40 years. He later developed property in Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri prior to their move west.

The goldenweds have six children — C. J. Hellman, Long Beach; Mrs. George Busby and Mrs. Robert James, Camarillo; Mrs. Ethel Cup, Oxnard; Mrs. Phil Hart, Manihawikin, N.J., and Ronald T. Hellman, serving with the Air Force in Germany—also 16 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Newlyweds home

Lawyers' Wives greet 31 new members

Thirty-one new members of Lawyers' Wives of Long Beach will be honored Tuesday at a 10 a.m. brunch in the home of Mrs. Harold Frerks, 393 Los Altos Ave.

Members and guests will be greeted by Mrs. Richard McWilliams, president, and Mrs. Jack Stanley, membership chairman, prior to a program on "Hats by Jorn" with commentary by Odetta Fisher.

Plans will be made for the group's annual fashion show slated Oct. 19 at Lafayette Hotel. Proceeds will go to Legal Aid Office, main philanthropy of Lawyers' Wives.

Membership in the group is open to all wives of lawyers who are members of California State Bar Association and who practice or reside in the Long Beach area.

Smooth Out Wrinkles

Wrinkles are riverbeds of dry cells because the plasma colloids or water carriers of the skin have been dried out through harsh weather. You can bring life again to your skin and protect it against wind and the drying effect of powder. Ask your druggist for a little oil of Olay and before you make-up smooth over the face, neck and hands to check dryness and give your skin a delightful dewy bloom.

She was awarded her Certified Public Accountant's certificate in 1964, quite a feat, since 1964 statistics record the granting of such certificates to only 1,900 women since the first was issued to a woman in 1899.

Today she teaches on a full-time basis as an assistant professor at Long Beach State College and enjoys a partnership in the accounting firm of Knox, Gunter and Knox.

And, she'll show up on campus this fall on the other side of the classroom, too, as a student in the foreign language department.

A POPULAR speaker before clubs and organizations when time allows, she usually titles her talk with the question: "Are women second class citizens?" She promptly answers herself with a resounding, "yes!"

What's more, she's apt to blame women for her answer.

Women, she says, are often their own worst enemies because "they're willing to accept their second class status, are willing to do equal work for less pay."

Girls who prepare only for homemaking waste their creative talents, she feels, but when a women does stay home, it doesn't have to mean a mental blackout. They can avoid coffee hours with the neighbors by using the time to read and to keep interested. Then they are not failing their husbands or themselves as women, says Mrs. Gunter.

"Women's progress comes not through competition, but through cooperation and complimentation of the opposite sex. We must learn to respect ourselves and not to think of ourselves as pale and submissive echoes of our alter egos. We must dispel the masculine standards of what a woman should be.

"Only through hard work can we elevate ourselves from our second-class citizenship."

Goldenweds honored on anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Hellman, Long Beach residents for eight years, marked their 50th wedding anniversary at a family party hosted by their sons and daughters.

Wed in Chicago, Ill., Hellman was employed as an electrical engineer in Downers Grove, Ill., for 40 years. He later developed property in Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri prior to their move west.

The goldenweds have six children — C. J. Hellman, Long Beach; Mrs. George Busby and Mrs. Robert James, Camarillo; Mrs. Ethel Cup, Oxnard; Mrs. Phil Hart, Manihawikin, N.J., and Ronald T. Hellman, serving with the Air Force in Germany—also 16 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Newlyweds home

Mr. and Mrs. John Davis (the former Mrs. William J. Fisher) are now at home at 1435 Atantic Ave., following their recent marriage.

Lawyers' Wives greet 31 new members

Thirty-one new members of Lawyers' Wives of Long Beach will be honored Tuesday at a 10 a.m. brunch in the home of Mrs. Harold Frerks, 393 Los Altos Ave.

Members and guests will be greeted by Mrs. Richard McWilliams, president, and Mrs. Jack Stanley, membership chairman, prior to a program on "Hats by Jorn" with commentary by Odetta Fisher.

Plans will be made for the group's annual fashion show slated Oct. 19 at Lafayette Hotel. Proceeds will go to Legal Aid Office, main philanthropy of Lawyers' Wives.

Membership in the group is open to all wives of lawyers who are members of California State Bar Association and who practice or reside in the Long Beach area.

Smooth Out Wrinkles

Wrinkles are riverbeds of dry cells because the plasma colloids or water carriers of the skin have been dried out through harsh weather. You can bring life again to your skin and protect it against wind and the drying effect of powder. Ask your druggist for a little oil of Olay and before you make-up smooth over the face, neck and hands to check dryness and give your skin a delightful dewy bloom.

One last vacation fling

"...but what'll crawdads do on school days?"

By MARGARET McKEAN
I. P-T Staff Writer

Green glens—shadows shading the shallows of a meandering stream—footpaths along the water's edge and moss-covered stepping stones bridging the banks . . .

They'll be strangely silent next week when little wayfarers are closeted again in classrooms.

For three marvelous months, parks like Averill in San Pedro have held coteries of carefree kids who remembered only one admonition—"You be home in time for supper!"

Tomorrow they'll trade timeless days for time tables, bicycle bells for school bells beckoning them to desks.

The sailboats will be drydocked and mom won't have to save coffee cans for crawdad collections. The crawdads in Averill Park streams are always hungry. They amble over to a bacon baited hookless line and hang on while they're hoisted high above water and plopped into pails.

Just as accommodating—but unusual in their crimson color—are the stream-monsters dubbed "red devils" by the kids. Anybody can catch a brown crawdad, but the prideful cry is "Look, I gotta red devil!"

This fishing feat is equaled only by a boy's prowess as he balances a jean-clad frame on moss-covered rocks leading haphazardly to a far-away bank.

But the banks of a boy's knowledge must show assets other than the largess of lazy summer days. And—besides—there ARE those miniature vacations named Saturday and Sunday.

AND WHAT TOMORROW? ... it'll be school hooks 'stead of fishhooks

Wed in Salt Lake City, Matlocks to reside in L.B.

On Saturday in St. Mark's Cathedral, Salt Lake City, Richard Aaron Matlock Jr. claimed Josephine Macdonald as his bride in an impressive Episcopalian ceremony.

The new Mrs. Matlock wore a finely detailed gown of peau de soie delicately embroidered with Chantilly lace and seed pearls and styled with chapel train. A three-quarter length Chantilly mantilla covered her blonde hair and she carried a bouquet of orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Mary D. Whitehurst of Cincinnati, Ohio, was maid of honor. Others in the entourage were the bride's sisters, Margaret and Alice Macdonald, and Margueritte Matlock, sister of the bridegroom.

WILLIAM MATLOCK was his brother's best man. Ushering the 150 guests were brothers of the bride and bridegroom, Robert Matlock, Douglas and Duncan Macdonald.

The bride attended the University of Arizona and is a graduate of University of Utah. The bridegroom, an alumnus of Wilson High and Long Beach City College, also is a graduate of the University of Utah. He will take gradue work at Long Beach State College this fall. He is a member of Pi Kappa

...school-set pales at fancy food

Mrs. Robert J. Fair, grand prize winner of the I, P-T annual Cook Book Contest, doesn't have to waste time in gourmet cooking for school lunch boxes.

She's discovered, as many mothers have, that you just can't beat peanut butter and jelly or baloney sandwiches for popularity among the lunch pail set.

"I like baloney best," said her daughter Kathy, 7. "I usually take the lettuce out and eat it separately."

Kathy's friend, Michele has more exotic tastes. She likes a plain mustard sandwich. No baloney, please!

* * * *

MRS. FAIR, mother of six, packs five school lunches and her husband's every night "to avoid the morning rush."

All carry lunch boxes except Michael, 11, who, as a sixth grader, "wouldn't be caught dead with lunch box in hand." Michael, like his cohorts, is a brown bag man.

Mrs. Fair has another thing in common with other mothers of lunch-carrying students: the thermos problem.

"I don't mind in the least when they break," she said. "And I never replace them. The small ones have a problem opening them, it makes a lighter pail to carry and I don't have to remember to soak them with soda overnight."

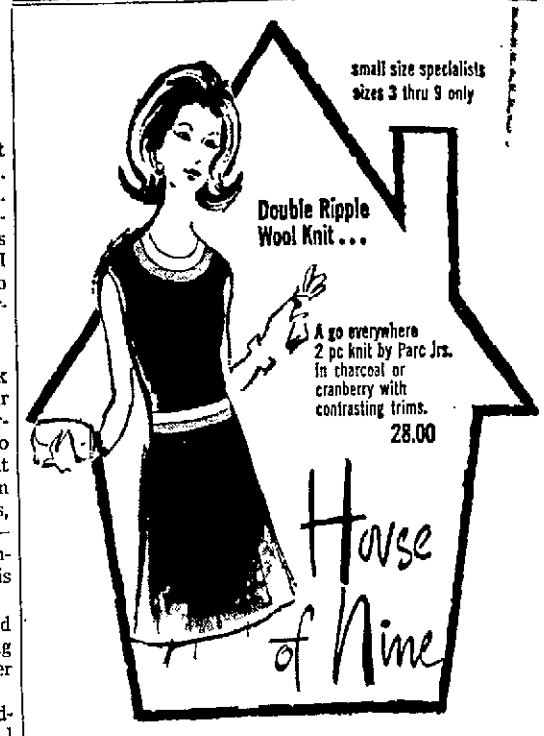

* * * *

THE CHILDREN buy milk at school and with their sandwiches have fruit (oranges are best, according to Kathy), and a "surprise" at the bottom. The surprise can be corn chips, potato chips, raisins, cookies or candy—but the surprise most enjoyed by the Fair children is a Skooter Pie.

"I don't like cake," said Maureen, 9. "The frosting sticks to the wax paper when you open it up."

In Michael's crowd, trading is the thing. "And if I can sell something, I buy ice cream," he reported to his mother.

Yacht Club reception honors newlywed couple

A reception in Long Beach Yacht Club honored newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alan Phillips following their exchange of vows Saturday in St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

The former Barbara Ann House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Murray House, 6811 Lees Way, the bride wore an empire gown of silk satin and Alencon lace. Her illusion veil was caught by a winged cap of lace.

Preceding her to the altar were her sister, Susan House, maid of honor, Deborah Schwack, Jenni Jackson, Christine Norrie, Katherine Ramsden and Carolyn Johnson.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Earl Phillips of Patterson, asked Merlin Haile to be his best man.

Ushering duties were performed by Dan Donnelly, Robert Phillips, Dale Johnson, Stan Mitchell and Ron Cavanaugh.

Mrs. Phillips, an alumna of Wilson High School, is a junior at the University of the Pacific, Stockton, where she is affiliated with Delta Gamma Sorority.

Her husband is an alumnus of UOP and was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa.

The couple will reside in Stockton.

Richardson, Silverston vows are solemnized

A Friday ceremony in Bethany Baptist Church united in marriage Patricia Sue Silverton and C. Paul Richardson.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Shirley Silverston, 5702 Mezzanine Way, and Nate Silverston of Dayton, Ohio, wore a gown of peau de soie and chantilly lace.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Richardson, 326 Forhan Ave., asked Ken Ammann to be his best man. Ushering the 60 guests to their places were Rod Reid and Tom Parker.

Before departing on a wedding trip to Carmel the couple was honored at a reception in the home of the bride's mother.

Mrs. Richardson is an alumna of Wilson High School and is a student at Long Beach City College.

Her husband was graduated from Jordan High School and is attending Long Beach State College where he is affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Lunch's favorite period for some school kids

. . . It takes bite out of the long school day

By MARY NETH
I. P-T Staff Writer

This week a local lady asked her small grandson "What do you like best about school"

"Lunch," said he.

The forthright reply came as a surprise to grandmother—but not to us.

Members of the I-P-T. women's staff have long known that lunch rivals recess as the most delectable time of day for many a grade-schooler.

If there had been any question, a slip-up made it quite clear. One Sunday we inadvertently dropped (that is, goofed and forgot) the school menu—a regular school-months' feature of this section.

What an uproar! The telephone buzzed with big complaints from mad-as-hornet small fry.

"You're just mean," began one such indignant caller. "I ate on the lunch bench today, 'cause I didn't know they had tacos in the cafeteria. I love tacos. I don't like you."

"Don't you know, I always cut out the menu and put it on mama's bulletin board?" asked another displeased miss.

"Then, she knows what NOT to fix for dinner. Yesterday I had macaroni and cheese twice."

JUNIOR HIGH schoolers don't seem to take the school menu as seriously. (Probably because, unfortunately, some think it's square to eat a square meal. They'd rather munch on popcorn 'n candy bars.)

But from elementary grade youngsters, the menu of the day—the whole cafeteria ritual—is most important.

"It makes you feel just a little bit grown-up carrying the tray and all," confided one pert pigtailed second-grader.

Her advice to first-graders about to embark on scholastic eating-out:

"Don't goof around in line and push and tickle. You may drop your tray, then everyone will laugh, and the monitor will look real mad.

"Don't talk loud. It makes the teacher fuss. Yuh have to learn to talk in sort of a loud whisper."

AS TO MENU favorites, staffers at Long Beach Unified School District's central kitchen have found that chopped steak and hot dogs are always sell outs.

All told, they do a terrific job of catering to the persnickity tastes of the thousands of 6 to 18-year-olds they serve each day; have only one real dilemma.

"It's difficult to answer the accusation—from adults—that the menu is dull, is the same month-in and month-out," explains one of the school dieticians.

"Ever try introducing a new dish to youngsters at home? Well, we get the same thumbs-down response when something different appears on the cafeteria menu.

"And when you're serving 27,000 lunches a day, you can't afford to displease."

Concludes a plumpish 9-year-old, "Yep, I like everything they serve O.K.—but I still want to know what it's going to be.

"Then I can think about it in the morning while I'm doing my arithmetic—and I feel all warm and happy inside."

FIRST THIS YEAR

Here's what is on the menu

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of Sept. 13-17:

MONDAY: Hot dog, buttered green beans, apricot halves, oatmeal cookie and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Barbecued beef on bun, creamy coleslaw, spicy applesauce, coconut bar cookie and milk.

THURSDAY: Meat loaf, mashed potatoes-gravy, royale fruit cup, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

FRIDAY: Macaroni and cheese, buttered spinach, berry sauce with whipped topping, tuna sandwich and milk.

The above items make up the elementary children's lunch 30c. Soup and salad from the junior-senior high school a la carte menu are sold in the elementary schools, but they may be purchased by the children only after they have purchased the tray lunch.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH

MRS. R. A. PHILLIPS

Yacht Club reception honors newlywed couple

A reception in Long Beach Yacht Club honored newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Richard Alan Phillips following their exchange of vows Saturday in St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

The former Barbara Ann House, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Murray House, 6811 Lees Way, the bride wore an empire gown of silk satin and Alencon lace. Her illusion veil was caught by a winged cap of lace.

Preceding her to the altar were her sister, Susan House, maid of honor, Deborah Schwack, Jenni Jackson, Christine Norrie, Katherine Ramsden and Carolyn Johnson.

THE BRIDEGROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Earl Phillips of Patterson, asked Merlin Haile to be his best man.

Ushering duties were performed by Dan Donnelly, Robert Phillips, Dale Johnson, Stan Mitchell and Ron Cavanaugh.

Mrs. Phillips, an alumna of Wilson High School, is a junior at the University of the Pacific, Stockton, where she is affiliated with Delta Gamma Sorority.

Her husband is an alumnus of UOP and was a member of Phi Sigma Kappa.

The couple will reside in Stockton.

Richardson, Silverston vows are solemnized

A Friday ceremony in Bethany Baptist Church united in marriage Patricia Sue Silverton and C. Paul Richardson.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Shirley Silverston, 5702 Mezzanine Way, and Nate Silverston of Dayton, Ohio, wore a gown of peau de soie and chantilly lace.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Richardson, 326 Forhan Ave., asked Ken Ammann to be his best man. Ushering the 60 guests to their places were Rod Reid and Tom Parker.

Before departing on a wedding trip to Carmel the couple was honored at a reception in the home of the bride's mother.

* * * *

Mrs. Richardson is an alumna of Wilson High School and is a student at Long Beach City College.

Her husband was graduated from Jordan High School and is attending Long Beach State College where he is affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

. . . they'll celebrate golden anniversary

Country club fete to honor Smiths

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Wade Smith will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at Lakewood Country Club.

Their sons and daughters will host the event. More than 90 guests are expected.

The Smiths, married in San Francisco in 1915, came to Long Beach in 1930. Mrs. Smith, a native Californian (she was born in Yreka), is a thespian of many years standing. As a child she played Little Eva on the San Francisco stage; as an adult and busy mother of four, she has been active in the local Community Playhouse.

* * * *

HER HUSBAND, a resident of California since 1911, was born in Appleton City, Mo. A former Long Beach businessman, he currently helps with his son's business and has no plans for retirement.

A member of the Long Beach Gun Club, he participates in shooting events, collecting medals and trophies for marksmanship.

The Smiths' children are Mrs. Roy Cranfield, Long Beach; Woodrow W. Smith, Lakewood; Peter Brooks, Beverly Hills; and Robert A. Smith, Garden Grove. They have nine grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

College patrons ta have tea

Patrons of City College will have a membership tea and card party, 1 p.m. Friday, in the Garden Room, Third Street and Alamitos Avenue. Mrs. F. E. Melick, chairman, will be assisted by Mmes. Nellie Johnson, David Davies, Violet Lowry, M. J. Strohman, Fred Schafer, H. E. Dixon, H. A. Zelsdorf and Bess DeBussman.

Foreign artists will compete

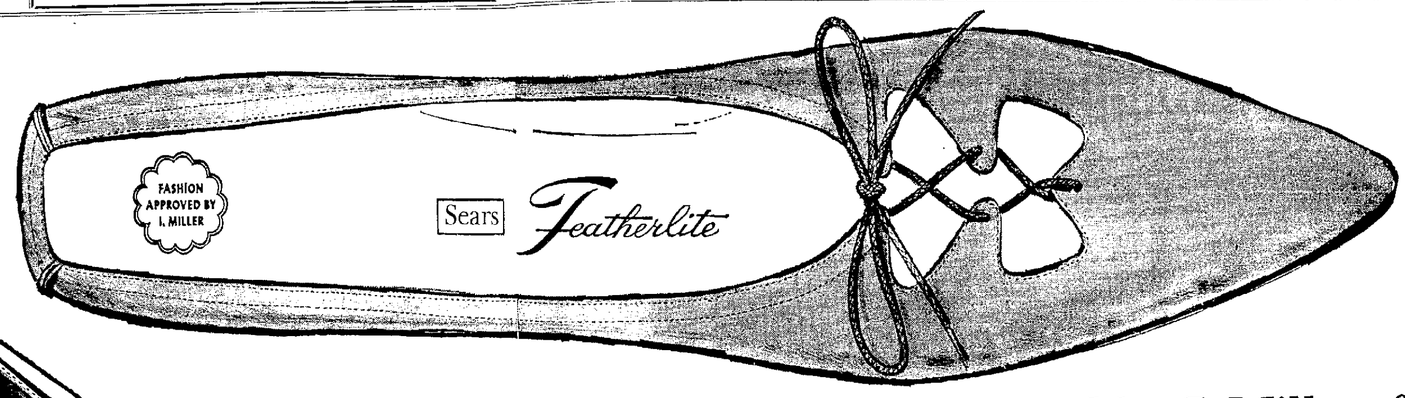

Israel, Ireland, France, Brazil, Mexico, Canada and Cambodia head the lineup of foreign nations whose artists will compete with those from Los Angeles in a juried art show Oct. 1-13 at Century City.

The First International Art Festival, which will occupy Century City pavilion, has set a deadline of Sept. 24 for entries by local artists, according to Alvin Crane, chairman of the event for Westwood Art Association, jointly sponsoring the show with Century City and Westwood Chamber of Commerce.

Lunch's favorite period for some school kids

. . . It takes bite out of the long school day

By MARY NETH
I. P-T Staff Writer

This week a local lady asked her small grandson "What do you like best about school"

"Lunch," said he.

The forthright reply came as a surprise to grandmother—but not to us.

Members of the I-P.T. women's staff have long known that lunch rivals recess as the most delectable time of day for many a grade-schooler.

If there had been any question, a slip-up made it quite clear. One Sunday we inadvertently dropped (that is, goofed and forgot) the school menu—a regular school-months' feature of this section.

What an uproar! The telephone buzzed with big complaints from mad-as-hornet small fry.

"You're just mean," began one such indignant caller. "I ate on the lunch bench today, 'cause I didn't know they had tacos in the cafeteria. I love tacos. I don't like you."

"Don't you know, I always cut out the menu and put it on mama's bulletin board?" asked another displeasured miss.

"Then, she knows what NOT to fix for dinner. Yesterday I had macaroni and cheese twice."

JUNIOR HIGH schoolers don't seem to take the school menu as seriously. (Probably because, unfortunately, some think it's square to eat a square meal. They'd rather munch on popcorn 'n candy bars.)

But from elementary grade youngsters, the menu of the day—the whole cafeteria ritual—is most important.

"It makes you feel just a little bit grown-up carrying the tray and all," confided one pert pigtailed second-grader.

Her advice to first-graders about to embark on scholastic eating-out:

"Don't goof around in line and push and tickle. You may drop your tray, then everyone will laugh, and the monitor will look real mad.

"Don't talk loud. It makes the teacher fuss. Yuh have to learn to talk in sort of a loud whisper."

AS TO MENU favorites, staffers at Long Beach Unified School District's central kitchen have found that chopped steak and hot dogs are always sell outs.

All told, they do a terrific job of catering to the persnickity tastes of the thousands of 6 to 18-year-olds they serve each day; have only one real dilemma.

"It's difficult to answer the accusation—from adults—that the menu is dull, is the same month-in and month-out," explains one of the school dieticians.

"Ever try introducing a new dish to youngsters at home? Well, we get the same thumbs-down response when something different appears on the cafeteria menu.

"And when you're serving 27,000 lunches a day, you can't afford to displease."

Concludes a plumpish 9-year-old, "Yep, I like everything they serve O.K.—but I still want to know what it's going to be.

"Then I can think about it in the morning while I'm doing my arithmetic—and I feel all warm and happy inside."

FIRST THIS YEAR

Here's what is on the menu

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of Sept. 13-17:

MONDAY: Hot dog, buttered green beans, apricot halves, oatmeal cookie and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Barbecued beef on bun, creamy coleslaw, spicy applesauce, coconut bar cookie and milk.

THURSDAY: Meat loaf, mashed potatoes-gravy, royale fruit cup, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

FRIDAY: Macaroni and cheese, buttered spinach, berry sauce with whipped topping, tuna sandwich and milk.

The above items make up the elementary children's lunch 30c. Soup and salad from the junior-senior high school a la carte menu are sold in the elementary schools, but they may be purchased by the children only after they have purchased the tray lunch.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH

MONDAY: Neapolitan macaroni, buttered green beans, California fruit cup, hot buttered French bread and milk.

TUESDAY: Hamburger on bun, potato salad, spicy applesauce, coconut bar cookie and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, buttered peas, cantaloupe wedge, raised biscuit-butter and milk.

THURSDAY: Pizza, tossed green salad, berry sauce with whipped topping, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

FRIDAY: Baked fish with oven browned potatoes or burrito, combination coleslaw, apricot halves, whole wheat bread-butter and milk.

Couples to live in L. B.

Delaney-Greenberg

Polytechnic High School graduates Terri Geenberg and Stephen C. Delaney exchanged wedding vows at St. Luke's Episcopal Church.

Parents of the couple are Messrs. and Mmes. Robert G. Greenberg, 4161 Del Mar Ave., and L. A. Delaney, 3917 Linden Ave.

The bride wore a Chantilly lace tiered sheath. Her illusion veil was held by a pearl crown decorated with crystal drops. Sharon Greenberg attended her sister as maid of honor.

* * * *

Tom Donnelly served the bridegroom as best man. Other members of the wedding party included Virginia Wood, Martha Delaney, Barry Hessenius, Ronald Ginghe, Robert Opsal and Randy Spangnolette.

A reception at Petroleum Club followed the ceremony.

The newlyweds will reside in Long Beach on their return from a honeymoon in Santa Barbara.

MRS. STEPHEN DELANEY

MRS. D. M. CASSIDY

Cassidy-Walker

Los Angeles Latter Day Saints Temple was setting for the Saturday ceremony uniting in marriage Sharon Linnell Walker and Danny Michael Cassidy.

A traditional bridal gown of silk faille and lace was worn by the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Walker, 12172 Foster Rd., Rossmoor.

In contrast to the ivory hues of the bridal ensemble were the yellow crepe gowns worn by her attendants, Mrs. Ronald Omohundro, Margaret Price and Janet Jacobs.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cassidy, 4372 Maury Ave., was served by his brother, John, best man. Ushers were J. Raymond Walker and Scott Walker.

* * * *

FOLLOWING a reception in the Long Beach Latter Day Saints Chapel, the newlyweds departed on a wedding trip to San Francisco.

Both were graduated from Poly High School. The bridegroom attended Long Beach City College and has served a 30-month mission in Peru for the LDS Church.

The bride attended Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah.

The couple will be at home in Long Beach.

DEAR ABBY

Tape his snore--maybe it'll end 15-year nightmare!

ABAGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: There is nothing new about my problem, but that doesn't help me. My husband snores. He can snore in any position—on his back, his stomach or on either side.

If he happens to fall asleep sitting up, he snores that way. It's not just an ordinary snore, either. He has variations. He grunts, groans, mumbles, whistles and snorts.

Once I woke up at three A.M. wondering who was mowing our lawn. Another time I dreamed that a tugboat was stuck in our bedroom and was signaling for help. Sometimes he snores so loud he wakes himself up. It's not a matter of his being overly tired.

He snores when we're on vacation, too. This has been going on for 15 years, Abby. I can't remember the last night I've had a good night's sleep. When I threaten to go into another bedroom, he says he didn't marry me to sleep alone.

I've begged him to see a doctor, thinking maybe he has polyps in his nose, but he won't go. He won't wear a chin guard and he won't try any of the remedies that have helped others. I am through arguing. He won't even admit he snores. He says I snore. Can you help me? SNORER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE, First, your husband must be convinced that he snores. If you don't own a tape recorder, borrow or rent one. But get the evidence.

After confronting him with the proof it will be easier to get him to a doctor. If the doctor can't help him, you have your choice of beeswax ear plugs or separate bedrooms.

If reliable statistics were available on the number of married couples who sleep alone because of snoring, they would astound you.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I don't mean to be disrespectful toward anyone's religion, but can you tell me how a priest, who has never been married, can tell married people how to get along with each other? Also, how can he give advice on problems of love and romance when he hasn't had any up-to-date experience along those lines? Thank you. CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Most priests have had special training enabling them competently to counsel those who need help in all areas of human relations. A doctor doesn't need a boil on his neck to cure one.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: A relative of mine asked me to address a card from her to a three-year-old girl. On the envelope I wrote, "MISTRESS JANE DOE." This morning the child's mother telephoned me to inform me that I had made a serious mistake, that a "mistress" is a kept woman, and should never be used to address a child. The consensus of opinion among her friends is that I should have written "Miss." The child's mother seemed very much insulted. I would appreciate your opinion. MEANT WELL

DEAR MEANT. If the mother wants to get technical, "mistress" could mean a woman having authority or ownership, the female head of a family or school, etc., a woman teacher, OR a female paramour. However, knowing that you had none of these in mind in addressing her three-year-old daughter, she should have overlooked it. "Miss" would have been correct.

* * * *

DEAR READERS: I am conducting a survey on what I suspect is PUBLIC ENEMY NUMBER ONE TO NOCTURNAL TOGETHERNESS—snoring! If your husband (or wife) snores, send me a postcard in care of ABBY, BOX 69700, Los Angeles, California. Simply state how long you've put up with it and what you have finally done about it.

TWO YEARS ago, these British boys were but faces in the crowd. Drummer John Steel was a technical illustrator; Eric Burdon, vocalist, was a laborer; Charles Chandler, bass guitarist, an instrument maker; Eric Rowberry, organist, played that instrument in a church and Hilton Valentine, lead guitarist, was a machinist.

Now they make an astronomical joint income from recordings, personal appearances, TV shows and films. And every respectable teenager knows them on sight.

The housekeeper of the establishment, Maria, presides over the kitchen with an air of calm, although she speaks no English, only Spanish, and is having her first experience with American cooking.

The Garis lived in Las Vegas for 11 years before moving to Laguna. Gari headed a jazz quartet and was a member of house bands at El Rancho and Flamingo.

He likes Laguna better. "It's more relaxing," says this man on the go. "Las Vegas is a tense town."

GARI IS looking forward to his Long Beach engagement. He has appeared in guest performances with Long Beach Municipal Band and has Long Beach State College students.

The final concert of the season of Long Beach Symphony's popular Starlight Serenades, (repeat, 8 p.m. Tuesday at Bixby Park) is open to the public, admission-free.

Gari will play "Concertino for Clarinet" by von Weber, also two saxophone numbers — "Dance Episode" by John Rarig and "Concertina" by Jack Hayes.

MRS. RALPH GARI

Lauris Jones will conduct the orchestra in selections by Tchaikovsky, Benjamin Britten, Jerome Kern, Irving Berlin, Leroy Anderson and Richard Rogers.

There also will be a salute to the centennial anniversary of the Salvation Army.

Melodyland will rock with teens

"The Animals" will swing on stage at Melodyland Theatre Sept. 20 for a rollicking, rock 'n' roll, one-night stand.

Performing with this popular musical five from Britian will be Lesley Gore, sensational young U.S. vocalist and three home-grown musical combos: "The Four Castaways," "The Challengers," and the "Cannibal and the Headhunters."

TWO YEARS ago, these British boys were but faces in the crowd. Drummer John Steel was a technical illustrator; Eric Burdon, vocalist, was a laborer; Charles Chandler, bass guitarist, an instrument maker; Eric Rowberry, organist, played that instrument in a church and Hilton Valentine, lead guitarist, was a machinist.

Now they make an astronomical joint income from recordings, personal appearances, TV shows and films. And every respectable teenager knows them on sight.

Amaranth hosts breakfast Sunday

Palos Verde Court, Order of Amaranth, will entertain at a breakfast, 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. today, at Veterans Park Clubhouse, 101 E. 28th St. The public is welcome and tickets may be obtained at the door.

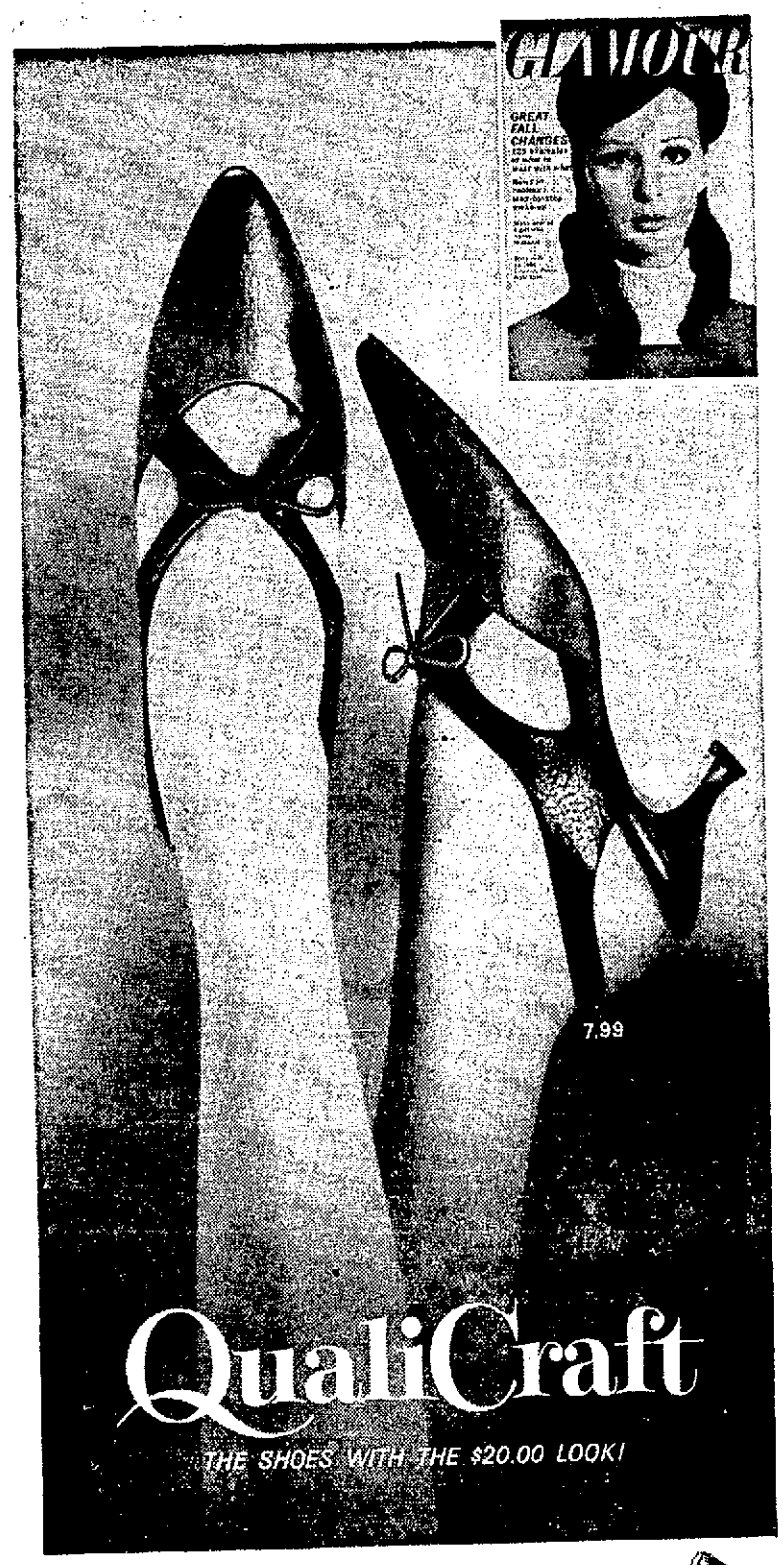

Noted drawings top exhibition in New York

A new exhibition of 44 drawings has opened at the Museum of Modern Art in New York dating from 1882 to 1964 by 33 artists from 9 countries.

Included are drawings by Baskin, Calder, Feininger, Grosz, Kirchner, Matisse and Redon—also studies for sculpture by Rodin, Gonzalez and Nakian.

The drawings will be shown until December.

INSPECTS COMPLETED WORK
Kengiro Azuma and "Mu 464"

Metal sculpture has mystery aura

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Kengiro Azuma in "Mu 464" has accomplished that to which all artists aspire, the balance or blending of idea and material. The sculpture, at the eastern corner of the Health Building at Long Beach State College, expresses the nature of sheet aluminum, yet a transformation has occurred. The viewer is satisfied that the material is aluminum . . . cut, welded, engraved, and bolted as it should be . . . yet is well aware of a great deal more than technique.

Of all the monumental sculpures created here this summer, "Mu" is the most mysterious. It does not reveal itself to the viewer. It follows no known scheme of geometric form; it is not a hexagon, a cylinder, nor a rectangle. Each aspect is different from all the others.

* * * *

TO UNDERSTAND the structure, the viewer must walk round and round it (best to be accomplished on weekends when the parking is easy), stand back, and let the work communicate. For "Mu" is non-rational. It comes from a frame of reference where the basis for Western logic, "a is a, and therefore cannot be x" is unknown.

The title, "Mu", means nothing, not nothing. It expresses a region of nonthingness which Western thinking eliminated as a possibility centuries ago. But this area is, in the last 100 years, receiving increased attention and high regard by Western poets, theologians, and psychologists. It expresses a region they believe lies behind our societal egos and personal subconsciousnesses.

Perhaps something of this was suggested in the New Testament: Now we see through a mirror, darkly, but then face to face."

* * * *

"MU 464" may, as well be enjoyed for its sheerly decorative aspects. The vertical planes are incomplete, they break and are taken up again. Their verticality is relieved by some eliptical forms, occasionally, with engraved line. On two sides, the sheet is broken with a series of teardrop-like incisions through which pleated aluminum is visible. The ancient seal of Azuma's family is placed on the crown where it catches the morning sun, and on the sunset side, an inscription in Japanese and English.

It will probably be some time before we all understand the works created in the few short months here this Summer.

Nonetheless, "no-thing" is something!

Gallery sets September exhibition

Traditional vs. contemporary trends is theme of the September exhibit at the Long Beach Art Association Gallery.

Best of show honor in the traditional bracket went to Jackie Bogenrief for her "Winter Sound." Second place in the category went to Margaret Bradbury for her "Autumns Beginning;" third place was won by Inga Lehne for "Boquet."

First place in the contemporary group was won by Inga Lehne for "Blue Hue," an abstract of blues and greens.

Second was "Pear Tree," by Melita Artin, third was "The Beatle Fan," by Ed St. Rickler.

Annual Fall Art Festival set in Anaheim

ANAHEIM — Exhibits in a variety of the creative arts will be shown in Pearson Park, Oct. 16-17, as the Anaheim Art Association and the Anaheim Parks and Recreation Department stage the second annual Fall Art Festival.

It is expected to attract more than 500 artists with over 5,000 exhibits in paintings, mosaics, stitchery and weaving, graphic arts, ceramics, hand wrought jewelry, and a multitude of other creative arts and crafts.

The public is invited to attend exhibits from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day. Deadline for entries is Oct. 13, according to Diana R. Dunn, president of the Anaheim Art Association.

RICHARD ERDMAN

Magnolia Theater to benefit

Richard Erdman will star in "Who's Afraid of Mildred Schwartz?" an original musical review presented for the benefit of Magnolia Theater's new building fund, Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the Reef Restaurant.

Erdman, frequently on television, has appeared in Long Beach at Magnolia Theater in "Under the Sycamore Tree," "Tunnel of Love," "Seven Year Itch" and other favorites.

He appeared at 601 performances in the Hollywood production of "Under the Yum-Yum Tree."

Re-issues of records at library

Good news for record fans from Long Beach Main Library. The Record Section now has re-issues of important recordings of the past for rental.

"Four Saints in Three Acts," by Virgil Thomson is available with the composer conducting the production. Luisa Tetrazzini is heard singing, "Operatic Arias and Songs," from "Mignon," "The Barber of Seville" and "Lucia de Lammermoor" on record.

* * * *

ALSO, "The Best of Mario Lanza," "Allegro," by Richard Rodgers, "Outstanding Jazz Compositions of the 20th Century," and "King of the Blues Trombone," featuring Jack Teagarden are among recent additions now available.

"Trios," include compositions of Beethoven, Brahms and Schubert played by Arthur Rubenstein, Jascha Heifetz and Emmanuel Feuermann. Another, "Treasury of Harpsichord Music," is played by Wanda Landowska.

Recordings may be borrowed from the main library for a two week loan period at a modest rental fee.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Doctor in house prescribes his own specialty: sandwiches

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

He has loads of both—patients and patience—and he can "dish" out Folded Egg Sandwiches as deftly as he can the pills.

Today's Chef of the Week, Wm. M. Carnes, M.D., deems it wise never to "set a precedent" and his cooking rarely ever takes-hold till he reaches a certain altitude —their mountain cabin in Idylwild. That's where he wrote the "prescription" for his famous sandwich.

Chief of the Medical Staff of the Long Beach Community Hospital, Carnes served as president last year of the Long Beach Society of Internal Medicine.

In private practice in Long Beach since 1957, he obtained his medical degree from the University of Louisville (Ky.) School of Medicine in 1946 and interned at Indianapolis General Hospital.

Dr. Carnes served internal medicine residencies in St. Elizabeth's, Lafayette, Ind., Good Samaritan in Los Angeles and the Long Beach Veterans' Administration Hospital.

He is on the teaching staff of the Harbor General Hospital, the board of directors of the Long Beach Heart Association and is a member of the Galen Club, the Kiwanis Club, Long Beach After-Dinner Speakers Club, the Long Beach Dinner Club and the committee of Boy Scout Troop 65.

BORN IN WILMORE, Ky., he remained there to earn his BA degree at Asbury College. He put his journalistic talents (which profession he once thought he might follow) to work as business manager of the college newspaper.

Disarming at times, Carnes can produce a fetching Kentucky dialect at the drop of a hat. He simply flabbergasted his Galen Club buddies, too, by winning first prize in a cow-milking contest.

Somewhere along in his career, Dr. Carnes devoted two years to the U.S. Army and 16 months to Korea.

Dr. Carnes lives in Belmont Heights with his wife (the former June Sprowl of Long Beach), sons Michael 15, Christopher 13, and daughter Carol 10.

Adept at gardening, carpentering and fishing, he landscapes everything, built the family cabin at Idylwild, also a sod house up on the Saskatchewan River where he fishes for pike. He's also a jillion-shot photographer.

WILLIAM (CHEF) M. CARNES, M.D.

ORIGINAL FOLDED EGG SANDWICH
Serves 6

1 doz. eggs
1 loaf sliced sour dough bread
1 lb. thick sliced bacon
¾ lb. sharp Cheddar cheese, grated
½ doz. green onions, finely chopped
3 tblsp. miracle whip
3 tsp. salsa brava
Milk as desired

Mix grated cheese, chopped onions, miracle whip and salsa brava with just enough milk to make a paste which spreads easily. Spread on one side of each MATCHED piece of bread. Bake in a 350-degree oven until nicely melted and until bottom of bread is lightly browned.

While these are baking, crisply fry bacon and drain well. Remove bread from oven, pair on plate and set aside to cool a bit.

Next, break 2 eggs in glass and pour as one into hot bacon fat, allowing whites to spread out. With deft motion of spatula, spread yolks over whites in any artistic figure desired. Salt and pepper to taste. Gently whip hot fat over egg. Lift egg gently with spatula, allow to drain, then place on cheesed bread. Top with 2 or 3 strips of bacon and other slice of cheesed bread.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

If you like castles . . .

There should be a French castle in your future if you are going to France this year, according to Air France travel advisors, who say many chateaux are easy to visit and open rewarding three-dimensional pages of history.

Most are set in gardens and forests which are particularly beautiful in late summer and fall. Easily accessible from Paris are the chateaux of Versailles, Fontainebleau, Ermononville, Chantilly, Compiegne, Malmaison, Maintenon, and Rambouillet, to name but a few.

Entrance fees are nominal, and the castles can be reached from Paris by train, bus, or excursion motorcoach. Visiting hours and additional information can be secured from La Demeure Historique, 146 Avenue des Champs Elysees.

WHEN THE VINES BOW LOW

Call of the Wine Country

If you can't tell a pinot from a peanut, or a traminer from a trauma—or even if you don't care—a motor trek into the wine country north of San Francisco will be fun this fall.

That's when the Redwood Empire's famous vines bow low with choice grapes, promise of a precious vintage.

A new generation of wines will be ready for sampling in the cool stone cellars around Sonoma, St. Helena and Asti. Old-country cellar-masters will watch the samplers to see if the Chardonnay '63 is the equal of the '59, if the 1962 Sauvignon measures up to its illustrious predecessors.

For a century or more, wine-tasting has been a gracious tradition in the gentle valleys. In his "Silverado Squatters," written on his honeymoon in 1880, Robert Louis Stevenson recorded many such happy occasions on the St. Helena mountainsides.

* * * *

SUCH EUPHORIC pilgrimages are well within the scope of casual motorists. In fact, they are positively easy. Start with San Francisco. One of America's three great "story" cities, O. Henry called her. Sample her cosmopolitan delights, then take the winery loop, starting at Sonoma, less than a half-hour's ride north. Turning east at Ignacio on Hwy. 37, and keeping a lookout for the Sonoma turnoff, another dozen miles brings you to this charming Spanish town, drowsing beside its historic Plaza. It was here in 1846 that rebel Yankees raised the Bear Flag and declared California's independence from Mexico.

In Sonoma, there's a red-tiled mission to visit (circa 1823, rebuilt); and several good dining places around the square. Out of town to the west is Gen. Vallejo's gracious home, preserved as a museum. Right in town is the tour's first oasis, Samuele Sebastiani Winery (open daily until 5 p. m.); and to the east, over a winding road, California's first winery, Buena Vista. It too has tasting rooms where visitors are welcome, a picnic ground, and some handsome carved oak casks in its cool cellar. Buena Vista even has a ghost, a Chinese caretaker who was imprisoned when the 1906 earthquake sealed off a vault containing 30,000 bottles of champagne. His ghost hiccups when the acoustics are right.

* * * *

THOUGH there's more to see and savor in Sonoma, the wine-tour leads eastward to the Napa Valley, less than 20 miles over a good highway. Major concentration of wineries in this blessed valley is around Rutherford, St. Helena and Calistoga. Beaulieu and Inglenook are at the first named; the first is open daily until 5, and Inglenook only on weekdays. These are quality vineyards, and their reds and whites are justly famed, and in short supply.

Near St. Helena are nine wineries welcoming sippers. Perhaps the most famous are Beringer Brothers, with deep limestone cellars to tour and the baroque headquarters Rhine House; Louis Martini, ancient Charles Krug, and Christian Brothers. Most are open daily until 4:30 or 5 p. m.

Calistoga has an interesting history: it was founded in the 1850s by colorful Sam Brannan, California's first millionaire. Expansive after a bout with the local squeezings, Brannan arose to tell a banquet he would make the little hot-springs the Saratoga of California. Somehow it came out "Calistoga of Sarafornia," and thus it remained. Geysers, mudbaths and the annual Sam Brannan Days make Calistoga fun for a casual stop.

* * * *

NOW THE wine-minded traveler may retrace his steps, or he may elect to take the road west to Santa Rosa, past the famous Petrified Forest, fossil redwoods imprisoned in stone a million years ago by volcanic eruptions. Or he may go north, to lovely Clear Lake, or through the Alexander Valley, to join Hwy. 101 at Geyserville. A few miles north, still on "101" is Asti, founded in the 1880's by Italian immigrants, and home of Italian Swiss Colony, one of the state's biggest and most modern wineries.

From here, the motorist may head back down "101." Should the quest lead westward from Calistoga or 101, there's a champagne cellar, Korbel's, beside the Russian River near Rio Nido. Korbel recently expanded into the still-wine field; in any case, its brick towers and its old-world look are worth a trip. Tours are at 1:30 and 2:30 p. m., Saturday through Thursday, except Mondays. Nearby is Armstrong Grove, an outstanding redwood state park. In fact, all along the wine trail are outstanding scenic attractions, things to see and things to do.

Jazz festival

West Berlin will be the "scene" of a jazz festival — Oct. 29-31 — that will feature Woody Herman, Stan Getz, Al Cohn, Zoot Sims and Jerry Mulligan. Held at both the modernistic Philharmonic Hall and the Sportpalast, the festival will open the "Freedom Now Suite" by Max Roach.

There will also be a "Piano Workshop," which will illustrate the progress of jazz piano styles since ragtime. Climax of the festival will be a ball at the Palais am Funkturm. Entertainment will be provided by American, European and Japanese groups.

Dr. Martin Mack to head class

Dr. Martin P. Mack, well-known painter, will take up the role of "professor" for a University of California Extension discussion group beginning Sept. 22.

The lecture-discussion class, "Art of Our Time," will meet in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benrose Boyd, 6512 Via Siena, Miraleste. University Extension at UCLA will send information brochures and registration forms on request.

Charles Tolls observe 55th anniversary today

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Toll will observe their 55th wedding anniversary at 2 p.m. today during a dinner party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, 4518 Keever Ave.

The Tolls were married and lived in Chicago, where until his retirement in 1953 — he was employed as a streetcar conductor.

They have resided since at 2154 Stearnlee Avenue since coming to California.

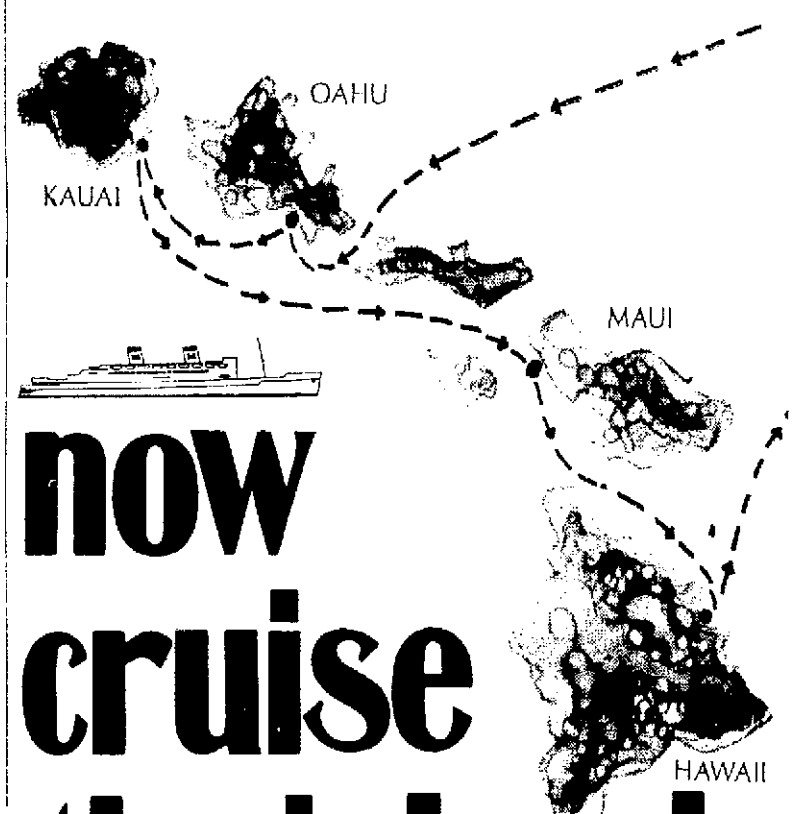

Area friends and former neighbors in Chicago have been invited.

Merry Monarch Cruise (April 6, 1966) includes lively entertainment at each port in the happy-go-lucky spirit of old Hawaii. (Sailing dates are from San Francisco. Ship departs Los Angeles the following day.)
If you want more time in Hawaii, the LURLINE maintains regular California-Honolulu sailings approximately every 12 days. Many offer the option of a free day in either San Francisco or Los Angeles plus a complimentary overnight coastal cruise between the two ports. INSPECTS COMPLETED WORK
Kengiro Azuma and "Mu 464"

Metal sculpture has mystery aura

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Kengiro Azuma in "Mu 464" has accomplished that to which all artists aspire, the balance or blending of idea and material. The sculpture, at the eastern corner of the Health Building at Long Beach State College, expresses the nature of sheet aluminum, yet a transformation has occurred. The viewer is satisfied that the material is aluminum . . . cut, welded, engraved, and bolted as it should be . . . yet is well aware of a great deal more than technique.

Of all the monumental sculptures created here this summer, "Mu" is the most mysterious. It does not reveal itself to the viewer. It follows no known scheme of geometric form; it is not a hexagon, a cylinder, nor a rectangle. Each aspect is different from all the others.

* * * *

TO UNDERSTAND the structure, the viewer must walk round and round it (best to be accomplished on weekends when the parking is easy), stand back, and let the work communicate. For "Mu" is non-rational. It comes from a frame of reference where the basis for Western logic, "a is a, and therefore cannot be x" is unknown.

The title, "Mu", means nothing, not nothing. It expresses a region of nonthingness which Western thinking eliminated as a possibility centuries ago. But this area is, in the last 100 years, receiving increased attention and high regard by Western poets, theologians, and psychologists. It expresses a region they believe lies behind our societal egos and personal subconsciousnesses.

Perhaps something of this was suggested in the New Testament: Now we see through a mirror, darkly, but then face to face."

* * * *

"MU 464" may, as well be enjoyed for its sheerly decorative aspects. The vertical planes are incomplete, they break and are taken up again. Their verticality is relieved by some eliptical forms, occasionally, with engraved line. On two sides, the sheet is broken with a series of teardrop-like incisions through which pleated aluminum is visible. The ancient seal of Azuma's family is placed on the crown where it catches the morning sun, and on the sunset side, an inscription in Japanese and English.

It will probably be some time before we all understand the works created in the few short months here this Summer.

Nonetheless, "no-thing" is something!

Gallery sets September exhibition

Traditional vs. contemporary trends is theme of the September exhibit at the Long Beach Art Association Gallery.

Best of show honor in the traditional bracket went to Jackie Bogenrief for her "Winter Sound." Second place in the category went to Margaret Bradbury for her "Austumns Beginning;" third place was won by Inga Lehne for "Boquet."

First place in the contemporary group was won by Inga Lehne for "Blue Hue," an abstract of blues and greens.

Second was "Pear Tree," by Melita Artin, third was "The Beatle Fan," by Ed St. Rickler.

Re-issues of records at library

Good news for record fans from Long Beach Main Library. The Record Section now has re-issues of important recordings of the past for rental.

"Four Saints in Three Acts," by Virgil Thomson is available with the composer conducting the production. Luisa Tetrazzini is heard singing, "Operatic Arias and Songs," from "Mignon," "The Barber of Seville" and "Lucia de Lammermoor" on record.

* * * *

ALSO, "The Best of Mario Lanza," "Allegro," by Richard Rodgers, "Outstanding Jazz Compositions of the 20th Century," and "King of the Blues Trombone," featuring Jack Teagarden are among recent additions now available.

"Trios," include compositions of Beethoven, Brahms and Schubert played by Arthur Ruberstein, Jascha Heifetz and Emmanuel Feuermann. Another, "Treasury of Harpsichord Music," is played by Wanda Landowska.

Recordings may be borrowed from the main library for a two week loan period at a modest rental fee.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Doctor in house prescribes his own specialty: sandwiches

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

He has loads of both—patients and patience—and he can "dish" out Folded Egg Sandwiches as deftly as he can the pills.

Today's Chef of the Week, Wm. M. Carnes, M.D., deems it wise never to "set a precedent" and his cooking rarely ever takes-hold till he reaches a certain altitude —their mountain cabin in Idylwild. That's where he wrote the "prescription" for his famous sandwich.

Chief of the Medical Staff of the Long Beach Community Hospital, Carnes served as president last year of the Long Beach Society of Internal Medicine.

In private practice in Long Beach since 1957, he obtained his medical degree from the University of Louisville (Ky.) School of Medicine in 1946 and interned at Indianapolis General Hospital.

Dr. Carnes served internal medicine residencies in St. Elizabeth's, Lafayette, Ind., Good Samaritan in Los Angeles and the Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

He is on the teaching staff of the Harbor General Hospital, the board of directors of the Long Beach Heart Association and is a member of the Galen Club, the Kiwanis Club, Long Beach After-Dinner Speakers Club, the Long Beach Dinner Club and the committee of Boy Scout Troop 65.

BORN IN WILMORE, Ky., he remained there to earn his BA degree at Asbury College. He put his journalistic talents (which profession he once thought he might follow) to work as business manager of the college newspaper.

Disarming at times, Carnes can produce a fetching Kentucky dialect at the drop of a hat. He simply flabbergasted his Galen Club buddies, too, by winning first prize in a cow-milking contest.

Somewhere along in his career, Dr. Carnes devoted two years to the U.S. Army and 16 months to Korea.

Dr. Carnes lives in Belmont Heights with his wife (the former June Sprowl of Long Beach), sons Michael 15, Christopher 13, and daughter Carol 10.

Adept at gardening, carpentering and fishing, he landscapes everything, built the family cabin at Idylwild, also a snd house up on the Saskatchewan River where he fishes for pike. He's also a jillion-shot photographer.

WILLIAM (CHEF) M. CARNES, M.D.

ORIGINAL FOLDED EGG SANDWICH
Serves 6

1 doz. eggs
1 loaf sliced sour dough bread
1 lb. thick sliced bacon
¾ lb. sharp Cheddar cheese, grated
½ doz. green onions, finely chopped
3 tblsp. miracle whip
3 tsp. salsa brava
Milk as desired

Mix grated cheese, chopped onions, miracle whip and salsa brava with just enough milk to make a paste which spreads easily. Spread on one side of each MATCHED piece of bread. Bake in a 350-degree oven until nicely melted and until bottom of bread is lightly browned.

While these are baking, crisply fry bacon and drain well. Remove bread from oven, pair on plate and set aside to cool a bit.

Next, break 2 eggs in glass and pour as one into hot bacon fat, allowing whites to spread out. With deft motion of spatula, spread yolks over whites in any artistic figure desired. Salt and pepper to taste. Gently whip hot fat over egg. Lift egg gently with spatula, allow to drain, then place on cheesed bread. Top with 2 or 3 strips of bacon and other slice of cheesed bread.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

If you like castles . . .

There should be a French castle in your future if you are going to France this year, according to Air France travel advisors, who say many chateaux are easy to visit and open rewarding three-dimensional pages of history.

Most are set in gardens and forests which are particularly beautiful in late summer and fall. Easily accessible from Paris are the chateaux of Versailles, Fontainebleau, Ermononville, Chantilly, Compiegne, Malmaison, Maintenon, and Rambouillet, to name but a few.

Entrance fees are nominal, and the castles can be reached from Paris by train, bus, or excursion motorcoach. Visiting hours and additional information can be secured from La Demeure Historique, 146 Avenue des Champs Elysees.

WHEN THE VINES BOW LOW

Call of the Wine Country

If you can't tell a pinot from a peanut, or a traminer from a trauma—or even if you don't care—a motor trek into the wine country north of San Francisco will be fun this fall.

That's when the Redwood Empire's famous vines bow low with choice grapes, promise of a precious vintage.

A new generation of wines will be ready for sampling in the cool stone cellars around Sonoma, St. Helena and Asti. Old-country cellar-masters will watch the samplers to see if the Chardonnay '63 is the equal of the '59, if the 1962 Sauvignon measures up to its illustrious predecessors.

For a century or more, wine-tasting has been a gracious tradition in the gentle valleys. In his "Silverado Squatters," written on his honeymoon in 1880, Robert Louis Stevenson recorded many such happy occasions on the St. Helena mountainsides.

* * * *

SUCH EUPHORIC pilgrimages are well within the scope of casual motorists. In fact, they are positively easy. Start with San Francisco. One of America's three great "story" cities, O. Henry called her. Sample her cosmopolitan delights, then take the winery loop, starting at Sonoma, less than a half-hour's ride north. Turning east at Ignacio on Hwy. 37, and keeping a lookout for the Sonoma turnoff, another dozen miles brings you to this charming Spanish town, drowsing beside its historic Plaza. It was here in 1846 that rebel Yankees raised the Bear Flag and declared California's independence from Mexico.

In Sonoma, there's a red-tiled mission to visit (circa 1823, rebuilt); and several good dining places around the square. Out of town to the west is Gen. Vallejo's gracious home, preserved as a museum. Right in town is the tour's first oasis, Samuele Sebastiani Winery (open daily until 5 p. m.); and to the east, over a winding road, California's first winery, Buena Vista. It too has tasting rooms where visitors are welcome, a picnic ground, and some handsome carved oak casks in its cool cellar. Buena Vista even has a ghost, a Chinese caretaker who was imprisoned when the 1906 earthquake sealed off a vault containing 30,000 bottles of champagne. His ghost hiccups when the acoustics are right.

* * * *

THOUGH there's more to see and savor in Sonoma, the wine-tour leads eastward to the Napa Valley, less than 20 miles over a good highway. Major concentration of wineries in this blessed valley is around Rutherford, St. Helena and Calistoga. Beaulieu and Inglenook are at the first named; the first is open daily until 5, and Inglenook only on weekdays. These are quality vineyards, and their reds and whites are justly famed, and in short supply.

Near St. Helena are nine wineries welcoming sippers. Perhaps the most famous are Beringer Brothers, with deep limestone cellars to tour and the baroque headquarters Rhine House; Louis Martini, ancient Charles Krug, and Christian Brothers. Most are open daily until 4:30 or 5 p. m.

Calistoga has an interesting history: it was founded in the 1850s by colorful Sam Brannan, California's first millionaire. Expansive after a bout with the local squeezings, Brannan arose to tell a banquet he would make the little hot-springs the Saratoga of California. Somehow it came out "Calistoga of Sarafornia," and thus it remained. Geysers, mudbaths and the annual Sam Brannan Days make Calistoga fun for a casual stop.

* * * *

NOW THE wine-minded traveler may retrace his steps, or he may elect to take the road west to Santa Rosa, past the famous Petrified Forest, fossil redwoods imprisoned in stone a million years ago by volcanic eruptions. Or he may go north, to lovely Clear Lake, or through the Alexander Valley, to join Hwy. 101 at Geyserville. A few miles north, still on "101" is Asti, founded in the 1880's by Italian immigrants, and home of Italian Swiss Colony, one of the state's biggest and most modern wineries.

From here, the motorist may head back down "101." Should the quest lead westward from Calistoga or 101, there's a champagne cellar, Korbel's, beside the Russian River near Rio Nido. Korbel recently expanded into the still-wine field; in any case, its brick towers and its old-world look are worth a trip. Tours are at 1:30 and 2:30 p. m., Saturday through Thursday, except Mondays. Nearby is Armstrong Grove, an outstanding redwood state park. In fact, all along the wine trail are outstanding scenic attractions, things to see and things to do.

Jazz festival

West Berlin will be the "scene" of a jazz festival — Oct. 29-31 — that will feature Woody Herman, Stan Getz, Al Cohn, Zoot Sims and Jerry Mulligan. Held at both the modernistic Philharmonic Hall and the Sportpalast, the festival will open the "Freedom Now Suite" by Max Roach.

There will also be a "Piano Workshop," which will illustrate the progress of jazz piano styles since ragtime. Climax of the festival will be a ball at the Palais am Funkturm. Entertainment will be provided by American, European and Japanese groups.

Beer, feasting and bands

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

If you happen to be in Europe late this month — and certainly thousands of Americans will — it's a pretty safe bet that you will be one of the 6 million or more visitors descending upon Munich where merry-making in September-October has become a way of life.

This is the time of the Oktoberfest, not only one of the biggest and best festivals on the Continent but also its gayest.

The Oktoberfest is sometimes referred to as the "world's biggest beer bust." More than 600,000 gallons were swilled down during last year's two-week-long festivities. With a record crop of travelers expected, this year's "bust" may well be the greatest of all time.

But make no mistake: there's more to the Oktoberfest than beer. Stowed away at the 1964 festivities were hundreds of thousands of roasted chickens, more than a million pairs of pork sausages, and literally tons of tantalizing beef straight from the spit.

* * * *

AND IT'S not all drinking and eating. There are strikingly - colorful processions, brass bands with thousands of musicians, sing fests, a fair, horse racing; in all, a colossal carnival of gaiety.

The beer halls for which the city is celebrated (the most famous, of course, is the Hofbrauhaus) throw open their doors. Food comes with the brew. The bands strike up oom-pah-pah folk songs and locked-arm good fellowship continues into the wee hours.

There are also the "bierkellers," known to most of us as beer gardens, which cater to families with delicious, inexpensive food and which have playgrounds where children may romp while the parents relax. There are also countless jazz cellers that get into the act.

After all, drinking a stein of beer is a natural thing for the people of Munich. The city's oldest brewery, it is recorded, dates back to 1328. The per capita of consumption in Munich now is 230 liters a year as compared to 108 liters for the average German. Beer, in fact is taxed as food in Bavaria; elsewhere in Germany it is taxed as alcohol.

* * * *

THIS YEAR'S Oktoberfest opens next Saturday with an inaugural procession of brewers and hosts for the fair, and continues through Oct. 3. One of the most colorful sidelights of the entire festival will be the Sept. 26 procession of folk-costumed groups from seven countries swinging through the center of Munich to the fairgrounds.

The Oktoberfest dates back to 1810 when Bavaria's Crown Prince Ludwig, later King Ludwig I, married Princess Saxe-Hildurghausen. A hackney coachman conceived the idea of reviving ancient horse racing, not by thoroughbreds but for sturdier animals.

Five days after the wedding the races were held in the presence of the Court and were a tremendous success. The following year saw the first agricultural exhibit put in place in connection with the races. Thus, the Oktoberfest grew and grew into a national festival for all Bavarians with visitors from all over the world.

Traveling with Stan Delaplane

"I am a widow, taking my first trip alone to Hawaii. Would like to know about correct tipping: bellboys, bus boys, dining room, maids."

BELLBOYS: 25-50 cents a call, same for each suitcase carried. Bus boys, nothing. Dining room waiter, 10% of the bill. Unless you get same waiter at each meal. Then tip at the end—$1 a day. Maid, $2 end of each week.

Resort hotels are expensive. Not tax deductible and not on expense account. I think tips should run a modest 5% of the cost at most.

* * * *

"Appreciate advice on getting stopovers in interesting places to the South Pacific."

YOU CAN GO to San Francisco or Los Angeles to Honolulu to Tahiti to Samoa to Fiji. Or at the same price, anywhere in the U.S. to Mexico City to Tahiti and so on. On the Mexican-Tahiti run, you have a comfortable week stopover. The Mexico route gives you more contrast. Bora Bora can be worked in, too.

* * * *

"Should we carry money in traveler's checks to Europe? Where is the best place to change them? If we have left-over foreign money, can we change it back to dollars and then into another foreign money?"

I FIND traveler's checks best. I carry mostly $50 checks plus $100 split into $20 and $10 checks. Use the small ones for local cash last day in the country.

You can cash in your foreign money as you leave at the airport bank (if it isn't closed for the night or for Sunday.) Don't cash into dollars. Cash into the currency of the next country you're going to. Each changing process costs you the bank's fee.

Generally, banks are best to change traveler's checks. Hotels and restaurants will take a higher fee. (Portuguese hotels were charging me $3 for every $100 I cashed. I walked across the street to a bank which charged me less than 50 cents. You're not likely to notice these things in the complication of checking out in foreign money.)

A handy item for the foxy pocket is a couple of $5 bills and five $1 bills. Say you are at the airport, exiting the country. You cash in your left-over money. Now you find there's an airport tax. You don't have to change a traveler's check back and forth. Use $1 bills.

An exception to cashing at banks: Some shops give big discounts if you pay in traveler's checks — France, for example. So don't pay in francs. Use your checks. All over Europe, I find shops take your home town personal check for what you buy. Your passport is identification.

* * * *

"How do you go about finding inexpensive pensions in Europe?"

"Where do we find a three week winter vacation that doesn't cost a fortune?"

MEXICO—and better outside Mexico City which is apt to be cold. Easterners find low travel costs to the Caribbean offset high resort costs. Westerners do better to Hawaii. Air rates to Austrian ski resorts are lowest in winter.

In Mexico, get between 3,000 and 5,000 feet. Oaxaca in the south. Jalapa is a flowery sleeper on the Vera Cruz road. Ixtapan de la Sal, a hot spring resort an hour from Mexico City.

For the Caribbean, the half French, half Dutch island of St. Martin's. Martinique and some of the little French islands nearby.

For Austria, start at Innsbruck. The tourist bureau there will give you half a dozen little towns nearby that are not expensive.

Avalon scene of annual art festival

Artists and art connoisseurs from all over the west will converge on Catalina Island next Saturday and Sunday for the seventh annual Catalina Island Art Festival.

Capacity crowds from the mainland are expected to be on hand to view paintings by outstanding California and American artists competing for $1,150 in prizes and the national prestige that goes to a winning entry.

Climax of the two-day fete is the annual Artists and Models Ball in the Avalon Casino Sunday. A costume affair, it is designed around Catalina Island's famed glass-bottomed boats.

* * * *

ANOTHER big weekend event is Solvang Danish Days, Friday through Sunday. Some 40,000 Aebleskiver (Danish round ball pancakes) will be served along the main street, and there will be Danish folk dancing and music.

The Los Angeles County Fair also opens Friday at Pomona and continues through Oct. 3.

Palm Springs Aerial Tramway celebrates its second anniversary Wednesday through Sunday. Old-fashioned sing and old movies will feature Senior Citizens Day on Sunday; special exhibits and tram demonstrations, Friday; kid contests, Saturday; and Sweet Adeline Chorus and square dances, Sunday.

* * * *

RIDGECREST holds its 15th annual Desert Empire Fair, Wednesday through Sunday. A parade is scheduled at 11 a.m. Saturday; a liars' derby and turtle racing on Sunday.

Tehachapi holds its Mountain Fruit Festival Saturday and Sunday, at a time when peaches and apples are ripening in the orchards of the area.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

Voyage to the Pillars of Mystery

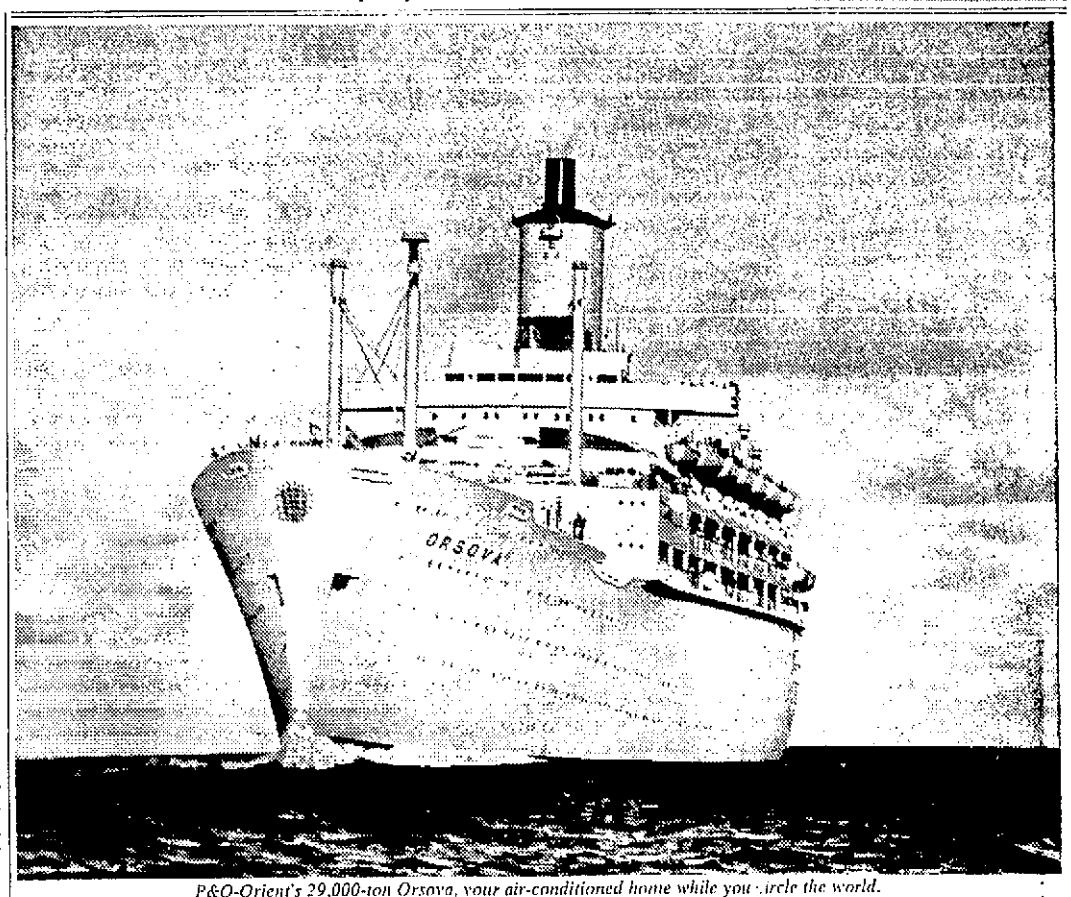

Like most islands in the Pacific Ocean, Guam is beautiful. Unique on it are the famed Latte stones, but very little is known about them. There are several sites where these stone pillars can be seen. The chimney-like structures narrow near the top, then flare out like huge egg cups, and are supposed to be the ruins of Chamorro buildings. Their very oddity impresses visitors and it's fun to guess what they may have been.

France notes tourist gain

Recent official figures released by the French Government Tourist Office indicate a marked increase in the number of American and other foreign tourists arriving in France this year.

When compared with figures for the period January-May 1964, those for the same period this year show an increase of nearly 12% for all foreign visitors to the Paris area. The number of American visitors alone, to the French Riviera, jumped an impressive 37% over last year. French tourist authorities are confident that this upswing, stimulated by France's successful "Welcome and Hospitality" campaign, will continue throughout the rest of the year.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Skeleton in his closet?

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

The other day the mailman brought a letter addressed to my darling husband from a woman in Germany who claims to be his wife. I am really shook!

We have four lovely children and my husband has always been faithful (I think) and very devoted to them and to me. What do I do now?

Show him the letter and ask for an explanation or just throw it in the trash can? I hate the thought of a long legal battle and I can't stand the thought of possibly losing George.

Please help me.—SECOND WIFE?

DEAR SECOND WIFE:

Certainly, show him the letter. Actually, you had no right to open it in the first place, but . . .

In all fairness to him and yourself, this thing should be cleared up as soon as possible. You could be doing a lot of worrying about nothing.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband is a TV bug! Every night we watch Westerns, wrestling and the Roller Derby. Even when we have guests, the TV is on full blast. Usually, the guests leave early and I don't blame them.

The other evening we visited our daughter in her two-bed room at the hospital. Immediately, he asked her to turn on the TV to watch Westerns. That did it!

I try to explain to him how rude this is but he says I'm "nagging." Can you help me reach him and show him how bad his manners are?—C.M.

DEAR C.M.:

Good heavens! I'd heard TV had ruined the art of conversation, but I didn't know it had gone this far.

When guests arrive (unless THEY want to see something in particular), the TV should be turned off. But guests who mind their manners don't go visiting to watch TV!

Your husband's manners are bad—very bad.—M.M.

Play was good--but no score!

The best players don't get the best results with every hand. Sometimes they make the best mistakes. No one is immune to that. Other times they stop at a low contract and a fortunate break of the cards reward overbidders who have gone higher and sometimes the best play does not gather in the maximum number of tricks.

Thus in the recent Brooklyn tournament most declarers arrived at four hearts although at a few tables South played at one heart only.

Opening lead—♣ Q.

The better players made five odd because they all played the hand so as to guarantee their contracts. This safety play consisted of ruffing the first club; cashing one high heart and entering dummy with a second heart. Then the jack of spades was allowed to ride. West would win with his queen and either take his ace of diamonds right away or wait until later. That made no difference.

* * * *

THOSE players who overlooked the safety play managed to make six. They ran off several rounds of trumps and then finessed successfully against West's queen of spades.

So as to forestall argument with many readers we refuse to comment on whether or not the South hand is worth a forcing two bid opening. Personally we have an open mind on that subject and have no criticism of either a one bid or two bid opening with this particular hand.

Holiday fete is announced by sisterhood

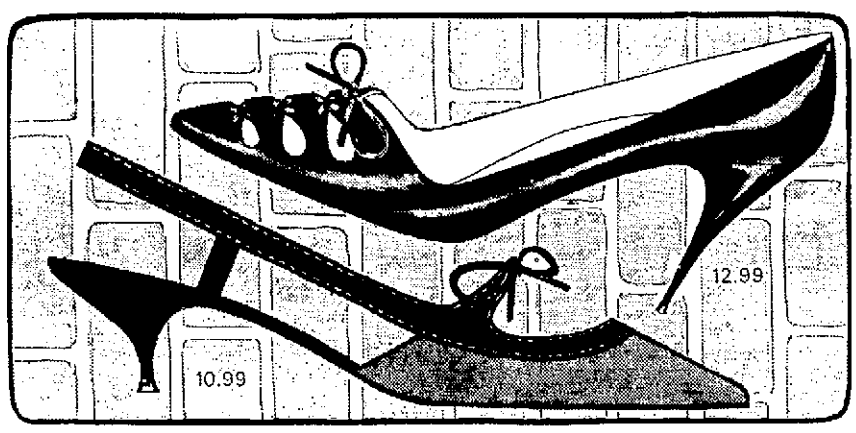

A high holiday luncheon for Temple Beth Zion Sisterhood will be given Tuesday, 11:30 a.m., at the temple, 6440 Del Amo, Lakewood.

A play, "It Can Happen to Anyone," will feature members of the sisterhood in the cast.

Hostesses are Mmes. Ben Lorin, Warren Goldstock, Ludwig Wolff, Meyer Rothman and Alfred Harris; cohostesses include Mmes. Ralph Finkelstein, Francis Lobel, Henry Jessner, Robert Goldman and Mark Zotstein.

Members and non-members are welcome. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Zotstein or Mrs. Finkelstein. Baby-sitter service will be available.

Beer, feasting and bands

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

If you happen to be in Europe late this month — and certainly thousands of Americans will — it's a pretty safe bet that you will be one of the 6 million or more visitors descending upon Munich where merry-making in September-October has become a way of life.

This is the time of the Oktoberfest, not only one of the biggest and best festivals on the Continent but also its gayest.

The Oktoberfest is sometimes referred to as the "world's biggest beer bust." More than 600,000 gallons were swilled down during last year's two-week-long festivities. With a record crop of travelers expected, this year's "bust" may well be the greatest of all time.

But make no mistake: there's more to the Oktoberfest than beer. Stowed away at the 1964 festivities were hundreds of thousands of roasted chickens, more than a million pairs of pork sausages, and literally tons of tantalizing beef straight from the spit.

* * * *

AND IT'S not all drinking and eating. There are strikingly - colorful processions, brass bands with thousands of musicians, sing fests, a fair, horse racing; in all, a colossal carnival of gaiety.

The beer halls for which the city is celebrated (the most famous, of course, is the Hofbrauhaus) throw open their doors. Food comes with the brew. The bands strike up oom-pah-pah folk songs and locked-arm good fellowship continues into the wee hours.

There are also the "bierkellers," known to most of us as beer gardens, which cater to families with delicious, inexpensive food and which have playgrounds where children may romp while the parents relax. There are also countless jazz cellers that get into the act.

After all, drinking a stein of beer is a natural thing for the people of Munich. The city's oldest brewery, it is recorded, dates back to 1328. The per capita of consumption in Munich now is 230 liters a year as compared to 108 liters for the average German. Beer, in fact is taxed as food in Bavaria; elsewhere in Germany it is taxed as alcohol.

* * * *

THIS YEAR'S Oktoberfest opens next Saturday with an inaugural procession of brewers and hosts for the fair, and continues through Oct. 3. One of the most colorful sidelights of the entire festival will be the Sept. 26 procession of folk-costumed groups from seven countries swinging through the center of Munich to the fairgrounds.

The Oktoberfest dates back to 1810 when Bavaria's Crown Prince Ludwig, later King Ludwig I, married Princess Saxe-Hildurghausen. A hackney coachman conceived the idea of reviving ancient horse racing, not by thoroughbreds but for sturdier animals.

Five days after the wedding the races were held in the presence of the Court and were a tremendous success. The following year saw the first agricultural exhibit put in place in connection with the races. Thus, the Oktoberfest grew and grew into a national festival for all Bavarians with visitors from all over the world.

Traveling with Stan Delaplane

"I am a widow, taking my first trip alone to Hawaii. Would like to know about correct tipping: bellboys, bus boys, dining room, maids."

BELLBOYS: 25-50 cents a call, same for each suitcase carried. Bus boys, nothing. Dining room waiter, 10% of the bill. Unless you get same waiter at each meal. Then tip at the end—$1 a day. Maid, $2 end of each week.

Resort hotels are expensive. Not tax deductible and not on expense account. I think tips should run a modest 5% of the cost at most.

"Appreciate advice on getting stopovers in interesting places to the South Pacific."

YOU CAN GO to San Francisco or Los Angeles to Honolulu to Tahiti to Samoa to Fiji. Or at the same price, anywhere in the U.S. to Mexico City to Tahiti and so on. On the Mexican-Tahiti run, you have a comfortable week stopover. The Mexico route gives you more contrast. Bora Bora can be worked in, too.

"Should we carry money in traveler's checks to Europe? Where is the best place to change them? If we have left-over foreign money, can we change it back to dollars and then into another foreign money?"

I FIND traveler's checks best. I carry mostly $50 checks plus $100 split into $20 and $10 checks. Use the small ones for local cash last day in the country.

You can cash in your foreign money as you leave at the airport bank (if it isn't closed for the night or for Sunday.) Don't cash into dollars. Cash into the currency of the next country you're going to. Each changing process costs you the bank's fee.

Generally, banks are best to change traveler's checks. Hotels and restaurants will take a higher fee. (Portuguese hotels were charging me $3 for every $100 I cashed. I walked across the street to a bank which charged me less than 50 cents. You're not likely to notice these things in the complication of checking out in foreign money.)

A handy item for the foxy pocket is a couple of $5 bills and five $1 bills. Say you are at the airport, exiting the country. You cash in your left-over money. Now you find there's an airport tax. You don't have to change a traveler's check back and forth. Use $1 bills.

An exception to cashing at banks: Some shops give big discounts if you pay in traveler's checks — France, for example. So don't pay in francs. Use your checks. All over Europe, I find shops take your home town personal check for what you buy. Your passport is identification.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Skeleton in his closet?

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

The other day the mailman brought a letter addressed to my darling husband from a woman in Germany who claims to be his wife. I am really shook!

We have four lovely children and my husband has always been faithful (I think) and very devoted to them and to me. What do I do now?

Show him the letter and ask for an explanation or just throw it in the trash can? I hate the thought of a long legal battle and I can't stand the thought of possibly losing George.

Please help me.—SECOND WIFE?

DEAR SECOND WIFE:

Certainly, show him the letter. Actually, you had no right to open it in the first place, but . . .

In all fairness to him and yourself, this thing should be cleared up as soon as possible. You could be doing a lot of worrying about nothing.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband is a TV bug! Every night we watch Westerns, wrestling and the Roller Derby. Even when we have guests, the TV is on full blast. Usually, the guests leave early and I don't blame them.

The other evening we visited our daughter in her two-bed room at the hospital. Immediately, he asked her to turn on the TV to watch Westerns. That did it!

I try to explain to him how rude this is but he says I'm "nagging." Can you help me reach him and show him how bad his manners are?—C.M.

DEAR C.M.:

Good heavens! I'd heard TV had ruined the art of conversation, but I didn't know it had gone this far.

When guests arrive (unless THEY want to see something in particular), the TV should be turned off. But guests who mind their manners don't go visiting to watch TV!

Your husband's manners are bad—very bad.—M.M.

Play was good--but no score!

The best players don't get the best results with every hand. Sometimes they make the best mistakes. No one is immune to that. Other times they stop at a low contract and a fortunate break of the cards reward overbidders who have gone higher and sometimes the best play does not gather in the maximum number of tricks.

Thus in the recent Brooklyn tournament most declarers arrived at four hearts although at a few tables South played at one heart only.

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♣ Q.

The better players made five odd because they all played the hand so as to guarantee their contracts. This safety play consisted of ruffing the first club; cashing one high heart and entering dummy with a second heart. Then the jack of spades was allowed to ride. West would win with his queen and either take his ace of diamonds right away or wait until later. That made no difference.

* * * *

THOSE players who overlooked the safety play managed to make six. They ran off several rounds of trumps and then finessed successfully against West's queen of spades.

So as to forestall argument with many readers we refuse to comment on whether or not the South hand is worth a forcing two bid opening. Personally we have an open mind on that subject and have no criticism of either a one bid or two bid opening with this particular hand.

Holiday fete is announced by sisterhood

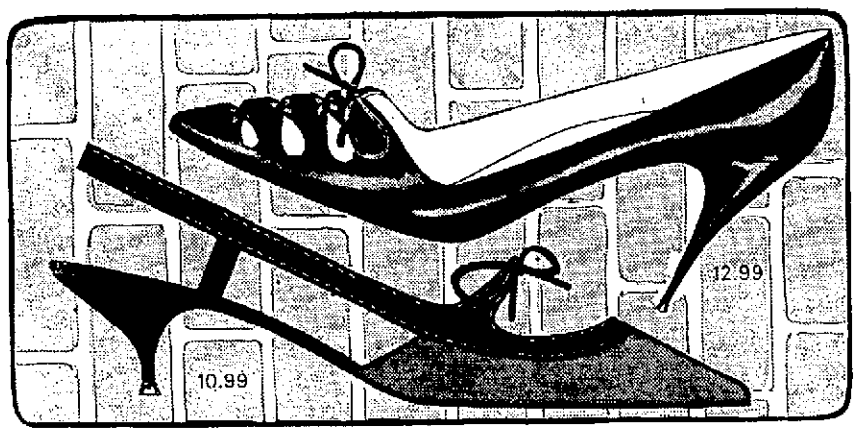

A high holiday luncheon for Temple Beth Zion Sisterhood will be given Tuesday, 11:30 a.m., at the temple, 6440 Del Amo, Lakewood.

A play, "It Can Happen to Anyone," will feature members of the sisterhood in the cast.

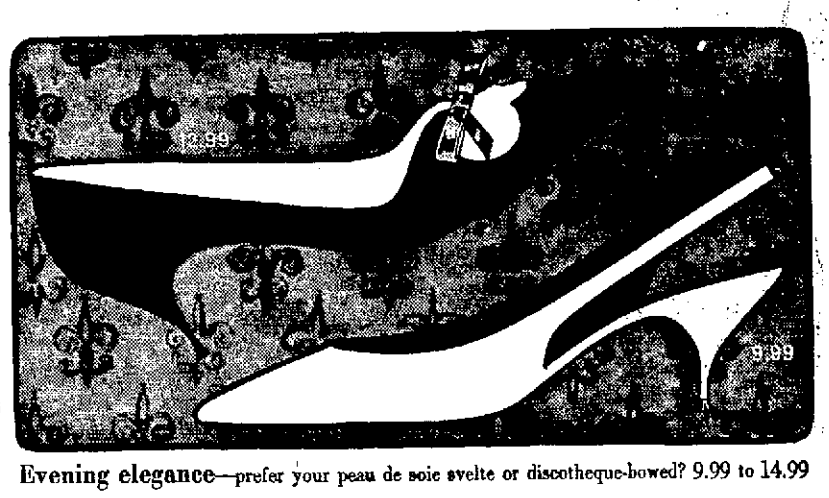

Hostesses are Mmes. Ben Lorin, Warren Goldstock, Ludwig Wolff, Meyer Rothman and Alfred Harris; cohostesses include Mmes. Ralph Finkelstein, Francis Lobel, Henry Jessner, Robert Goldman and Mark Zotstein.

Members and non-members are welcome. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Zotstein or Mrs. Finkelstein. Baby-sitter service will be available.

Handbags—choose materials in fashion colors shaped tiny to titanic. 2.99 to 12.99

Time was, a pair of plain pumps solved most of your shoe needs. No more. Today, the Total Look of fashion demands an infinite variety of shoe styles for every occasion, from fireside to ballroom. And handbags perfectly mated in color, material and design. It takes talent. It requires a specialist like Chandler's, a unique group of shoe specialty shops in constant touch with the pulse of fashion throughout America and Europe. From New York to Beverly Hills, in fifty-nine cities, fashionwise women choose Chandler's exclusive French Room Originals for fashion and quality that rival the more expensive. What fun choosing from pair after pair in one store — and doesn't everyone love a bargain? True, we offer no charge accounts or deliveries, but we will take your check, and shoes weigh so little! Even if you have lots of time and money, we think you'll enjoy spending both at Chandler's. Here, some examples of the contrasting moods you will find in our varied and exciting fall forecast collections.

Lucy Travels from Elephantine

By ROBERT MUSEL

NEW YORK (UPI)—"Get me some cottage cheese and pineapple," said Lucille Ball. "I look too awful to go downstairs."

Miss Ball was rehearsing in the penthouse studio of a hotel for the premiere of the "Steve Lawrence Show" (10 p.m. Monday, channel 2).

She was wearing black ballet tights and her red-blonde hair was swept up under a makeup hat shaped like a circlet of leaves. She didn't look awful at all. Only tired.

For a lady of a certain age, Miss Ball has a great deal going for her besides a hit television show and a profitable career as president of Desilu studios.

She has for example, a notable pair of legs and an engagingly humorous slant on her own activities.

* * * *

"I AM dressing up in a top hat, white tie and tails and I am going to climb on the back of an elephant in Shubert Alley and sing 'Hey, Look Me Over'. Don't ask me why," she said, the famous smile crinkling the corners of her mouth. "I wish I knew."

The idea that Miss Ball would be more effective delivering a ditty from the podium of a ponderous pachyderm came from George Schatter, producer of the new Steve Lawrence show who seems to feel the time has come for more television showmanship. Another of his guests this season, Liberace, will ride a motor scooter up the main stem — without piano however.

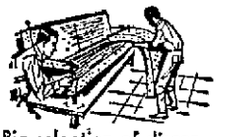

Miss Ball agreed to be the first of Steve's guest stars because she is a compulsive entertainer and what compulsive entertainer would let an elephant stand in the way of a nationwide appearance?

Her lunch arrived and while she ate, Miss Ball

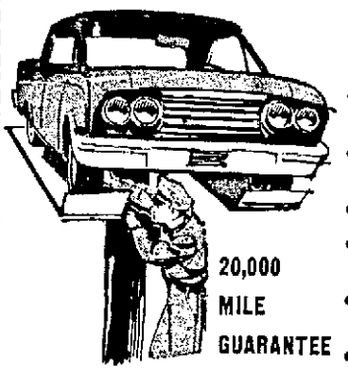

LUCY and Marineland dolphins enjoy a swim as the comedienne's series returns at 8:30 p. m. Monday, channel 2. Lucy and Steve Lawrence ride an elephant for the debut of Steve's variety series at 10 p. m. Monday, channel 2.

talked about herself as performer and tycoon. She said she would really miss Vivian Lance, who has retired to live with her literary agent husband in Connecticut, when the Lucy show begins its 15th season (8:30 p.m. Monday, channel 2 in color.)

* * * *

BUT SHE HAS signed a number of guest stars to help launch the new program in which she will be an apartment-living working girl in California. These include Joan Blondell, Ann Sothern, Clint Walker, Milton Berle, Danny Thomas and Mickey Rooney.

Some day, she said, she would like to change her weekly half-hour to a one-hour show once a month.

"I wanted to do it last year," she said, "but they talked me out of it."

She said she did not take her business worries home (all of her pilot film deals for series fell through last year but she has 10 others in various stages of preparation for the 1966-67 season).

"I shut little drawers in my head when I leave the studio," she said, tapping her temple. "I say 'No more work. Now it's the children.'"

She is happily married to comedian Gary Morton but misses "the protective umbrella of good taste" her former husband, Desi Arnaz, used to provide in their television ventures.

"I've got to learn to do it myself now," she said.

Miss Ball said that one act which will not be appearing on her Lucy show this new season is the trio headed by her son, Desi Arnaz Jr., 12. She "generously" offered the boys $400 a week. In the meantime, they had a hit record and the price went up 10 times.

"At $4,000 a week, said Miss Ball, "I can't afford my own son. But that's show business."

'F Troop' Charged into Battle When the Captain Sneezed

Ken Berry has been around several years, but he will be "discovered" by television audiences when ABC-TV's wild, comic F Troop premieres (9 p.m. Tuesday, channel 7). He plays the captain of a scheming group of goldbricks in the early West. The captain got his promotion when his allergy to horses and resultant sneeze led a troop to believe he was calling "charge" in a Civil War battle. They followed him into battle and made him a hero. Now, with his troop, he doesn't quite know what's going on.

Berry does. He has been performing since he was in high school. He was a member of the long-running and successfull "Billy Barnes Revue," in which he sang, danced, acted. "Since I was a child in Moline, Ill. I have wanted to be Fred Astaire," he says. He adds, "Every job I have had, has come directly or indirectly from the Barnes show."

He appeared regularly as an intern on Dr. Kildare, and a bellboy in the Ann Sothern series. But now, as the nice, eager, friendly, and inept captain, Berry has the role that shows off his comic talents to the general public.

Playwright Signed

Playwright Edward Chodorov, who wrote the recent Broadway hit "Oh Men, Oh Women," has been signed to write the pilot script for a new TV series project, "The Masqueraders," a 60-minute comedy-adventure project aimed for the 1966-67 season.

Heights to Dolphin Depths

talked about herself as performer and tycoon. She said she would really miss Vivian Lance, who has retired to live with her literary agent husband in Connecticut, when the Lucy show begins its 15th season (8:30 p.m. Monday, channel 2 in color.)

* * * *

BUT SHE HAS signed a number of guest stars to help launch the new program in which she will be an apartment-living working girl in California. These include Joan Blondell, Ann Sothern, Clint Walker, Milton Berle, Danny Thomas and Mickey Rooney.

Some day, she said, she would like to change her weekly half-hour to a one-hour show once a month.

"I wanted to do it last year," she said, "but they talked me out of it."

She said she did not take her business worries home (all of her pilot film deals for series fell through last year but she has 10 others in various stages of preparation for the 1966-67 season).

"I shut little drawers in my head when I leave the studio," she said, tapping her temple. "I say 'No more work. Now it's the children.'"

She is happily married to comedian Gary Morton but misses "the protective umbrella of good taste" her former husband, Desi Arnaz, used to provide in their television ventures.

"I've got to learn to do it myself now," she said.

Miss Ball said that one act which will not be appearing on her Lucy show this new season is the trio headed by her son, Desi Arnaz Jr., 12. She "generously" offered the boys $400 a week. In the meantime, they had a hit record and the price went up 10 times.

"At $4,000 a week, said Miss Ball, "I can't afford my own son. But that's show business."

SPECIAL

INSIGHT—Return premiere. Robert Lansing stars in a story of the crisis of conscience faced by a German priest confronted with the anti-Semitic policies of the Third Reich. Fr. Ellwood Keiser hosts at 4:30 p.m., ch. 2.

MISTER ED—5th season premiere. Wilbur doubts Ed's story of three spies in the park, until he finds a roll of microfilm there. Series is at new time of 5 p.m., ch. 2.

ATOM ANT/SECRET SQUIRREL—Creators Bill Hanna and Joe Barbera make a rare on-camera appearance at 6:30 p.m., ch. 4, for a color hour introducing the characters of their two new shows to screen Saturdays starting Oct. 2.

LASSIE—12th season premiere. Color is added at 7 p.m,. ch. 2, as Lassie finds a doe injured by a car—and she's about to become a mother. Filming was done in Yosemite.

HERCULES—The late Everett Sloane is host for a rejected pilot of the Adventures of Hercules, Ulysses and Diogenes. Gordon Scott, Paul Stevens and Diana Hyland star at 7 p.m., ch. 7, in color.

MY FAVORITE MARTIAN—3rd season premiere. Color is added at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, as Detective Brennan accidentally trips the time machine and sends Martin and Tim back to the Old West.

RAY CONNIFF SHOW—The conductor-arranger uses his 5-channel sound equipment for a new musical hour at 7:30 p.m., ch. 11, featuring his orchestra and 16-voice chorus.

ED SULLIVAN—18th season premiere. The Beatles (taped Aug. 14) sing six of their hit tunes at 8 p.m., ch. 2, joining Allen and Rossi, Soupy Sales, Cilla Black and Fantasio, a magician. (Show comes to Hollywood next week for the first of five hours in color.)

BRANDED—2nd season premiere. McCord hails a passing stagecoach whose passengers include a woman he once loved and a cavalry officer who voted him guilty of cowardice. Kathleen Crowley and Tom Drake guest at 8:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4.

PERRY MASON—9th season premiere. A beautiful murder suspect (Jean Hale) thinks she saw the real killer on a TV program, as series moves to new 9 p.m. hour, ch. 2.

BONANZA—7th season premiere. A hate-filled youth and his sister insist on working on the Ponderosa until they have repaid Ben the money he was bilked of by their renegade father. Tommy Sands, Brooke Bundy and Ford Rainey guestar at 9 p.m., ch. 4, in color.

HOLLYWOOD & THE STARS—Host Joseph Cotten looks at the career of "The Man Called Bogart" as the David L. Wolper series gets its off-network premiere at 9:30 p.m., ch. 9.

CANDID CAMERA—6th season premiere. Segments of the 10 p.m., ch. 2 show have hotel guests finding a donkey in their room, and motorists being stopped at a roadblock to be told "Delaware is full and has been closed."

EMMY AWARDS—17th annual presentations. Danny Thomas is host at the Hollywood Palladium, with Sammy Davis at the New York Hilton for the 90-min. ceremonies seen at 10 p.m., ch. 4, via 3-hour delay. Awards are given in only 4 categories this year, and are for "excellence" instead of "best," so that several from one category may win the nod.

PLAY OF WEEK—Husband-and-wife Eli Wallach and Anne Jackson star with Ruth White at 10 p.m., ch. 9, in a light-hearted comedy of an aging mama's boy who marries a cigarette girl after a 3-date courtship. On his wedding night he phones mama to tell her he's away for the weekend with the boys.

BRANDED—2nd season premiere. McCord hails a passing stagecoach whose passengers include a woman he once loved and a cavalry officer who voted him guilty of cowardice. Kathleen Crowley and Tom Drake guest at 8:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4.

PERRY MASON—9th season premiere. A beautiful murder suspect (Jean Hale) thinks she saw the real killer on a TV program, as series moves to new 9 p.m. hour, ch. 2.

BONANZA—7th season premiere. A hate-filled youth and his sister insist on working on the Ponderosa until they have repaid Ben the money he was bilked of by their renegade father. Tommy Sands, Brooke Bundy and Ford Rainey guestar at 9 p.m., ch. 4, in color.

HOLLYWOOD & THE STARS—Host Joseph Cotten looks at the career of "The Man Called Bogart" as the David L. Wolper series gets its off-network premiere at 9:30 p.m., ch. 9.

CANDID CAMERA—6th season premiere. Segments of the 10 p.m., ch. 2 show have hotel guests finding a donkey in their room, and motorists being stopped at a roadblock to be told "Delaware is full and has been closed."

EMMY AWARDS—17th annual presentations. Danny Thomas is host at the Hollywood Palladium, with Sammy Davis at the New York Hilton for the 90-min. ceremonies seen at 10 p.m., ch. 4, via 3-hour delay. Awards are given in only 4 categories this year, and are for "excellence" instead of "best," so that several from one category may win the nod.

PLAY OF WEEK—Husband-and-wife Eli Wallach and Anne Jackson star with Ruth White at 10 p.m., ch. 9, in a light-hearted comedy of an aging mama's boy who marries a cigarette girl after a 3-date courtship. On his wedding night he phones mama to tell her he's away for the weekend with the boys.

SPECIAL

HULLABALOO—2nd season premiere. Sammy Davis sings new lyrics to "This Will be the Start of Something Big" and hosts Sonny and Cher, the Strangeloves, the Lovin' Spoonful and the Supremes. New 30-min. format is at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color.

12 O'CLOCK HIGH—Gen. Frank Savage is killed by a German-captured B-17, and Col. Joe Gallagher takes over as CO of the 918th, though events make him doubt his ability. Paul Burke and Chris Robinson are new series stars at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7. Claudine Longet (Mrs. Andy Williams) is featured in opener.

JOHN FORSYTHE—Premiere. Bachelor Air Force major gets a staid shocking inheritance, a school of 120 girls. Elsa Lanchester plays the headmistress at 8 p.m., in color, ch. 4, with Ann B. Davis as the bouncy spinster gym teacher.

LUCY SHOW—4th season premiere. Moving to California to be near her college daughter, Lucy takes her son Jerry to Marineland and falls into the fish tank. Angels outfielder Jimmy Piersall is featured as show goes color at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2.

DR. KILDARE I—5th season premiere. In a new Monday-and-Tuesday 30-min. format, series begins a 4-part sequel-drama about a brilliant but egotistical surgeon who resents Kildare's questioning his decisions. James Mason, Margaret Leighton and Burt Brinckerhoff guestar at 8:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color.

LEGEND of Jesse James—Premiere. Christopher Jones and Allen Case star as Jesse and Frank James at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7, as opener finds Jesse setting out to avenge a friend's death by a fleeing bank bandit (Jack Elam).

ANDY GRIFFITH—6th season premiere. Opie wants a part-time job in Doakes' grocery store, and has to compete with another boy to get it. Norris Goff (Abner of radio's old "Lum 'n' Abner") is featured at 9 p.m. ch. 2, in color.

ANDY WILLIAMS—4th season premiere. Andy and guests Robert Goulet and Bobby Darin sing a medley about girls, with Wendy Allen in the informal spot at 9 p.m., in color, ch. 4. (Como's monthly specials preempt Andy in this hour, with Oct. 18 opener featuring Anthony Newley, Nancy Ames and Sammy Davis.)

A MAN Called Shenandoah—Robert Horton plays an amnesia victim seeking clues to his identity in the post-Civil War West. The 9 p.m., ch. 7 opener sets the stage, as a frontier doctor and dance hall girl save his life, and give him the name of Shenandoah.

HAZEL—5th season premiere. Hazel's new employers vow she'll not dominate their household as she did his brother's home. Then at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2 (note network switch), she and Harold arrive by fire engine to assume command. In color.

FARMER'S DAUGHTER—3rd season premiere. Color is added at 9:30 p.m., ch. 7, as Katy and Glen decide on a Washington wedding, and Papa Holstrom arrives to announce he's planned it for back home in "Yasperville."

STEVE LAWRENCE—Premiere. Lucille Ball makes her entrance astride a bright pink elephant (though show is B&W) as initial guest of the new weekly musical-variety hour at 10 p.m., ch. 2. George Schlatter produces.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE—Premiere. Ben Gazzara stars as a man who decides to live it up after being told by doctors that he doesn't have much time left. Opener, at 10 p.m., in color, ch. 4, involves him in the exposure of a dictator he spots at a European ski resort. Katherine Ross, Robert Loggia and Stephen McNally are featured.

BEN CASEY—5th season premiere. In a new sub-plot and cliff-hanger format, Casey wants to operate on a virology researcher whose work with germ warfare leaves him a terminal case. A malpractice suit results at 10 p.m., ch. 7. Leslie Nielsen guestars, with Franchot Tone, Jim McMullan and Marlyn Mason new regulars, the later two for an 8-segment romance.

MAKE THE SCENE—Premiere, KLAC deejay Al Lohman hosts a new Monday-thru-Thursday game show at 10 p.m., ch. 13, as a permanente team of Barbara Nichols, Joyce Jameson, Jesse White and Mickey Manners try to identify film clips, "famous scenes" and famous old "stills."

SPECIAL

HULLABALOO—2nd season premiere. Sammy Davis sings new lyrics to "This Will be the Start of Something Big" and hosts Sonny and Cher, the Strangeloves, the Lovin' Spoonful and the Supremes. New 30-min. format is at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color.

12 O'CLOCK HIGH—Gen. Frank Savage is killed by a German-captured B-17, and Col. Joe Gallagher takes over as CO of the 918th, though events make him doubt his ability. Paul Burke and Chris Robinson are new series stars at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7. Claudine Longet (Mrs. Andy Williams) is featured in opener.

JOHN FORSYTHE—Premiere. Bachelor Air Force major gets a staid shocking inheritance, a school of 120 girls. Elsa Lanchester plays the headmistress at 8 p.m., in color, ch. 4, with Ann B. Davis as the bouncy spinster gym teacher.

LUCY SHOW—4th season premiere. Moving to California to be near her college daughter, Lucy takes her son Jerry to Marineland and falls into the fish tank. Angels outfielder Jimmy Piersall is featured as show goes color at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2.

DR. KILDARE I—5th season premiere. In a new Monday-and-Tuesday 30-min. format, series begins a 4-part sequel-drama about a brilliant but egotistical surgeon who resents Kildare's questioning his decisions. James Mason, Margaret Leighton and Burt Brinckerhoff guestar at 8:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color.

LEGEND of Jesse James—Premiere. Christopher Jones and Allen Case star as Jesse and Frank James at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7, as opener finds Jesse setting out to avenge a friend's death by a fleeing bank bandit (Jack Elam).

ANDY GRIFFITH—6th season premiere. Opie wants a part-time job in Doakes' grocery store, and has to compete with another boy to get it. Norris Goff (Abner of radio's old "Lum 'n' Abner") is featured at 9 p.m. ch. 2, in color.

ANDY WILLIAMS—4th season premiere. Andy and guests Robert Goulet and Bobby Darin sing a medley about girls, with Woody Allen in the informal spot at 9 p.m., in color, ch. 4. (Como's monthly specials preempt Andy in this hour, with Oct. 18 opener featuring Anthony Newley, Nancy Ames and Sammy Davis.)

A MAN Called Shenandoah—Robert Horton plays an amnesia victim seeking clues to his identity in the post-Civil War West. The 9 p.m., ch. 7 opener sets the stage, as a frontier doctor and dance hall girl save his life, and give him the name of Shenandoah.

HAZEL—5th season premiere. Hazel's new employers vow she'll not dominate their household as she did his brother's home. Then at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2 (note network switch), she and Harold arrive by fire engine to assume command. In color.

FARMER'S DAUGHTER—3rd season premiere. Color is added at 9:30 p.m., ch. 7, as Katy and Glen decide on a Washington wedding, and Papa Holstrom arrives to announce he's planned it for back home in "Yasperville."

STEVE LAWRENCE—Premiere. Lucille Ball makes her entrance astride a bright pink elephant (though show is B&W) as initial guest of the new weekly musical-variety hour at 10 p.m., ch. 2. George Schlatter produces.

RUN FOR YOUR LIFE—Premiere. Ben Gazzara stars as a man who decides to live it up after being told by doctors that he doesn't have much time left. Opener, at 10 p.m., in color, ch. 4, involves him in the exposure of a dictator he spots at a European ski resort. Katherine Ross, Robert Loggia and Stephen McNally are featured.

BEN CASEY—5th season premiere. In a new sub-plot and cliff-hanger format, Casey wants to operate on a virology researcher whose work with germ warfare leaves him a terminal case. A malpractice suit results at 10 p.m., ch. 7. Leslie Nielsen guestars, with Franchot Tone, Jim McMullan and Marlyn Mason new regulars, the later two for an 8-segment romance.

High-School Drop-Out Drops In at TV College

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Dick Kallman, who plays Hank (8 p.m. Friday, channel 4), a college drop-in on the NBC-TV series of the same name, is so enthusiastic about the series that it's quite some time before he starts talking about himself.

"It's a fun series," he says. "I feel soap-boxy talking about it this way, but it says something. It's entertaining and makes school seem a fun place. It gives the feeling it's worth-while to get an education. But we are instructing with a sweet pill, not a bitter pill."

Dick (unlike Hank who is an unregistered college student) was a high school dropout. "I quit to go in show business. I was a good enough salesman to convince my parents it would be valuable for me to get a show business education. Now I realize what a mistake that was. If I could speak to youngsters, I would tell them to finish high school. There were six years when I was pretty unsuccessful, and I was scared, because I was not prepared to do anything else."

* * * *

KALLMAN was spotted by Hugh Benson, who created the show for Warner Brothers based on his own experiences as an unregistered student at USC, while Dick was playing the lead in Chicago in the national company of "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying."

He was born in Dixville Notch, N. H., to well-off parents. His father was once owner of New York's Savoy-Plaza Hotel. "Eventually he sold his interests in the States," Dick says, "and went to Havana where he was building a large hotel. But when Castro came into power, they were kicked out with only as much money as my mother could sew in the lining of her coat. So you see, I'm not a poor-boy-makes-good story, but a spoiled, rich kid who didn't appreciate what I had."

Kallman is interested in reaching youth, with messages of decency and dignity, and makes this evident by writing a monthly column for American Church News, a magazine of the Episcopal Church. "I also believe we have a clean, decent show in Hank."

CRITIC'S CORNER

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Programs

Program: "American White Paper: U.S. Foreign Policy," aired last Tuesday on channel 4.

I have been in training for the past week for the three-and-a-half-hour NBC-TV special about American foreign policy. Nine hours sleep. Three square meals each day, strictly regulated. Daily swims. Light afternoon workouts.

Three-and-a-half hours is, to put it mildly, an extraordinary length for a television documentary, particularly a heavy one that makes heavy demands on the viewer. I think it was an enormous accomplishment to hold one's interest as long as it did, but in all honesty —though one does not like to pick at such an endeavor —I cannot believe that most truthful viewers will deny it exhausted them, a state not conducive to peak interest.

I found myself getting rather foggy after about two-and-a-half hours, and was astounded frankly at the skill of the program— "American White Paper: U.S. Foreign Policy" — in making even that large chunk of the special move by so swiftly.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

A massive cram course on the history of our foreign policy over the past 20 years occupied three and a half prime evening hours on NBC —a record length for a television news special.

It was far, far too long a single program to impose at one sitting on even the most eager viewer. NBC might not have broken any length records, but it would have done us all a favor if it had broken the program into three parts for showing on three successive nights.

Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Most of the viewers who stayed with it probably came away feeling as if they had been personally present at a State Department briefing. It was an education in U.S. foreign policy.

Critic Bert Resnick of "TeleVues"

Riot Films

Public officials from 10 different governmental offices recently viewed taped highlights of KTLA's (channel 5's) 14-hour coverage of the Watts riots. The group was particularly interested in the closeup pictures made from the KTLA helicopter.

MY MOTHER, THE CAR —Premiere. Small-town lawyer visits a used car lot where he finds a 1928 Porter touring sedan whose radio carries the voice of his dear, departed mother, "come back" to look after him. Jerry Van Dyke stars at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color, with Ann Sothern the volce of the car.

COMBAT! — 4th season premiere. Jack Carter guests at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7, as a cocky fight manager whose "mother hen" concern for his boy (Ben Cooper) threatens the success of a demolition mission and the lives of the squad.

PLEASE DON'T EAT the Daisies — Premiere. Patricia Crowley and Mark Miller star in a family comedy series based on Jean Kerr's best seller and the MGM film hit. Opener, at 8 p.m., ch. 4, finds them battling over her newspaper column about their marriage. This segment, the pilot, is black and white. Remaining episodes are in color.

RED SKELTON — 15th season premiere. Paul Ford joins in a Clem Kadiddlehopper sketch, with a filmed-in-England segment with Freddie and the Dreamers. Color is added for the 8:30 p.m. series, ch. 2.

McHALE'S NAVY — 4th season premiere. Both Binghamton and McHale's crew are transferred to Italy, where a village mayor (Jay Novello) inadvertently discovers Fuji and turns him in for a reward. Hawaii's famed Nisei 442nd saves the day at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7.

F TROOP — Premiere. Forrest Tucker stars as a gold-bricking cavalry sergeant of the Old West in a comedy series at 9 p.m., ch. 7. Opener finds him stirring up some friendly Indians in an effort to impress an inspecting officer. Edward Everett Horton guests as Roaring Chicken, with Frank de Kova as Chief Wild Eagle.

PETTICOAT JUNCTION — 3rd season premiere. Series adds color at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2, gets new faces in the roles of two of Kate's daughters, and acquires new neighbors from the "Green Acres" cast (see Wed. "special"). Initial segment has Kate using a pen name to write a lonely-hearts column—sub rosa.

REBELS ON WHEELS — The KNXT News Special documentary on the notorious Hell's Angels is being repeated at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Joseph Benti talks with Att'y. Gen'l. Thomas Lynch, members of the motorcycle gang and some of their victims.

THE FUGITIVE — 3rd season premiere. Richard Kimble winds up a patient in a prison hospital — as a hero, not a prison inmate. But then he's recognized by a blackmail-minded prison trustee at 10 p.m., ch. 7.

CBS REPORTS — 7th season premiere. Charles Kuralt studies the desecration of our natural beauty as civilization's bulldozers threaten our few remaining scenic areas. Among those guesting at 10:30 p.m., ch. 2, are Justice William O. Douglas and Sec. of the Interior Stewart Udall. ("Reports" topics for the next month include the Ku Klux Klan, sculptor Henry Moore and the L.A. riots.)

High-School Drop-Out Drops In at TV College

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Dick Kallman, who plays Hank (8 p.m. Friday, channel 4), a college drop-in on the NBC-TV series of the same name, is so enthusiastic about the series that it's quite some time before he starts talking about himself.

"It's a fun series," he says. "I feel soap-boxy talking about it this way, but it says something. It's entertaining and makes school seem a fun place. It gives the feeling it's worth-while to get an education. But we are instructing with a sweet pill, not a bitter pill."

Dick (unlike Hank who is an unregistered college student) was a high school dropout. "I quit to go in show business. I was a good enough salesman to convince my parents it would be valuable for me to get a show business education. Now I realize what a mistake that was. If I could speak to youngsters, I would tell them to finish high school. There were six years when I was pretty unsuccessful, and I was scared, because I was not prepared to do anything else."

* * * *

KALLMAN was spotted by Hugh Benson, who created the show for Warner Brothers based on his own experiences as an unregistered student at USC, while Dick was playing the lead in Chicago in the national company of "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying."

He was born in Dixville Notch, N.H., to well-off parents. His father was once owner of New York's Savoy-Plaza Hotel. "Eventually he sold his interests in the States," Dick says, "and went to Havana where he was building a large hotel. But when Castro came into power, they were kicked out with only as much money as my mother could sew in the lining of her coat. So you see, I'm not a poor-boy-makes-good story, but a spoiled, rich kid who didn't appreciate what I had."

Kallman is interested in reaching youth, with messages of decency and dignity, and makes this evident by writing a monthly column for American Church News, a magazine of the Episcopal Church. "I also believe we have a clean, decent show in Hank."

CRITIC'S CORNER

Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Programs

Program: "American White Paper: U.S. Foreign Policy," aired last Tuesday on channel 4.

I have been in training for the past week for the three-and-a-half-hour NBC-TV special about American foreign policy. Nine hours sleep. Three square meals each day, strictly regulated. Daily swims. Light afternoon workouts.

Three-and-a-half hours is, to put it mildly, an extraordinary length for a television documentary, particularly a heavy one that makes heavy demands on the viewer. I think it was an enormous accomplishment to hold one's interest as long as it did, but in all honesty —though one does not like to pick at such an endeavor —I cannot believe that most truthful viewers will deny it exhausted them, a state not conducive to peak interest.

I found myself getting rather foggy after about two-and-a-half hours, and was astounded frankly at the skill of the program— "American White Paper: U.S. Foreign Policy" — in making even that large chunk of the special move by so swiftly.
Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

A massive cram course on the history of our foreign policy over the past 20 years occupied three and a half prime evening hours on NBC —a record length for a television news special.

It was far, far too long a single program to impose at one sitting on even the most eager viewer. NBC might not have broken any length records, but it would have done us all a favor if it had broken the program into three parts for showing on three successive nights.
Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP

Most of the viewers who stayed with it probably came away feeling as if they had been personally present at a State Department briefing. It was an education in U.S. foreign policy.
Critic Bert Resnick of "TeleVues"

Riot Films

Public officials from 10 different governmental offices recently viewed taped highlights of KTLA's (channel 5's) 14-hour coverage of the Watts riots. The group was particularly interested in the closeup pictures made from the KTLA helicopter.

IMPERIAL 1756 ALAMITOS

OLYMPIC WRESTLING, 8 p.m., ch. 5, with Dick Lane calling the action.

★ SPECIAL

LOST IN SPACE — Premiere. The Robinson family sets out on a rocket voyage in 1997 to colonize a planet, but a spying stowaway scientist, a rampaging robot he activated and the fiery force of a meteor swarm knock the spaceship off its course. Guy Williams, June Lockhart and Mark Goddard star in the hour-long series at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2.

THE VIRGINIAN — 4th season premiere. Robert Lansing and Andrew Prine guest star at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color, as a rancher sets out to save his younger brother from an Army firing squad, and accidentally kills a guard during the escape.

OZZIE & HARRIET—14th season premiere. Series moves to color at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7, as Clara tries to impress a visiting friend by introducing Ozzie as her husband. Everyone goes along with the pretense.

PATTY DUKE — 3rd season premiere. Frankie Avalon rings the Lane's doorbell when his car breaks down at 8 p.m., ch. 7, and Patty tries to keep the younger singer's presence there a secret from her "friends."

BEVERLY HILLBILLIES — 4th season premiere. Jed dons a nautical garb, which happens to be an admiral's uniform, when he sets out to buy a yacht, and mistakes a Navy destroyer for the boat Drysdale had in mind. It's color this season, at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2.

GIDGET—Premiere. Sally Field and Don Porter star as a 15½-year-old surf-loving teenager and her widower professor father in series at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7, in color. Gidget's diary is found by her older sister in initial segment.

GREEN ACRES — Premiere. Creator Paul Henning reverses his BevHillbillies plot, sets it near his Junction's Hooterville, and stars Eddie Albert and Eva Gabor as a big-city attorney with a hankering for the soil. John Daly introduces the 9 p.m., ch. 2 opener of the color series, with "Petticoat Junction" characters seen in minor roles.

CHRYSLER THEATRE — 3rd season premiere. Cliff Robertson, Dina Merrill, Maurice Evans, Nehemiah Persoff and Cyril Delevanti star in a probing portrait of an average man trying to cope with his incredible winning streak at the exclusive gaming tables at Deauville, France. Bob Hope introduces show at its new 9 p.m., ch. 4 time, in color, with his own opener slated for Sept. 29 with Bea Lillie, Doug Fairbanks, Andy Williams and Dinah Shore.

THE BIG VALLEY—Premiere. Barbara Stanwyck is the matriarch of a California clan of the 1870's in an hour-long action series at 9 p.m., ch. 7. Railroad troubles in the opener are interrupted by the arrival of a young man who claims to be the illigitimate son of Victoria Barkley's late husband. Series is color.

DICK VAN DYKE — 5th season premiere. On a TV game show, Laura Petrie blurts out the top secret that comedian Alan Brady wears a toupee — and the news hits the papers, too. It's at a new later 9:30 p.m. time, ch. 2.

DANNY KAYE — Third season premiere. Harry Belafonte and his discovery, Greek singer Nana Mouskouri, help kick off the opening color hour at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Belafonte does an 8-min. solo segment.

I SPY — Premiere. Robert Culp and Bill Crosby star as a pair of American secret agents who roam the world in disguise as tennis players in a one-hour color espionage series at 10 p.m., ch. 4. In initial segment they try to repatriate an Olympic athlete (Ivan Dixon) who has defected to the Red Chinese.

AMOS BURKE, Secret Agent — 3rd season premiere. Wealthy, debonair Burke quits the police to work for U.S. Intelligence and roam the world at 10 p.m., ch. 7. In the opening hour he tangles with a deposed Latin-America dictator living in Switzerland where he directs a gigantic gold smuggling ring.

SPECIAL

LOST IN SPACE — Premiere. The Robinson family sets out on a rocket voyage in 1997 to colonize a planet, but a spying stowaway scientist, a rampaging robot he activated and the fiery force of a meteor swarm knock the spaceship off its course. Guy Williams, June Lockhart and Mark Goddard star in the hour-long series at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2.

THE VIRGINIAN — 4th season premiere. Robert Lansing and Andrew Prine guest star at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color, as a rancher sets out to save his younger brother from an Army firing squad, and accidentally kills a guard during the escape.

OZZIE & HARRIET—14th season premiere. Series moves to color at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7, as Clara tries to impress a visiting friend by introducing Ozzie as her husband. Everyone goes along with the pretense.

PATTY DUKE — 3rd season premiere. Frankie Avalon rings the Lane's doorbell when his car breaks down at 8 p.m., ch. 7, and Patty tries to keep the younger singer's presence there a secret from her "friends."

BEVERLY HILLBILLIES — 4th season premiere. Jed dons a nautical garb, which happens to be an admiral's uniform, when he sets out to buy a yacht, and mistakes a Navy destroyer for the boat Drysdale had in mind. It's color this season, at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2.

GIDGET—Premiere. Sally Field and Don Porter star as a 15½-year-old surf-loving teenager and her widower professor father in series at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7, in color. Gidget's diary is found by her older sister in initial segment.

GREEN ACRES — Premiere. Creator Paul Henning reverses his BevHillbillies plot, sets it near his Junction's Hooterville, and stars Eddie Albert and Eva Gabor as a big-city attorney with a hankering for the soil. John Daly introduces the 9 p.m., ch. 2 opener of the color series, with "Petticoat Junction" characters seen in minor roles.

CHRYSLER THEATRE — 3rd season premiere. Cliff Robertson, Dina Merrill, Maurice Evans, Nehemiah Persoff and Cyril Delevanti star in a probing portrait of an average man trying to cope with his incredible winning streak at the exclusive gaming tables at Deauville, France. Bob Hope introduces show at its new 9 p.m., ch. 4 time, in color, with his own opener slated for Sept. 29 with Bea Lillie, Doug Fairbanks, Andy Williams and Dinah Shore.

THE BIG VALLEY—Premiere. Barbara Stanwyck is the matriarch of a California clan of the 1870's in an hour-long action series at 9 p.m., ch. 7. Railroad troubles in the opener are interrupted by the arrival of a young man who claims to be the illigitimate son of Victoria Barkley's late husband. Series is color.

DICK VAN DYKE — 5th season premiere. On a TV game show, Laura Petrie blurts out the top secret that comedian Alan Brady wears a toupee — and the news hits the papers, too. It's at a new later 9:30 p.m. time, ch. 2.

DANNY KAYE — Third season premiere. Harry Belafonte and his discovery, Greek singer Nana Mouskouri, help kick off the opening color hour at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Belafonte does an 8-min. solo segment.

I SPY — Premiere. Robert Culp and Bill Crosby star as a pair of American secret agents who roam the world in disguise as tennis players in a one-hour color espionage series at 10 p.m., ch. 4. In initial segment they try to repatriate an Olympic athlete (Ivan Dixon) who has defected to the Red Chinese.

AMOS BURKE, Secret Agent — 3rd season premiere. Wealthy, debonair Burke quits the police to work for U.S. Intelligence and roam the world at 10 p.m., ch. 7. In the opening hour he tangles with a deposed Latin-America dictator living in Switzerland where he directs a gigantic gold smuggling ring.

New Aide for 'Casey'

Jim McMullan is used to bad breaks, so he was not too discouraged when he learned his role as Dr. Terry McDaniel in ABC-TV's Ben Casey, which was supposed to be a regular one, will be in only the first eight episodes, in a continuing subplot. Jim had left a regular role in the new series Convoy to take the Casey job.

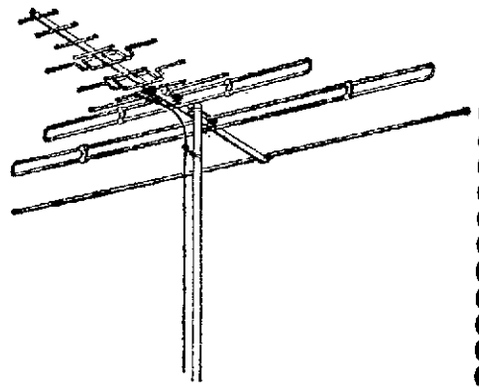

But he can look back on his childhood in Long Beach, N. Y., and several escapes from death (at 2, he fell down a window and a gate, at 6 he fell through thin ice, and at 7 he was in an iron lung, apparently suffering from infantile paralysis, it turned out to be advanced croup), so not too much discourages him.

* * * *

BESIDES, Bing Crosby Productions, which produces Casey, likes his work and is developing a series for him.

McMullan, who looks very much like a young James Stewart, doesn't have to be an actor. He has a degree in architecture. "But I left it because I don't like all that detail work. In architecture, you draw plans for a building that may never get built. In acting you are given a script. It's there and it's done."

SPECIAL

THE MUNSTERS — 2nd season premiere. Herman uses psychology at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, and gives his wholehearted approval when Eddie announces he's running away from home. It backfires.

DANIEL BOONE — 2nd season premiere. Color is added at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, with Edward Mulhare guesting as a conniving Redcoat officer who sets out to rule Kentucky by first capturing Boonesborough and then planning a wholesale massacre.

SHINDIG! — 2nd season premiere. With its hour split into two 30-min. segments (other is Saturday), 7:30 p.m., ch. 7 stanza features the Rolling Stones, the Byrds, Chad and Jill, Ketty Lester, the Everly Brothers and others.

GILLIGAN'S ISLAND — 2nd season premiere. Now at 8 p.m., in color, ch. 2, Gilligan finds himself singled out as husband material for the overweight daughter of a native family from a neighboring island.

DONNA REED — 8th season premiere. Tish Sterling, daughter of Robert Sterling and Ann Sothern, guests at 8 p.m., ch. 7, as Trisha's beautiful baby sitter who lands all the kids in the police station.

MY THREE SONS — 6th season premiere, new network. Steve loses one son and gains another at 8:30 p.m., in color, ch. 2, as Mike marries Sally and leaves the series, and Chip's friend Ernie needs a new foster home. It's first of a 3-parter.

LAREDO — Premiere. Neville Brand, William Smith, Peter Brown and Philip Carey are Texas Rangers in this new one-hour adventure series. Opener, at 8:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color, guest stars Burgess Meredith as a grizzled prospector who double-crosses the Rangers.

O. K. CRACKERBY! — Premiere. In a comedy series co-created by Cleveland Amory and Abe Burrows, Oscar-winning Burl Ives plays a self-made billionaire widower. In the 8:30 p.m., ch. 7 opener, he hires a penniless Harvard grad to give his three children the polish they lack. (Remaining segments, after tonight's pilot film, will be in color.)

BEWITCHED — 2nd season premiere. Aunt Clara accidentally turns Darrin into a chimpanzee at 9 p.m., ch. 7. And no sooner does Samatha break the spell, than she puts him back into shock — they're going to have a baby. (The TV one is due in February, with star Elizabeth Montgomery's due late next month.)

MONA McCLUSKEY — Premiere. Dancer Juliet Prowse stars with Denny Miller (ex-Wagon Train scout) as a $5000-a-week movie star married to a $500-a-month sergeant who insists they live on his income. So in the 9:30 p.m., ch. 4 color opener, Mona writes the Secretary of the Air Force demanding Mike be given a raise.

DEAN MARTIN — Frank Sinatra, Bob Newhart and Diahann Carroll appear to congratulate Deano on his premiere weekly show. Other guests at 10 p.m., ch. 4, in color, are Joey Heatherton, the Sid and Mary Krofft puppets, and singers Jan and Dean.

LONG, HOT SUMMER — Premiere. Edmond O'Brien stars in this new hour drama at 10 p.m., ch. 7, based on stories by William Faulkner of a town dominated by Will Varner. Opener finds a young man (Roy Thinnes) returning after 13 years to settle an old score with the patriarch.

"O.K. CRACKERBY," a series about the world's richest man, premieres 8:30 p. m. Thursday, channel 7. Burl Ives, title star, has three TV children, Brian Corcoran (left), Miss Joel Davison and Brooke Adams.

SPECIAL

THE MUNSTERS — 2nd season premiere. Herman uses psychology at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, and gives his wholehearted approval when Eddie announces he's running away from home. It backfires.

DANIEL BOONE — 2nd season premiere. Color is added at 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, with Edward Mulhare guesting as a conniving Redcoat officer who sets out to rule Kentucky by first capturing Boonesborough and then planning a wholesale massacre.

SHINDIG! — 2nd season premiere. With its hour split into two 30-min. segments (other is Saturday), 7:30 p.m., ch. 7 stanza features the Rolling Stones, the Byrds, Chad and Jill, Ketty Lester, the Everly Brothers and others.

GILLIGAN'S ISLAND — 2nd season premiere. Now at 8 p.m., in color, ch. 2, Gilligan finds himself singled out as husband material for the overweight daughter of a native family from a neighboring island.

DONNA REED — 8th season premiere. Tish Sterling, daughter of Robert Sterling, and Ann Sothern, guests at 8 p.m., ch. 7, as Trisha's beautiful baby sitter who lands all the kids in the police station.

MY THREE SONS — 6th season premiere, new network. Steve loses one son and gains another at 8:30 p.m., in color, ch. 2, as Mike marries Sally and leaves the series, and Chip's friend Ernie needs a new foster home. It's first of a 3-parter.

LAREDO — Premiere. Neville Brand, William Smith, Peter Brown and Philip Carey are Texas Rangers in this new one-hour adventure series. Opener, at 8:30 p.m., ch. 4, in color, guest stars Burgess Meredith as a grizzled prospector who double-crosses the Rangers.

O. K. CRACKERBY! — Premiere. In a comedy series co-created by Cleveland Amory and Abe Burrows, Oscar-winning Burl Ives plays a self-made billionaire widower. In the 8:30 p.m., ch. 7 opener, he hires a penniless Harvard grad to give his three children the polish they lack. (Remaining segments, after tonight's pilot film, will be in color.)

BEWITCHED — 2nd season premiere. Aunt Clara accidentally turns Darrin into a chimpanzee at 9 p.m., ch. 7. And no sooner does Samatha break the spell, than she puts him back into shock — they're going to have a baby. (The TV one is due in February, with star Elizabeth Montgomery's due late next month.)

MONA McCLUSKEY — Premiere. Dancer Juliet Prowse stars with Denny Miller (ex-Wagon Train scout) as a $5000-a-week movie star married to a $500-a-month sergeant who insists they live on his income. So in the 9:30 p.m., ch. 4 color opener, Mona writes the Secretary of the Air Force demanding Mike be given a raise.

DEAN MARTIN — Frank Sinatra, Bob Newhart and Diahann Carroll appear to congratulate Deano on his premiere weekly show. Other guests at 10 p.m., ch. 4, in color, are Joey Heatherton, the Sid and Mary Krofft puppets, and singers Jan and Dean.

LONG, HOT SUMMER — Premiere. Edmond O'Brien stars in this new hour drama at 10 p.m., ch. 7, based on stories by William Faulkner of a town dominated by Will Varner. Opener finds a young man (Roy Thinnes) returning after 13 years to settle an old score with the patriarch.

Car Complex

Ann Sothern, who is the off-stage voice of "My Mother, the Car," spent the summer appearing in the theatrical production of "The Solid Gold Cadillac." The "Mother" video series airs Tuesdays on NBC-TV (channel 4).

SPECIAL

WILD WILD WEST—Premiere. Robert Conrad and Ross Martin star as government agents assigned by President Grant to round up evil-doers in the old West. The first assignment, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, is capturing a guerrilla leader (Nehemiah Persoff) fomenting revolt on the Southwest frontier.

CAMP RUNAMUCK—Premiere. Out of the David Swift stables of "Grindl" comes a comedy of a boys' camp headed by David Ketchum and Arch Johnson. The 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, color opener has the only bathtub stolen by the staff of the across-the-lake girl's camp. (Frank DeVol, seen in this segment as the camp doctor, was replaced by Leonard Stone after the pilot filming.)

FLINTSTONES—6th season premiere. Pebbles and Bamm-Bamm are launched on a rock 'n' roll singing career at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7, in color.

HANK—Premiere. Dick Kallman stars as a high school drop-out with a yearning for learning, who poses ingenious ruses to crash college classes. After the 8 p.m., ch. 4 opener, series becomes a colorcast.

TAMMY—Premiere. Debbie Watson leaves "Karen" behind to play the homespun heroine involved in comedy conflicts between her backwoods background and her life in the outer world. In the 8 p.m., ch. 7 color opener, she wins her job as secretary to a plantation owner (Donald Woods).

HOGAN'S HEROES—Premiere. Bob Crane left a plush job as KNX-radio "morning man" to star in a farcial comedy of a motley band of POWs who turn their compound into a combination luxury resort and espionage headquarters. They deal with a planted spy in initial 8:30 p.m., ch. 2 segment, with all later shows set for colorcast.

CONVOY—Premiere. John Gavin and John Larch star in a full-hour color adventure series dealing with the wartime dangers to ships in the mine-infested waters of the North Atlantic. A saboteur and his hidden transmitter are traced to Gavin's destroyer in opening 8:30 p.m. episode, ch. 4.

ADDAMS FAMILY—2nd season premiere. Gomez decides to bolster Cousin Itt's ego by starring him in a production planned as entertainment for Wednesday's birthday. It's at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7.

GOMER PYLE—2nd season premiere. Gomer's happy as a buck private, so doesn't take the examination for PFC given at 9 p.m., ch. 2. He becomes the platoon's lowest-ranking member, but his series gets color for the season.

HONEY WEST—Premiere. A beautiful private sleuth, spun off last season on "Burke's Law," gets her own series at 9 p.m., ch. 7. Tonight she goes after blackmailers preying on rich women. Featured as Aunt Meg is veteran actress Irene Hervey, wife of singer Allan Jones (Donkey Serenade) and mother of singer Jack Jones.

SMOTHERS BROTHERS—The late Tom Smothers returns as a probationary angel and moves in with his terrestrial brother Dick, at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2. But he bombs on his first assignment—of playing cupid, Roland Winters is featured regular.

MR. ROBERTS—Premiere. Roger Smith and Steve Harmon star in the Fonda-Lemmon roles in a televersion of the WB movie of the misadventures of the men of a Navy cargo ship far from the scene of action. Shipmates try to smuggle a pal's bride aboard in 9:30 p.m., ch. 4 color opener. (The Oscar-winning movie version gets a week-long M$M run on ch. 9 a week from Monday.)

ATTORNEY for the People—Clete Roberts hosts a study of the D.A.'s office at 9:30 p.m., ch. 9, with Evelle Younger explaining and showing the function of his department, with its 600 employes, and segments spotlighting narcotics and child beating.

SLATTERY'S PEOPLE—2nd season premiere. A mysterious sniper wounds Rep. Frances James Slattery and follows the attack with death threats. Initial 10 p.m., ch. 2 episode introduces new regulars in the cast—Alejandro Rey, Kathie Browne and Francine York.

MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E.—2nd season premiere. A two-parter concerns a power-mad maniac who wants to conquer the world while breaking each of the Ten Commandments. Rip Torn and Dorothy Provine are guestars as series goes color in its new 10 p.m., ch. 4 hour.

JIMMY DEAN—3rd season premiere. The historic Nashville stage of the Grand Ole Opry is the setting for Gene Pitney, Connie Smith and Buck Owens. Also featured during the 10 p.m., ch. 7, hour are Eddy Arnold, Linda Gayle and Rowlf.

Car Complex

Ann Sothern, who is the off-stage voice of "My Mother, the Car," spent the summer appearing in the theatrical production of "The Solid Gold Cadillac." The "Mother" video series airs Tuesdays on NBC-TV (channel 4).

SPECIAL

WILD WILD WEST—Premiere. Robert Conrad and Ross Martin star as government agents assigned by President Grant to round up evil-doers in the old West. The first assignment, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, is capturing a guerrilla leader (Nehemiah Persoff) fomenting revolt on the Southwest frontier.

CAMP RUNAMUCK—Premiere. Out of the David Swift stables of "Grindl" comes a comedy of a boys' camp headed by David Ketchum and Arch Johnson. The 7:30 p.m., ch. 4, color opener has the only bathtub stolen by the staff of the across-the-lake girl's camp. (Frank DeVol, seen in this segment as the camp doctor, was replaced by Leonard Stone after the pilot filming.)

FLINTSTONES—6th season premiere. Pebbles and Bamm-Bamm are launched on a rock 'n' roll singing career at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7, in color.

HANK—Premiere. Dick Kallman stars as a high school drop-out with a yearning for learning, who poses ingenious ruses to crash college classes. After the 8 p.m., ch. 4 opener, series becomes a colorcast.

TAMMY—Premiere. Debbie Watson leaves "Karen" behind to play the homespun heroine involved in comedy conflicts between her backwoods background and her life in the outer world. In the 8 p.m., ch. 7 color opener, she wins her job as secretary to a plantation owner (Donald Woods).

HOGAN'S HEROES—Premiere. Bob Crane left a plush job as KNX-radio "morning man" to star in a farcial comedy of a motley band of POWs who turn their compound into a combination luxury resort and espionage headquarters. They deal with a planted spy in initial 8:30 p.m., ch. 2 segment, with all later shows set for colorcast.

CONVOY—Premiere. John Gavin and John Larch star in a full-hour color adventure series dealing with the wartime dangers to ships in the mine-infested waters of the North Atlantic. A saboteur and his hidden transmitter are traced to Gavin's destroyer in opening 8:30 p.m. episode, ch. 4.

ADDAMS FAMILY—2nd season premiere. Gomez decides to bolster Cousin Itt's ego by starring him in a production planned as entertainment for Wednesday's birthday. It's at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7.

GOMER PYLE—2nd season premiere. Gomer's happy as a buck private, so doesn't take the examination for PFC given at 9 p.m., ch. 2. He becomes the platoon's lowest-ranking member, but his series gets color for the season.

HONEY WEST—Premiere. A beautiful private sleuth, spun off last season on "Burke's Law," gets her own series at 9 p.m., ch. 7. Tonight she goes after blackmailers preying on rich women. Featured as Aunt Meg is veteran actress Irene Hervey, wife of singer Allan Jones (Donkey Serenade) and mother of singer Jack Jones.

SMOTHERS BROTHERS—The late Tom Smothers returns as a probationary angel and moves in with his terrestrial brother Dick, at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2. But he bombs on his first assignment—of playing cupid. Roland Winters is featured regular.

MR. ROBERTS—Premiere. Roger Smith and Steve Harmon star in the Fonda-Lemmon roles in a televersion of the WB movie of the misadventures of the men of a Navy cargo ship far from the scene of action. Shipmates try to smuggle a pal's bride aboard in 9:30 p.m., ch. 4 color opener. (The Oscar-winning movie version gets a week-long M$M run on ch. 9 a week from Monday.)

ATTORNEY for the People—Clete Roberts hosts a study of the D.A.'s office at 9:30 p.m., ch. 9, with Evelle Younger explaining and showing the function of his department, with its 600 employes, and segments spotlighting narcotics and child beating.

SLATTERY'S PEOPLE—2nd season premiere. A mysterious sniper wounds Rep. Frances James Slattery and follows the attack with death threats. Initial 10 p.m., ch. 2 episode introduces new regulars in the cast—Alejandro Rey, Kathie Browne and Francine York.

MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E.—2nd season premiere. A two-parter concerns a power-mad maniac who wants to conquer the world while breaking each of the Ten Commandments. Rip Torn and Dorothy Provine are guestars as series goes color in its new 10 p.m., ch. 4 hour.

JIMMY DEAN—3rd season premiere. The historic Nashville stage of the Grand Ole Opry is the setting for Gene Pitney, Connie Smith and Buck Owens. Also featured during the 10 p.m., ch. 7, hour are Eddy Arnold, Linda Gayle and Rowlf.

TV Cowboy Speaks Four Foreign Languages

By JOAN CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—William Smith, tall, deeply tanned and handsome, is the only television series star who, when asked how many languages he speaks, can answer, "I speak five, but that includes Yugoslavian, which I don't speak very well, so I don't like to claim it."

WILLIAM SMITH

But in German, French or Russian, the Columbia, Mo., native can read, write and speak fluently. For relaxation, Bill even translates Russian novels and novelettes of the 19th century into English. He got his master's degree from UCLA with a thesis comparing Tolstoy's works after he became a religious fanatic with those he wrote before.

His series is NBC-TV's Laredo (8:30 p.m., channel 4), in which he plays a taciturn Texas Ranger who is inclined to distrust man and trust nature. Smith is not a total newcomer, but he regards the series as his big break.

Several years ago he was one of the regulars on The Asphalt Jungle, but he was generally relegated to scenery-leaning in the 13 episodes that were filmed. After that series stopped production, he went to England and appeared in a series called Zero One, did bits in several movies, then made a film called "Atlantis, the Lost Continent."

"I got fantastic billing in that," he smiles. "But during filming I broke my ankle, and my scenes were cut. I wound up with that great billing and about five lines of dialogue."

SMITH IS GLAD THAT he didn't have much to do in The Asphalt Jungle. "I wasn't ready. I was nervous and stiff and very inhibited. It took me a long time to get over it."

Pan and Fan

Could you please tell me if Cannibal or any of The Headhunters are married?

And why won't the DJ's play their new record, "Nau Ninny Nau?"

Martha Borja, Long Beach

Neither Cannibal, Rabbit, Scar nor Yo-Yo are married.

Their personal manager, Eddie Davis, doesn't know why the disc jockeys won't play "Nau." However, one of them said it was too similar to "Land of 100 Dances," one of the Headhunters' earlier hits.

* * * *

I don't know how I'm going to live through the winter without Patrick McGoohan. I was crushed to discover that "Secret Agent" won't be on.

Elizabeth Connery, Long Beach

Have you thought about buying an electric blanket?

* * * *

News item states that ABC network no longer plans to cover space shots and national political conventions on a round-the-clock basis.

This is good news, because a good summary at intervals tells the story while giving the televiewer some opportunity of choice without missing his favorite programs—if any.

J. Paul Gleason, Long Beach

I'll take space and the political conventions, J. Paul, and you can have "Search for Tomorrow."

NINA Wayne is a counselor during "Camp Runamuck," starting 7:30 p. m. Friday, ch. 4.

SPECIAL

JACKIE GLEASON — 4th season premiere. It's back at Miami Beach for the Great One at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2. George Jessel joins the regulars, introducing the winner of Chicago's talent auditions, 21-year-old singer Mara Lynn Brown.

FLIPPER—2nd season premiere. A new semi-regular, Swedish actress Ulla Norstrand, is introduced at 7:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. As an oceanographer doing research, she's attacked by a barracuda and trapped by a sunken buoy, with Flipper to the rescue.

I DREAM OF JEANNIE—Premiere. A young astronaut is stranded on a mission and opens a bottle from which pops a beautiful genie who proceeds to complicate his life. Larry Hagman and Barbara Eden star at 8 p.m., ch. 4. (It was a son Aug. 29 for Miss Eden and hubby Michael Ansara, born after filming of 11 segments of series.)

KING FAMILY—2nd season premiere. Family musical show gets a streamlining as it's cut to a half-hour at 8 p.m., ch. 7. Highlight is the appearance of Alyce's 22-year-old son Lex de Azevedo, just back from a 2-year church mission in Brazil.

TRIALS OF O'BRIEN — Premiere. Emmy - winning Peter Falk stars in an hour-long comedy-drama series of a high-living lawyer and his trials—both legal and otherwise. Opener, at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2, finds him with a client just released from prison for stealing—and hiding—$12,000 which he can't find.

GET SMART! — Don Adams and Barbara Feldon star in a new comedy series spoofing the espionage racket, with initial segment finding the nation threatened by a mysterious and nefarious "Mr. Big." After the 8:30 p.m., ch. 4 opener, series will be colorcast.

LAWRENCE WELK—11th season premiere. The Maestro's entire musical family, plus their children, travel to Welk's Mobile Home Estates near Escondido for the 8:30 p.m., ch. 7 hour, first of this season's regular colorcasts.

THE LONER — Lloyd Bridges makes his third stab at a TV series at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2, this time in a Rod Serling series of a former Union Cavalry captain searching for a meaning to life. Tonight he goes to the aid of an againg Confederate veteran (Whit Bissell) being baited by a young gunslinger (Tony Bill).

HOLLYWOOD PALACE—3rd season premiere. Bing Crosby makes his first of 8 appearances as guest host as show goes color at 9:30 p.m., ch. 7. Guests include Caterina Valente, Tim Conway, Avery Schreiber and Jack Burns, Bertha and Tina (elephants), the Nitwits and the Rudas Dancers.

GUNSMOKE—11th season premiere, John Drew Barrymore guestars at 10 p.m., ch. 2, as the leader of an outlaw gang that pillages Dodge City until captured Marshal Dillon manages to make a come-back.

ABC SCOPE—2nd season premiere. Cameras follow William Attwood, the U.S. ambassador to Kenya, as he performs his daily duties of translating American policy into meaningful terms for the people of emerging African nations. Show's new time slot is 10:30 p.m., ch. 7.

HIS NAME'S SMITH

TV Cowboy Speaks Four Foreign Languages

By JOAN CROSBY

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—William Smith, tall, deeply tanned and handsome, is the only television series star who, when asked how many languages he speaks, can answer, "I speak five, but that includes Yugoslavian, which I don't speak very well, so I don't like to claim it."

WILLIAM SMITH

But in German, French or Russian, the Columbia, Mo., native can read, write and speak fluently. For relaxation, Bill even translates Russian novels and novelettes of the 19th century into English. He got his master's degree from UCLA with a thesis comparing Tolstoy's works after he became a religious fanatic with those he wrote before.

His series is NBC-TV's Laredo (8:30 p.m., channel 4), in which he plays a taciturn Texas Ranger who is inclined to distrust man and trust nature. Smith is not a total newcomer, but he regards the series as his big break.

Several years ago he was one of the regulars on The Asphalt Jungle, but he was generally relegated to scenery-leaning in the 13 episodes that were filmed. After that series stopped production, he went to England and appeared in a series called Zero One, did bits in several movies, then made a film called "Atlantis, the Lost Continent."

"I got fantastic billing in that," he smiles. "But during filming I broke my ankle, and my scenes were cut. I wound up with that great billing and about five lines of dialogue."

SMITH IS GLAD THAT he didn't have much to do in The Asphalt Jungle. "I wasn't ready. I was nervous and stiff and very inhibited. It took me a long time to get over it."

Pan and Fan

Could you please tell me if Cannibal or any of The Headhunters are married?

And why won't the DJ's play their new record, "Nau Ninny Nau?"

Martha Borja, Long Beach

Neither Cannibal, Rabbit, Scar nor Yo-Yo are married.

Their personal manager, Eddie Davis, doesn't know why the disc jockeys won't play "Nau." However, one of them said it was too similar to "Land of 100 Dances," one of the Headhunters' earlier hits.

* * * *

I don't know how I'm going to live through the winter without Patrick McGoohan. I was crushed to discover that "Secret Agent" won't be on.

Elizabeth Connery, Long Beach

Have you thought about buying an electric blanket?

News item states that ABC network no longer plans to cover space shots and national political conventions on a round-the-clock basis.

This is good news, because a good summary at intervals tells the story while giving the televiewer some opportunity of choice without missing his favorite programs—if any.

J. Paul Gleason, Long Beach

I'll take space and the political conventions, J. Paul, and you can have "Search for Tomorrow."

"Stop-Baldness-Week" Starts Tomorrow

S. I. Turoff, California's hair and scalp expert, who has just announced "Stop Baldness Week." As long as you have some hair, you have an excellent chance to grow thicker hair with remarkable new methods. Specialist Turoff says. Turoff Hair and Scalp Experts maintain their local office in Long Beach: 110 Pine Ave. (Suite 824-825), and hours are daily, 11 A.M.-8 P.M., Saturdays 10 A.M.-2 P.M., Thursdays, 4 P.M.-8 P.M. Turoff Experts offer an introductory treatment for $2, the next eight days only, to demonstrate the sensational new methods that have made us California's leading experts with 12 offices to serve you.

12 TUROFF OFFICES HAVE GIVEN

Over 1 Million Treatments in Calif.
(An Unmatched Record)

EACH DAY more and more persons troubled with premature baldness and excessive hair fall are being introduced to the exclusive Turoff treatment for the hair and scalp. More than one million treatments have been administered in twelve California establishments. There can be only one reason for such widespread public acceptance of the Turoff system. That reason is—RESULTS. Time has proved that results is a language that everyone can understand and appreciate.

With Just One Treatment

dead epidermis, foreign matter and dandruff scales will be removed from your scalp. It will no longer feel itchy and lifeless . . . but will be pleasantly Invigorated and alive again. Yes, in just one treatment your hair will start to take on a more healthy look with MORE BODY AND TEXTURE. Your VERY FIRST Turoff Treatment will enthuse you. See it, feel it, you will be convinced as other hundreds of thousands have been convinced!

JUST AS TEETH are destroyed by our "soft" civilized way of living, physical inaction, lack of fresh air, inadequate hair and scalp hygiene habits and nervous stress of modern living may all reflect unfavorably on man's hair growth. From their years of experience in successfully treating hair and scalp disorders, the specialists of the Turoff System have proven that modern man can avoid baldness by counteracting the effects of "soft," civilized living with "hard" vigorous system of scalp hygiene.

THE UNUSUAL SUCCESS of the Turoff System in administering more than one million treatments supports this theory strongly. The inescapable truth is . . . premature thinning of the hair, or actual baldness, is inevitable for many men and women . . . UNLESS CORRECT SCALP HYGIENE IS BEGUN EARLY.

RESULTS GUARANTEED—if, after 4 Turoff treatments for Baldness, Dandruff, Itching Scalp, or Falling Hair, you are not completely satisfied with results . . . your money will be refunded in full.

FREE EXAMINATION. There is no obligation or cost for scalp examination and advice. We accept for treatment only those cases that we sincerely feel can be helped.

TRIAL TREATMENT

During "Stop Baldness Week" only, the Turoff Hair and Scalp Treatment specialists offer a complete scalp treatment for $2.00 to any eligible man or woman. Here's the way to get it: Visit the Turoff Hair and Scalp Specialists office in Long Beach daily between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. (10 to 2 Saturday, Thurs., 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.). Have the Turoff specialist examine your scalp and give you his findings. If your condition is "hopeless," he'll tell you so frankly. About 5 percent of those he examines are hopeless.

Get the Facts

Otherwise, he'll tell you what's wrong with your hair and scalp, what can and should be done about it, how little time and money will be required to put your scalp in condition to grow healthy hair again.

Then you take a treatment of the type he judges you should be taking. It costs you just $2.00. No obligation. The offer is good for 8 days only. No appointment is necessary. Just come to the Turoff Hair and Scalp Specialists office in Long Beach anytime from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. (10 to 2 Saturday), Thurs., 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Expert Answers Your Hair Questions Free

As a feature of "Stop Baldness Week," Turoff Hair and Scalp Specialists offer a free consultation service. All you have to do is take your question in person to their office in Long Beach and let the Turoff Specialists give your scalp a complete examination.

These are the questions asked most frequently of Turoff specialists:

1. What is scalp treatment like?
2. Can hair be shampooed too much?
3. What are the recommended shampoos?
4. What are the facts on brushing?
5. Can excessive dry scalp be helped?
6. What about excessive oily scalp?
7. What about pomades and oils?
8. Is dandruff infectious?
9. Can bald spots be filled in?
10. Can excessive hair fall be corrected?

Take this list along with you tomorrow to see the Turoff Hair and Scalp Specialists.

In a recent interview, S. I. Turoff, nationally known authority on baldness, and director of the Turoff Scalp Clinic, said: "Most people don't stop to realize that in 95% of the cases where a person is on the road to baldness, common sense on his or her part might prevent this tragedy." People simply do not get around to doing something about their balding condition until in many cases it is too late. Yet, in the years that they have the danger signals of approaching baldness, such as excessive hair fall, dandruff, itchiness, dry scalp, thinning or bald spots—in those years they probably spend substantial sums on their teeth and general body health. Yes, it is peculiar but because oncoming baldness doesn't hurt like most parts of the body that are wasting away, many people simply let it go too long.

Our Turoff Clinics, in many major cities, are growing by leaps and bounds because more and more intelligent people are discovering that the secret of a healthy thick head of hair is professional treatment to remove the causes of their hair loss.

Our Turoff Clinics have nothing mysterious in them. We get the results by the use of the latest scientific methods and apparatus in the field of scalp culture.

We like skeptical people—they become our biggest boosters.

During the next 8 days every Turoff office is geared to give hair-worried Californians the most thorough scalp check-up they have ever had. No charge or obligation. If you are one of the 95% we can help, we will show you why in easy-to-understand language. Come in and let us show you why thousands of delighted clients have made us California's biggest, with 12 busy offices.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

LET'S GET ONE THING very clear about television's Emmy Awards at 10 p.m. today (Sunday) on channel 4. Everyone can win.

There are, for example, 16 performers nominated in the entertainment category. Each—not just one—of these 16 could walk away with an Emmy.

The category lumps together such contrasting personalities as Bob Hope and Leonard Bernstein.

My hope is that the awards to performers will be limited to five. My five selections as winners include:

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, each for their performances in Hallmark's Hall of Fame "The Magnificent Yankee;" David McCallum for his role as Illya in "The Man From UNCLE;" Barbra Streisand for her appearance in "My Name is Barbra," and former Emmy winner Dick Van Dyke for his acting in his series.

THERE ARE 14 entertainment programs nominated. My Emmy choices: "The Magnificent Yankee," "Profiles in Courage," "The Dick Van Dyke Show" and "My Name is Barbra."

(A favorite with other television editors and critics is "The Wonderful World of Burlesque," a Danny Thomas special which I missed.)

This year's winners will be selected by a 10-man "blue ribbon" panel. In previous years the Emmy recipients were chosen by balloting among all the members of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

In my opinion, the polling of all the academy winners was more democratic.

Further, while there may have been some need for changing the Emmy categories, the alterations this year has been more crippling than beneficial.

Major nominations this year include the following:

OUTSTANDING PROGRAM ACHIEVEMENTS IN ENTERTAINMENT:

Andy Williams Show, Bob Hope's Chrysler Theater, Dick Van Dyke, Hallmark Hall of Fame, Man From UNCLE, Mr. Novak, My Name Is Barbra, Profiles in Courage, The Defenders, The Magnificent Yankee, Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color, What Is A Sonata, Wonderful World of Burlesque, Xerox specials (Carol for Another Christmas and Who Has Seen the Wind).

OUTSTANDING INDIVIDUAL ENTERTAINMENT ACHIEVEMENTS:

PROGRAM ACHIEVEMENTS IN NEWS, DOCUMENTARIES, INFORMATION AND SPORTS:

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

LET'S GET ONE THING very clear about television's Emmy Awards at 10 p.m. today (Sunday) on channel 4. Everyone can win.

There are, for example, 16 performers nominated in the entertainment category. Each—not just one—of these 16 could walk away with an Emmy.

The category lumps together such contrasting personalities as Bob Hope and Leonard Bernstein.

My hope is that the awards to performers will be limited to five. My five selections as winners include:

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, each for their performances in Hallmark's Hall of Fame "The Magnificent Yankee;" David McCallum for his role as Illya in "The Man From UNCLE;" Barbra Streisand for her appearance in "My Name is Barbra," and former Emmy winner Dick Van Dyke for his acting in his series.

THERE ARE 14 entertainment programs nominated. My Emmy choices: "The Magnificent Yankee," "Profiles in Courage," "The Dick Van Dyke Show" and "My Name is Barbra."

(A favorite with other television editors and critics is "The Wonderful World of Burlesque," a Danny Thomas special which I missed.)

This year's winners will be selected by a 10-man "blue ribbon" panel. In previous years the Emmy recipients were chosen by balloting among all the members of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

In my opinion, the polling of all the academy winners was more democratic.

Further, while there may have been some need for changing the Emmy categories, the alterations this year has been more crippling than beneficial.

Major nominations this year include the following:

OUTSTANDING PROGRAM ACHIEVEMENTS IN ENTERTAINMENT:

Andy Williams Show, Bob Hope's Chrysler Theater, Dick Van Dyke, Hallmark Hall of Fame, Man From UNCLE, Mr. Novak, My Name Is Barbra, Profiles in Courage, The Defenders, The Magnificent Yankee, Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color, What Is A Sonata, Wonderful World of Burlesque, Xerox specials (Carol for Another Christmas and Who Has Seen the Wind).

OUTSTANDING INDIVIDUAL ENTERTAINMENT ACHIEVEMENTS:

PROGRAM ACHIEVEMENTS IN NEWS, DOCUMENTARIES, INFORMATION AND SPORTS:

NBC News convention coverage; "I, Leonardo da Vinci," "My Childhood;" "Decision to Drop the Bomb;" "The Louvre."

Riding fences in the rugged days of the West was one of the chores of the cowmen. What with outlaws, cattle rustlers and the like, the job required a sturdy breed. Moderns have a counterpart in these riders but the scheme is far different. These men mend the fences of modern highways and you will be interested in their story in "Toughest Fence Riders in the West," as told by Lou Jobst in next Sunday's Southland Magazine.

Outside House Painting Now Eliminated

Another boon of the space age has been accomplished for the homeowner . . . an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is Fiberglass FLEXON.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residence until they hear the FLEXON STORY. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather, and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with special heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

CITY OF LONG BEACH

Cal-Tex Improvements, Inc., is a licensed City of Long Beach Building Contractor. Most of the work now being done by Cal-Tex is in the greater Long Beach Area.

Cal-Tex has been selected as the exclusive franchised contractor of FLEXON in Southern Calif. You can obtain free information or have a free home demonstration without obligation. The low cost will surprise you and terms can be arranged to suit your pocketbook.

'BIGGEST COUNTY FAIR' OPENS FRIDAY

Progress in a Whirl of Action

By Harry Hofmann

A FAMILY fun holiday with the accent on action, that's the Los Angeles County Fair for 1965—the world's largest county fair, and the world's most exciting exposition—opening Friday and continuing through Oct. 3 at Pomona.

Fairgoers this year will be caught up in a whirl of action including star entertainment packages, horse racing, man's fantastic progress in the space age as depicted by the mile-long monorail and Science U. S. A. displays, and more than 40,000 exhibits of today's active generation.

Because the fair is where the action is, fair officials expect more than a million and a quarter visitors at the 17-day fun-fest.

Pretty shepherdesses drive their sheep to the Los Angeles County Fair, which opens on Friday with scores of events and thousands of exhibits.

Free night grandstand shows, with a 2 p. m. matinee added for Sundays, features: recording star "Queen of the House," Jody Miller, Paul Lennon, America's hilarious comet of comedy, and Herb Alpert's Tijuana Brass, Friday through Sunday; a Rodeo Cowboys' Association sanctioned wild west rodeo, Sept. 20-23; and thrills of the three-ring Polack Bros. Circus.

ENTERTAINMENT action will be seen during the daylight hours too, as some of the best marching bands in the world perform in parades and concerts.

The ampitheater features a continuous round of free entertainment daily from noon to 8 p. m.

Combination of harness, quarter horse and thoroughbred pari-mutuel racing is scheduled daily, except Sunday, on the fair's fast half-mile track. Vaudeville acts and musical entertainment is planned during intermission at the races. Post time for races: weekdays, 12:30 p. m.; Saturdays, 12 noon.

The fair's beautiful new clubhouse will again be open to race fans this year. Completed last year, the clubhouse features the "Top of the Fair" restaurant, and closed circuit television coverage of the sport of kings.

TWENTY major divisions —each an exposition in itself—fill the $25 million, 487-acre exposition park. The fair has more than 200 permanent buildings.

California counties, communities and organizations by the hundreds will have displays at the fair, a showcase of the harvest and wealth of natural resources of the Golden State.

The fair this year also salutes the Golden State with its newest attraction, the Golden Empire Mine, a reproduction of early California mining operations. In addition to elevators and mine shafts, fair visitors will see actual mining equipment used in the late 1800s. The mining equipment will be displayed in the reproduction of an early-day assayer's office.

"MEXICO: Art in Action" will be a major attraction in the fine arts building. Creative ideas in art will be demonstrated by outstanding Mexican artists in glass blowing, woodcutting, leather tooling and other arts and crafts. A 13-foot bamboo bird cage will be on display, complete with exotic birds.

Domestic arts exhibits display nearly 10,000 samples of women's (and some men's) handiwork.

Last word in California living display which is part of the outstanding Flower and Garden Show, each year one of the most highly successful shows in the Southland.

For the outdoorsmen there is the Sports Plaza, featuring the water skiing marina where aquatic entertainment is seen continuously throughout the day and evening.

THE GIANT camper and trailer show is one of the highlights of the fair each year, as is the new car display.

Foreign lands are brought to the Southland in the International Building and in the adjoining gay Mexican Village.

Other attractions include military and space age displays, the Junior Fair, public schools exhibits, the wonderland for little people —Story Book Farm and Cuddle Corral.

For those who like to picnic, the fair offers several grassy glades for relaxing and festive refreshment. The fair provides everything except the ants.

Major highways and freeways lead to the fairgrounds, making the fair only minutes from most Southland points. Parking is provided for more than 45,000 vehicles. Buses are routed directly to the grounds.

La Reina Rule

What Your Name Means

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Please inform us on CORCORAN.—J.C., R.H., Long Beach.

CORCORANS descend from the Irish Clan O'Corcrain. Their illustrious ancestor was a chieftain called Corcair, whose name meant "purple," descriptive of purple robes or a purple costume he wore. In Irish history the Corcorans occupied high positions as writers and prelates. Their armorial shield is silver, emblazoned with an upright sword between two red rampant lions.

MISS RULE: Please explain SESSA.—W.W., Long Beach

SESSA began as a dialectical north Italian term, "sessa," meaning "scythe." This was a local village nickname for an industrious farmer ancestor whose scythe became his business trademark.

MISS RULE: Would like data on NOONAN. — N.E., Garden Grove; M.S., Westminster

NOONAN was initiated in Erin or Ireland as O'Nuanain meaning "sons of the young beloved one." The Noonans were natives of northwest County Cork where an ancestor, William O'Noonan was a noted and skillful royal surgeon in the 1300s. The Noonan coat-of-arms is a red shield on which are three rampant lions placed one above another, colored silver on their right halves, gold on their left halves. Daniel Noonin or Noonan was a southern Pennsylvania settler in 1781.

MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on ZAVALA. — A.Z., Westminster

ZAVALA or Zabala began as a dialectical Spanish word in the Middle Ages. Zavala meant "owner of many horses." The family coat-of-arms is a green shield crossed by four narrow red vertical stripes. The Zabalas were famed in early California history. In the 1800s Don Pedro Zabala owned enormous ranches near Santa Maria and Soledad in central California.

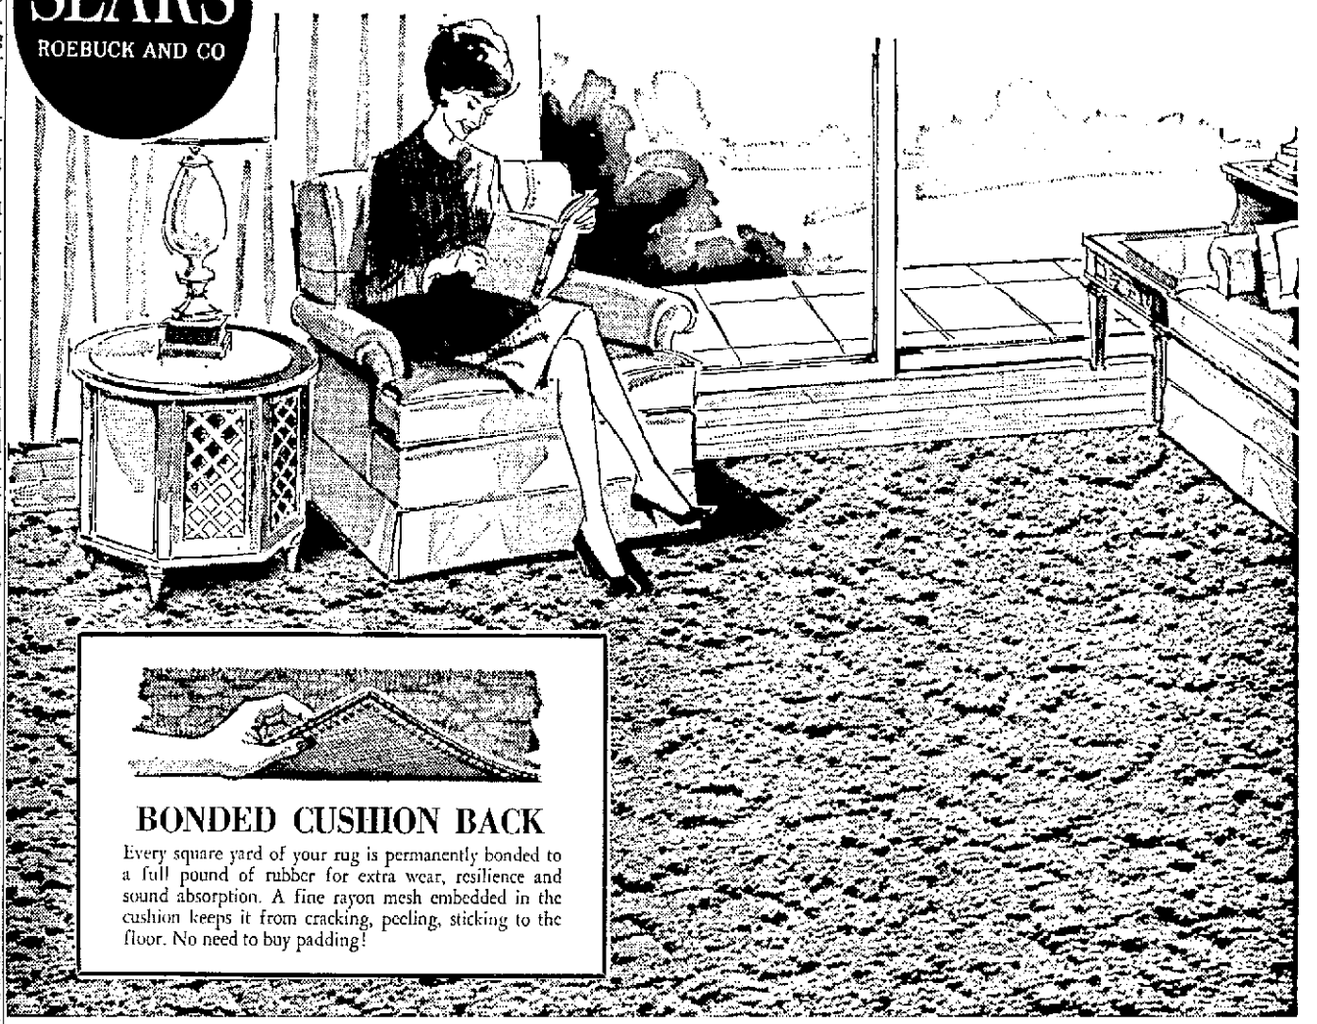

MISS RULE: Would like genealogy on ROUSSE.—L.P., Bellflower.

ROUSSE was initiated in the early Middle Ages as a southern French dialect word meaning "Red-haired one."

Sister Cities Celebrate

By Adelaide K. Roeslein

LITTLE DID Bernardo O'Higgins, the little old Irishman who won the battle for Chile's independence in 1818, realize that it would be celebrated as far away as Long Beach, Calif.

Because Valparaiso, Chile, is Long Beach's sister city, the Sister City Committee of Long Beach will give an annual luncheon to celebrate Chile's Independence Day, which is Sept. 18. Most local brother and sister Chileans live in Los Angeles, and they will attend. This is one day in the year when the people of Long Beach at large have an opportunity to mingle and get acquainted with these lovable people from Chile.

But in Chile, it is really a gala time day and night for three days. The big celebration is held in the ramadas, huge huts or booths built of tree branches with green foliage. Here, they dance the cueca, the national dance of Chile, to the lively music of the orchestra in the back corner and the humming and clapping of the spectators. And everybody goes to the celebration, either to dance or to watch the dancers.

IN THE BACK refreshments are sold, consisting of chicha, a special drink for this holiday, and borgona, a wine with fresh strawberries added. A special food served is empanadas, very tasty baked meat turnovers, with a drink called cola de mono, which is milk with coffee extract and alcohol added, said to be a very delicious drink.

But why does Chile go in for such wild independence day celebration?

First, because prior to their proclamation of independence in 1810, the people were required to send to Spain everything they produced or mined, and they were not allowed to own land. They naturally grew tired of this oppression and exploitation. And secondly, it took so long to win the war for independence. Though after eight years the final battle for independence was fought in 1818, Spain did not recognize the loss of her provinces in Chile until 1844, and her bickering and squabbling went on until 1869 when she finally acknowledged herself beaten. Fifty-nine years of warfare!

BUT HOW DID Long Beach's affiliation with Valparaiso start? It all began in 1958. William Dalessi, then a Long Beach councilman and Paul Rioth of the Independent Business Men's Association were invited to make a good will trip to Valparaiso as guests of the Secretary of the United States Navy. They carried a letter of introduction to Mayor Santiago Diaz Buzeta of Valparaiso from Ray Kealer, then mayor of Long Beach. Mayor Buzeta gave a big welcoming party for the visitors, who presented him with an honorary key to the city of Long Beach. In return, they were given a statue of a condor, the national bird of Chile, bearing the Chilean flag.

When they returned to Long Beach, they were convinced that Valparaiso would be a good sister city for Long Beach. The two cities, both on the western shores of the Western Hemisphere, were both important seaports on the Pacific. Valparaiso is nearly the same latitude south as Long Beach is north, making the climate much the same.

BESIDES these similarities, both cities have experienced a devastating earthquake, and each has extended substantial aid to the other. And so when the two men returned to Long Beach, they let their feelings to known to Fielding Combs, director of public relations, who started to work immediately on affiliation. Mayor Kealer liked the idea, too, but the wheels of affiliation turn slowly, and so it was not until some time in 1961, after Edwin Wade became mayor of Long Beach that the two cities officially became sister Cities.

(The annual luncheon will be held at 12:30 p.m. Friday at the Edgewater Inn. Deadline for reservations is Monday.)

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Please inform us on CORCORAN.—J.C., R.H., Long Beach.

CORCORANS descend from the Irish Clan O'Corcrain. Their illustrious ancestor was a chieftain called Corcair, whose name meant "purple," descriptive of purple robes or a purple costume he wore. In Irish history the Corcorans occupied high positions as writers and prelates. Their armorial shield is silver, emblazoned with an upright sword between two red rampant lions.

MISS RULE: Please explain SESSA.—W.W., Long Beach

SESSA began as a dialectical north Italian term, "sessa," meaning "scythe." This was a local village nickname for an industrious farmer ancestor whose scythe became his business trademark.

MISS RULE: Would like data on NOONAN. — N.E., Garden Grove; M.S., Westminster

NOONAN was initiated in Erin or Ireland as O'Nuanain meaning "sons of the young beloved one." The Noonans were natives of northwest County Cork where an ancestor, William O'Noonan was a noted and skillful royal surgeon in the 1300s. The Noonan coat-of-arms is a red shield on which are three rampant lions placed one above another, colored silver on their right halves, gold on their left halves. Daniel Noonin or Noonan was a southern Pennsylvania settler in 1781.

MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on ZAVALA. — A.Z., Westminster

ZAVALA or Zabala began as a dialectical Spanish word in the Middle Ages. Zavala meant "owner of many horses." The family coat-of-arms is a green shield crossed by four narrow red vertical stripes. The Zabalas were famed in early California history. In the 1800s Don Pedro Zabala owned enormous ranches near Santa Maria and Soledad in central California.

MISS RULE: Would like genealogy on ROUSSE.—L.P., Bellflower.

ROUSSE was initiated in the early Middle Ages as a southern French dialect word meaning "Red-haired one."

Sister Cities Celebrate

By Adelaide K. Roeslein

LITTLE DID Bernardo O'Higgins, the little old Irishman who won the battle for Chile's independence in 1818, realize that it would be celebrated as far away as Long Beach, Calif.

Because Valparaiso, Chile, is Long Beach's sister city, the Sister City Committee of Long Beach will give an annual luncheon to celebrate Chile's Independence Day, which is Sept. 18. Most local brother and sister Chileans live in Los Angeles, and they will attend. This is one day in the year when the people of Long Beach at large have an opportunity to mingle and get acquainted with these lovable people from Chile.

But in Chile, it is really a gala time day and night for three days. The big celebration is held in the ramadas, huge huts or booths built of tree branches with green foliage. Here, they dance the cueca, the national dance of Chile, to the lively music of the orchestra in the back corner and the humming and clapping of the spectators. And everybody goes to the celebration, either to dance or to watch the dancers.

IN THE BACK refreshments are sold, consisting of chicha, a special drink for this holiday, and borgona, a wine with fresh strawberries added. A special food served is empanadas, very tasty baked meat turnovers, with a drink called cola de mono, which is milk with coffee extract and alcohol added, said to be a very delicious drink.

But why does Chile go in for such wild independence day celebration?

First, because prior to their proclamation of independence in 1810, the people were required to send to Spain everything they produced or mined, and they were not allowed to own land. They naturally grew tired of this oppression and exploitation. And secondly, it took so long to win the war for independence. "Electric brains" will perform administrative, organizational, clerical functions . . . and take over some teaching chores . . . at futuristically oriented, 21st century University of California at Irvine. Classes get under way Oct. 4.

By LOU JOBST

AS A JOURNEY of a thousand miles must begin with a single step, the life of a great university must start on a single day.

Such a moment in time arrives the morning of Sept. 27 when about 1,500 young men and women report to the University of California, Irvine, to begin the academic year. Classes start Oct. 4.

(Youngest of the nation's centers of higher learning, UCI, occupying 1,550 acres of rolling hill country overlooking the Pacific Ocean and affluent, yacht-and-mansion-choked Newport Beach, is destined within a few years to become one of the largest schools in the world. Harvard is oldest U. S. university and was founded in 1636 with a faculty of 12 men. Bologna, Oxford and Paris were all founded in the 12th century in Europe.)

COVERING nearly three times the land area of its 46-year-old metropolitan cousin, the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), UCI expects, by 1990, to attain a student enrollment of 27,500 and to stand at the heart of a college community of 150,000 persons.

Not only is its physical rise from infancy to maturity to be meteoric, its planners expect the school to blaze some spectacular paths in the academic world, too.

Futuristically-oriented and aimed at the 21st century, Irvine has no plans for venerable walls of ivy.

Housed in handsome, functional buildings and using the best that science and technology have to offer, UCI aspires to become a revolutionary seat of learning where the student and professor have unparalleled freedom and computers handle the heavy work and hold a few surprises for the sometimes staid art of study.

"Those who work with the computer now believe it will have a greater impact on education than the book," explains Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich Jr.

WITHOUT COMPUTERS, asserts Dr. Aldrich, it would become necessary for colleges and universities "to limit enrollments and to limit access to knowledge."

At UCI the "electronic brains" will not only perform administrative, organizational and clerical functions, but will take over some teaching chores.

Automated lessons (using a personal lesson code, a student will work at his own pace at specially programmed typewriter-like computer consoles) will free teachers from tedious routine and provide time for more personal contact between the professor and the student, says the chancellor.

Initially, the UCI computer class will accommodate 20 students at a time. Eventually machines capable of handling several hundred students simultaneously will be installed.

UCI will also look into the use of television, language laboratories and other far-out teaching aids.

"STUDENTS and professors at Irvine—perhaps as nowhere else in the nation—will have advantages of the most advanced education, research and administrative technologies," promises Dr. Aldrich.

Manning the lecterns opening day in the $20 million, eight building "first campus" will be a staff of 114 professors and teachers recruited from 47 colleges, several research institutes and private industry throughout the world.

Termed a "remarkable achievement in recruiting," the staff, which includes seven women, is very strong for a new school, boasting somewhere between 80 and 100 doctorates and several "academic names."

Among the names are Dr. J. W. Peltason, former dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at the University of Illinois and a noted author on judicial matters; National Academy of Sciences member, Dr. Ralph W. Gerard, 37 years associated with the University of Chicago and internationally known for his research on the nervous system; Dr. R. C. Snyder, former chairman of department of political science at Northwestern.

The "profs," whose average age is only 37, include, among others, a violinist who conducted the Bombay Symphony, a librarian adviser to Pakistan, a former Broadway choreographer and a social scientist who lectured NATO leaders on theoretical problems of command.

READY FOR opening day will be a basic school capable of handling 2,000 students.

The campus will have a five-story Humanities-Social Sciences Hall, a Natural Sciences Building, a Commons with a 450-seat cafeteria, a Campus Hall housing a gym, auditorium and swimming pool, central utilities, a Fine Arts Hall, Science Lecture Hall and an Administration-Library Building.

The latter will contain a library of 90,000 volumes which will be expanded to 271,000 books during the next six years.

Also available will be Mesa Court, a complex of 10 residential cottages for a total of 500 single students.

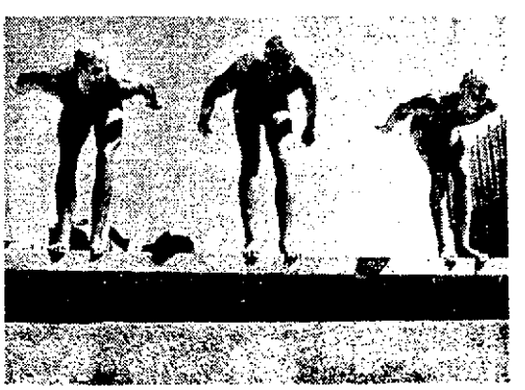

Apartments for 100 married students will be built next year when a second increment of construction, costing $15 million, is due to start and due for completion in early 1968.

MAJOR RESEARCH work, much of it

How computerized classes will operate is explained by Dr. J. Tonge (left) to student, Jerry Hoffman who also discusses a laboratory project with (left) Dr. John Holland in photos above. At left, trio set for aquatic sports are Bill Leach, Bob Nealy and Randy Howatt, swim star transfers to new school.

Words at Their Fingertips

Mrs. Herbert Fishbein works a Perkins Brailler in fashioning a Braille book.

By RENEE B. SIMON

A HANDFUL of Long Beach area men and women have joined the ranks of one of the nation's most unique book publishing enterprises. Barely a footnote among the grand old names of publishing houses, they and the mighty masters nonetheless have one thing in common. Their end result is another book in the hands of an eager reader.

Turning out the printed page is a high-pressure, high-cost business usually linked to the glamour of swank offices, swish cocktail parties, and hordes of famous people. Ignoring tradition, these men and women have swept aside aspirin bottles and tranquilizers, shifted into low gear, and turned back the pages of the mass production theory. They produce their books by hand and cut prices at the same time.

For the plush, skyscraper office they have substituted a cluttered dining room table or a corner in the spare room; and at the call to "roll the presses" all similarity to a major publishing house abruptly vanishes. Instead of the pulse of mass production and speed, each "publisher" uncovers what resembles a miniature typewriter—a Perkins Brailler machine—and begins the slow, tedious process of reproducing letter by letter, word by word, an entire printed book of the sighted into the complex system of Braille dots to produce a book for the blind.

BRAILLE IMPRINTED books are the lifeline which holds the blind in contact with the literature, science and educational opportunities of the sighted. The purpose of the volunteer Braillist is to permit them to own books, particularly reference works and texts, not commercially printed in Braille.

In this specialized printing process, selectivity is the rule. Converting a book to Braille bloats its size and usually triples its cost. The Braille World Book Encyclopedia, for example, requires 145 volumes and occupies shelf space 12 feet long and six feet high. The "A's" alone make up 11 volumes. A Braille book measures nearly a foot square—a spiral bound tome of page upon page of stark, almost blank white paper reflecting to the sighted only a mass of indiscriminate, tiny bumps.

The Los Angeles' Braille Institute librarian explains that the American Printing House for the Blind prints almost all commercial Braille books. "Diverse as their catalogs are," she added "the Printing House cannot possibly reproduce every sighted book. For every book in Braille there are dozens of others not commercially printed." The volunteers handle personal requests for these specialized books otherwise unobtainable.

ALTHOUGH VOLUNTEER projects go on in every state in the Union, the total number of qualified Braillists is far less than the demand. Locally the work began under the sponsorship of the University Women's Club, instructed by Mrs. Frances Park, a Braille expert with 20 years' experience. Hoping to expand the volunteer corps, one of her students, Mrs. Herbert Fishbein, has organized another class of Braille transcribers supported by Long Beach's Temple Israel. Of her new recruits, Mrs. Fishbein says, "The first time they see a Braille book they are ready to disband." During her first lecture she is reassuring but firm. "Learning Braille is a demanding study—the course will take 4½ months, but every one of you can develop the necessary skills."

Smaller than a portable typewriter, the Braille machine needs only six keys instead of the conventional typewriter's more than 40. During the 18-week course, students learn to rearrange the basic six-dot symbol to create 258 distinct characters and word signs.

Among the community's transcribers are college graduates and some who have never finished high school; young housewives and women whose grown families have left them the luxury of free time. Retired men often find that Braille transcription makes easier the transition from full-time work to full-time leisure. "One of our most faithful transcribers," Mrs. Fishbein relates, "recently had to give up her volunteer work. Now 80 years old, she has herself long been confined to a wheelchair, a victim of multiple sclerosis. She reluctantly abandoned Braille when her fingers simply could not type any longer."

BRAILLE, a combination of shorthand, secret code and a new language, adapts to any alphabet. In fact, anything that can be printed can be Brailled—advanced mathematics, chemical formulae, even music.

The area clearing house for book requests is the Braille Section office of the University Women's Club. As appeals come in, she finds transcribers. She and local volunteers meet every three months to discuss new techniques and to distribute assignments: their version of the book publisher's editorial meeting.

The assignments are often overwhelming. "I'm going to have to get some of you to take a deep breath and plunge into these," Mrs. Park warned as she opened a recent workship. "Who wants to do a Congressional Bill relating to Mexican migrant workers?" The woman who finally volunteered had only one reservation. "Is there a rush, or can I paint the house at the same time?"

IN ACCEPTING the job of Brailling "Algebra in Easy Steps" another couldn't resist adding her own comment. "What a ridiculous title—Algebra can't be easy!"

But the wonder of transcribing into Braille is that it requires no knowledge of the subject. Volunteers only copy, never do they have to solve any of the problems or get any answers. Otherwise, could Mrs. Park have obtained few volunteers for all her requests that day.

She reeled off book titles many there could hardly spell: "Non-Parametric Statistics for the Behavioral Sciences," which she explained was an advanced math text for a teacher in Missouri; next, a Latin reader, followed by "Tales of Anatole France" in French for the Library of Congress. Her list went on.

A blind teacher of sighted classes in Whittier requested a music appreciation book and someone in Maine wanted a French grammar. "If we are going to achieve our goal of helping blind children get an education, we can't specialize in easy work," Mrs. Park urged.

AS THE WORKSHOP got into its problem-solving phase, she could call on her 20 years experience as a Braillist to answer the tough questions. How do you transcribe the Scotch dialect of Robert Burns' poems? Do we include comments about pictures from the original text even though the Braille book has no pictures?

They include everything possible. The intent is to keep the Braille exactly as books for the sighted, depriving the blind of no information available to the less unfortunate. Yet some things, music notes for example, are too far beyond the limitations of the non-professional printer.

Forced to omit illustrative material, they cite instead their rigid standards for accuracy in typing. Any error, no matter how minute, means repeating an entire page—often an hour's work. Mrs. Fishbein tells her students that a page of poor Braille affects the blind as a page of misprints would affect the sighted. "The handicapped reader is entitled to perfect Braille," she insists.

AS A JOURNEY of a thousand miles must begin with a single step, the life of a great university must start on a single day.

Such a moment in time arrives the morning of Sept. 27 when about 1,500 young men and women report to the University of California, Irvine, to begin the academic year. Classes start Oct. 4.

(Youngest of the nation's centers of higher learning, UCI, occupying 1,550 acres of rolling hill country overlooking the Pacific Ocean and affluent, yacht-and-mansion-choked Newport Beach, is destined within a few years to become one of the largest schools in the world. Harvard is oldest U. S. university and was founded in 1636 with a faculty of 12 men. Bologna, Oxford and Paris were all founded in the 12th century in Europe.)

COVERING nearly three times the land area of its 46-year-old metropolitan cousin, the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA), UCI expects, by 1990, to attain a student enrollment of 27,500 and to stand at the heart of a college community of 150,000 persons.

Not only is its physical rise from infancy to maturity to be meteoric, its planners expect the school to blaze some spectacular paths in the academic world, too.

Futuristically-oriented and aimed at the 21st century, Irvine has no plans for venerable walls of ivy.

Housed in handsome, functional buildings and using the best that science and technology have to offer, UCI aspires to become a revolutionary seat of learning where the student and professor have unparalleled freedom and computers handle the heavy work and hold a few surprises for the sometimes staid art of study.

"Those who work with the computer now believe it will have a greater impact on education than the book," explains Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich Jr.

WITHOUT COMPUTERS, asserts Dr. Aldrich, it would become necessary for colleges and universities "to limit enrollments and to limit access to knowledge."

At UCI the "electronic brains" will not only perform administrative, organizational and clerical functions, but will take over some teaching chores.

Automated lessons (using a personal lesson code, a student will work at his own pace at specially programmed typewriter-like computer consoles) will free teachers from tedious routine and provide time for more personal contact between the professor and the student, says the chancellor.

Initially, the UCI computer class will accommodate 20 students at a time. Eventually machines capable of handling several hundred students simultaneously will be installed.

UCI will also look into the use of television, language laboratories and other far-out teaching aids.

"STUDENTS and professors at Irvine—perhaps as nowhere else in the nation—will have advantages of the most advanced education, research and administrative technologies," promises Dr. Aldrich.

UCI administrators aren't ignoring the human machinery either.

Manning the lecterns opening day in the $20 million, eight-building "first campus" will be a staff of 114 professors and teachers recruited from 47 colleges, several research institutes and private industry throughout the world.

Termed a "remarkable achievement in recruiting," the staff, which includes seven women, is very strong for a new school, boasting somewhere between 80 and 100 doctorates and several "academic names."

Among the names are Dr. J. W. Peltason, former dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at the University of Illinois and a noted author on judicial matters; National Academy of Sciences member, Dr. Ralph W. Gerard, 37 years associated with the University of Chicago and internationally known for his research on the nervous system; Dr. R. C. Snyder, former chairman of department of political science at Northwestern.

The "profs," whose average age is only 37, include, among others, a violinist who conducted the Bombay Symphony, a librarian adviser to Pakistan, a former Broadway choreographer and a social scientist who lectured NATO leaders on theoretical problems of command.

READY FOR opening day will be a basic school capable of handling 2,000 students.

The campus will have a five-story Humanities-Social Sciences Hall, a Natural Sciences Building, a Commons with a 450-seat cafeteria, a Campus Hall housing a gym, auditorium and swimming pool, central utilities, a Fine Arts Hall, Science Lecture Hall and an Administration-Library Building.

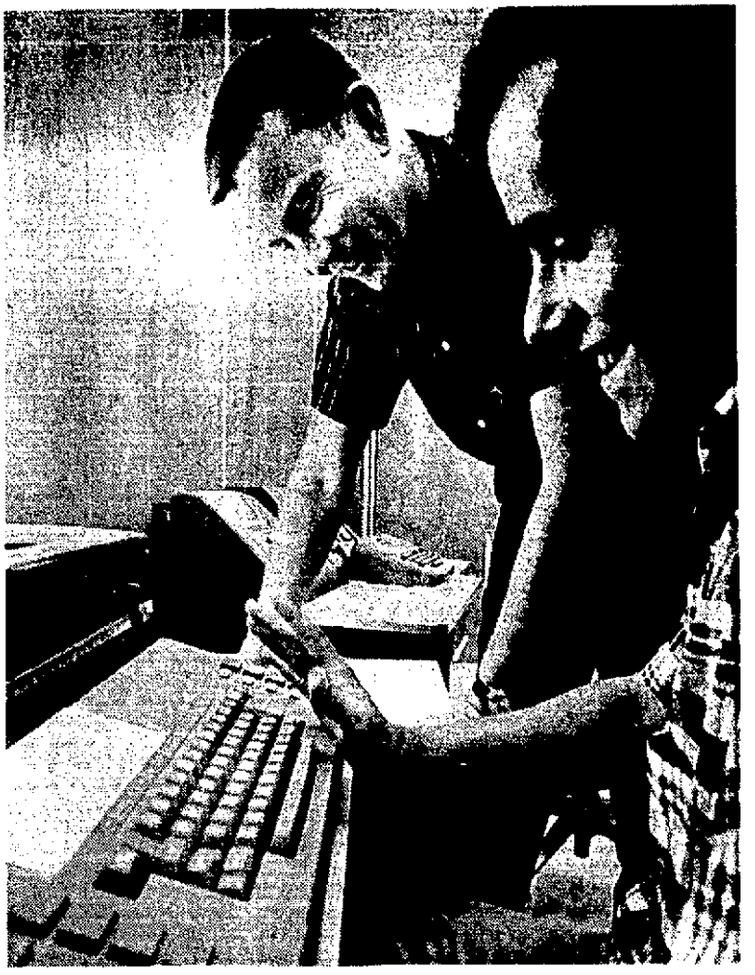

The latter will contain a library of 90,000 volumes which will be expanded to 271,000 books during the next six years.

Also available will be Mesa Court, a complex of 10 residential cottages for a total of 500 single students.

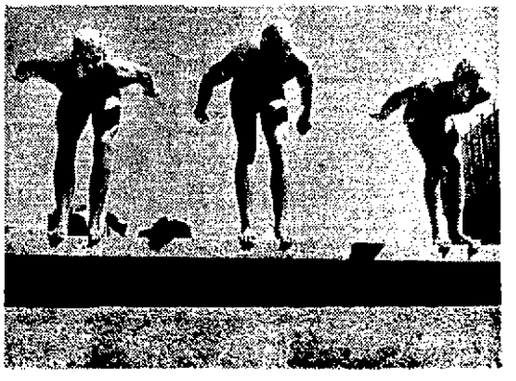

Apartments for 100 married students will be built next year when a second increment of construction, costing $15 million, is due to start and due for completion in early 1968.

MAJOR RESEARCH work, much of it

How computerized classes will operate is explained by Dr. J. Tonge (left) to student, Jerry Hoffman, who also discusses a laboratory project with (left) Dr. John Holland in photos above. At left, trio set for aquatic sports are Bill Leach, Bob Nealy and Randy Howatt, swim star transfers to new school.

Words at Their Fingertips

Mrs. Herbert Fishbein works a Perkins Brailler in fashioning a Braille book.

By RENEE B. SIMON

A HANDFUL of Long Beach area men and women have joined the ranks of one of the nation's most unique book publishing enterprises. Barely a footnote among the grand old names of publishing houses, they and the mighty masters nonetheless have one thing in common. Their end result is another book in the hands of an eager reader.

Turning out the printed page is a high-pressure, high-cost business usually linked to the glamour of swank offices, swish cocktail parties, and hordes of famous people. Ignoring tradition, these men and women have swept aside aspirin bottles and tranquilizers, shifted into low gear, and turned back the pages of the mass production theory. They produce their books by hand and cut prices at the same time.

For the plush, skyscraper office they have substituted a cluttered dining room table or a corner in the spare room; and at the call to "roll the presses" all similarity to a major publishing house abruptly vanishes. Instead of the pulse of mass production and speed, each "publisher" uncovers what resembles a miniature typewriter—a Perkins Brailler machine—and begins the slow, tedious process of reproducing letter by letter, word by word, an entire printed book of the sighted into the complex system of Braille dots to produce a book for the blind.

BRAILLE IMPRINTED books are the lifeline which holds the blind in contact with the literature, science and educational opportunities of the sighted. The purpose of the volunteer Braillist is to permit them to own books, particularly reference works and texts, not commercially printed in Braille.

In this specialized printing process, selectivity is the rule. Converting a book to Braille bloats its size and usually triples its cost. The Braille World Book Encyclopedia, for example, requires 145 volumes and occupies shelf space 12 feet long and six feet high. The "A's" alone make up 11 volumes. A Braille book measures nearly a foot square—a spiral bound tome of page upon page of stark, almost blank white paper reflecting to the sighted only a mass of indiscriminate, tiny bumps.

The Los Angeles' Braille Institute librarian explains that the American Printing House for the Blind prints almost all commercial Braille books. "Diverse as their catalogs are," she added "the Printing House cannot possibly reproduce every sighted book. For every book in Braille there are dozens of others not commercially printed." The volunteers handle personal requests for these specialized books otherwise unobtainable.

ALTHOUGH VOLUNTEER projects go on in every state in the Union, the total number of qualified Braillists is far less than the demand. Locally the work began under the sponsorship of the University Women's Club, instructed by Mrs. Frances Park, a Braille expert with 20 years' experience. Hoping to expand the volunteer corps, one of her students, Mrs. Herbert Fishbein, has organized another class of Braille transcribers supported by Long Beach's Temple Israel. Of her new recruits, Mrs. Fishbein says, "The first time they see a Braille book they are ready to disband." During her first lecture she is reassuring but firm. "Learning Braille is a demanding study—the course will take 4½ months, but every one of you can develop the necessary skills."

Smaller than a portable typewriter, the Braille machine needs only six keys instead of the conventional typewriter's more than 40. During the 18-week course, students learn to rearrange the basic six-dot symbol to create 258 distinct characters and word signs.

Among the community's transcribers are college graduates and some who have never finished high school; young housewives and women whose grown families have left them the luxury of free time. Retired men often find that Braille transcription makes easier the transition from full-time work to full-time leisure. "One of our most faithful transcribers," Mrs. Fishbein relates, "recently had to give up her volunteer work. Now 80 years old, she has herself long been confined to a wheelchair, a victim of multiple sclerosis. She reluctantly abandoned Braille when her fingers simply could not type any longer."

BRAILLE, a combination of shorthand, secret code and a new language, adapts to any alphabet. In fact, anything that can be printed can be Brailled—advanced mathematics, chemical formulae, even music.

The area clearing house for book requests is the Braille Section office of the University Women's Club. As appeals come in, she finds transcribers. She and local volunteers meet every three months to discuss new techniques and to distribute assignments: their version of the book publisher's editorial meeting.

The assignments are often overwhelming. "I'm going to have to get some of you to take a deep breath and plunge into these," Mrs. Park warned as she opened a recent workship. "Who wants to do a Congressional Bill relating to Mexican migrant workers?" The woman who finally volunteered had only one reservation. "Is there a rush, or can I paint the house at the same time?"

IN ACCEPTING the job of Brailling "Algebra in Easy Steps" another couldn't resist adding her own comment. "What a ridiculous title—Algebra can't be easy!"

But the wonder of transcribing into Braille is that it requires no knowledge of the subject. Volunteers only copy, never do they have to solve any of the problems or get any answers. Otherwise, could Mrs. Park have obtained few volunteers for all her requests that day.

She reeled off book titles many there could hardly spell: "Non-Parametric Statistics for the Behavioral Sciences," which she explained was an advanced math text for a teacher in Missouri; next, a Latin reader, followed by "Tales of Anatole France" in French for the Library of Congress. Her list went on.

A blind teacher of sighted classes in Whittier requested a music appreciation book and someone in Maine wanted a French grammar. "If we are going to achieve our goal of helping blind children get an education, we can't specialize in easy work," Mrs. Park urged.

AS THE WORKSHOP got into its problem-solving phase, she could call on her 20 years experience as a Braillist to answer the tough questions. How do you transcribe the Scotch dialect of Robert Burns' poems? Do we include comments about pictures from the original text even though the Braille book has no pictures?

They include everything possible. The intent is to keep the Braille exactly as books for the sighted, depriving the blind of no information available to the less unfortunate. Yet some things, music notes for example, are too far beyond the limitations of the non-professional printer.

Forced to omit illustrative material, they cite instead their rigid standards for accuracy in typing. Any error, no matter how minute, means repeating an entire page—often an hour's work. Mrs. Fishbein tells her students that a page of poor Braille affects the blind as a page of misprints would affect the sighted. "The handicapped reader is entitled to perfect Braille," she insists.

A valuable extension to the long arm of the law

The Police Baton

Fledgling officers of the Long Beach Police Department are taught by Patrol Lt. Al LaRue to use it for a multitude of purposes.

By BILL HAZLETT

BILLY CLUB, nightstick or truncheon, no matter what it's called, the police officer's baton is a valuable extension to the long arm of the law.

The regulation baton is a 26-inch length of seasoned hardwood equipped with leather thongs attached to the grip. All uniformed officers of the Long Beach Police Department carry batons—and are trained to use them.

Although primarily thought of as a weapon, the police baton has any number of important uses. For example, the baton can be used to splint a broken bone, or as a tourniquet.

OFFICERS HAVE used their batons as handcuffs, pry bars, stretchers, a leash for rabid animals, or to remove shock victims from downed electrical wires.

The sight of a beat patrolman, walking along the street twirling and spinning his baton in a series of looping patterns is familiar to almost everyone.

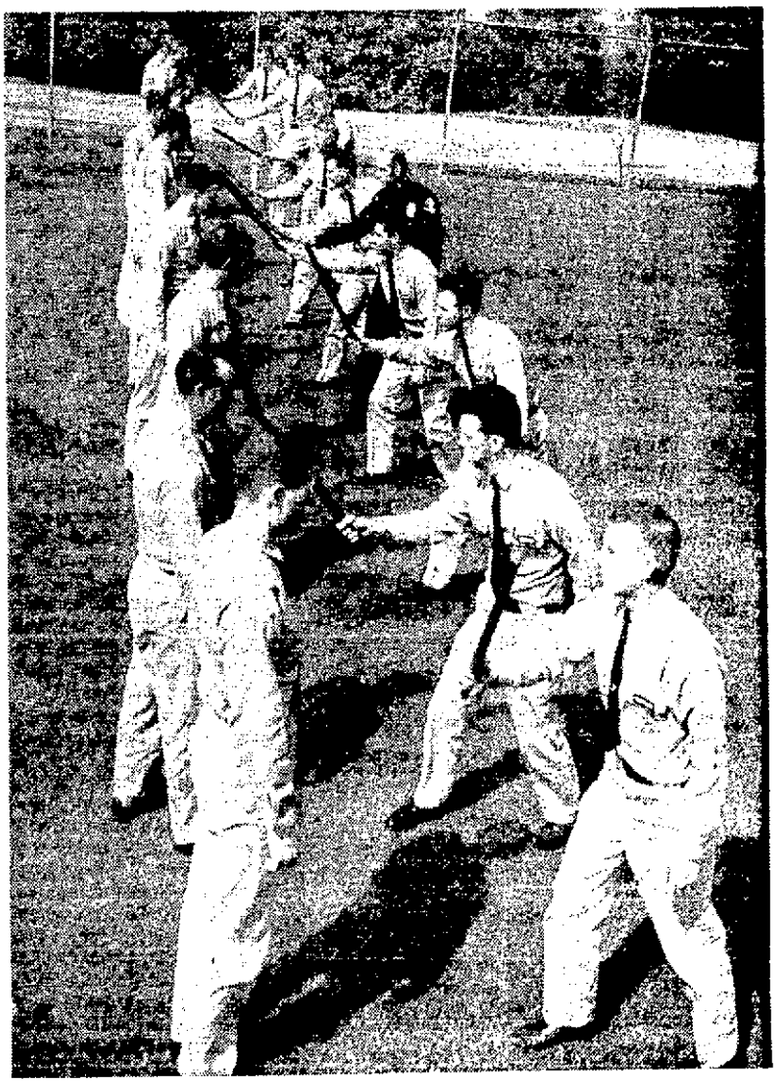

Yet, practicing to perform the intricate spins and swirls comes long after the fledgling officer has learned to use his baton correctly, under the expert instruction of Patrol Lt. Al LaRue.

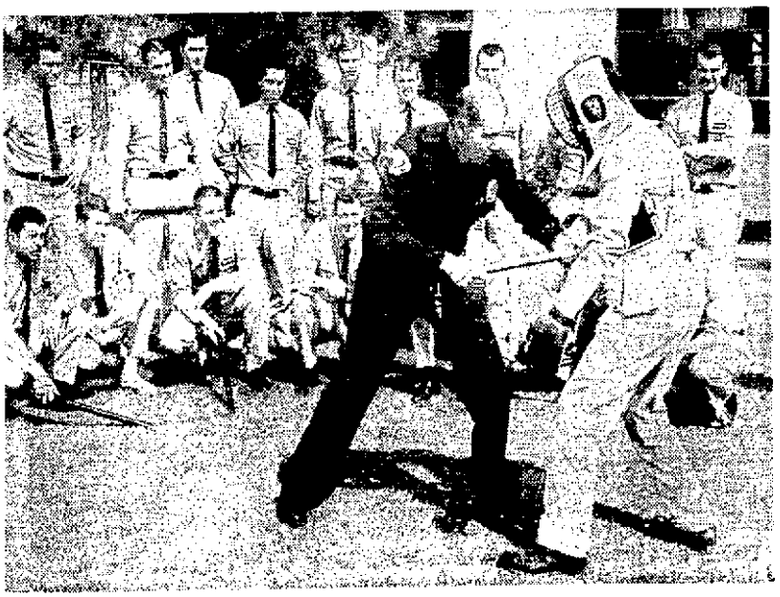

"The policeman's baton," Lt. LaRue tells his rookie class, "is not a club. It is a scientific tool designed to be used as such.

"LIKE A GUN or badge, the baton is a deterrent to violence when correctly carried and used. When not carried or used correctly, the baton assumes an ominous appearance, and is resented by law-abiding citizens."

Baton training is an important phase in the course of instruction given all beginning officers in the department's police academy. The young patrolmen are schooled and drilled in the effective techniques which make the crude wooden club a vital tool.

Defensive tactics are stressed, along with the baton's other uses, any one of which could provide a life-saving difference —to the officer, or someone else.

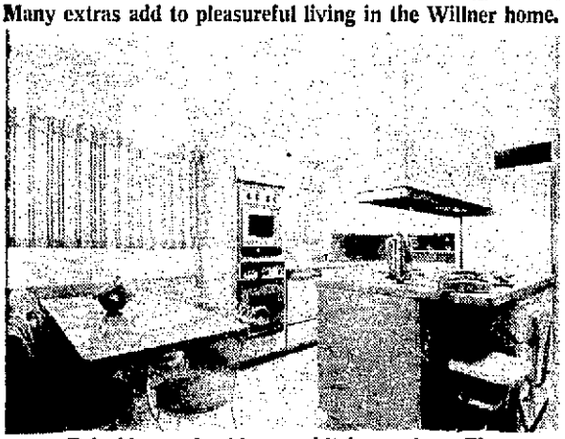

Lt. Al LaRue (left) and training officer Lt. L. R. Kearney assist Patrolman Ron Foster to don the padded equipment used to demonstrate baton tactics to a Long Beach rookie policeman class. La Rue demonstrates two-hand chop to chin, an especially effective way to stop an attacker's charge. Two-hand jab to the solar plexus is almost guaranteed to take the fight out of an aggressor, as rookies see demonstrated. Trainees pair off to face "opponents" to practice chops, jabs and other defensive tactics learned in class.

House of Many Extras

By Stella George

HOUSE of extras is the home of Dr. and Mrs. Sydney Willner and family, 1030 Burlinghall Ave., Bixby Knolls, extras including such things as a large, covered patio equipped with barbecue, refrigerator, and ping pong table; pool with deck area and, best of all from Mrs. Willner's point of view, an exceptional kitchen.

The entrance hall leads to the living room on the right, the dining room on the left, and the family room straight ahead. Rich, thick, light gold wool turf carpeting extends from the living room down the hall to the master bedroom suite. It is also used in the formal dining room.

A champagne colored sofa curves around the far end of the living room, facing a clover-shaped coffee table. Two occasional chairs upholstered in avocado circle the coffee table, facing the sofa. Across the way is a large upholstered chair, also done in avocado. An antique white cabinet runs the length of the room on the opposite wall from the fireplace. Lamps are tall and handsome. A game table and four chairs is in one corner of the room with colorful hanging lamps overhead. The room is particularly interesting because of the contrast in woods: the walnut of the occasional chairs and top of the game table, and the antique white of other pieces such as the long cabinet.

THE DINING room suite is walnut. Along one side of the room, functional built-in cabinets flank a large window. On the opposite wall is a built-in buffet with drawer space below. A glistening chandelier throws diamond rays of light on the dining room table.

The bedroom of daughter Liz is done in powder blue. It is large enough to accomodate a round table and four chairs for study or games. Drapes and carpeting are powder blue, spreads are white. It is a powder puff of a room for an attractive teen-age girl, as feminine as its occupant.

Small Donnie has a room which is next to his parents' master bedroom suite. It provides plenty of room in which to play and sleep, two important occupations of a five-year-old.

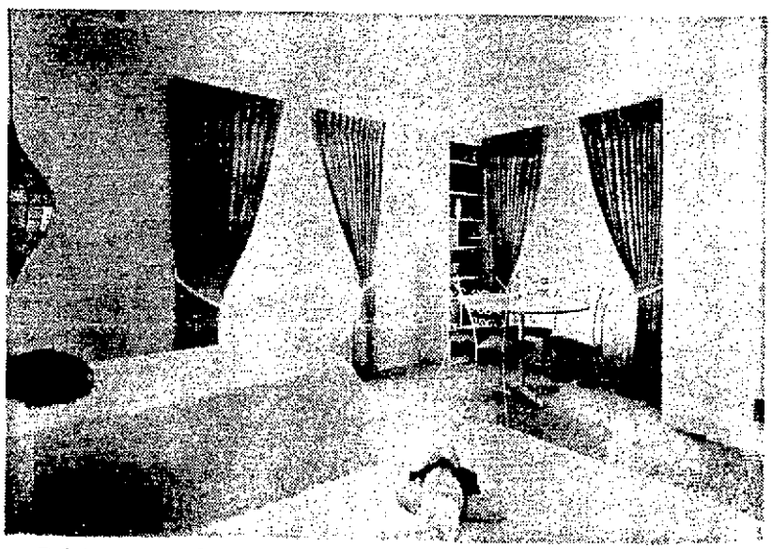

Son Robbie's room is on the other side of the home with a private bath nearby. It can well accomodate a set of trains and other such necessities which are important to a nine-year-old boy.

David, who is sixteen, has a very special room on the upper story of the home, and is reached by a portable stairway which can be raised or lowered in seconds. He has a large bedroom (the size of the family room below) and a private bath.

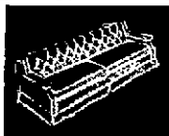

BUILT-IN chests of drawers and dressing table in the master bedroom add much space to the room. Ample closets, a dressing room and bath complete the suite.

The family room is cozy, with a brick fireplace, comfortable sofas and chairs, a huge TV set, and direct access to a covered patio. The top of the fireplace is adorned with many trophies won by Dr. Willner at handball.

The kitchen, and adjoining areas, is very special indeed. It was remodeled not too long ago, and designing was done by Lowell Smith,

Dainty as a powder puff, this room is obviously a girl's special domain. Pale blue is predominant. Rooms for the Willner boys are as aptly suited.

an expert in his field. Colors are powder blue and white. Luxuries in the kitchen are almost too numerous to mention: there is a center island where the stove is situated and where counter tops are powder blue, with inlaid mosaic tile circles here and there for extra hot pans to rest on. Cabinets and drawers are customed for each purpose. One pull-out drawer (extra large) holds trash containers.

ONE CUPBOARD has a swivel spice shelf. There is a heating drawer for plates and serving dishes and a large storage area for trays and pots and pans. Tall cupboards contain especially designed units in which to store extra table leaves, folding chairs and similar items. A separate bar has its own sink, with storage for bottles below and glasses above, hidden behind frosted glass. A rectangular table, done in powder blue, and chairs take up little space in one sunny corner. Hanging lamps are fitted in opaque white globes. A special little desk and telephone area was fitted in one corner of the center island.

Adjoining the kitchen, a laundry area is as attractive as the kitchen itself. Ronie's room is down the way with a bath in between.

The outside patio is large enough to accomodate a full-sized ping pong table with ample room left for dancing. A brick barbecue is in one corner with a long work area nearby. When the top of the work area is raised it reveals to large deep freeze units. A refrigerator is nearby.

THE POOL is separated from the patio proper by a black wrought iron fence. Amazingly enough, the fence can be removed when a large party is planned and no fence for safety purposes is needed.

Even the garage of this home is unusual: neat and clean. Old kitchen cabinets which were removed when the kitchen was remodeled were placed on the garage walls, thus adding storage area in abundance yet taking away no space from the garage itself.

A rose garden extends along one side of the home.

WILLBANKS'

YOU ASKED FOR IT...
SO HERE IT IS!!

Extended One Full Week

"CARPET SNEAK" SALE!

So Many Asked For More...

We just HAD TO extend this sale

Four hours last Friday night simply wasn't enough time for most people to select the exact carpet they needed . . . or to make a final decision! Hundreds asked us to extend the sale—and the customers' will is Willbanks' law.

In ADDITION to these money-saving offers from Trend Mills, Willbanks' will feature storewide reductions as much as:—

½ Off!

What a Carpet Sneak is . . . and how to be a good one!

A Carpet Sneak is one who refuses to pay the high price of really good carpet, but knows how to get it anyway. Interested? Okay if you have an ounce of sneak in you, here's how.

1. Look for your carpet fantasy. Go to magazines, stores, museums, rich friends.
2. Collect swatches, ads, estimates, mental images, 'until Your Carpet appears. It's the one you can see in your home when you close your eyes.
3. Show it to your husband.
4. When he says it's very nice but we can't afford it, don't argue.
5. Go to Willbanks'.
6. Show them the kind of carpet you want—no matter what brand, and say give me this in Trend.
7. Sit down before you ask the price.
8. If it makes you nervous because the Trend price is so much less than you expected, reflect on this: Trend is very avant. Our mills were not created by King James II. They are super automated to turn out huge quantities of superb carpet. Trend styles are the same as high-priced carpet. That goes for fibers, wear, color fastness, and cleanability, too. Trend just costs less, that's all.
9. Later when someone says that's great carpet you have but certainly too rich for Harry and me, try not to look sneaky.

Science for You

By Bob Brown

PROBLEM:

Candle flame chemistry.

NEEDED:

A burning candle and a medicine dropper, some matches.

DO THIS:

Remove the rubber from the dropper, and hold the large end of the glass in the candle flame. You'll soon discover a way to hold it so that gases coming through the dropper may be lighted at the little end.

HERE'S WHY:

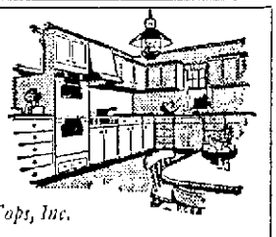

The liquid parafin climbs up the wick by capillary action, and is heated there and turned into gases. Ordinarily these gases would be burned in the outer portions of the flame, but they may go up the cool glass tube and be lighted at the upper end.

Much complicated chemistry goes on in the burning candle. Some of the substances found there are vaporized paraffin, ethylene, carbon dioxide, carbon monoxide, water vapor, hydrogen, oxygen, and nitrogen (from the air). The end products of the burning are mostly carbon dioxide and water.

an expert in his field. Colors are powder blue and white. Luxuries in the kitchen are almost too numerous to mention: there is a center island where the stove is situated and where counter tops are powder blue, with inlaid mosaic tile circles here and there for extra hot pans to rest on. Cabinets and drawers are customed for each purpose. One pull-out drawer (extra large) holds trash containers.

ONE CUPBOARD has a swivel spice shelf. There is a heating drawer for plates and serving dishes and a large storage area for trays and pots and pans. Tall cupboards contain especially designed units in which to store extra table leaves, folding chairs and similar items. A separate bar has its own sink, with storage for bottles below and glasses above, hidden behind frosted glass. A rectangular table, done in powder blue, and chairs take up little space in one sunny corner. Hanging lamps are fitted in opaque white globes. A special little desk and telephone area was fitted in one corner of the center island.

Adjoining the kitchen, a laundry area is as attractive as the kitchen itself. Ronie's room is down the way with a bath in between.

The outside patio is large enough to accomodate a full-sized ping pong table with ample room left for dancing. A brick barbecue is in one corner with a long work area nearby. When the top of the work area is raised it reveals to large deep freeze units. A refrigerator is nearby.

THE POOL is separated from the patio proper by a black wrought iron fence. Amazingly enough, the fence can be removed when a large party is planned and no fence for safety purposes is needed.

Even the garage of this home is unusual: neat and clean. Old kitchen cabinets which were removed when the kitchen was remodeled were placed on the garage walls, thus adding storage area in abundance yet taking away no space from the garage itself.

A rose garden extends along one side of the home.

WILLBANKS'

YOU ASKED FOR IT...
SO HERE IT IS!!

Extended One Full Week

"CARPET SNEAK" SALE!

So Many Asked For More...

We just HAD TO extend this sale

Four hours last Friday night simply wasn't enough time for most people to select the exact carpet they needed or to make a final decision! Hundreds asked us to extend the sale—and the customers' will is Willbanks' law.

In ADDITION to these money-saving offers from Trend Mills, Willbanks' will feature storewide reductions as much as:—

½ Off!

What a Carpet Sneak is . . . and how to be a good one!

A Carpet Sneak is one who refuses to pay the high price of really good carpet, but knows how to get it anyway. Interested? Okay if you have an ounce of sneak in you, here's how.

1. Look for your carpet fantasy. Go to magazines, stores, museums, rich friends.
2. Collect swatches, ads, estimates, mental images, until Your Carpet appears. It's the one you can see in your home when you close your eyes.
3. Show it to your husband.
4. When he says it's very nice but we can't afford it, don't argue.
5. Go to Willbanks'.
6. Show them the kind of carpet you want—no matter what brand; and say give me this in Trend.
7. Sit down before you ask the price.
8. If it makes you nervous because the Trend price is so much less than you expected, reflect on this: Trend is very avant. Our mills were not granted by King James II. They are super automated to turn out huge quantities of superb carpet. Trend styles are the same as high-priced carpet. That goes for fibers, wear, color fastness, and cleanability, too. Trend just costs less, that's all.
9. Later when someone says that's great carpet you have but certainly too rich for Harry and me, try not to look sneaky.

Wash-in-a-Wink Wools Ring Bell for Young 'Mods'

Well-schooled young "Mods" and their mothers have performing fashions at their fingertips this fall. Machine-washable pure wools by J. P. Stevens cut fashion down to size for kindergarteners and coeds alike.

Well-timed for back-to-school wardrobes, automatically sudsable fabrics developed by the Wool Bureau combine fashion vitality with practicality.

Children's wear designers, inspired by wool's fashion leadership, and long familiar with its flair for impeccable styling, are cutting the newest silhouettes for fall in colorful, washable woolens. The stereotype appearance so long associated with children's clothes is taking a dramatic turn toward fashion with a high I.Q.

The dimpled-darling look gives way to precise miniatures of go-go grown-up fashions. The "Op" influence . . . "Total Look" . . . Chelsea Collars . . "A" Shapes . . . Empirish lines, and the child-like Courreges look are all part of the fresh focus on fall. In addition to lightening mother's laundry chores, these charming fashions can be bought at down-to-earth prices.

Fashion forecasts short shorts for little boy lamb-watchers at Lollipop Farm. Their Eton and Tyrolean jackets take a tailor's tack from Chanel.

Graduating with honors in the performing arts, the whole kit and caboodle of H_2O pure wool fashions has a natural affinity for the family washing machine.

Children's wear bounces back with Stevens H2O machine-washable pure wools. Courreges-inspired jumper and smock-styled print dress by Jose Love combine navy jumper with sweep of a scoop fore and aft with brisk red binding outlining suspenders and pockets. Dress, in navy and white provincial print, has gently puffed sleeves of three-quarter length. This is just one example of how the newer fashions turn toward a high I. Q.

New in Sandwiches

Peanut butter and jelly, established favorite in the sandwich roster, appears in several new versions above and in recipes in article below.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

GRANTED that peanut butter and jelly sandwiches are old favorites, but now it's time to be more creative. Here are some ideas for that "pantry shelf special"—peanut butter—that will satisfy youngsters and adults alike.

Have you ever tried peanut butter with a slice of pineapple and cheese on toast and then popped under the broiler? What about pennywise slices of franks with pickle relish and peanut butter on toast? Or better still, what about hot brown 'n serve sausage links with jam and peanut butter topped with cranberry relish? You'll love 'em!

Of course the secret to all these creative sandwiches is the peanut butter itself. Look for the handy and attractive containers bearing a trusted brand name for your assurance of the finest quality. This gold mine of nutrition is available in both the smooth and crunchy styles You may select from a variety of sizes, from the 11-ounce decorated tumbler with pry-off lid for smaller families to the economical 2½ or 3-pound re-usable refrigerator jars for larger households.

For sandwiches that are different, try one or all four of these hot peanut butter sandwiches.

CHEESY PEANUT BUTTER AND PINEAPPLE SANDWICH: Yield: 1 sandwich. For each sandwich spread one slice of toast with 2 tablespoons peanut butter. Top peanut butter with 1 slice drained canned pineapple. Cover pineapple slice with a slice of American cheese. Slip under broiler until cheese is melted.

BROWN-'N-SERVE PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH: Yield: 1 sandwich. For each sandwich spread one slice of toast with 2 tablespoons peanut butter. Top peanut butter with 2 tablespoons apricot jam. Place 2 Brown 'N Serve sausage links, cut in half lengthwise, on top of jam. Slip under broiler until sausage is browned, about 3 minutes.

FRANKLY PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH: Yield: 1 sandwich. For each sandwich spread one slice of toast with 2 tablespoons peanut butter. Top peanut butter with 1 tablespoon pickle relish. Cut 1 frank into pennywise slices. Arrange fank slices on sandwich. Slip under broiler until franks are heated through.

PEANUT BUTTER 'N RELISH SANDWICH: Yield: 1 sandwich. For each sandwich spread one slice of toast with 2 tablespoons of peanut butter. Top peanut butter with 2 tablespoons cranberry relish. Slip under broiler until heated through.

Recipe of the Week

THOSE who favor Brussels sprouts will find this week's $5 prizewinning recipe, submitted by Mrs. B. Ray, 2926 Magnolia Ave., Long Beach 90806, to their liking. The recipe:

Piquant Brussels Sprouts

1 pkg. frozen brussels sprouts
3 tblsp. butter
1 tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. dill seed
Dash of pepper
3 tblsp. cocktail onions, drained
2 tblsp. vinegar liquid from the onion bottle

Cook Brussels sprouts according to package directions. Drain off water and keep hot over low heat. While sprouts are cooking, melt butter in small saucepan. Add other ingredients and cook over low heat for 10 minutes, stirring often. Pour over hot drained sprouts, toss well; cover and re-heat for about 5 minutes to blend flavors.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

Posters Are Fun

By Ruth C. Ikerman

SOONER or later most families have to devise a poster for some affair in which Junior or Sister is involved, or perhaps the parents. Learning how to make them easily can be fun for the children in the family, making a good summer recreation outlet.

Start with construction paper and crayons with which to print or write whatever is being announced by the poster. It may be something as exciting as a pink lemonade stand at the curb or a backyard "circus" in which the neighborhood pet cats and dogs perform.

Cut pictures from magazines and paste at the top of the page. Or you can become more attention getting by "three dimensional" designs. Buy inexpensive plastic colored lightweight birds, that can be attached to the construction paper by means of clear tape, usually put at the feet of the firds. Or the entire body can be attached to the construction paper. This little bird can be singing out the story of the forthcoming attraction, as he sits on the limb of a tree made by brown crayola with some green leaves.

PLASTIC FLOWERS are so lightweight they can be attached to posters. Paste a "vase" of contrasting colored construction paper to the bottom of a poster bearing the announcement of the club or church dinner. Then at the top of the vase put tiny plastic flowers, attaching them by the tape. Perhaps you can make your entire bouquet from one stem of artificial apple blossoms, or take a long spray of gladiolus apart, using each blossom separately.

If the poster is blue and the vase is golden, a tiny nosegay of pink flowers is sure to be an eye stopper. Red gladioli against green suggest forthcoming seasonal activities, and the posters may be prepared well in advance of the date when people are so busy.

Stylized posters are easily made by cutting squares and oblongs of different shades of paper, and then pasting them against a simply traced design. Even a square with triangular pieces of contrasting paper around the edge stops the passerby who wants to see what is being suggested by the poster.

COIN ROUNDUP

Large Cents

By Maurice M. Gould

THE GREAT majority of our coin collectors are working on the more common Lincoln Cent, Jefferson Nickel, and Roosevelt Dime series, etc., completely overlooking the many possibilities of a series such as the U. S. Large Cent.

These coins have been neglected for many years by the average collector in favor of the pocket-change varieties, and their prices, in comparisnn to their rarity, are still nominal. They also have a tremendous potential for growth and increase in price.

A type collection of U. S. Large Cents could incorporate the following: 1793 Chain Type; 1793 Wreath Type; 1793 to 1796 Liberty Cap; 1796 to 1807 Draped Bust; 1808 to 1814 Turban Head; 1816 to 1839 Coronet Type, and 1839 to 1857 Braided Hair.

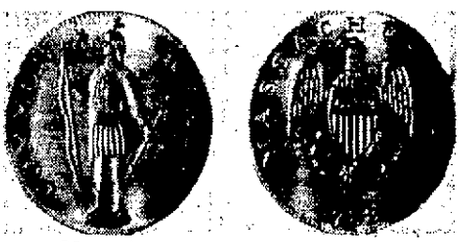

THERE ARE also many interesting varieties and sub-varieties: the 1793 Chain Cent comes with the word AMERI on one coin and AMERICA on another, for example.

The 1793 Wreath Type has Vine and Bars on one edge, others with a Lettered Edge, some with One Leaf and still another a Lettered Edge with a Double Leaf.

There are many varieties of 1794, 1795, and one 1796 has an error with the word LIBERTY being spelled "Liherty."

One very unusual variety is the 1801, which has three errors made by the die engraver.

The 1893 Large Cents are unusual in themselves, as can be seen by their nicknames: THE SILLY HEAD, Massachusetts Colonial Cent of 1788.

BOOBY HEAD, TYPE OF 1838, TYPE OF 1840, and the Overdate 1839 OVER 36.

There are hundreds of varieties, overdates, errors, etc., which I have not mentioned, so you can see the unlimited possibilities in this series outside of collecting just by dates.

A great many Large Cents can be purchased at from $2 to $20 each, and the dates from 1835 to 1857 may be obtained in sharp condition without too much difficulty.

One hundred years ago, Large Cents were widely collected and were extremely popular.

The 1793, 1799 and 1804 were considered the scarce and rare dates then, and the same is true today, with the 1799 by far being the rarest date. This date catalogs at $125 in Fair condition to $1,250 in Very Fine condition. There is only one known specimen, with some red color, the famous Hines piece, and while there is no telling just what a coin of this caliber would bring at auction, I believe it would be far in excess of $10,000.

MINTAGES of these coins were very low when compared with Indian Head Cents, Lincoln Cents, and other series. Try collecting some of these old American coppers, for both pleasure and profit.

In answer to many inquiries regarding the numerous coin robberies recently, I suggest the following:

If you have insurance on your material, it is essential to keep a complete record of your purchases in order to present proof to the insurance company as to the approximate value of the collection in case of loss. And these records will prove an asset to you if it is ever necessary to dispose of your collection.

Be sure to have your insurance agent increase the valuation every few years if you intend to recoup the full value of your loss.

EXPENSIVE coins should be listed individually on a Fine Arts Floater policy, which is quite the best means of insuring an individual collection.

Posters Are Fun

By Ruth C. Ikerman

SOONER or later most families have to devise a poster for some affair in which Junior or Sister is involved, or perhaps the parents. Learning how to make them easily can be fun for the children in the family, making a good summer recreation outlet.

Start with construction paper and crayons with which to print or write whatever is being announced by the poster. It may be something as exciting as a pink lemonade stand at the curb or a backyard "circus" in which the neighborhood pet cats and dogs perform.

Cut pictures from magazines and paste at the top of the page. Or you can become more attention getting by "three dimensional" designs. Buy inexpensive plastic colored lightweight birds, that can be attached to the construction paper by means of clear tape, usually put at the feet of the firds. Or the entire body can be attached to the construction paper. This little bird can be singing out the story of the forthcoming attraction, as he sits on the limb of a tree made by brown crayola with some green leaves.

PLASTIC FLOWERS are so lightweight they can be attached to posters. Paste a "vase" of contrasting colored construction paper to the bottom of a poster bearing the announcement of the club or church dinner. Then at the top of the vase put tiny plastic flowers, attaching them by the tape. Perhaps you can make your entire bouquet from one stem of artificial apple blossoms, or take a long spray of gladiolus apart, using each blossom separately.

If the poster is blue and the vase is golden, a tiny nosegay of pink flowers is sure to be an eye stopper. Red gladioli against green suggest forthcoming seasonal activities, and the posters may be prepared well in advance of the date when people are so busy.

Stylized posters are easily made by cutting squares and oblongs of different shades of paper, and then pasting them against a simply traced design. Even a square with triangular pieces of contrasting paper around the edge stops the passerby who wants to see what is being suggested by the poster.

Room for Storage

Problem solver is this outdoor storage room displayed by Bob Barker of NBC television.

By Steve Ellingson

SINCE garages are becoming overcrowded and carports are open to the weather and thieves, you can solve many problems by building an outdoor storage room, like that pictured herewith.

First, it keeps your garden supplies and tools where they're readily available and removes all that clutter from the garage. Second you'll find it a dandy place for storing camping equipment, toys and things of that kind. Third, there's a potting counter inside on the left that's a delight for gardening and arranging flowers. Below the counter are bins for peat moss, mulches and so forth. It was designed for efficiency, appearance and economy.

The entire room, even the door, is lined with perforated hardboard. This makes it possible to hang neatly every kind of tool made, including your lawn mower. You will notice that along with garden tools, there is plenty of space for woodworking equipment also. And during rainy weather, it makes a good shelter for one or more bicycles. Best of all, when you're away from home everything is under lock.

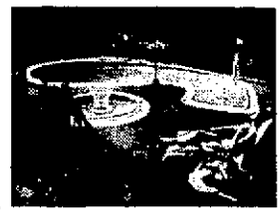

THE ROOM shown was mounted on large casters which make it movable on the driveway. However, it may be placed anywhere in your yard, it's not heavy and changing the location is no problem. Many folks use it as a cabana beside a swimming pool. It's just the right size for storing pool equipment as well as providing a place to change clothes. It's inexpensive and a snap to build when you use the easy-to-follow pattern.

To obtain the storage room pattern No. 250, send $1 by currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

BOOK REVIEWS

A Traveler in Russia

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

RAY PIERRE CORSINI, American newspaperwoman, tells of her experiences as a traveler in Russia in "CAVIAR FOR BREAKFAST" (Bobbs-Merrill, $5.75).

Mrs. Corsini's trip to Russia was a return to the country she had last seen as a small child. Russia had undergone great changes in that time and in many ways had become an enigma to the Western mind.

"But it was not so much the modern industrialized power that drew me as the old Russia I knew from books, music and the theater," Mrs. Corsini writes.

Mrs. Corsini had many doubts about how she, as an American tourist, would be received by the Russian people. Her feelings of insecurity soon were dispelled as she realized that the Russian people were interested in knowing her and concerned that she receive a good impression of their country.

Visits to schools, museums, stores and restaurants and meetings with local government officials, magazine and book publishers and the director of the Bolshoi Ballet provided her with valuable insights to the people and the culture of Russia.

"Caviar for Breakfast" serves a dual function—a source of information for anyone planning to visit Russia and a lively description of modern Russia and its people for armchair travelers.

FIFTY-TWO STORIES by Sholom Aleichem have been gathered in "COLLECTED SHORT STORIES OF SHOLOM ALEICHEM," a two-volume boxed set with illustrations by Ben Shahn (Crown, $10.) Among the tales are those of Tevye, the dairyman, most famous character and central figure in the Broadway hit musical "Fiddlers on the Roof."

ACCEPTED or rejected, hypnotism always has been a subject of folklore and literature as well as of psychological and medical studies. "FAVORITE STORIES OF HYPNOTISM," selected by Don Ward, with commentaries by Dr. Milton V. Kline (Dodd, Mead, $4.50) includes many of the best. Writers are Edgar Allen Poe, Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton, Ambrose Bierce, Frank R. Stockton, H. G. Wells, A. Conan Doyle, Irvin S. Cobb, F. Britten Austin, H. R. Wakefield and William Fryer Harvey. Yes, it includes Cobb's "A Judgment Come to Daniel."

TODAY, when men are being kept alive with borrowed kidneys, Fred Warshofsky, leading science writer, tells the story of "THE REBUILT MAN, The Story of Spare-Parts Surgery" (Crowell, $5.95.) Warshofsky believes the replacement of a worn-out or damaged part in the body of a human being may become as commonplace as replacing a spark plug in an old car.

Some transplantations already are routine. Nerves, blood vessels, arteries, veins and defective corneas are replaced by man-made synthetics. Toes are transformed into thumbs. Kidneys, lungs, livers, limbs and even a heart have been transferred from one body to another.

JONATHAN DANIELS, editor of The News and Observer in Raleigh, N.C., reviews the careers of dozens of vigorous journalistic crusaders, from the days of the Stamp Act to the present in "THEY WILL BE HEARD, America's Crusading Newspaper Editors" (McGraw-Hill, $6.50). There are giants, from Zenger to Greeley to Pulitzer and beyond, but there are also forgotten men in these accounts. Among them, John Albert Cockerill of Cincinnati, who discovered the writer Lafcadio Hearn and showed Joseph Pulitzer how to develop the sensational journalism for which he became famous.

WILLIAM DEMBY'S second book re-emphasizes his apparent theory that a novel should simply occur, like a pot of stew, without any particular form or destination, thus satisfying many tastes and making available any message his readers care to find in it.

So it is with "CATACOMBS" (Pantheon, $4.95) in which Demby, living in Rome, tells in first person of meeting Doris, the daughter of an old college sweetheart.

He introduces Doris, who is an extra in the Elizabeth Taylor movie, "Cleopatra," to a married Italian count, whose mistress Doris becomes, and whose child she carries.

Intertwined in the casual story line are news events of the early 1960s, because Demby is an avid follower of current events, which show humanity is violent, comic, sardonic, racist and so on.

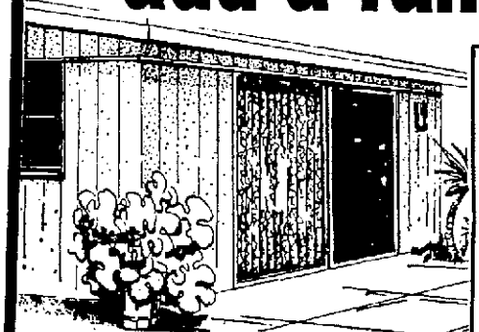

Poor Doris doesn't make out too well, either.

"SEX IS the cause of nearly all crime, the dominant force that drives nearly all criminals," asserts Clinton T. Duffy, former warden of San Quentin, in "SEX AND CRIME" written by Duffy with Al Hirshberg (Doubleday, $4.50.) Duffy has known thousands of prisoners - - check forgers, armed robbers, arsonists, rapists and murderers—and he has discussed criminology with psychologists and penologists around the world. He has reached the disturbing conclusion that even crimes which apparently are nonsexual have their roots in sexual maladjustment.

WHAT BULLFIGHTING was to Hemingway's generation, surfing is to this generation. "THE COMPLETE BOOK OF SURFING" by Peter L. Dixon (Coward-McCann, $5.50), with 100 photographs, drawings, diagrams and maps, covers the sport. Surfing fundamentals, gaining control and style in various kinds of surf, hot-dogging techniques, vagaries of wind and wave, how to recognize dangerous conditions and surf in safety are examined in detail.

HOLIDAY calls Arthur C. Clarke "the colossus of science fiction." Two novels, "Sands of Mars" and "Prelude to Space" and 16 short stories make up "PRELUDE TO MARS, An Omnibus" by Clarke (Harcourt, Brace & World, $4.95). Several of the stories include Harry Purvis, teller of tall tales and a mouthpiece for the playful and humorously macabre aspects of Clarke's talent.

BOOK REVIEWS

A Traveler in Russia

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

RAY PIERRE CORSINI, American newspaperwoman, tells of her experiences as a traveler in Russia in "CAVIAR FOR BREAKFAST" (Bobbs-Merrill, $5.75).

Mrs. Corsini's trip to Russia was a return to the country she had last seen as a small child. Russia had undergone great changes in that time and in many ways had become an enigma to the Western mind.

"But it was not so much the modern industrialized power that drew me as the old Russia I knew from books, music and the theater," Mrs. Corsini writes.

Mrs. Corsini had many doubts about how she, as an American tourist, would be received by the Russian people. Her feelings of insecurity soon were dispelled as she realized that the Russian people were interested in knowing her and concerned that she receive a good impression of their country.

Visits to schools, museums, stores and restaurants and meetings with local government officials, magazine and book publishers and the director of the Bolshoi Ballet provided her with valuable insights to the people and the culture of Russia.

"Caviar for Breakfast" serves a dual function—a source of information for anyone planning to visit Russia and a lively description of modern Russia and its people for armchair travelers.

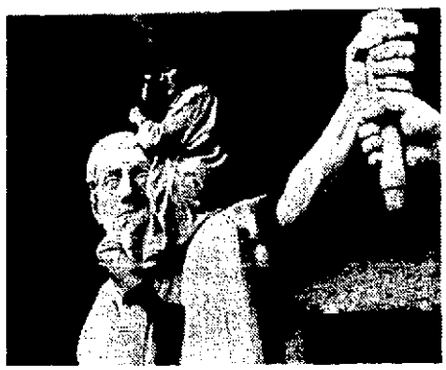

FIFTY-TWO STORIES by Sholom Aleichem have been gathered in "COLLECTED SHORT STORIES OF SHOLOM ALEICHEM," a two-volume boxed set with illustrations by Ben Shahn (Crown, $10.) Among the tales are those of Tevye, the dairyman, most famous character and central figure in the Broadway hit musical "Fiddlers on the Roof."

ACCEPTED or rejected, hypnotism always has been a subject of folklore and literature as well as of psychological and medical studies. "FAVORITE STORIES OF HYPNOTISM," selected by Don Ward, with commentaries by Dr. Milton V. Kline (Dodd, Mead, $4.50) includes many of the best. Writers are Edgar Allen Poe, Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton, Ambrose Bierce, Frank R. Stockton, H. G. Wells, A. Conan Doyle, Irvin S. Cobb, F. Britten Austin, H. R. Wakefield and William Fryer Harvey. Yes, it includes Cobb's "A Judgment Come to Daniel."

TODAY, when men are being kept alive with borrowed kidneys, Fred Warshofsky, leading science writer, tells the story of "THE REBUILT MAN, The Story of Spare-Parts Surgery" (Crowell, $5.95.) Warshofsky believes the replacement of a worn-out or damaged part in the body of a human being may become as commonplace as replacing a spark plug in an old car.

Some transplantations already are routine. Nerves, blood vessels, arteries, veins and defective corneas are replaced by man-made synthetics. Toes are transformed into thumbs. Kidneys, lungs, livers, limbs and even a heart have been transferred from one body to another.

Transplantation began in India in the eighth century before Christ, recounts Warshofsky.

JONATHAN DANIELS, editor of The News and Observer in Raleigh, N.C., reviews the careers of dozens of vigorous journalistic crusaders, from the days of the Stamp Act to the present in "THEY WILL BE HEARD, America's Crusading Newspaper Editors" (McGraw-Hill, $6.50). There are giants, from Zenger to Greeley to Pulitzer and beyond, but there are also forgotten men in these accounts. Among them, John Albert Cockerill of Cincinnati, who discovered the writer Lafcadio Hearn and showed Joseph Pulitzer how to develop the sensational journalism for which he became famous.

WILLIAM DEMBY'S second book re-emphasizes his apparent theory that a novel should simply occur, like a pot of stew, without any particular form or destination, thus satisfying many tastes and making available any message his readers care to find in it.

So it is with "CATACOMBS" (Pantheon, $4.95) in which Demby, living in Rome, tells in first person of meeting Doris, the daughter of an old college sweetheart.

He introduces Doris, who is an extra in the Elizabeth Taylor movie, "Cleopatra," to a married Italian count, whose mistress Doris becomes, and whose child she carries.

Intertwined in the casual story line are news events of the early 1960s, because Demby is an avid follower of current events, which show humanity is violent, comic, sardonic, racist and so on.

Poor Doris doesn't make out too well, either.

"SEX IS the cause of nearly all crime, the dominant force that drives nearly all criminals," asserts Clinton T. Duffy, former warden of San Quentin, in "SEX AND CRIME" written by Duffy with Al Hirshberg (Doubleday, $4.50.) Duffy has known thousands of prisoners — check forgers, armed robbers, arsonists, rapists and murderers—and he has discussed criminology with psychologists and penologists around the world. He has reached the disturbing conclusion that even crimes which apparently are nonsexual have their roots in sexual maladjustment.

WHAT BULLFIGHTING was to Hemingway's generation, surfing is to this generation. "THE COMPLETE BOOK OF SURFING" by Peter L. Dixon (Coward-McCann, $5.50), with 100 photographs, drawings, diagrams and maps, covers the sport. Surfing fundamentals, gaining control and style in various kinds of surf, hot-dogging techniques, vagaries of wind and wave, how to recognize dangerous conditions and surf in safety are examined in detail.

HOLIDAY calls Arthur C. Clarke "the colossus of science fiction." Two novels, "Sands of Mars" and "Prelude to Space" and 16 short stories make up "PRELUDE TO MARS, An Omnibus" by Clarke (Harcourt, Brace & World, $4.95). Several of the stories include Harry Purvis, teller of tall tales and a mouthpiece for the playful and humorously macabre aspects of Clarke's talent.

Frown Erasure

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

The method, still highly experimental, involves a series of injections of a substance called Medical Fluid 360, made by Dow Corning.

The procedure is performed in the doctor's office with the patient sitting up.

Dr. Richard B. Aronsohn, reporting in Archives of Otolaryngology, says no adverse reactions have occurred among 298 Caucasian patients aged 22 to 62.

Results obtained with silicone injections are "truly amazing," he notes. Facial defects that previously required surgery are now easily filled out by injecting the fluid.

Dr. Aronsohn cautions that the procedure is still in the investigative stage.

THE POWERFUL laser beam—concentrated light—can vaporize stains from intact teeth, although chalky spots of undetermined nature remain afterward, dental scientists report. Meanwhile, a Tufts University dentist thinks the laser may some day replace the conventional drill in dental treatment.

IMPLANTABLE pacemakers (heartbeat assisters) are not affected by the operation of nearby electrical equipment if the pacemakers are the products of U. S. industry.

So says Dr. Peter B. Mansfield of the National Heart Institute. He issued a statement to allay fears caused by a report that certain foreign-made pacemakers can be adversely affected by electrical interference.

SEVERE malnutrition in the first six months of life may produce permanent mental deficiency, according to Dr. Joaquin Cravioto of Mexico City.

Evidence of this was found in a study of Cakchiquel Indians in Guatemala. His study indicates that poor nutrition in early life may make the difference between success and failure in school, according to a report in Pediatric Herald.

A NEW DRUG, Trest, is highly effective in relieving nausea of various gastrointestinal disorders, a researcher says in Journal of New Drugs.

Of 50 patients treated, 94% got satisfactory relief from symptoms such as abdominal cramps, bloating, diarrhea and nausea. The drug's effectiveness against nausea was termed "extremely high."

EARLY MARRIAGE appears to predispose women to cancer of the neck of the womb, two University of Louisville doctors say.

Drs. William M. Christopherson and James E. Parker, reporting in New England Journal of Medicine, say that 64% of a group of patients with invasive cervical cancer began sexual activity in their teens.

HEIGHT-WEIGHT charts leave a lot to be desired in determining whether a person is obese, contend two researchers with the Harvard School of Public Health.

The simplest and most practical way of determining obesity is use of calipers to measure skin-fold thickness, say Drs. Carl C. Seltzer and Jean Mayer in Postgraduate Medicine. Best place to measure: the back of the right upper arm.

Camera Guild

Long Beach Camera Guild will have a program presented by Gerald Church, a guild member, and Ron Ross of Mitchell, S. D., at a meeting at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in Los Altos Library.

September contest winners include Lillian Garton, Clara Watkins, Charles Lawson and Bob Knight, 35mm color, and Floyd Williamson, stereo; judged by Charles Osborn of San Bernardino Lens and Shutter Camera Club. Lillian Garton received a silver plaque for a color slide accepted by the Johannesburg, South Africa, P.S.A. International Salon.

PET PARADE

Yen for Yorkies

By Eleanor Avery Price

YORKSHIRE terrier puppies will be out en masse today at the Yorkshire Terrier Club of America sanctioned puppy match at La Palma Park, Anaheim. Puppies may be entered from noon to 1 p.m. None can have championship points, so they won't yet look quite like the little black-eyed Yorkie, Ch. Wildweir Lickity-Split (see illustration), owned by Madge MacDonald and Renee Ruben. But in time some will be as adorable and will have attained AKC championships. Anyone with a yen to own a Yorkie will enjoy these pups.

The Yorkie is a delightful vigorous toy dog created originally from crosses between various terriers and bred down to a tiny size through selective breeding in the space of about 20 years. It seems impossible to believe that he was once a ratting terrier when he now is scarcely larger than a rat. He was admired by millworkers of Yorkshire, England, who claimed they gave him his long coat by stroking him with greasy hands. Some workers said his coat was the product of the mill looms.

IT WAS ONLY natural that, when fashionable ladies saw him, they fell head over heels in love with him and boosted him onto the lap of Victorian aristocratic society. And they further reduced his size and lengthened his coat by careful breeding.

The Yorkie came to this country about 1880. Later he started his climb up the popularity pole in dog shows, the homes of Hollywood stars and other fashionable circles.

A Yorkie begins life with a black coat. His coloring breaks through until he is a dark steel blue with rich golden tan on face and legs. Much grooming, with his hair put up in curlers a good part of the time, is the lot of the show Yorkshire. Often he is booted so he won't scratch his coat.

Those of you who take small dogs out for walks should constantly be on guard for large straying dogs. Take along a roomy straw handbag and pop the little fellow inside if you see trouble coming. In spite of his bravery, a small dog is no match for a huge one.

NATIONAL Dog Week starts Sept. 19. If you you plan to adopt a dog, get a place ready for him now.

Entries are being taken for the Pasadena dog show and Pasanita obedience trial Oct. 10 at Brookside Park, and for the German Shepherd Dog Club of America specialty Oct. 17 in San Diego. Entries are also open now for West Shore Cat Club show Oct. 23 and 24 at San Bernardino Municipal Auditorium. For cat show information, write Hazel Ludley, 2070 W. Adams St., San Bernardino.

Today, the German Shepherd Dog Club of Southern California has a match at Orcutt Park, Canoga Park. Entries have already closed. On Sept. 18, Southwest Obedience Club has a match at Rosecrans Playground, Gardena. On Sept. 19, San Pedro Obedience Club has a practice match at 325 Neptune Ave., Wilmington.

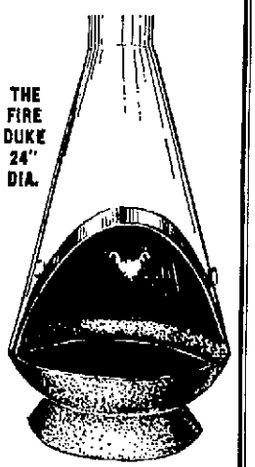

South of the border on Sept. 18 and 19, there are two dog shows held at Parque Revolucion, Fifth and Obregon streets, Ensenda.

IT WAS ONLY natural that, when fashionable ladies saw him, they fell head over heels in love with him and boosted him onto the lap of Victorian aristocratic society. And they further reduced his size and lengthened his coat by careful breeding.

The Yorkie came to this country about 1880. Later he started his climb up the popularity pole in dog shows, the homes of Hollywood stars and other fashionable circles.

A Yorkie begins life with a black coat. His coloring breaks through until he is a dark steel blue with rich golden tan on face and legs. Much grooming, with his hair put up in curlers a good part of the time, is the lot of the show Yorkshire. Often he is booted so he won't scratch his coat.

Those of you who take small dogs out for walks should constantly be on guard for large straying dogs. Take along a roomy straw handbag and pop the little fellow inside if you see trouble coming. In spite of his bravery, a small dog is no match for a huge one.

NATIONAL Dog Week starts Sept. 19. If you you plan to adopt a dog, get a place ready for him now.

Entries are being taken for the Pasadena dog show and Pasanita obedience trial Oct. 10 at Brookside Park, and for the German Shepherd Dog Club of America specialty Oct. 17 in San Diego. Entries are also open now for West Shore Cat Club show Oct. 23 and 24 at San Bernardino Municipal Auditorium. For cat show information, write Hazel Ludley, 2070 W. Adams St., San Bernardino.

Today, the German Shepherd Dog Club of Southern California has a match at Orcutt Park, Canoga Park. Entries have already closed. On Sept. 18, Southwest Obedience Club has a match at Rosecrans Playground, Gardena. On Sept. 19, San Pedro Obedience Club has a practice match at 325 Neptune Ave., Wilmington.

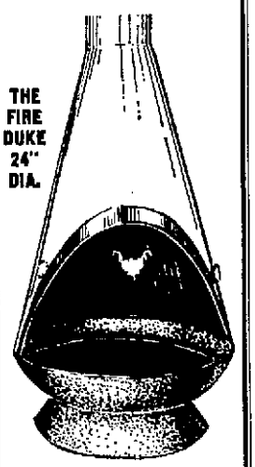

South of the border on Sept. 18 and 19, there are two dog shows held at Parque Revolucion, Fifth and Obregon streets, Ensenda.

A Mother Knows

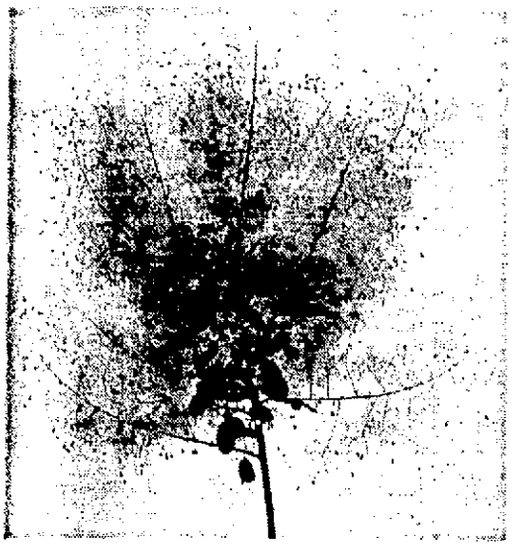

It was heartbreaking to see what ticks and fleas were doing to my children (me, too). A mother knows the real danger — each bite might result in worms, parasites and other diseases.

We tried everything. Nothing worked, until my Human got us HILO DIP. What a difference! Just a quick rinse—ticks, fleas and lice were gone!

Take the advice of a mother . . . get HILO® DIP today!

Dividends in 'Smoke'

"Smoke tree" (it has another jawbreaker of a name) is good in gardens and arrangements.

By Joe Littlefield

COTINUS (Rhus) coggygria (pronounced ko-ty'nus—kog-ji'gria), or "smoke tree," is one of the few large shrubs that provide extra dividends for landscape plantings. It prefers a sunny, dry location where watering may be controlled. It has eye-catching, dark red foliage which turns yellow or orange-red in the autumn before finally dropping off the plant.

Masses of small yellow flowers grow in large clusters but are not too impressive, but an intriguing puffball or smoky effect in old rose is produced when the stems of the blossoms lengthen, after the flowers have dropped, and become clothed with the plume-like fine hairs.

It must be seen to believe that a plant can produce such an interesting show.

CLUSTERS may measure up to 12 inches long by 15 inches wide and may be kept in a dry arrangement, long lasting.

A driver-salesman of a wholesale bedding plant truck suggested that I recommend setting out snapdragons and stocks early in the season. He explained that the plants would get a quicker start, roots would become better established before nights turned cool and plants would flower sooner, after the first of the year.

We planted stocks and snapdragons in early September, upon his recommendation and he was right. The stocks flowered after first of the year. Snaps started to blossom later, just as the stocks had passed their peak of blooming. Planting was in a sunny exposure, slightly more than two-thirds of the day in sun.

Try planting stocks and snapdragons this month and see if they'll flower early in your particular neighborhood.

BEDDING plant breeders have done a most remarkable job introducing unusually good bloom performing plants. For example—in most cases the rust resistant snaps are free of rust. (Rust is a vicious, and difficult fungus to control.) Occasionally, we hear of some plants that still do rust, even though they may be listed as rust resistant snaps. If such is the case in your garden where they tend to rust, try planting them early to see if they'll avoid rust infestation. If plants do rust, your garden may be too cold and damp, or possibly there is too much shade. You should plant them late January or February. A home owner who had rust problem each year, planted her snaps in late winter . . . no rust . . . whereas early season planting snaps always rusted.

GARDEN CLUBS

An organizational meeting of Marina Floristas, a flower arranging study group, will be held at 10 a.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R. I. Williams, 1741 Crestview Ave., Seal Beach. A flower arrangement demonstration will be given by Mrs. A. Antosik and Mrs. C. Carroll Stough of Long Beach, and a salad luncheon will be served by the Los Altos Garden Club.

Long Beach Garden Club will hear a talk on planting and culture of bulbs at a meeting at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the community room of Glendale Savings & Loan Building, Los Altos Shopping Center, 5535 Stearns St., a new meeting place for the club. Plant exchange and flower exhibit table are planned. Anyone interested in gardening is invited.

Long Beach Cactus Club plans a Hawaiian theme for a meeting at 1:30 p.m. next Sunday at the home of Alice Christenson, 4941 W. 137th Place, Hawthorne. Joe Littlefield, garden writer and consultant, will discuss tropical type plants. Mildred Hubbell, club president, has asked members to wear Hawaiian type garb and refreshments will be in island style.

Braille

To type manually an entire book seems far-fetched in an automated era when the byword of most mechanical operations has become, "Look Ma, No Hands!" Yet it is doubtful that the demand for "Non-Parametric Statistics" will ever warrant the expense of setting up the commercial Braille presses. Temple Israel volunteers have, however, worked a compromise with their purchase of a Braille Thermo-Form machine—a mechanical wonder that reproduces hand-typed Braille pages with 30 times the speed of the typist, but five times the per-page cost. Before binding and delivering the original Braille copies they make, Mrs. Fishbein can Thermo-Form at least one additional copy to remain in Long Beach as the nucleus of a local Braille library. Such a library, she says, is their long-range goal.

EVERYBODY loves a mystery—even restaurantgoers. So that's why Alfred Cornwell, one of Long Beach's most imaginative restaurateurs, has a new item on his menu at Alfred Restaurant, 700 E. 45th St., near Atlantic Avenue.

Called "le Diner Mysterieux" (which is French for "the Mystery Dinner") it consists of a different entree each day. The person ordering it doesn't know what it will be. He can find out by asking his waitress. Or he can (and this is far more fun) wait suspensefully until the entree is revealed upon its arrival. No matter what happens, the guest is certain of one thing. The entree will be a culinary masterpiece, because Alfred Restaurant, a large two-story structure of striking architecture, long has held the reputation of being one of Southern California's most distinguished continental-American dining establishments.

The entree may be one of the following new delights, created from recipes executive chef Christian Boussiere acquired during a recent trip to Europe: Stuffed veal birds Richelieu, stuffed roulade of lamb or sweetbreads Clamart. Each is unique in originality and flavor. Each is also accompanied by a heavenly wine sauce so tempting it makes a trip to Alfred's a memorable occasion.

The mystery dinner ($3.75) includes a selection of superb, fresh hors d'oeuvres; soup du jour or a delightful salad, potato, vegetable, beverage and wrapped candies as a dessert tidbit. Other examples of Alfred's delectable skills include coq au vin rogue, which is chicken cooked in wine; boned squab chicken and the special candlelight and champagne dinner. The latter, served Sundays through Thursdays, is a spectacular affair which includes a superb filet mignon with a rich Bourdelaise sauce, champagne and crepes Suzette for dessert.

What Will It Be?

TEMPTING TREATS—Although closed Sundays, Hubert's Cafeteria, 318 E. 4th St., is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. the rest of the week, serving a $1.20 roast beef dinner which is so tasty and generous it's definitely one of Long Beach's greatest dining out values. Owner-host Hubert Hust, who also caters for outside banquets and parties, does a bang-up cooking job on these items as well: panfried chicken, grilled halibut and potted Swiss steak, all $1.15. On Wednesday, Hubert will mark his fifth anniversary as owner.

THOSE FANTASTIC BRITISH DUKES

by René Lecler

The Duke of Argyll at Inveraray Castle: His headline potential is as great as his wealth.

LONDON.

During London's rush hour not long ago, a gleaming white Rolls-Royce purred through the maelstrom of Hyde Park Corner, suddenly accelerated and ended up with a crunch in the back of a high-wheeled London taxi. Getting off his perch, the cabbie prepared a stream of verbal abuse and advanced toward his aggressor. When he saw that the man in the Rolls was Bernard Marmaduke Fitzalan-Howard, Earl of Arundel, Earl of Surrey, Baron Fitzalan, Clun and Oswaldestre, 16th Duke of Norfolk, Hereditary Earl Marshal and Chief Butler of England, he shook his head and said: "You win! What's the point of arguing with a duke?"

He was right of course. In the context of British life—however democratic it may be—nothing can be gained from crossing words with a duke. The chances are he's in the money, sees the Queen frequently, calls the Prime Minister by his Christian name and can, if pushed, retire for good into a country estate the size of an entire province.

In this age of the common man, when French aristocrats are having to make their farms pay, Russian princes go into public relations and Italian princes are down to their last palazzo, there is something rather special about a British duke.

For one thing, there aren't many like him. He belongs to the tightest, richest and most exalted blue-blood fraternity in the world. In the midst of the Queen's noble hordes (39 marquesses, 203 earls, 150 viscounts and over 500 barons), there are only 26 dukes. And as one British wit remarked recently: "The natural history of dukes has become pure history and hardly at all natural. . . ."

Many of them can trace their lineage to way back before William the Conqueror, and some of them could match every ancestor of the Queen of England with one of their own. Most of them owe their original position to favors heaped upon their ancestor by English kings who needed friends, although a few got their dukedom some other way (the Duke of St. Albans, for instance, owes his dukedom to that juicy Royal orange, actress Nell Gwynn).

But the popular belief that one never sees a poor duke is not entirely true. The exception is the Duke of Leinster—the Premier Duke, Marquess and Earl of Ireland—who, unaccountably, lost all his lolly in a financial crash in the 30's.

Another sure sign of the wealth of dukes is that in an age when so many British noblemen have to sell their ancestral seats to pay their way, 22 of the 26 dukes still own their own palaces. And while most noble lords open their stately homes to the public at 40¢ a visit, three of the dukes, Northumberland, Wellington and Buccleuch (pronounced Bacclue), still steadfastly refuse to let the mob in. They prefer to sit and mope in solitude in palaces which range in size from 157 to 323 rooms!

This accumulation of riches and history has given British dukes a unique position. They have managed by sheer personality, wit and will not to work to remain on top. And with their ancient titles go sinecures which are part and parcel of the British way of life. Great state occasions see them come out of the paneling in gorgeous purple robes and officiate at ceremonies which, though they have little meaning now, are really too nice to dispense with.

Most posh and most official of all British dukes is Norfolk. He is the Premier Duke of England and as Earl Marshal is the man responsible for organizing those splendid pageants at which this island race is so good. His masterpiece, of course, was Queen Elizabeth's coronation in 1953. More recently, he devised the magnificent state funeral for Sir Winston Churchill. Other dukes have other duties. The Duke of Beaufort, for instance, is the Queen's Master of the Horse and as such is vaguely responsible for everything that runs on four legs in the Queen's entourage.

ARGYLL'S MILLIONS

The Duchess of Northumberland is traditionally Her Majesty's Mistress of the Robes, although it is a long time since any noblewoman helped the Queen of England to dress. As for the Duke of Argyll, he is Hereditary Master of the Royal Household in Scotland, Lord High Admiral of the Western Coast and Isles and Hereditary Keeper of the Great Seal —occupations which keep him fairly busy for about three days of the year. The rest of the time this man, who is the Chief of Clan Campbell and has one title which goes back 45 generations, sits in the magnificent, armor-filled Inveraray Castle planning other things. For the past ten years Argyll has been trying to raise a galleon of the Spanish Armada which, laden with gold and silver, was conveniently wrecked by his ancestors well within his offshore waters. It is reputed to be worth about $12 million. Asked recently what he would do with the money if he got it, Argyll, with true ducal sang-froid, replied, "Ah. . . ."

One would think that with so much past, so much money and so little to do, British dukes would want to stay out of the limelight. Yet the eccentricities of Their Graces keep them constantly in the headlines, and in any gossip column a duke rates the first paragraph.

Three British dukes, Grafton, Bedford and Newcastle have had three wives apiece, and two, Argyll and Leinster, have had four. Among them the 26 ducal layabouts have had 57 spouses—many of them American.

Some change their duchesses quite gracefully; others, like Argyll again, go in for some very sensational divorce cases. The Argyll divorce took two years from start to finish, cost hundreds of thousands of pounds and kept everybody on tenterhooks with veiled references to strange practices. Most divorced dukes merely raised a few eyebrows by their choice of a next wife: When Newcastle remarried recently, the new duchess turned out to be the "ex" of a Turkish harbormaster.

As Master of the Horse, Duke of Beaufort accompanies Queen to horsey functions.

The headline potential of a duke is enormous. A few months ago excavators turned up a dukely precocity in the form of a coffin containing the remains of Anne Mowbray, child bride of the Duke of York, who was murdered in the Tower of London in the 15th century. He was 4½, she was 5. Argyll sells autographed socks and makes money out of it. And another duke recently went so far as to take a job as a railroad greaser for a week —to see what it was like.

One duke, who recently died, went everywhere on a bicycle, and one of his peers ate nothing but carrot tops and mushrooms for 20 years. Some dukes become hermits and appear slightly touched with ducal dementia. The late 12th Duke of Bedford shunned all his relatives during his lifetime and filled the halls of his vast Woburn Abbey with strange birds, buffaloes and a herd of white deer. His son, the present Duke, shooed the birds out and the tourists in by installing jukeboxes in the palace. And the grandson of the Duke of Wellington is making quite a bit of money as a pop singer, under the name of Jeremy Clyde.

Needless to say, when it comes to art, British dukes may not know much about it but they sure do own some. One London newspaper recently calculated that if one put all the ducal daubs together the result would be worth close to a billion dollars. Most of the dukes know this, of course, and hold on to their Old Masters.

Would the British ever do away with their dukes? It's doubtful. After all, what would British newspapers do without them?

FBI DIRECTOR HOOVER DEFENDS INFORMANTS AND MISSOURI'S SENATOR LONG COMPLAINS THAT THE U. S. HAS TOO MANY. THE SENATOR PLANS HEARINGS TO AIR THIS HOT ISSUE.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

What would you do if you saw a burglar climbing out of your neighbor's window with a bagful of swag? No doubt you would inform the police. But what would you do if you knew your neighbor was cheating on his tax returns, thus stealing from you and the other taxpayers who must make up the money he avoids paying? Or suppose your neighbor brought home valuable goods filched from his employer. Would you turn him in?

From early childhood, we have been conditioned not to tell tales out of school. Later in life, we follow this Mafia-like code in the name of discretion—a nice way of saying we can keep our mouths shut. We want the laws enforced, and we hire police to apprehend lawbreakers. But we don't like to point them out ourselves. Informers are generally despised.

Yet don't we have a duty at times to open our mouths? Isn't it time we changed our attitude toward informers? Men and women have risked—and often lost—their lives to expose subversion and crime. Should they be treated as Judas Iscariot, who sold out for 30 pieces of silver?

Defending the use of informers at a recent Senate hearing, Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach declared: "Key witnesses suffer 'accidents' and turn up, for example, in a river wearing concrete boots. Such 'accidents' are not unusual. We have lost more than 25 informants in this and similar ways in the past four years."

However, it isn't fear of such a fate that prevents the average American from going to the authorities when he knows the law has been violated. It is fear of the stigma that attaches to informers. There is the fear, too, of becoming "involved"—that some of the dirt will rub off or that carrying out a civic duty will take away precious time from business or pleasure.

FBI DIRECTOR HOOVER DEFENDS INFORMANTS AND MISSOURI'S SENATOR LONG COMPLAINS THAT THE U.S. HAS TOO MANY. THE SENATOR PLANS HEARINGS TO AIR THIS HOT ISSUE.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

What would you do if you saw a burglar climbing out of your neighbor's window with a bagful of swag? No doubt you would inform the police. But what would you do if you knew your neighbor was cheating on his tax returns, thus stealing from you and the other taxpayers who must make up the money he avoids paying? Or suppose your neighbor brought home valuable goods filched from his employer. Would you turn him in?

From early childhood, we have been conditioned not to tell tales out of school. Later in life, we follow this Mafia-like code in the name of discretion—a nice way of saying we can keep our mouths shut. We want the laws enforced, and we hire police to apprehend lawbreakers. But we don't like to point them out ourselves. Informers are generally despised.

Yet don't we have a duty at times to open our mouths? Isn't it time we changed our attitude toward informers? Men and women have risked—and often lost—their lives to expose subversion and crime. Should they be treated as Judas Iscariot, who sold out for 30 pieces of silver?

Defending the use of informers at a recent Senate hearing, Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach declared: "Key witnesses suffer 'accidents' and turn up, for example, in a river wearing concrete boots. Such 'accidents' are not unusual. We have lost more than 25 informants in this and similar ways in the past four years."

The man didn't volunteer the evidence because the trial would have spoiled his plans for a trip. The man went fishing, and the rascal went free to continue preying on the public.

ganizations. Quietly working behind the scenes, these men and women daily risk their lives to assist in the solution of major crime throughout the United States. The confidential informant is more than the valued ally of the modern-day law enforcement agency. He is an institution, an indispensable part of all walks of life.

"Every adult American today can, by searching his memory, recall occasions when he relied heavily on information which he received in confidence. Newsmen, businessmen, housewives, athletic coaches, politicians, actors and even students frequently make important decisions on the basis of facts supplied by confidential informants. The person who blindly attacks law enforcement's use of informants would be well advised to whisper his criticisms in an empty room."

Last year, informers guided the FBI to 2,671 wanted persons, including 1,246 fugitives. They assisted in the recovery of stolen goods and contraband worth $7,111,988. Information passed out by FBI informers to other law agencies led to an additional 3,012 arrests and the recovery of goods valued at $4,495,722. Some 216,000 items of criminal information received from informers were relayed by the FBI to the proper authorities.

TWO-CITY TIP-OFF

In a typical case, the FBI picked up word from an informant in Miami that unidentified Chicago thieves were planning a big jewelry "score" in Wisconsin. Agents contacted their informants in Chicago who had heard a notorious jewel thief boast about such a robbery. Not long afterward, the Tanezer Jewelry Company in Milwaukee was robbed of jewelry worth $50,000, plus 18 $100 bills, by a bandit dressed as a mailman and two stocking-masked accomplices. Thanks to the advance tip, the FBI was able to produce photos of the suspect and his known associates. Witnesses identified Michael Breslan and Glenn Richards, who were quickly picked up. They are now serving 30-year sentences in prison at Waupun, Wis.

The FBI also relies heavily on informers in security cases. It was inside information from an informer which enabled the FBI to break up a Nazi espionage ring and convict 33 German agents during World War II. The infiltration of the Communist Party has been so complete—and continues to improve—that the Party has launched a nation-wide campaign to discredit informers. Elsewhere, of course, the Reds encourage their own subjects to inform on one another.

Informers have aided inestimably, too, in the battle against organized crime. Without them, the secret and sinister Cosa Nostra might never have been breached. Narcotics commissioner Henry Giordano, whose agents deserve most of the credit, told PARADE flatly: "It is through the use of informants that we have been able to penetrate organized crime. I believe there is a need to develop a more favorable public concept of the informant."

With the help of informants, the Treasury Dept. has recovered millions of tax dollars it would have lost. "The overwhelming majority of our informants," says Internal Revenue commissioner Sheldon Cohen, "act out of a sense of public duty." Last year alone, thanks to informants, the Internal Revenue Service scooped in $18 million in dodged taxes and penalties. Internal Revenue offers up to 10 per cent of the tax recovered, depending upon the usefulness of the information. Yet only one informer in 20 asks for the reward. Of the 4,494 who claimed rewards in fiscal 1964, only 822 were allowed.

Practically every agency in government has its informants, paid and unpaid. Some agencies have built up a stable of informants who function as ear-to-the-ground employees. Such unlikely agencies as the Agriculture, Commerce, Interior, Post Office and Health, Education and Welfare Departments pay undercover tipsters for information. Agriculture, for example, pays for information on grocers who accept food stamps for cigarettes, meat and other improper items. The Interior Department rewards tipsters who inform on poachers.

For people with a nose for rewards like the bounty hunters of the Old West, informing has become a livelihood. Some federal agencies actually pay local policemen for information, though it would seem that men hired to uphold the law should co-operate with federal agents out of duty.

Indeed, the federal government is swarming with so many informers that Sen. Edward Long (D., Mo.) is looking into the whole business of informing as part of his investigation into government eavesdropping. Yet even his investigators have used informants to inform on informants.

He told PARADE: "In totalitarian countries the ordinary citizen is encouraged to spy and inform at every turn. Neighbors spy on each other, husbands and wives are expected to inform on each other, children on their parents. We should discourage spying and snooping as much as possible. I can see no reason whatever for such agencies as the Internal Revenue Service and the Department of Agriculture to pay informers. In my view, it is downright un-American and should be eliminated forthwith."

He pointed out that, in Pittsburgh, the IRS spent four years convicting five gamblers, then offered to go easy on them if they would testify against an assistant police chief. Long's investigators are convinced that the IRS spent so much energy on the gamblers simply to pressure them into testifying against the police officer. All five took the stand against him, swearing that he had been paid protection money. But since it was the word of five hoodlums against the word of a man with an unblemished record, he was not convicted.

Government agents admitted to PARADE, quite frankly, that they cultivate prostitutes, homosexuals, drug addicts, small crooks and other social outcasts to get information. They seek out people with grudges and use the threat of prosecution to bring pressure on reluctant informants to talk. The lawmen say with a shrug, "You won't get inside information on crime from a preacher."

Of course, they also seek the help of reputable citizens—janitors who can keep an eye on suspicious tenants, taxi drivers who may know where the hoods hang out, barbers and waiters who work at these hangouts, bellboys and doormen.

The lawmen will also tell you that women are the best informants. They are most interested in people, pay more attention to detail and as a rule can give better descriptions of people they have seen only briefly. Mobsters are also more careless about what they say in front of women, regarding them apparently as part of the scenery. Of course, mobsters' molls obey the same code of silence as their men. But if spurned, they can be dangerous.

It was a woman—the "woman in red"—who helped federal agents shoot down gun-crazy John Dillinger in Chicago after a long trail of bank robberies, murder and jail escapes. Anna Sage was no saint; she was the madam of a bordello. She was jealous because Dillinger was paying attention to one of her younger girls. She was also frightened because the immigration authorities were threatening her with deportation to her native Rumania.

Anna Sage tipped off the Chicago police, who in turn notified the FBI that on a certain hot July night Dillinger would take her and the girl friend to the Biograph Theater. Anna would wear an orange-red skirt. She got her revenge; Dillinger was gunned down. She also got a cash award. But Anna Sage was still deported, the one price the authorities were not prepared to pay.

MOTIVATED BY SPITE

Spite is the motive, say lawmen, that turns most people into informers. Others seek immunity for their own crimes by squealing on their associates. One narcotics offender sought to ingratiate himself with officers by setting up an associate. The pusher provided the narcotics, begged the associate to deliver them to a contact, then arranged for an undercover agent to pose as the contact. The pusher hoped to win the gratitude of the lawmen at the expense of his associate. The plot backfired.

Some inform on their colleagues in crime in order to eliminate competition. The narcotics office in Philadelphia, as a classic case, received an anonymous phone call from a man who spoke with a Chinese accent. He tipped them off that they would find an opium-smoking joint at No. 69 on a Chinatown street. On the way to No. 69, agents with a nose for opium smelled incriminating smoke coming from No. 71. So they raided No. 71 first. The horrified owner rushed up and whispered beseechingly, "Wlong number. Next door. You go No. 69."

The hard fact remains that law enforcement would be next to impossible without informers. Nobody wants neighbor-to-neighbor snooping. Nobody wants government agents prod-nosing into private lives. But law enforcement would be a lot simpler—against both criminals and subversives—if honest citizens would speak up. There would be less need to pay informers, because every honest citizen would be on the law officers' side.

In the last analysis, the liberty and rights of the citizens lie with the citizens themselves. To protect these rights, would you be an informer if the occasion arose?

BRANDS TESTED	% POLY-UNSATURATES
Saffola	43.2%
Mazola	37.8%
Fleischmann's	35.7%
Imperial	34.6%
Kraft	32.5%

Because the poly-unsaturation content of individual margarines may vary slightly between production runs, the percentage figures above are averages of the total samples of each brand, and are based upon the most recent analysis by the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute.

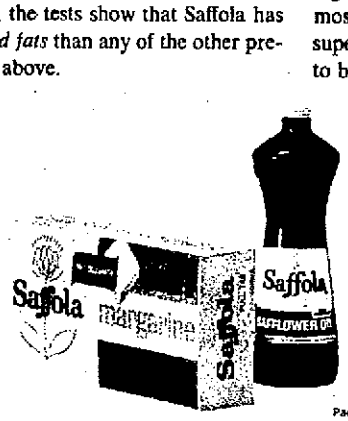

If you buy margarine for poly-unsaturation—as well as for flavor and quality—the results of a new laboratory test by the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute are important to you!

In recent tests by America's leading independent testing laboratory, margarine samples were picked at random from grocers' shelves all across the country. These tests revealed an important difference: Saffola has more poly-unsaturates than Mazola, Fleischmann's, Imperial, Kraft and other national brands—and by a considerable margin. At the same time, the tests show that Saffola has 14% less saturated fats than any of the other premium margarines above.

Why is Saffola both highest in poly-unsaturates and lowest in saturated fats? The answer is on every package you buy. Light, golden Safflower Oil is the main ingredient that goes into Saffola margarine. And Safflower Oil is 36% higher in poly-unsaturates than Corn Oil—principal ingredient of the other premium margarines.

A flavor every other margarine would like to have!

Whether you use Saffola as a spread—or in cooking—its light, golden flavor will surprise even the most loyal dairy product user. For taste, and for superior quality, Saffola gives you more reasons to buy margarine than you've ever had before.

ANECDOTE OF THE WEEK

RED & GEORGIA

■ Red Skelton at the wheel of his Rolls-Royce was driving along the Nevada desert with his wife and sister-in-law. Presently both women began yelling at him, giving diverse instructions as to speed, direction, and roadmarks. After 30 minutes of this, Skelton stopped the car, turned to his wife and said, "O.K., Georgia. Make up your mind. Who's driving this car—you or your sister?" ■

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF LARGE MAIL VOLUME, PARADE CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

GROWING AMERICA. In the next ten years the major population explosion in the U.S. will be in the family-forming age groups, which means a further business expansion in consumer goods and services. In the table below you will note by 1975 the number of young people in the 18- to 29-year-old bracket will boom 50%.

Total U.S.	1964	1975	% Increase
Population	192,000,000	226,000,000	18
Under 5 years	20,700,000	25,200,000	24
5 to 13	35,200,000	38,600,000	10
14 to 17	14,200,000	16,700,000	19
18 to 21	11,300,000	16,000,000	42
22 to 29	18,300,000	28,500,000	56
30 to 44	35,800,000	36,300,000	1
45 to 64	38,500,000	43,400,000	14
65 and over	17,900,000	21,200,000	18

Ten years from now America will have approximately 65 million people, age 45 or older—160 million younger.

FERTILITY DRUGS FOR MEN. Encouraged by the news that women injected with the hormone, gonadotrophin, can become mothers of multiple births, several sterile Australian men are paying $1,000 each in an attempt to father children of their own. These men, all residents of Sydney, are taking pills made of clomiphene, a drug thought to be safer than gonadotrophin. In England recently a number of infertile men in Birmingham were given injections of gonadotrophin, and none has yet succeeded in fathering a child. Australian doctors hope it will be different with clomiphene.

EARTHQUAKE FORECASTING. Is there any way of predicting an earthquake? Is there any telltale shock pattern which can serve as a warning? The Japanese Meteorological Service reports that a series of heavy earth tremors sometimes acts as a predictor -- that, at least, was true in the cases of the recent Chile and Alaska earthquakes. In this country ESSA, the recently formed agency (Environmental Science Services Administration) uniting the Weather Bureau and the Coast & Geodetic Survey, will eventually try to forecast all the different types of natural catastrophes -- storms, hurricanes, and hopefully one day, even earthquakes. But first, seismologists must make giant strides in learning how to predict them.

I just gave my wife a dozen roses to match the color I always see in her hair. It's called Pin Curler Silver! . . . I don't wanna complain, but the last time I saw my wife without pin curlers was the day we got married . . . Not that she wasn't wearing any. She just had a veil over them! . . . You gotta see it to believe it. Wearing high heels and pin curlers—this woman is seven feet tall . . . Looks like a sexy TV antenna!

If you're over 40, do yourself a favor and stay out of discotheques. At this age it's no longer dancing. It's committing suicide one bone at a time.

Isn't it amazing the tricks they can do in those TV commercials? I'll tell you how amazing it is. You know who the Jolly Green Giant is? Mickey Rooney! . . . If you look real close at his feet, you'll see the secret. Elevator calluses!

I was talking to a college kid yesterday and I asked him: "Do you go in for athletics much?" He said: "Well, I'm an end." I said: "An end on the football team?" He said: "No, an end. I sit-in a lot!"

Did you hear about the airline that used to show Dracula pictures, but no more? After every flight, two little punctures in the gas tank.

I wanna tell you how nervous people are. The newest calorie books gives the count for fingernails.

DON'T LISTEN TO HEARING AID GYPS

by ROBERT E. MACKIN & CHARLES STICKLE

"This brand-new device—one of the greatest advances in space age science—will enable you to hear again."

Spoken in a professional atmosphere designed to inspire confidence, false claims like this have heartened tens of thousands of Americans with impaired hearing and have set the stage for high-pressure salesmen whose only aim is to sell hearing aids at grossly inflated prices.

No more complicated than the lowest-priced portable transistor radio on the market today, hearing aids have been shrouded with a veil of scientific and medical quackery by a small but nonetheless troublesome contingent of dealers and salesmen.

On Long Island early this year, men and women with impaired hearing paid as much as $425 to a dealer who told them they were purchasing hearing aids which represented the "greatest leap forward in the century." The dealer, who sold $37,000 worth of ordinary hearing aids in nine months assured some customers that the instrument would enable them to "stop being deaf."

In Oregon, a dealer claimed his hearing aids made the human ear "no longer necessary."

In Buffalo, N. Y., hearing aid buyers bought devices which they were told had a permanent power source utilizing body heat and would operate indefinitely. Actually, its power source, an ordinary battery, required periodic recharging.

While there have been significant "cosmetic" advances permitting partial concealment of hearing aids there has been no recent major improvement in their sound-producing capacity.

"No new and revolutionary development relating to the principles of amplification and transmission of sound as applied to hearing aids has taken place in more than a decade," states Dr. William C. Hardy, director of the Speech and Hearing Center of Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

Unscrupulous dealers are able to profit because few hearing aid buyers know anything about the product they need. They do not have common sources of information to draw on as do the buyers of homes, automobiles, television sets and washing machines. And their ignorance is compounded by dealers who cloak their commercial operations behind a façade of medical professionalism.

Sometimes outright quackery is practiced. Not long ago, a Brooklyn salesman told a woman suffering from headaches, difficulty in breathing and heart palpitations to "get rid of your medicine" and prescribed a hearing aid.

Although leading hearing aid manufacturers and ethical distributors and salesmen condemn these tactics, the fact is that virtually anybody, regardless of moral character or technical skill and qualifications, can enter the business.

While nearly all states require that optometrists, podiatrists, barbers and beauticians, not to mention doctors, dentists, architects and engineers, pass rigid qualifying examinations and be licensed, only Oregon has a law requiring licensing of hearing aid dealers and salesmen.

PRICES OUT OF LINE

The chief concern of hearing aid buyers is the price of these relatively simple devices. In 1962 prices of hearing aids were the subject of an intensive inquiry by the U.S. Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Antitrust and Monopoly. The committee found hearing aid prices to be excessively high and far out of line with manufacturing costs.

In an effort to lift professional standards, the Society of Hearing Aid Audiologists now requires that dealers and salesmen who apply for membership

PRICES OUT OF LINE

The chief concern of hearing aid buyers is the price of these relatively simple devices. In 1962 prices of hearing aids were the subject of an intensive inquiry by the U.S. Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Antitrust and Monopoly. The committee found hearing aid prices to be excessively high and far out of line with manufacturing costs.

In an effort to lift professional standards, the Society of Hearing Aid Audiologists now requires that dealers and salesmen who apply for membership

(1) complete a basic course and pass a final examination in methods of proper hearing aid service as well as in hearing and hearing disorders, (2) be endorsed by a physician and (3) subscribe to the Code of Ethics of the Hearing Aid Industry through which dealers pledge to refrain from misrepresentation.

Another code, drafted this year by the New York Hearing Aid Dealers Guild, condemns the use of trade names implying that a dealer is an "institution" or "clinic." It also condemns scare tactics and unwarranted claims for a product.

Many believe that questionable sales practices are inevitable until a completely medical approach is adopted. To accomplish this it has been suggested that hearing aids be sold only on the basis of a prescription.

Such a plan would provide that only otologists—medical doctors who specialize in treatment of diseases of the ear—or noncommercial audiologists—individuals professionally trained in acoustics related to human hearing and rehabilitation of the hard of hearing—could prescribe hearing aids. The patient, assured of a competent diagnosis, would then take his prescription to a dealer. The dealer would be accountable not only to the customer but to the physician or audiologist.

State licensing has also been suggested as a means to eliminate quacks and incompetents. Oregon's licensing law provides that all persons selling hearing aids be examined for their basic knowledge of the physics of sound, the physiology of the human ear and competence in the techniques of testing individuals for hearing aids. When the law became effective, 25 per cent of the hearing aid dealers in the state failed to qualify.

TIPS ON BUYING

If you are one of the 16 million Americans with a hearing problem, these common sense suggestions can be helpful:

- Before purchasing a hearing aid, visit an otologist for a hearing examination or a nonprofit hearing clinic where an audiologist, usually supervised by an otologist, will administer a series of tests to determine the extent of hearing loss. These clinics permit you to try on various hearing aids to determine which one is best suited for you.
- If possible, obtain your new hearing aid for a trial period. Some dealers offer a 10- to 30-day trial so you can see how the aid works under all conditions—at home and at the office, driving the car, in the theater, on the telephone, listening to the radio or TV. Or try renting an aid. Many reputable dealers will permit you to apply rent payments toward the eventual purchase.
- Make sure the dealer will service your aid. Ask the cost of the service and parts.
- Go to a reputable dealer. Check his record with the Better Business Bureau or the Federal Trade Commission. If you believe that a dealer has misrepresented himself or his product, report the facts to one of these agencies.

BRINGING UP BABY®
HINTS COLLECTED
BY MRS. DAN GERBER,
MOTHER OF FIVE

Baby's shirt, socks and pants are by Gerber, too!

Your baby's "declarations" of independence

Your baby declares his (or her) independence in many ways . . . and the telltale signs of his development are all there for you to see.

Examples? When he learns to reach and grab for something that's not been offered. When fingers nimble-up enough to tug at a sock to free a foot. Or try to make a spoon behave.

These are the things that spark mental and physical advancement and turn a baby into an irresistible personality.

Another independent move

Your baby may say: "I want my way" by rejecting a food occasionally. That's not bad. It's an aspect of growing up. If he takes a stand against spinach, say, why not dish up another variety . . . like mixed vegetables? Gerber offers so many good vegetables.

Gerber Strained and Junior Vegetables provide a variety of vitamins and minerals . . . with the green and yellow ones supplying high vitamin-A values, the deep green ones appreciable amounts of iron. (That's why baby should have one green or yellow vegetable per day.)

Gerber Vegetables are "custom-cooked" according to their own requirements to bring out the last word in flavor; preserve the utmost in nutritive values.

Safety division

As your baby learns to do more things for himself, your role as "guardian angel" will be intensified. A few alert signals:

- When he learns to hang on to a toy, make sure it's clean, safe, free of detachable parts. (Babies mouth everything, you know.)

- The grabbing stage means any possible household hazard should be kept out of harm's reach. Things such as: dangling cords or floor-drooping plants. Lighters, matches, cleaning compounds, etc.

Dan Gerber on preparation

"Safeguarding your baby's food is the job of Gerber specialists. That means not only guarding the cleanliness and purity of the food but precious food values as well. To cite but one example: Gerber Fruits. They're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to 'lock in' color and flavor and retain vitamin values to a high degree.

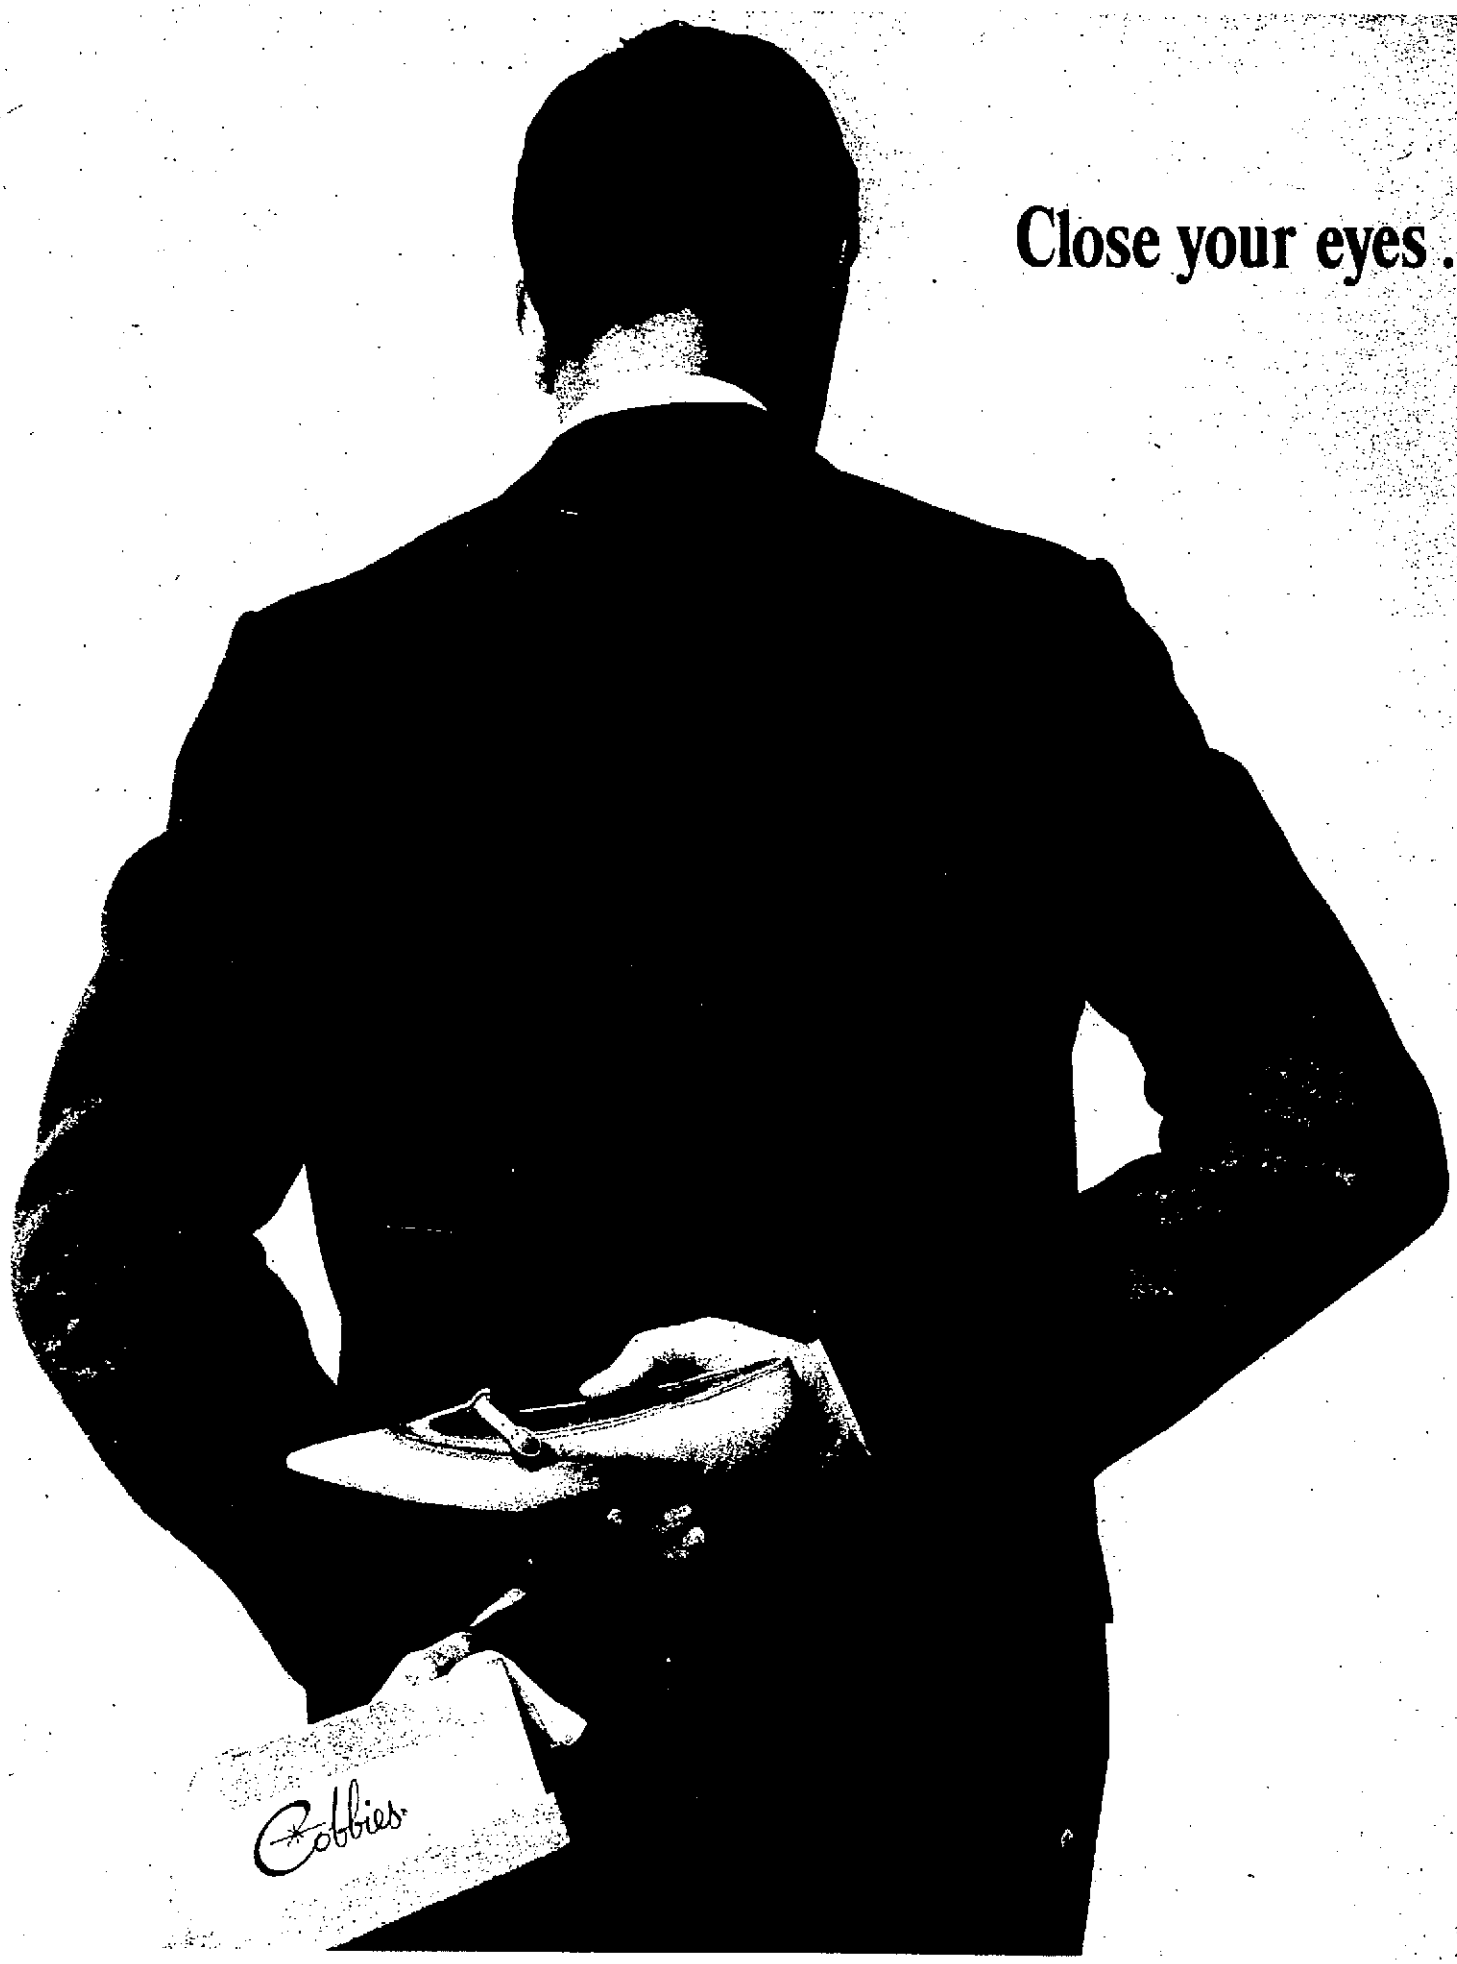

"This is just one of several 'custom-cooking' methods that work for your baby's benefit."

Note: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods—infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

"Babies are our business... our only business!"®

These are the things that spark mental and physical advancement and turn a baby into an irresistible personality.

Another independent move

Your baby may say: "I want my way" by rejecting a food occasionally. That's not bad. It's an aspect of growing up. If he takes a stand against spinach, say, why not dish up another variety . . . like mixed vegetables? Gerber offers so many good vegetables.

Gerber Strained and Junior Vegetables provide a variety of vitamins and minerals . . . with the green and yellow ones supplying high vitamin-A values, the deep green ones appreciable amounts of iron. (That's why baby should have one green or yellow vegetable per day.)

Gerber Vegetables are "custom-cooked" according to their own requirements to bring out the last word in flavor; preserve the utmost in nutritive values.

Safety division

As your baby learns to do more things for himself, your role as "guardian angel" will be intensified. A few alert signals:

- When he learns to hang on to a toy, make sure it's clean, safe, free of detachable parts. (Babies mouth everything, you know.)

- The grabbing stage means any possible household hazard should be kept out of harm's reach. Things such as: dangling cords or floor-drooping plants. Lighters, matches, cleaning compounds, etc.

Dan Gerber on preparation

"Safeguarding your baby's food is the job of Gerber specialists. That means not only guarding the cleanliness and purity of the food but precious food values as well. To cite but one example: Gerber Fruits. They're flash-cooked in a matter of seconds to 'lock in' color and flavor and retain vitamin values to a high degree.

"This is just one of several 'custom-cooking' methods that work for your baby's benefit."

Note: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods – infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods – to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

"Babies are our business... our only business!"®

SPAGHETTI & STEAK

by Beth Merriman PARADE FOOD EDITOR

The next time you plan to serve spaghetti, try this new and delightful recipe. Cook the spaghetti "al dente" (on the firm side) as the Italians do; top it with thin, rare slices of tender flank steak; then spoon on the savory herb-flavored sauce. It's a winner! Give the rest of the meal an Italian touch, too. Begin with canned minestrone soup. Serve bread sticks and tossed green salad with the main course. End with fruit and cheese.

- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1 green pepper, sliced
- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 cans (8 oz. each) tomato sauce
- ¼ cup hickory flavor catsup
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 1 bay leaf
- ¼ teaspoon oregano
- ¼ teaspoon basil
- 1 pkg. (8 oz.) thin spaghetti
- 1 flank steak (1½ to 2 lbs.)
- Instant unseasoned meat tenderizer

Cook onions, green pepper and garlic in oil until onions are crisp-tender. Stir in tomato sauce, catsup, salt, pepper and bay leaf. Cover; simmer 30 minutes. During last 10 minutes, add oregano and basil. Meanwhile cook spaghetti according to package directions. Treat steak with tenderizer as directed on jar; broil 3 to 5 minutes on each side, according to degree of rareness desired. Slice steak into thin slices, on the diagonal. Drain spaghetti; heap on platter; arrange steak slices on top; garnish with a ribbon of sauce. Serve remaining sauce separately. Makes 6 servings.

A new job is a big moment in a girl's career. And it's easy to dress for the new venture. There are styles for every taste and shape. Dresses may be high-waisted or hipster type, with the body "floating" under the fabric. Then there's the modified princess with a swingy skirt, slim sheaths for sophisticates, smocks for ingénues. Red is most popular this season, with yellow a close second. And keep your boss in mind when choosing office clothes. Men like girls to be attractive, but not conspicuous. Dresses that ride above the knees are not for office wear; mid-kneecap length is better. Your new boss will be the first to agree.

GENERAL MILLS

RESOURCEFUL YOUNG AMERICANS

THEY WORK FOR THEIR FUN IN EUROPE

by MELISSA LAIRD

Pollie Pearce and John Rousseau are among a new kind of American student-visitor to Europe. They had summer jobs in Holland.

The tall, good-looking young man polishing glass and chrome in the lobby of the hotel in Rotterdam, Holland, caused the heads of a lot of American guests to swivel this summer. He looked so much like someone from home. He was.

John Rousseau, 22, of Chappaqua, N.Y., was one of a growing number of U.S. students—some 2,000 this summer—who enrich both their visits to Europe and their finances by taking jobs.

The finances are enriched just enough to permit the students to spend two to three months in Europe. The pay ranges from $20 to $40 a week, sufficient to get along on, and the jobs from waiting on tables to tutoring in English.

The student workers are in search of a more meaningful experience than following a tour of museums or leading a Bohemian existence on the Left Bank in Paris. They want to get to know what a country, its people and its ways are really like. But their funds are limited.

"If you don't have much money, working gives you an excellent chance to see another country," says Rousseau, a graduate of Amherst College who enters Columbia Law School this month. "And you meet people of another nationality on a more personal basis."

Rousseau's round-trip ship passage was a graduation present from his parents. He applied for a job on the housekeeping staff of the Rotterdam Hilton Hotel because he felt its being American-operated would reduce the language problem. But Rousseau found, as do most of our student workers, that language is generally an imagined barrier anyway. English is spoken widely throughout Europe.

Together with other employees from Greece, Spain, Italy and England, Rousseau mopped floors, scrubbed and polished. He was paid $30 a week, with which he was able, on the Dutch standard of living, to pay his portion of the rent for the apartment he shared with two other students and keep himself in food and pocket money.

In the evenings, after working from 7 A.M. to 4:30 P.M., Rousseau explored Rotterdam. On his one day off each week, which is customary for summer jobs, he visited other points of interest in Holland on a $40 motor bike.

THEY ALSO SERVE

On a trip to Amsterdam, 40 miles distant, Rousseau met 20-year-old Pollie Pearce, of Wolfeboro, N.H., who was working as a waitress in a hotel there. A junior in hotel administration at Cornell University, she was required to work in a hotel during the summer for credit and chose to do it in Europe.

Pollie lived in an apartment with two other girls, one Dutch and one American. Of her $120 monthly salary, $27 was her share of the rent. She got on well with her Dutch fellow workers, but was troubled by their opinion of American students.

"They seem to think all American kids have lots of money and are slumming when they take jobs like this," Pollie says. "I almost had them convinced it isn't true when President Johnson gave his daughter Luci a Sting Ray for her birthday. Then I had to start all over again."

Pollie's only personal complaint is that "there just isn't enough time to do and see everything."

Students planning to work abroad next summer can land their jobs as John Rousseau did, by applying to a U.S. concern which has overseas branches. There also are agencies which offer placement services. Some, like the U.S. National Student Association, New York City, are reputable. Others are after fast bucks, so some caution is called for. USNSA has published a small, useful book titled Work, Study, Travel Abroad.

When a student is notified that he's been hired by a European employer, he's on his own to arrange transportation over and back. Chartered flights are one of the least expensive means, and many colleges sponsor them. Round-trip fares are about $250. Student ship voyages are a slower but chummier way to get there and cost approximately $350 round trip.

Not all students who take jobs in Europe stick it out. Some become disenchanted after washing dishes or cleaning out cow barns for a couple of weeks and pack up and go home, or join up with other students who are touring. Those who stay on return at summer's end feeling handsomely repaid by new friendships, new experiences and new understanding.

As a member of the cleaning staff of a Rotterdam hotel, John mops a floor. He also swept and polished.

Working as a waitress, Pollie serves wine in Amsterdam Hilton dining room. She worked six days a week.

Pollie helps John try on wooden shoe on visit to Kinderdijk. On their days off, working American students visit points of interest.

Real Relief from Hemorrhoids

When simple hemorrhoids cause agony and embarrassing itch, use DeWitt's ManZan—now even more effective with Allantoin to aid natural healing. ManZan also contains benzocaine to ease pain, and a vasoconstrictor to help reduce swelling. For soothing action and fast palliative relief, try

MANZAN OINTMENT OR SUPPOSITORIES

A man needs Jockey support. And until recently he could get it only one way—the classic Jockey brief. Then we added holes to that famous 13-piece construction. Presto: the Jockey Super brief. It has a double-mesh pouch that molds itself to a man for a finer fit and feel . . . for ventilation where it's needed. And it gives the same exclusive support and protection as our classic brief. There are other innovations. A higher-rising waistband for extra comfort. A double-reinforced seat for lots more wear.

It costs you $1.50 for a little less cotton and a lot more comfort. The Jockey Super® brief in the package with the blue diamond. (If you're happy with the classic Jockey brief, it's still only $1.25 or $3.69 for the 3-pack.)

8 times more power to stop pain of HEMORRHOIDS!

Soothing Nupercainal concentrates on pain! Prolonged relief of pain, burning and itching starts in minutes.

If you suffer the almost unbearable misery of hemorrhoids, remember this about remedies you can buy for temporary relief. The leading "shrinking" preparation contains no anesthetic to relieve that pain.

No wonder so many doctors recommend Nupercainal Ointment. Soothing Nupercainal stops pain, itching, burning fast . . . gives prolonged relief . . . because it has over eight times more pain-killing power than the other most commonly-used topical anesthetic!

Nupercainal quickly puts raw nerve ends to sleep . . . thus puts pain to sleep. Lets you go about your business . . . relieved of the stabbing pain, burning and itching torment of hemorrhoids. Get Nupercainal Ointment today—handy applicator with each tube. Start to live again, in comfort!

Miracle Cushion Holds False Teeth Tight

Eases Sore Gums

Snug® brand Denture Cushions are a triumph of science, a sensational new over-soft plastic relining that gets rid of the annoyance of loose, badly fitting false teeth. Snug eases sore, irritated gums due to loose dentures. Help prevent food particles getting under plates. Applied in minutes, makes wobbliest plates stay firmly in place—gives perfect comfort. Eat anything—talk, laugh—plates "stay put."

- Sticks to Denture
- No More Daily "Fixing"

Snug re-liners last for several weeks. Stay soft and pliable—harmless to gums or dentures. Peel right out when replacement is needed. No daily bother with adhesives. Get Snug brand Denture Cushions today! 2 liners for upper or lower plates $1.50. At all druggists.

Weeks Of Back Pain Now Relieved

"After weeks of pain in my back and hips, I tried DeWitt's Pills—got wonderful relief," says Mrs. R. Gardner, Waterloo, Iowa.

People write in every day praising the remarkable relief they get with DeWitt's Pills.

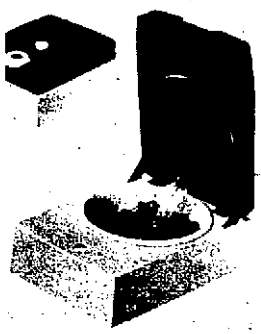

DeWitt's Pills act fast with a proven analgesic to relieve pain of backache. Mild diuretic action helps eliminate retained fluids and flush out irritating wastes that can cause physical distress. If pain persists, see your doctor. DeWitt's Pills often succeed where others fail—quickly relieve minor muscle aches and pains, too. Insist on genuine DeWitt's Pills.

Over 1¼ million DeWitt's Pills are sold by druggists day after day after day, the world over—a tribute to their amazing action!

TAKE A LOOK AT THESE NEW IDEAS FOR YOUR HOME AND FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

Mirror rack: Here's a mirror and rack combination (above, left) you can install in convenient position on the back of a closet door. It's 12" high, holds up to 24 ties or belts. $10.95. Hendry House, Dept. PP, Box 183, Upper Montclair, N.J.

Pet feeder: This automatic one (above, right) will serve pet meals on time even when you're away. Just place food in removable inner bowl, close lid and set timer for any interval between ½ and 12 hours. A top reservoir holds water and, when time has elapsed, feeder will open automatically and water (if used) will flow over food. Unit is bug- and dustproof, holds three cans food, one pt. water. $14.95. Hammacher Schlemmer, Dept. PP, 145 E. 57 St., New York, N.Y. 10022.

For your car: Newest application for popular hi-intensity lamps is in the car. You can plug this one (above, left) in the cigarette lighter socket. It's good for checking maps and for passengers who want to read without disturbing driver. A bracket attaches it to car door and the cord is long enough to allow use outside as work or signal light. Cord unwinds and retracts and the whole unit—lamp, shade, movable gooseneck—retracts into case which fits in glove compartment. $9.95. Dynamic Classics, Dept. PP, 220 E. 23 St., New York, N.Y.

Portable with color: Due in stores within the next few weeks, here's the first U. S. portable color TV set (above, right). It weighs 24 lbs., uses a new 11" rectangular tube that provides 60-sq.-in. viewing area. Polystyrene cabinet has walnut-grained finish, retractable carry handle. $249.95. General Electric, Dept. PP, Electronics Park, Syracuse, N. Y. 13201.

Furniture fixer: You'll find it easier to repair broken or damaged furniture with a new epoxy material in stick form. Two putty-like sticks come in a package; one is resin, the other is hardener. To use, cut off equal parts, mix between hands, apply. The material is easy to mold or shape—and will not run, sag or drip. It hardens in 1½ hours. You can use it to bond, seal and fill wood. 98¢. Atlas Mineral Prods. Div., Electric Storage Battery Co., Dept. PP, Mertztown, Pa.

Sheaffer's new stainless steel ballpoints go around in the best circles

This is part of a sheet from one of our automatic writing machines. Notice that, after 57,600 circles, the ones on the right are still uniform while those on the left are skipping. All of the circles were made by stainless steel refills, but the ones on the right were made by the new Sheaffer. The circles prove that stainless steel alone is not the answer to better ballpoint writing. The answer is the right combination of socket, ball and ink. Our researchers started with the ball.

The ball in most ballpoints is "textured" or filled with tiny craters that pick up ink and transfer it to the paper. In other ballpoints, the edges of these tiny craters are rough . . . cause wear inside the socket and prevent the ball from turning smoothly. We found a way to actually polish the "burrs" off these microscopic craters.

Then we put it in a stainless steel housing or socket. Stainless steel is harder, less porous than the metals used in some ballpoints. With stainless steel and the polished ball, wear was reduced to practically zero for the life of the ink supply.

Next we prepared a special formula of Sheaffer's "Dokumental" Skrip ink to perfectly match the characteristics of the new ballpoint tip. It lubricates the socket and ball. The last drop flows as smoothly as the first drop and we put it in a metal container to increase its usable life.

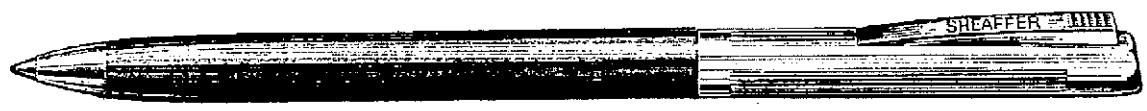

The result is the most perfect ballpoint writing ever. The new Sheaffer starts writing when you do and lays down a solid line from start to finish. Your writing looks better. It never skips or smudges. It glides smoother, requires less pressure. It lets you write all the time in your accustomed writing position.

All Sheaffer ballpoints of $1.95 and up now have these new improvements. Try one wherever Sheaffers are sold. If you already own a Sheaffer ballpoint, you can buy a new stainless steel refill to fit it for 98¢.

MEANWHILE, RELAX. THE PLACE IS YOURS. THE REWARDS OF BEING A PERFECT WOMAN COULD BE — MY HAND IN MARRIAGE!

YOUR HAND, MY EYE!! THE ONLY WAY I WANT TO SEE YOUR HAND IS WAVING GOODBYE AS I HEAD FOR HOME, YOU CREEP!

WHAT'S YER RACKET, PABLO?

I'M AN ARTIST.

AND TO PAY YOU BACK FOR YOUR KINDNESS, I'M GOING TO DO A PORTRAIT FOR YOU. NAME YOUR SUBJECT, FRIEND!

WELL, LEMME SEE--- I GUESS A PICTURE O' SUE WOULD BE NICE T' HANG UP.

DESCRIBE THIS SUE, FRIEND!

WELL, SHE'S GOT YELLER HAIR, KIND O' CURLY AND SHINY--- SLOWER--WHAT'S THE SHAPE OF HER FACE?

WELL?

YER GOT IT, PABLO! THAT'S THE LIVIN', BREATHIN' IMAGE O' MY SUE!! HEY—I WONDER WHERE SHE IS. SHE HASN'T BEEN HOME SINCE THIS MORNIN' WHEN SHE WENT OUT T' WATER THE LAWN!!

A PROMISE IS A PROMISE, Y'KNOW!

I JUST CAN'T BELIEVE IT!

I THINK I BETTER GO HAVE A TALK WITH TH' OL' BOY!

WELL! JUST LOOKIT TH' GUY WHO WAS GONNA STAY OUT OF TH' DINOSAUR BUSINESS!

EH?

IT DON'T LOOK LIKE TH' PROMISE Y'MADE ME WAS MUCH GOOD!

AW, NOW, OOP, MY GOSH, I...

HEY, WIZER!

...THANKS FOR KEEPIN' AN EYE ON OUR PROPERTY FOR US!

YEAH...WE DIDN'T WANT ANYBODY SWIPIN' OUR DINOSAUR

'S OKAY, BOYS, GLAD TO DO IT!

GEE WHIZ, WIZER, I DIDN'T KNOW YOU.....

FORGET IT, OOP, YOU'RE DOIN' OKAY, BOY....

...I KNEW ALL ALONG I COULD DEPEND ON YOU T'KEEP TH' PROMISE YOU MADE ME! YESSIR!

WHAT'S HE TALKIN' ABOUT?

...TH' ONLY PROMISE I EVER MADE HIM WAS THAT I WOULDN'T GO 'ROUND DISSEMINATING WISDOM!

OH!

WHAT'D YOU SAY?

NOTHING... JUST 'OH'
